BATTLE ANALYSIS

By the Military Expert of the New York Times.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright.]

NEW YORK, June 21.—The past week has been devoted almost entirely to the great Austrian effort of the year. Germany has been pressing Austria for some time to begin operations in order to lessen the resistance on the front in France and, because of the unsettled conditions within the empire, Austria has declined up to last Sunday. Then it seems, the conditions which had prevented her yielding to the German pressure before had become so exaggerated that the only possible solution was a successful offensive against Italy in the hope that a further conquest which would augment the visible supply of food would at the same time still the growing clamor against conditions.

The Italian line at the outset of the attack possessed certain advantages and equally certain disadvantages. Probably it was L shaped very much the same as the line of the Russians in 1915, when their left stretched across the Carpathian crests and their right along the Dunajec. Obviously, such a line is dangerous if either one of the sides should give way. The Piave front, if forced, would have to give way westward, taking in flank and rear the defenses in the mountains. The mountain front if forced would do exactly the same thing to the Piave front. To understand just what the situation was in this particular case it is necessary to turn to the railroads upon which the Italians depended and still depend on for their supplies.

FED BY RAILWAY.

The Italians in the mountain areas between Lake Garda and the Piave River are fed almost entirely by the railroad which runs from Milan through Verona, Vicenza and Treviso to Udine. Leaving this railroad there are a number of branches reaching northward into the Italian positions. These tentacles leave the main stem at the points named, there being six of such branches. This feature of the communication system permitted the establishment of advanced bases in the mountain towns which were readily fed with supplies. Not only did this main stem feed the mountains, however. It reached also the Piave front and this front could be adequately fed in no other way.

There is another railway, generally paralleling the first, a road from Mantua through Legnago and Padua to Venice. But this road is far in the rear of the mountain positions and reaches the Piave front by only one spur. It is therefore supplemental to the first and is not adequate by itself to transmit the required amount of supplies to the front.

If then the Austrians could come down through the mountains to the plain of Northern Italy and cut the railroad through Vicenza, the Piave line would to all practical purposes be cut off from its base and would therefore have to give way. This would result in a wide retreat to Adige, a retreat accompanied by heavy loss in guns and in material, to say nothing of men. On the other hand, if the Piave line could be forced, the tentacles which reach up from the main line to the mountains would have been severed one after another and eventually the entire mountain front would have to be abandoned and the Italians would have to execute a complete change of front.

AUSTRIAN PLAN.

Generally, this was the Austrian plan. They planned to deliver an attack in force all along the front from Asiago plateau to the sea. If the mountain front showed signs of LONDON, June 22.—The Daily Express's Amsterdam correspondent says that the Austrian Socialists, Seitz and Ellenbogen, who have arrived at The Hague, have given some of their friends there interesting information regarding conditions in their country. They admit that Austria is on her last war legs, adding that what Russia, Serbia and Italy have not achieved, namely the smashing of Austria, is now being accomplished by Germany, Austria's faithful ally, who is starving her to death.

The Socialist delegates expressed themselves very gloomily about the future prospects of their country and gave the impression to all who saw them that Austria is on the eve of an epoch-making catastrophe.

It also is known that the Austrian government, the minute the two asked leave to come to Holland to see Troelstra, handed them their passports in the hope that their visit here would be followed by one to England soon and might advance the cause of peace. Had Vienna known that Troelstra would not come to England, the Socialists would not have received their passports.

Reports today point to the Austrian situation as becoming more serious. The Austrian authorities show complete helplessness in the face of Germany's bullying. All they can do is to make vague promises.

Nothing has been heard from Kaiser Charles since the bread ration was reduced. The papers do not even publish the usual court circular referring to his movements.

WASHINGTON ADVICES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22. — Today's State Department advices make plain that there is no doubt of the extremely serious food situation in Austria. The reports come indirectly from representatives of the United States in neutral countries, but they point to the gravity of the situation.

"We have no direct information regarding a new peace offensive on the part of Austria," it was stated today at the department. "But we are satisfied that the reports of food shortage in that harassed country are true. It is believed that the Austrians cannot hope for any relief of consequence from this condition until the crops come on in August or September of this year and from all accounts the people cannot escape famine until then.

"Look back over history and you will see that almost all revolutions have been started because of lack of food."

Official dispatches received here today founded on information gathered at Berne reflect the seriousness of the food situation in Austria-Hungary and the difficulties of Ludendorff, the German quartermaster-general, in supplying his armies on the western front.

They tell of the diversion of foods from the Ukraine and Bessarabia, consigned to the Austrians, to the Germans themselves, and recite correspondence between Ludendorff and the mayors of Vienna and Budapest in which the mayors gave warning that they could not be responsible for providing order under such conditions and could give no more help.

Austrian food supplies have been exhausted since April, the dispatches said, and Austria has been trusting in an agreement with Germany to furnish food up to August 15. On June 14, appeals by telegraph began to go to the German high command, declaring that under existing arrangements only sixty truckloads of food were available for the whole of Austria from the newly-available supplies in the Ukraine and Bessarabia.

The Mayor of Vienna protested and warned the German high command he could not be responsible for preserving order. At the same time he called the Mayor of Budepest into conference and sent telegraph protests to Ludendorff. He got only a promise that the plan of taking practically all the newly-available foods for the Germans would be delayed.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Warnings by British Foreign Minister Balfour, statements by Count Burian, the Austrian Foreign Minister, and editorials in Austrian and German newspapers, all bearing on the question of peace negotiations, have put the officials here on their guard against what has come to be known as a German "peace offensive." They find, on a close study of the diplomacy of the great war up to date, that these movements always are to be expected when the Central Powers have completed an offensive which has resulted in a gain of Entente territory.

ALLIES' ROAD TO BERLIN MAY START FROM PIAVE.

Possibility of Counter-Attack to Roll Charles's Forces Back on Teuton Soil Asserted by Experts.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The possibilities of the situation in Austria-Hungary are receiving the closest attention of the Allied authorities, who, it was asserted in an Entente quarter today, are beginning to realize that a sure road to victory may lie over the Austro-Italian mountains to the lowlands of Austria.

The progress would be facilitated by revolutionary outbreaks now considered to be certain whenever foreign troops friendly to the cause of the Austrian Slavs again reach Austrian soil.

The strategy of the Allied armies, it was pointed out, is in the hands of Foch, but it was believed that the generalissimo would place no obstacle in the way of a great Italian counter-attack intended to roll up the Austrian armies if the Italian command should be of the opinion that the moment when Austria's present effort is spent is an opportune one for such an offensive.

Blocked in their advance across the Piave River by the Italians and British and with their line of communication threatened by the rising waters of that stream, the Austro-Hungarians apparently have closed the first phase of their offensive against Italy, says the Associated Press.

Viewed after a week of fighting, the offensive has been little more than a demonstration in force over a battle line more than ninety miles in length. It has gained none of its objectives and has cost the Austrians very dearly.

From the first day of the attack it was seen that the Italians were not called upon to meet a tremendous onslaught on some strategic key to their position, such as was launched at Caporetto last October. They had rather to defend their lines over a wide front against attacks which were launched seemingly without sufficient power to penetrate more than some of the advanced posts of the Italians and their Allies.

SECOND PHASE OF OFFENSIVE SOON DUE.

The second phase of the offensive is expected to begin at any time. It is not believed that the Austrians will be willing, nor will they be permitted by Germany, to end their drive against Italy with the results indicating an almost total failure. There have been intimations that Germany would assist in the attack which is coming, and which may be launched against the mountain sector of the front. Large bodies of men have been assembled there.

The serious food shortage in Austria-Hungary has given cause for sensational rumors. One of these, from Amsterdam, says an attempt has been made on the life of Emperor Charles. This rumor lacks confirmation. There is little doubt conditions in Austria are near a crisis. Little of the true status of affairs can be learned, but what little news filters through neutral countries shows that the Austrian people are on short rations; that serious rioting has occurred, and that general strikes are feared. In a clash between police and strikers at Budapest forty-five persons are reported to have been killed or wounded.

A Bulgarian commission has arrived in Vienna, according to dispatches from The Hague, for the purpose of negotiating with the Austrian government concerning a change in relations with Germany. This, coupled with the fact that the present Premier of Bulgaria was opposed to an alliance with Germany before Bulgaria entered the war, and the war-tiredness of the Bulgarian people, may be significant.

ALLIED PLUCK, WEATHER, WATER DEFEAT AUSTRIA.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright.]

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 22.—The battle now being fought on the Piave line can well be compared to the last German offensives on the western front, because of the fierceness and determination of the enemy to break through the fortified barriers. Like a huge tidal wave, the Austrian army dashed itself against the Italian defenses, only to be hurled back in confusion and disorder, augmenting the numbers of their dead, wounded and prisoners.

Notwithstanding the conditions of their numerical inferiority, the Italians having been during the course of the battle, one man against four, and one machine-gun against ten, the enemy has been unable to enlarge these same small stretches of territory whereon he succeeded in gaining a foothold in the first days of the encounter, being pressed closer toward the Piave.

The weather, which in all other offensives, was greatly in favor of the Austrians, this year has ranged itself on the side of the Allies. Torrential rains have swollen the waters of the Piave to such an extent that in many places it has overflowed its banks and transformed itself into a lake, turbulently sweeping away to the sea enemy boats, pontoons, bridges, tables, rafts and dead bodies. Usually at this time of year the river is a small stream, tortuously winding its way in and out among islets, its dry pebbles affording no adequate barrier. Unfortunately this situation cannot last long, as only a few days of fine weather are sufficient to reduce the river to small proportions.

The cavalry again has had occasion to demonstrate its worth. It fought side by side with the infantry and accomplished an audacious reconnoitering expedition against the nucleus of the enemy. One squadron received an order to advance toward the Piave and dashed along the road leading to Premuda. They overcame seven enemy barriers and not only attained their objective, but returned dragging behind them 150 prisoners, also cannon and machine guns.

Germany to Aid Lenine Government in Suppressing Revolution.

BY ROBERT D. ARMSTRONG.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Nothing has cheered the President and his advisers as much in many a day as the information received through the State Department today that 35,000 Czecho-Slavs, who retained their arms after the German invasion, have practical control of the trans-Siberian railroad.

The reports, which indicate that this little army has defeated the Bolsheviki encountered, also say these well armed and courageous fighters left detachments along the railroad at various points and that approximately 10,000 have arrived at Vladivostok.

These reports, which seem well authenticated and which come from reliable sources, are most heartening in view of the favor with which the administration regards the raising of an army of 300,000 men among the Czecho-Slavs in this country.

That all developments tend more and more to some rehabilitation move for Russia is indicated by the attitude of the State Department and other Allied interests in Washington. It is in the air everywhere and for the first time in months there appears justification for the belief that the United States is willing that something be done to restore Russia and that, whatever is done, be done at once.

GERMAN AID FOR LENINE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Official dispatches from France today say the success of the Czecho-Slavs in Russia is upsetting the Lenine-Trotzky regime.

Realizing that the great mass of the people are ignorant of the real attitude of the Allied powers toward Russia, the dispatches say the Bolsheviki make use of the Czecho-Slovak uprising to put a stop to the revolt against them.

The dispatches say the movement which has broken out in Siberia is dangerous to Germany and Germany will aid the Bolsheviki in their counter-revolutionary projects.

OFFERS CHINESE TROOPS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, June 22.—Chinese soldiers are available for co-operation with the Japanese at Harbin and near the Siberian frontier, and if necessary, more will be sent, Gen. Tuan Chi-Jui, the Chinese Premier and War Minister, told the Peking correspondent of the Daily Mail. The Premier added:

"The threatening situation on our frontiers certainly demands safeguards. We do not want the Bolsheviki in China."

With reference to Chinese participation in the war on the European battle fronts, the Premier said:

"I would like to help the Allies and would be glad to send 40,000 or 50,000 troops, but am prevented by financial difficulties and the activities of the provincial rebels."

SEMENOFF REVOLT ABORTIVE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

HARBIN, Wednesday, June 19.—Gen. Semenoff's movement against the Bolsheviki in Eastern Siberia has proved definitely abortive in the opinion of British and French military observers in Manchuria.

Although not defeated in battle, Gen. Semenoff has been surrounded by superior forces and obliged to retreat into Manchuria. The Chinese authorities have demanded that he disarm on crossing the frontier and surrender his cannon and munitions. Gen. Semenoff has refused, but recognizes that unless a third power intervenes the surrender of his arms is imperative.

LUDENDORFF SORRY CAN'T FEED VIENNA.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, June 22.—A dispatch from Basel, Switzerland, to the Havas Agency, says that Gen. Ludendorff, in reply to an appeal from the Mayor of Vienna for assistance in the food crisis, said:

"My best thanks for the expression of your faithful sentiments. I would, from my heart, help the population of Vienna in its serious difficulties, but it is unfortunately impossible from German sources—more than ever before. All the importations of cereals from the Ukraine, Rumania and Bessarabia have been allotted, without exception, to Austria.

"Notwithstanding the difficulties of our own food situation, I placed in April, May and June, shipments destined for the west front at the disposition of Austria. But now there are no more reserves of this sort and I am not in a position to furnish another aid."

In a similar vein, the Mayor of Buda Pest, after expressing his sympathy for Vienna's situation, declared it is impossible for him to aid.

TO OUST CANTWELL?

Old Opposition of Navy to Coast Guard Mentioned in Training School Case.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Naval officers deny that there is an effort being made to replace Commander Cantwell in charge of the naval training school at San Pedro, but friends of the man who has made a splendid record at the school charge that such is the case. While none of them will talk for publication, it is agreed that it is the old fight of the navy against the Coast Guard and a desire to oust Cantwell is based on the fact that he is a Coast Guard man and the Los Angeles station now looks good to a lot of naval officers who are looking for a good billet in a pleasant climate.

Yesterday the matter was put up to Secretary Daniels and while he would not promise a decision, it is known that the dispute between the Coast Guard and the navy will have to be settled soon. It is said that the controversy over Commander Cantwell is only one of a number of incidents of this character.

"Absolutely Superior."

ITALY'S ARMY SOWS DEATH AND TERROR AMONG FOE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME, June 21.—Austrian airplanes were compelled to carry provisions to the Austrian troops that succeeded in crossing the Piave River and were in danger of starving, owing to the flood, which carried away their pontoon bridges between Zenson and Musile, according to a dispatch received here by the Giornale d'Italia.

In spite of the difficulties that he encountered, Gen. Wurm, the enemy commander, is attempting to press on, but all his efforts are vain, in the fact of the resistance presented by the Italian soldiers.

A semi-official note issued tonight concerning the Austrian offensive says:

"The Italian counter-offensive is absolutely superior to the enemy offensive. Yesterday in the Montello region and on the Treviso-San Dona di Piave road and toward the Zenson Bend, the Italians reduced by a good half the ground won by the enemy in his grand attack on the preceding day.

HEAVY LOSSES.

"Statements of prisoners and the number of dead counted on the field show that the Austrians lost heavily in the day's fighting.

"The attack on Losson was carried out by a fresh brigade, composed of the Fifteenth and Thirty-second Schuetzen Corps, and special detachments. The Italian counter-preparation caught the enemy while assembling and threw him into disorder. Nevertheless his attack was delivered, and, thanks to the artillery support, a small portion got a footing on the eastern edge of Losson, but later was enveloped by a rapid and brisk counter-attack. Eighty men were captured and the remainder were killed or wounded.

"At Cortellazzo the check was equally costly for the Austrians. Bluejackets and Bersaglieri succeeded by a surprise attack in breaking into the third line, sowing death and terror among the defenders and capturing 200 prisoners. The dash enabled the Italians to widen their positions."

AUSTRIAN PLAN.

"The Austrian plan becomes plainer and plainer," says a semi-official note issued today. "The plan is to obtain, no matter at what price, command of the Montello, whence they can hurl forward the divisions accumulated on the left bank of the Piave.

"Along the Montebelluno-Susegana railroad the battle raged all of yesterday afternoon and night. A short stretch of the track which the Austrians captured was covered with the bodies of their dead.

"Attacks follow one another methodically, but slowly, on account of the difficult terrain and the continually-changing lines, which prevent both sides from using their artillery to the full effect. The fine weather is favorable to aviation operations, and the Italian airplanes continue to destroy bridges and to direct their machine guns at a low altitude on the enemy troops.

"A lull that probably is only momentarily continues in the mountain zone.

"At present more than forty enemy divisions are engaged in the battle line, and of these thirty already have suffered heavily."

LONG-RANGE-GUN IDEA CALLED IDLE GOSSIP.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, June 22.—Premier Clemenceau and Leon A. Brami, under secretary for effectives and pensions at the War Office, had a lengthy hearing before the Senate Army Committee today on the question of effectives.

It has been widely rumored that the Germans have placed a number, varying from eight to thirty, of long-range cannon for the bombardment of Paris. Several questions were put to Premier Clemenceau, most of them concerning this rumor, but he treated it as idle gossip.

OUR DEAD IN FRANCE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22. — The steadily-increasing participation of American troops in the fighting in France was sharply marked in today's casualty list. Of the 153 men named, 52, including 4 officers, were killed in action, the heaviest death roll from the battlefield yet made public.

Probably no particular action is responsible for the number of killed, but it is an accumulation from the five or six sectors of the front where the Americans are fighting, and from patrol actions as well as from the larger operations like the attack yesterday near Chateau Thierry to rectify the lines. Great care is exercised in forwarding the lists not to reveal the losses in any particular engagement.

The British take similar precautions, yet their casualty lists last week passed the 30,000 mark. During the week, so far as known, the British were involved in no major operations except on the Italian front. A comparison of the American and British lists, however, in some measure forms a gauge of the limited extent to which the United States has as yet been able to bring its power to bear against the German invaders.

Today's casualties are divided as follows:

Killed in action, 52; died of wounds, 26; died of airplane accident, 1; died of disease, 9; died of accident and other causes, 10; severely wounded, 37; wounded (degree undetermined,) 2; missing in action, 15; prisoner, 1.

The list includes Private Elzie E. Scott, No. 5407 Eighth avenue, Los Angeles, killed in action; Samuel Snyder, Napa, Cal., died of wounds; Corp. Aaron S. Harris, Richvale, Cal., died of accident.

The list:

OAKLAND MAN'S RECORD.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

OAKLAND, June 22.—Lieut. Hascall F. Waterhouse, U.S.M.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Waterhouse of this city, graduate of the Oakland High School, has been killed in action in France, according to official information received by his parents today.

Waterhouse enlisted in the Marine Corps as a private last June.

He was commissioned last October and shortly afterward left the training camp at Quantico for Europe. He was not yet 21 years old.

The dead officer was the son of C. J. Waterhouse, prominent building contractor of Oakland and Los Angeles.

IN GERMAN PRISONS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Names of seven Americans in German prison camps reported to the War Department today by the German War Ministry through the Spanish Embassy at Berlin include that of Prof. Henry C. Emery, the economist and former chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, who was captured when the Germans occupied the Aland Islands.

When last heard from Prof. Emery was at liberty, living in a hotel at Lauenburg, Pomerania. The State Department within the past few days sent an inquiry as to whether he would be permitted to leave Germany.

Other names on the list were:

AT VILLINGEN.

Lieut. John S. Abbott, St. Paul, Minn., captured March 21 at Laginscourt; Lieuts. Robert H. Jeffrey, Uniontown, Pa., and Abraham Straus, New York City, captured March 21 at Lempire.

AT BRANDENBURG.

David Johnson, Marcus Hook, Philadelphia, first officer of the ship Atlantic Sun, captured in Irish Sea February 18.

AT DARMSTADT.

Private Sidney Kinch, Oxford, Eng., captured at Verdun March 4.

AT BAYREUTH.

Private Hector E. Rollman, Minot, N. D., captured March 1.

Prof. Emery is held at the prison camp at Tuchel.

GENEVA, June 22.—The Germans are massing more and more Allied prisoners, both officers and men, along the Rhine and in frontier towns, says the Lausanne Gazette. An Alsatian newspaper reports that five Allied prisoners were killed and six wounded during a recent air raid on Thionville, Germany.

BURNQUIST LEADS BY 50,000 IN MINNESOTA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. PAUL, June 22.—Complete returns from Monday's primary election, with the exception of a dozen precincts in isolated districts, gave Gov. Burnquist a majority of more than 50,000 for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

The majority of Fred L. Wheaton of Minneapolis, the Democratic candidate, was less than 500.

KITCHIN OBDURATE ON ZONE POSTAGE.

PUBLISHERS SAY HALF OF COLLECTIONS WOULD BE EATEN UP BY COST.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—When representatives of the Publishers' Association closed their testimony tonight, Chairman Kitchin told them he was afraid "we cannot get together at all" on the proposal to suspend the zone postage system, but said no new revenue tax on advertising is contemplated.

C. P. J. Mooney of the Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal asked the committee to remember that the newspapers perform a public service, warranting the government in affording them a reasonably-wide circulation, and that advertising is on the decline. Discussing the cumbersome system prescribed by the new law, he said, it would cost the Postoffice Department $1,000,000 to collect the $2,000,000 increase in revenues the first year.

L. T. Wortham of the Fort Worth (Tex.) Star-Telegram favored the proposed McMillar zone system plan.

Gardner Cowles of the Des Moines (Iowa) Register-Leader and T. R. Williams of the Pittsburgh Press joined in asking for suspension of the increases and in characterizing the separation of the charge for advertising as cumbersome.

BIG CANNON PROGRAMME IS GREATEST IN HISTORY.

Mobile Guns to Batter Way to Berlin are Planned by War Department.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Plans of the War Department for carrying the warfare on the western front beyond the trench stage by a vast production of heavy mountain, siege and field guns, were made known today through the approval by the House Appropriations Committee of the largest fortifications programme ever submitted by any government. The bill carries a total of $5,435,096,224, the principal expenditures being for heavy artillery. Of the entire sum, $2,000,000,000 is asked as a cash appropriation and the remainder for contract authorizations.

Based on an American army of 3,000,000 men, the plans which the measure supports have been approved by the Inter-Allied War Council, through Gen. Pershing, it was stated by Representative Borland of Missouri, chairman of the subcommittee which framed the bill. While the programme provides for home defenses from possible German air raids and for coast defense, the chief concern is for the production of field artillery. The total appropriation for heavy guns is $1,229,731,295.

TO EQUAL KRUPP PLANT.

The report of the committee shows that the new government plans for production of heavy artillery at Neville Island, in the Ohio River, near Pittsburgh, is to equal the famous Krupp plant in Germany. For the Neville Island plant $40,000,000 is appropriated. Manufacture of heavy pieces will be carried on also at plants of the Bethlehem and Midvale Steel companies, the report discloses. Because of the length of time required for the building of large guns, it is shown the government is not yet giving extensive concern to the manufacture of the projectiles, although machinery has been or is being established by which the ammunition can be supplied in short order.

All of the new heavy guns provided for in the bill will be mounted on railway cars or motor cars for rapid transportation, showing the War Department, as was recently intimated, is expecting a change from the trench to the open style of warfare.

The report of the committee gives facts obtained from the War Department, showing that Gen. Pershing has been buying field artillery in large quantities from French manufacturers. A portion of the total appropriation will go to pay these concerns.

ARTILLERY NEEDED.

Need of artillery in France is shown by the statement of the report that guns from the American coast defenses are being shipped abroad. It is made clear, however, that none of the important coast defenses have been dismantled. The navy has supplied the army in France with 159 pieces, ranging from eight-inch to fourteen-inch.

No appropriation is provided for guns or mortar batteries for the United States coast, although an estimate of $321,000,000 was submitted for that purpose. The committee in its reports agrees with representatives of the War Department that such an expenditure of money would be impracticable at this time, as well as would provision for sending a large number of men to Panama or any of the insular possessions. The measure, however, carries $8,000,000 for aerial coast defenses, a cut of one-half in the original request.

Construction of 4.7-inch guns for home air defense is provided. These guns, it is stated, will have a range 50 per cent. longer than any heretofore constructed and 100 per cent. greater bursting charge. For mobile searchlights, $2,000,000 is appropriated.

For the production of ammunition, including shrapnel, high explosives and smokeless powder, the measure carries an appropriation of $3,793,724,550.

WAR OFFICE STATEMENTS.

ROME, June 22.—"The enemy's offensive pressure, broken heroically or withheld along the whole front of battle by the firm resistance and counter-offensive spirit of our troops, has not been renewed since the evening of June 20," says the official report from headquarters today.

"The enemy yesterday launched another strong local attack in the direction of Losson, southwest of Fossalta, but was sanguinarily repulsed.

"He carried out violent concentrations of fire on Montello and in the Grappa region, which were effectively countered and successive advances attempted by infantry detachments were crushed.

"At Cavazuccherina strongly supported by the batteries of the Italian royal navy, our brave sailors and Bersaglieri, during another brilliant action, enlarged the bridgehead and captured 150 prisoners and large quantities of arms and materials.

"On the remainder of the front small adjustment actions allowed us to rectify the line in our favor and brought us some prisoners and war booty.

"On the Astico plateau some of our small detachments daringly penetrated in full daylight into an enemy advanced post and after a lively struggle captured the garrison.

"Ten enemy airplanes and three captive balloons were brought down."

AUSTRIAN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA (via London) June 22.—Italian attacks on Montello were repulsed, according to the official report from Austrian headquarters today, and which gives the number of prisoners taken by the Austrians in the present offensive as 40,000.

The text of the statement says:

"The fighting on the Piave diminished in violence yesterday. Wherever the Italians renewed their attacks as, for instance, in some sectors of Montello and to the west of San Dona, they were repulsed with heavy losses, as before.

"Between June 15 and 20 the enemy lost forty-two airplanes owing to the activity of our aviators and anti-aircraft guns. He also lost four captive balloons. The number of prisoners has been increased to 40,000. Among them are a few Czecho-Slovak legionnaires, who were immediately subjected to the treatment prescribed by martial law."

The treatment prescribed by martial law, referred to in the Austrian official report, is death at the hands of a firing squad.

There are many thousands of Czecho-Slovak soldiers in the Italian army. The newspaper Roma, published in Rome, declared in May that 20,000 Czecho-Slovaks, who formerly lived in the United States, were now serving under arms for Italy.

Many Bohemian troops, according to the Daily Mail, have joined the Italian colors against Austria. These detachments belonged to a Czecho-Slovak army which is being formed in many centers from former subjects of Emperor Charles. Their defection to Italy has caused much anxiety among the Austro-Hungarian commanders, who fear the effect on their Slav troops.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, June 22.—Raids by British troops in the region east of Amiens and in sectors of the Flanders front are reported by the War Office today. Prisoners were taken and casualties inflicted upon the enemy.

The statement reads:

"We captured a few prisoners last night and inflicted casualties on the enemy in raids and patrol encounters in the Villers-Bretonneux and Strazeele sectors."

The War Office communication dealing with aerial activities issued tonight, says:

"In spite of adverse weather conditions, on the 21st inst. some artillery co-operation, photographic reconnaissances and patrols were carried out by our airplanes. One hostile machine was destroyed. Two of our machines are missing."

The report from Field Marshal Haig's headquarters in France, issued tonight, follows:

"There is nothing of special interest to report from the British front."

FRENCH.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, June 22.—German troops last night attempted raiding operations in the vicinity of Belloy, southwest of Montdidier. They were repulsed, says today's War Office report. Similar operations undertaken by the enemy in Upper Alsace were equally unsuccessful.

The statement reads:

"The French have repulsed German raids in the region of Belloy (southeast of Montdidier) and in Upper Alsace.

"On their part the French penetrated an enemy post southeast of St. Maur (southeast of Belloy) and made prisoners."

The War Office announcement tonight says:

"There was intermittent artillery actions at some points along the front, but quiet prevailed elsewhere.

"Eastern theater, June 21: Two enemy raids on positions recently taken by us west of the Vardar and southwest of Lake Ochrida were repulsed."

AMERICANS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Gen. Pershing's communique for yesterday, received here today, reported improvement of American positions northwest of Chateau Thierry. Brisk artillery fighting in the Woevre, the Vosges and in the Chateau Thierry region is noted.

The communique follows:

"Section A. Northwest of Chateau Thierry we advanced our line and improved our positions. There in the Woevre and in the Vosges, there was brisk artillery fighting."

GERMAN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN (via London) June 22.—"Partial attacks by the French and Americans northwest of Chateau Thierry," says the official report from general headquarters today, "were repulsed with great slaughter."

The statement reads:

"Between the Arras and Albert, the enemy's violent partial thrusts were kept up yesterday and up to this morning. They ended in complete failure for the enemy.

"On both sides of the Scarpe, near Boiry-Becquerelle, Hebuterne and Hamel, and in the Aveluy Wood, strong British detachments were driven back in some places in bitter hand-to-hand fighting. At other points on the front, also, the British pushed forward several reconnaissances in vain. In warding off the enemy thrusts and in our thrusts, south of the Somme, we captured prisoners.

"A enemy air raid on Bruges caused casualties to the population.

"Southwest of the Noyon, the enemy, using strong detachments, repeated his fruitless attack south of Vandelicourt. There has been lively enemy activity between the Oise and the Marne. Reconnoitering thrusts several times launched by the French were unsuccessful.

"French and Americans attempting partial attacks northwest of Chateau Thierry were repulsed with great slaughter."

AERO CLUB READY TO BACK OVERSEA TRIP.

WILLING TO FINANCE FLIGHT ACROSS OCEAN IF GIVEN OFFICIAL PERMIT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 22.—The Aero Club of America announced here tonight that it had notified John D. Ryan, director of America aircraft production, that it was willing to assume the expense of attempting a trans-Atlantic flight, in order to assist the government in solving the problem of delivering thousands of airplanes overseas and of establishing a trans-Atlantic aerial patrol to defeat Germany's U-boat campaign.

Encouraged by the assertion in Washington yesterday of Maj.-Gen. William Brancker, comptroller-general of British air equipment, that trans-Atlantic flight should be attempted without delay, the club stated in its announcement that two weeks ago it asked for bids for Handley-Page and Caproni machines capable of flying from continent to continent.

In seeking the bids the club made the condition that the constructor assume responsibility for having the planes, built in this country, delivered by air to England, Ireland and France.

In submitting his bid, the terms of which were not made public, William H. Workman, representing Handley-Page in the United States, asked only a $2500 bonus to cover the risk of the flight.

According to the club, Lieut. Leopold Bellonì, representing Caproni, is now preparing the terms of his bid.

Upon receiving the Handley-Page bid, Alan R. Hawley, president of the club, notified Mr. Ryan that if the government was not intending itself to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight in the near future the club would gladly undertake the work and expense, should the government grant permission.

MAY ELIMINATE WINE IN PROHIBITION BILL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—A tentative vote in the Senate Agricultural Committee has shown a small majority in favor of eliminating wine from any prohibition legislation which may be determined upon in connection with the emergency agricultural appropriation bill.

VIENNA BLAMES THE KAISER.

the Vienna Neue Freie Presse, during serious street riots in Vienna, the police and military were called out and took strict measures and issued warning to parents making them responsible for the actions of their children, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen.

The Arbeiter Zeitung of Vienna reports a great strike movement in the Austrian capital, though its full extent is not known.

The Vienna workers' council, the newspaper says, has issued a manifesto, saying it hopes the government will understand in view of the strike movement how necessary it is to increase the food rations.

Reports are current on the Amsterdam Exchange today that an attempt has been made on the life of Emperor Charles of Austria, says a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam. The reports are unconfirmed.

STRIKERS KILLED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BASEL (Switzerland) June 22.—Dr. Alexander Wekerle, the Premier, speaking before the Hungarian Chamber of Deputies yesterday, made a statement concerning the industrial strikes and referred to the serious trouble in factories and on railways and the extension of the strikes to several plants.

The Premier told how the workmen in a locomotive works stoned the police and in return were fired upon, four of their number being killed and nineteen wounded. The proceedings in the Chamber ended in a sharp exchange between Premier Wekerle and Count Karolyi, leader of the Independent party.

Dr. Wekerle said an inquiry would be instituted to determine whether the use of arms against the strikers was necessary.

CONDITIONS CRITICAL.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, June 22.—Telegrams received today by way of Switzerland describe conditions in Austria-Hungary as becoming critical.

Fifty thousand workers at the arsenal in the Vulcan factories and in the Worschalowski Airplane Works have gone on strike.

The burgomaster of Vienna has told the Municipal Council that it would be impossible to distribute potatoes after the week-end.

STRIKES REND AUSTRIA.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

GENEVA, June 21.—A commercial traveler, who has arrived here direct from Vienna, today informed the Associated Press that there are 100,000 men on strike in the Austrian capital and that there are smaller strikes in progress at Laibach, Agram and Gratz, all mention of which has been stopped by the censor.

STRIKERS AND POLICE CLASH.

AMSTERDAM, June 22.—Nine strikers were killed and thirty-six others wounded in a clash today with the police at the government railway shops in Budapest, according to a telegram received here from the Hungarian capital.

TAX-DODGERS HUNT ON AFTER NEXT TUESDAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—An extensive campaign to round up tax dodgers is about to be started by the internal revenue bureau, to be directed against all who fail to pay their taxes by next Tuesday, the last day on which payments may be made without imposition of penalties, and against those who falsified their reports.

About $1,800,000,000 in income and excess profits taxes have now been paid into the treasury, and nearly a billion more is expected within a week.

Would Increase Storage Rates.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Permission to increase storage and loading rates of the Sacramento Valley Warehouse Company at Tarke, was asked of the State Railroad Commission today. The requested increases, ranging from 40 to 150 per cent. of the present rates, were based on advanced operating expenses.

Among the injured at the Illinois Steel Company hospital were twenty "razor backs," including six white men and fourteen negroes.

William F. Curtis and his wife also were at this hospital. Mr. Curtis is superintendent of the show and his wife acted as a friendly banker for the "razor backs." Twenty-five thousand dollars of their money in her care was believed to have been destroyed in the fire.

There was a lack of accurate information concerning the whereabouts of Al Sargent, engineer, and Emil Klauff, fireman, who piloted the train of twenty-one empty troop cars that cut its way through the circus train. In railroad circles there was a generally accepted report that Sargent had gone to his home in Kalamazoo, Mich., and that Klauff was under arrest at his home in Michigan City, Ind.

HOW SMASH OCCURRED.

The empty troop train, traveling down a straight stretch of track, totally demolished three of the flimsy circus coaches and badly damaged a fourth.

According to reports to local authorities, the second section of the circus train, which carried four sleepers, five stock cars, fifteen flat cars and a caboose, pulled part way into a switch and stalled there. A hot box is mentioned. A flagman set fuses as a warning. The circus train was in this position when the troop train plowed into the sleepers, reducing them to a pile of tangled steel and timbers. Fire, engendered by the gas-lighting system of the circus train, broke out almost immediately and when rescuers reached the scene, the entire wreckage was in flames.

Clowns, bareback riders, trapeze performers and acrobats, many of them veterans in the circus world, perished in the first great crash. Other victims were suffocated and burned.

SURVIVORS FRANTIC.

Attempts of the Gary fire department to curb the flames and make possible quick access to the imprisoned victims were unsuccessful because of lack of water supply in that outlying district. Survivors struggled about the wreck, screaming for relatives and friends, and only force prevented two or three men from rushing into the blazing wreckage.

Hours after the crash, bodies, charred black, were still being recovered as the derricks of the wrecking trains thinned out the pile of debris.

There were many pitiful scenes at the wreck and later in the hosptals. Joe Coyle, a clown, cried as he lay on a stretcher and told how his wife and two babies had joined him only recently after months of absence, and how all three had been crushed to death at his very side.

"The kiddies had been so glad to see their daddy," he said. "I wish I could have died with them."

Wild rumors that several lions had escaped from the train to the woods south of the wreck caused residents of that thinly populated district to take precautions. Circus authorities asserted that no wild animals were on the train. They also discredited reports that one circus woman, demented, had evaded the doctors, and raced off into the woods clad only in night clothing.

The circus was to have played at Hammond today.

GUESS AT CAUSE.

L. W. Landman, general passenger agent of the Michigan Central, said that his only explanation of the wreck was that the engineer of the train of empties must have been dead at the throttle.

"In no other way can I account for the fact that he ignored all of the usual danger signals placed by the circus train," said Mr. Landman. "He ran past two block signals, two red light signals and the usual fuse placed between the rails and throwing off a brilliant red light, visible for a long distance in the darkness. This engineer is missing. It is the worst wreck in the history of the road, I believe."

A railroad man told a story in Gary differing from that of the Michigan Central officials as to the identity of the engine crew of the train of empty Pullmans. He said the fireman was Emil Klauff of Michigan City, and the engineer, Sargent, lived at Kalamazoo, Mich., instead of Jackson.

He quoted the fireman as having said that he was busy shoveling coal and knew nothing of danger until the engine, hauling twenty-seven heavy Pullmans, was upon the circus train. He scampered to the coal tender, from which he was thrown by the impact. Accompanied by the engineer, he said, he caught giving way, the attack would then be pressed down to the plain where the Verona-Treviso road would be reached and cut. If the Piave line gave way while the mountain line held, the result would be to force the retreat from the mountains and force the Italians to fall back to the Adige, so that their line would run almost due north and south, exposing the whole of the Venetian plain.

BATTLE ANALYSIS.

Accordingly, the attack was launched from Asiago to the Piave and down along the Piave. The tactics employed were naturally the same as those which the Germans used so successfully in France. There was first a terrific artillery bombardment, which included not only the front trench line but extended well back to the rear areas. Then the infantry went forward. At the outset the main attack was in the mountains, the Austrians making particularly strong efforts along the Valley of the Brenta. But serious difficulties developed.

Although Austria had in the attack a total force of not less than a million men and had concentrated for the attack, 7500 guns, the mountain line refused to fall back. On the Asiago Plateau, the western limit of the attack, the lines stood absolutely fast. In fact, they actually gained a little ground in the face of the attack. Further back small initial advances were made, but nowhere was there the slightest evidence of a panic, nowhere was there a rush to the rear.

SMALL ADVANCE.

The Austrian advance was small, entirely insignificant and every foot of the ground was gained at a terrific cost and was bitterly opposed. This condition prevailed, in fact, all the way to the Piave River. This would indicate one of several things. First, the character of the Austrian troops is far below par. They have no stomach for the fight and cannot be driven forward in the face of destructive opposition.

The Austrian morale is at low ebb. Through the process of slavery adopted towards them by the Germans their spirit has gone and they are not to be relied upon.

The Italians were possibly about to begin an offensive operation of their own and were ready in every sense of the word. Certainly they were not surprised. They were aware of the Austrian intention before it even developed. The reports show that while the Austrian bombardment did not begin until 3 o'clock in the morning, the Italian bombardment against the Austrian concentrations began at midnight. This is a most significant detail in this operation which must be remembered. In the Piave sector which soon became the most active and most bitterly contested, the Austrians met with somewhat more extended successes.

RIVER FORCED.

In the opening days of the attack the Austrians succeeded in crossing the river and secured a strong foothold on the Montello. The village of Nervesa was taken and a bridgehead established at this point. Fifteen pontoon bridges were thrown across to connect the two forces and keep the necessary flow of supplies constant. Other crossings were also effected further down the stream, between Masarda and Candelu and about Fagara, where the railroad from Treviso crosses the river. Down near the lagoons the Austrians took Capo Sile, occupied the triangle between the Piave and the Fossette Canal and even crossed the canal. This part of the operation was in a measure successful, But the mere crossing of a river is not the vital point. In order that any results may flow from such a maneuver it is necessary that the troops cross in sufficient force to spread out laterally like a fan and clear the bank on either side. Finally when this is done, sufficient advance must be made from the river bank to give room behind for maneuvering.

The fighting at Montello, where the crossing was made was for the first two days desperate. Then, it died down, when the Austrians suddenly found themselves in a serious predicament. The Piave, which up to this time had been very low, by reason of heavy rains in the mountains, was in flood. The bridges which the Austrians had built were swept away leaving the Austrian troops to the number of about 40,000 isolated on the western bank. They could go neither forward nor backward. They could only fight the battle out as the situation was. This is the position in which they find themselves as this review is being written.

HELD AT RIVER.

All along the river bank the same general situation prevails. At no point have the Austrians been able to do more than make good their crossings. They cannot push their way westward, they are held at the bridgeheads which they have established at very heavy cost unable to advance beyond them. At Capo Sile they had the most favorable opportunity because the condition of the ground in this marshy area made the defense somewhat difficult. But, here, too, they have failed. The net result is that the greatest Austrian effort of the war must as matters stand, at present, be set down as a complete failure.

So sure have the Italians become of their ground that they are now attacking all along the line, and have completely wrested the initiative from the Austrian troops. In the mountains they have retaken all lost positions. Here the fighting died down almost entirely. On the Piave front they are biting deeply into the gains the Austrians have made, making their positions on the western bank of the river daily more precarious. The Austrians must make some effort to retrieve the situation, recross the river and acknowledge themselves beaten or surrender. There is one other alternative. Germany must come to Austria's assistance. This she has done many times before, so often as to have formed the habit. But if this move is forced it will so seriously interfere with German plans in France as to make them practically unworkable.

Are We Soon to Become a Race of Bald-Headed Men?

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN

Hair Specialist of Chicago, Who Is Now at Hamburger's, Talks Most Interestingly About the Hair.

He says that baldness is increasing rapidly among men and points out some of the reasons. Prof. Austin is probably right in saying that about one man in every hundred ever thinks about his hair at all, except to comb it two or three times a day. If it falls out, he looks anxiously at the falling hair, and then promptly forgets it until the next time he uses the comb.

A man will give the utmost attention to his teeth, because he knows that when trouble arises he will have more trouble and probably lose his teeth if he doesn't go to a dentist promptly. But his hair doesn't ache, it just gradually dies, and when it is nearly gone, and the roots are dead, he anxiously tries a dozen different remedies at once, and then resigns himself to baldness.

According to Prof. Austin, there are something like 60 different conditions of the scalp and hair. Some are contagious. Others develop from neglect. Practically all of them are curable in the early stages.

Have the roots of your hair examined with a powerful microscope and find out just what is the trouble with YOUR HAIR. This service is free.

During the past three years Prof. Austin has made hundreds of free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp of Hamburger patrons—and they enthusiastically appreciate this free service.

FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS of the hair and scalp all this week, in his private office on the Second Floor, Hamburger's. Hours, 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m.

Highest Temperature in Chicago Yesterday 57 Deg.; Swimmin' Suffers.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, June 22.—Without a cloud in the sky to blame for it and with the sun shinging his brightest, the highest temperature recorded today was 57, and that was reached before noon. Soon after, instead of going up the mercury started to drop and when it reached 54 degrees showed signs of lingering there indefinitely.

There was a brisk east wind off the lake that was largely responsible for the crisp summer weather and it sufficed to keep thousands of the crowds away that usually flock to the beaches on the official opening day. As it was, only the hardiest took cognizance of the opening of the swimmin' season by dipping in the chilly lake.

STEAL FRUIT CROP.

Thieves Get Away with All but Four Boxes of Valencias in Ontario Orchard.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ONTARIO, June 22.—Mrs. Charles A. Mayo, well-known Ontario vocalist and woman rancher of No. 1044 East D street, saw plans for a summer vacation go glimmering today when pickers came to harvest her crop of Valencia oranges for the packing-house, only to discover that they had been preceded by what the police believe to be an organized gang of fruit thieves, who had stripped her trees bare.

Mrs. Mayo lost what remained of her navel crop, following the June drops of last year, in a similar manner some weeks ago, but had thought the Valencia grove safe since it surrounded her home. The thieves, however, left scarcely four boxes and carried their loot away in a motor truck, approaching the orchard from the rear.

C. P. Humphries, another rancher, reports the looting of orange trees and an apricot orchard in the same fashion and the police have issued a warning to all fruit growers to be on the alert and report promptly to them.

NOT YET PLANNING OVERSEA FLIGHTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22. — The proposal for a trans-Atlantic flight has not thus far been taken under consideration in any formal way by the American Aircraft Board, it was learned today, although the fact that the British air officials now here are urgently in favor of the plan has been known to board members for some time.

FOOD WILL WIN THE WAR and Afterward

Some of the good points about sea mussels, other than their fine flavor, are, that they are abundant and easily taken. They are found in deep beds easily reached by tongs and dredges. They can be sold much more cheaply than oysters or clams. A barrel of mussels contains more edible material than the same quantity of any other shellfish. This is because the shells are thinner. Sea mussels are most easily digested of foods and all the nutriment in the flesh and liquor is used by the body.

All these qualities make mussels a food for sick and well, rich and poor, a truly American food. But the advantage in the new shellfish is its accommodating way of staying in season all through the year. From April to September, while the oyster is sulking over the absence of "r" in the month, mussels are prime. Far be it from me to slander our Old Friend Oyster, but it gives me a comfortable feeling to be able to snub him when his price is too high or he is too shy, without feeling you have bitten off your nose to spite your face.

One peck of mussels will serve ten persons generously and when purchased should have their shells tightly closed. This shows they are alive, now keep them in a cool place covered with a damp cloth until ready to cook them. Then scrub them well with fresh water and a brush and close them up in a covered kettle with a pint of water to a peck of mussels. In twelve minutes they will be opened and their juices mingling with the water is the broth you will season and serve.

Serve the mussels on a large platter. All the creature is eaten except the "beard" or byssus which is a little black tuft easily detached from the steamed mussel.

Two great coast canneries are tinning mussels and these canned ones retain most of the natural flavor.

ADJUDGED INSANE.

Lunacy Commission Orders Mrs. Corinne Smith, Who Killed Her Baby, to Patton.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, June 22. — Mrs. Corinne Minnie Smith, who killed her 3-months-old baby girl by throwing it into a vault, was adjudged insane today before a lunacy commission and ordered committed to Patton by Judge T. L. Lewis. Mrs. Smith would have come up for trial for murder next Thursday, but she was brought before the Lunacy Commission today on a warrant sworn to by D. S. Wilbur, county detective, because the prosecution doubted her sanity.

The young woman wept during the hearing and was permitted by her attorney, Lewis Kirby, to answer but one question. That was about her schooling, and she answered promptly that she finished the grammar grades only. The insanity affidavit charged that she killed the baby and that, while she deplores the loss of her child, she is happy in the thought that it is with her mother, who died before it was born. The affidavit also states that the mother of the young woman died early in 1918 from tuberculosis and her grandmother died in an insane hospital; that at times she goes into a semicomatose condition and is easily confused, and that her mind wanders; that she has visions of her mother standing at the crib of her baby with outstretched arms. Mrs. Smith will be taken to Patton tomorrow.

EARLY PEACE TO BE DREADED, SAYS KNOLES

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, June 22.—An early peace with Germany is the thing most to be dreaded, according to Prof. Tully C. Knoles, U.S.C., history head, who delivered a remarkable address here Friday night, upon the occasion of the High School commencement exercises. "We must be as optimistic as possible, but we have no right to blind ourselves to the plain facts in this world struggle," said the speaker. "Germany's food situation is much less acute than it was a year ago, her oil supply has been replenished from the Rumanian fields, and instead of ruling over 65,000,000 people the Kaiser now governs 200,000,000, and can send 1,000,000 new soldiers into the fight every year. We must put our shoulders to the wheel and with our tremendous man power and natural resources turn the tide for the Allied cause."

Thirty-eight students were graduated, twelve boys and twenty-six girls. The girls took all the scholarship honors. Three of the boys will have their diplomas sent to them at their military training camps. Six members of the original class are with the colors.

Women on Jury Convict Negro.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LITTLE MOTHER BACK TO CHEER DRAFT BOYS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA BEACH, June 22.—To bid farewell to twenty-two drafted men who are to leave this district on Monday for Camp Kearny, more than 200 Santa Monica citizens gathered at the Breakers Cafe for a banquet given the departing soldiers by the Young Men's City Club of Santa Monica Beach this evening.

"Little Mother" Lederman made her first appearance in public since the recent death of her husband, the late Luke Lederman. Mrs. Lederman wears a medal presented her by joint action of the Santa Monica and Venice city councils, officially giving her the title of "Little Mother," in recognition of her work in sending every draft contingent away with substantial gifts of tobacco, candy and magazines. In addition to a talk by Mrs. Lederman, there were addresses by Mayor S. L. Berkley and Assemblyman Charles W. Lyon.

NURSES FOR EUROPE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA BEACH, June 22.—As the result of an enthusiastic gathering of nurses registered with St. Catherine's Hospital of this city, held at that institution, when they were addressed by Miss Edith Bryant, secretary of the Los Angeles Chapter of the Red Cross, Nursing Division, a round dozen trained nurses have signed up for service. Two of them, Miss Elizabeth Lowry, superintendent of the hospital, and Miss Lucia F. Johnson, who was for five years surgical nurse at the hospital, have signed for foreign service and the other ten for service in this country.

In addition to those mentioned above are: Mrs. Anna L. Taugher, and Misses Marie Potts, Alice Devine Woodcock, Margaret Proebstel, Elizabeth B. Sterry, Fanny M. Stinchfield, Susan Dunn, Elizabeth Hertigan, Marian O. Shower.

CHECKERBOARD OF WAR ON PLIGHT OF AUSTRIA.

Don't Bank Too Much on a Revolution; Prepare for Long War.

BY HARRY CARR.

JUDGING by face values, Austria would seem to be kicking her last. Repulsed on the west front and facing the catastrophe of a bad crop, Germany also appears to be in a dangerous crisis.

It will not do, however, to bank too heavily upon these conditions. Most of Germany's blunders have been due to jumping too hastily to just such conclusions.

When it really comes to the final test, any nation can stand considerable scorching.

The Confederate States from 1863 until the end of the war, Germany during the dreadful years of the Seven Years' War, the United States during our own revolution, all have shown us that men and nations can keep on fighting in the face of what seem to be overwhelming difficulties.

To accurately gauge the present plight of Austria, it would be necessary to have some real information as to the internal political conditions.

We must remember that the people who are taking part in the food riots, of which we hear so much, are the military inefficients who were judged not to be capable of making war, so were left at home.

When you get right down to it, a revolution of sufficient violence to compel a nation to abandon a war is very difficult of accomplishment. A successful revolution requires money and resources and a lot of luck.

Remember also that the Austrian army at the front has undoubtedly been fairly well fed, and that all knowledge of the Vienna food riots has undoubtedly been kept back from the soldiers.

The danger of Austria would seem to lie really in the very strong probability that some dissatisfied political faction will seize upon the food riots as a means of tearing loose from the monarchy, and will furnish the money and the leadership necessary to get up a real revolt.

Whether or not this political condition exists and is ripe is a complex question of Balkan politics, and Balkan politics has every other mystery in the world licked for murky darkness.

It is dangerous to place much reliance in these internal complications. It stands to reason that Austria is at the point of collapse, but it also stood to reason (from Germany's standpoint) that America couldn't go to war with Germany on account of the strength of the German-American citizenry.

FORCE TO THE LIMIT.

The only course open to the United States is to prepare to fight this thing out on the field of battle shot for shot just as long as Germany wants to keep it up. If, in the meantime, the Central Powers collapse from within (as I firmly believe they will) so much the better for us.

The less we rely on this collapse and the more we rely upon and get ready for a big free-for-all fight, the better for us and the worse for Germany.

I think I can say without impropriety that the opinion of most professional soldiers is that we are due for about three more years of war.

It is the expectation that all this year Germany will maintain the offensive by rapidly shifting attacks from one point of the line to another.

The participation of Italian troops in the defense of Rheims gives a strong hint of another attack to come. That one little mention in the course of a news dispatch shows very plainly that one of the purposes of the Austrian offensive in Italy was to prevent the shipment of further Italian reinforcements to the west front.

The most important problem of the German General Staff at the present minute is to do something to break up this easy flow of troops back and forth between Italy and France. The Allies can get to Italy and back again much more easily and by a much more direct route than can the Central Powers.

In the limited theater of war on the west front, the Germans are on the inside of the circle; but when you include the Italian front as part of the battle line, then the Allies hold the inside of the larger circle.

One of the chief purposes of the big smash into Italy is to break up the railroad communication between the French and Italian armies, thus to prevent one coming to the rescue of the other.

No doubt the larger plan of the German General Staff was to pin the Italian army down to its own back yard as a preliminary to a new attack somewhere in France against the French, Americans or British, or all three.

So far the plan has not resulted in much damage being done to the Italian army. Of course, the battle has not ended, however.

To return to the prognostications of the army officers, the general belief is that this year Germany will be on the offensive, and that our side will be kept busy hammering back her attacks.

Next year will probably see a gradual assumption of the offensive by the Allies, due to the overturning of the balance of man power by the arrival of American troops.

As to the third year, the formal announcement in Congress of the fact that our big howitzers will be ready for use in 1920 is significant. There guns are not intended for use against moving troops in the field. They are designed for the express purpose of battering down fortifications. Before the summer of 1920 is done, the army hopes to be hammering the great German forts in Alsace-Lorraine.

Quite as sweeping as the food shortage will be the disheartening effect of these preparations on the German people.

It will be interesting to see what effect it will have when the Germans begin to reap their share of the harvest of defeats.

In my opinion, the German people will never have been able to stand the wallops that England has borne during this war and still be walking around with her head in the air, full of pep and fight.

THEY ARE LUCKY.

There is nothing in the history of the German people that shows them to be unconquerable, or even especially enduring, in the face of defeat. They have been licked many a time and oft and licked to a whisper.

In this war they have been fortunate in that every reversal has been followed by a victory.

The Marne was followed by Von Hindenburg'h whirlwind campaign in East Prussia, which approached the proportions of a massacre. Verdun was followed by the rolling up of Rumania, and so on.

When they begin to get disasters for breakfast we shall see what the effect is. The first of these disasters is the great offensive in France. As far as it has gone, it has been a failure, costing terrific tolls in human life, money and material.

The immediate future is still to be read. Germany has been balked on the west front. But her resources in France are still terrible and menacing. No one can tell what the rest of the summer can bring forth.

Unless she wins a decisive victory before the summer is done, Germany is likely to find herself in hot water during 1919.

It can scarcely be expected that she can continue to enjoy the conditions which now obtain; where she is free to practically strip all the troops from her east front and concentrate them against the Allies in France.

In place of a united Russia, she will find herself faced with a number of very troublesome children. The quarrelsome little nations, into which Russia has been broken promise a great deal of trouble eventually for the nation that tries to drive them.

Lemon Juice For Freckles

Girls! Make beauty lotion at home for a few cents. Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

HOME RULE SLEEPING ONLY, NOT ABANDONED

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, June 22.—The British government regard their proposals of Irish home rule and conscription as postponed, but in no wise abandoned, the Times says it understands.

Conscription will not be withdrawn nor will efforts be relaxed to frame a measure of self-government for Ireland.

Recent events have convinced the government that the first business is to establish law and order but their policy is unchanged.

VIGILANTES BURN HEARST "AMERICANS" AT STAKE.

Determined Committee of Citizens Meets Train and Flames Papers.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RUTHERFORD (N. J.) June 22.—Two hundred copies of William R. Hearst's morning newspaper, the New York American, were literally burned at the stake in Depot Square early this morning. In this manner did the citizens voice their resentment of the action of the Newsdealers' Association, which persisted in sending copies of that paper here despite the fact that the local Council of National Defense recently passed resolutions condemning it.

The burning of the Americans had been planned yesterday. No one knew of the intentions of the men who carried out the plans, however, and as a result their action was a complete surprise to all but those who were in the secret. Despite this fact, however, there was a goodly crowd assembled, and as a curl of flame licked up the pile of papers, a cheer went up from the men and women who stood about the square.

Conspicuous in the fast-growing crowd which watched the papers burn down to a smoldering pile of ashes was Mayor Black. Surrounding him were some of the most influential business men of the city and scores of New York-bound commuters.

The Vigilance Committee—for that was in effect what it proved to be—met by prearrangement on the platform of the Erie Railroad station at 1:30 a.m. Three men quietly slipped away, and a few moments later returned each with a bundle of New York Americans under his arm.

With every copy of the New York American delivered here this morning in their possession, the committee started for Depot Square dragging the bundles along the street. In the center of the square a small wooden stake was used to support the piles of papers, and then, without any ceremony, someone lighted a match and held it to one corner of the Americans.

The flame flickered for a moment as though on the verge of going out, and then, eating its way more deeply into the pile, suddenly flamed out, and another instant the whole mass was on fire.

IHMSEN AND STUTTGART.

The Times wishes to go on record as stating, as it has once before said, that the Los Angeles Examiner is edited by Max F. Ihmsen, "formerly of Stuttgart, Germany." After we published that fact, Max got wrathy and in an article set in two-column measure in the Examiner, says he "was not born in Germany." The Times did not say he was "born in Germany;" but it did and does say he FORMERLY LIVED THERE, WHERE HE RECEIVED A GOOD PART OF HIS EDUCATION. Mr. Ihmsen dare not deny it, for it is so stated in a sketch of his life WRITTEN BY HIMSELF and published in "Who's Who In America."

Yes, Mr. Max Ihmsen got a thorough German education in Stuttgart. In fact, Mr. Ihmsen is quite an authority on German affairs, particularly German literature and German food. He was mixed up more or less with the Germans of New York before this war, when he had political ambitions. He thought the Germans were pretty good people when he was running for Sheriff of Greater New York.

BLOODY DEFEAT ENDS FOE PUSH.

eighty-nine vessels, with a capacity of 439,336 deadweight tons. Workmen are straining to complete six other hulls in time, which would make the total tonnage 470,336.

The conservative estimate of launchings to take place on the day Americans venerate more than any other is one-third more than the entire production of seagoing tonnage in United States yards in the fiscal year of 1915-1916, and exceeds by 42,050 tons the launchings for 1901, the record prewar year in American shipbuilding. The Shipping Board's banner construction month of May will be eclipsed in one day, both in number of ships and in tonnage.

PACIFIC COAST LEADER.

Thirty-seven of the hulls expected to be launched will be steel, with a tonnage of 254,486.

The Pacific Coast yards will launch twenty-six wooden and seventeen steel vessels, totalling 250,700 deadweight tons. The East will be a close second to the West, making ready for thirty-eight launchings from yards on the Atlantic and Gulf Coast, twenty-seven of which will be wooden vessels, totalling 95,700 deadweight tons, and eleven steel vessels, totalling 76,486 deadweight tons, making a grand total of 172,186 deadweight tonnage. The Great Lakes will launch fourteen steel ships, totalling 47,700 deadweight tons.

BIGGEST SINGLE TONNAGE.

The Bethlehem Union Iron Works plant at San Francisco will have the honor of launching the biggest individual tonnage of any yard in the country, with three steel ships, totalling 35,400 deadweight tons. The Moore Shipbuilding Company at Oakland, Cal., will also launch three hulls of 28,200 deadweight tons. Seattle likewise will be the scene of a triple launching, but the three hulls will be distributed among three different yards.

Aberdeen, Wash., with the launching of four hulls, will have the honored position among the wooden shipbuilders. Tacoma, Wash., and Portland, Or., will each see three wooden hulls slide into the water, and the H. L. Shattock yards at Portsmouth, N. H., will uphold the prestige of the East with a like number.

Mobile, Ala., Moss Point, Miss., and Orange, Tex., will lead the southern yards, with each city holding a double launching.

SEA POWER VITAL.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, June 22.—The necessity of keeping an eye upon the importance of sea power in the present conflict, despite the close attention claimed by the land battles, is emphasized by Archibald Hurd, the naval expert, writing in the Daily Telegraph.

"We have been apt during the recent offensives on the western front," Mr. Hurd writes, "to overlook other aspects of the war—notably the fundamental factor, which is sea power. For a period of fifteen months our strength in ships has steadily declined, but the downward tendency now has been definitely arrested. Not only is our sea power increasing, but our grip on the enemy is firmer than at any previous period of the war.

U-BOATS' TARGETS.

"Seven million tons of shipping enter or leave our ports monthly. Each ship is the target for enemy submarines, yet there have been days in the present week when the enemy has not secured a single ship.

"Twelve months ago we were with difficulty maintaining one stream of traffic, namely, that which brought us food and material. Today supplies are flowing through this main artery in greater volume than a year ago.

"At the same time another stream of traffic has started and merchant shipping has been made available for the greatest transport movement which has ever been carried out.

TRANSPORT SERVICE.

"For three months past American troops have been coming across the Atlantic by tens of thousands, far faster than at one time was thought possible. That means that the balance between the Allies and the Central Powers is being adjusted in favor of the former.

"The food position of this country, of France and of Italy is improving and shipbuilding both in British and American yards is proceeding at a greatly accelerated pace. There is assurance that by the end of December at least 4,000,000 tons will have been put into the water here and in the United States, and that figure may be considerably exceeded.

SINKING REDUCED.

"On the other hand, the enemy's sinkings of British and Allied tonnage have been so considerably reduced, owing to the activities of the Allied navies and the courage and resource of their merchant seamen, that it is practically certain there will be a balance of shipping on the right side.

"In a word, the relative naval, military and economic strength of the Allies is steadily increasing at a moment when the enemy is feeling the cumulative effects of the blockade made over a period of nearly four yars with increasing stringency and of the war on land, which not only has resulted in heavy casualties, but has drained the Central Powers of industrial workers."

TOWN SAVED.

Quick Action by Volunteers Prevents Destructive Fire at Randsburg.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RANDSBURG, June 22.—Randsburg was saved late today from a disastrous conflagration, the fourth in its history, by the prompt action of Emmett Elder, who organized and led an amateur fire brigade. The fire was discovered in the Kirke Theater Building, a wooden structure in the business section adjoining the Western Union and the Wells Fargo offices.

Elder, with Frank Henderson, Wells Fargo agent, succeeded in confining the blaze to the Kirke Theater, which was practically destroyed inside and out. As a desert wind was blowing it looked for a time that the west end of town would be destroyed. The loss is not determined, as owner is out of town.

SMOKED OUT.

Ferris Wheel Owner at Venice Shoots at Baron Long's Stack—Is Arrested.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VENICE, June 22.—J. H. Eaton, proprietor of the Ferris wheel concession on the beach, was arrested tonight on complaint of Frank Prior, charging him with the offense of disturbing the peace and discharging firearms within the city limits. The arrest was made by Detectives Humphries and Litchner. The accused was taken before Justice Rennie, who fixed Eaton's bond at $1000, in default of which he was placed in jail.

Eaton, it is alleged, filed a complaint with the City Commissioners some time ago in which he declared he had been subjected to undue annoyance by smoke from Baron Long's Ship Cafe stack; that the alleged nuisance had injured his business. Nothing was done about it, and tonight, chafing at the apparent inaction of the city authorities, Eaton took a revolver and undertook to shoot the offending pipe full of holes.

$50 Buys a Splendid Diamond Solitaire Engagement Ring at DAVIDSON'S

A larger, snappier, better diamond ring than the same money will buy elsewhere—of that we are confident.

Why? Because we still have in our safes hundreds of fine diamonds that we bought when the market prices were 30% less than now—because we bought in immense quantities direct of the cutters and got rock-bottom prices—because we are doing business on an inexpensive street and save our customers in rent alone, many thousands of dollars yearly.

Are you still unconvinced? Then come see one of the largest stocks of fine diamonds in the country. Not unsalable show pieces that tie up capital and eat up interest, but desirable merchandise that finds ready sale every day in the year—and priced so reasonably as to be a real investment.

Come—you will be waited upon promptly and courteously and you will not be pressed to buy.

Expertly Selected Diamonds

Every diamond in our stock represents the "know-how" gained in many years of gem-buying. That "know-how" guarantees that at Davidson's you will not be asked to buy stones so thin as to have no brilliancy nor stones so thick as to weigh and cost twice as much as well proportioned stones should cost. You will not be shown brown diamonds nor yellow ones, because we have none such in our stock.

Instead, you will be shown only blue-white gems of perfect proportions and cutting, and of utmost fire and brilliancy. Such diamonds, when bought at Davidson prices, are not only a source of constant pleasure, but a certain, safe investment.

Faultless Watch Work

The fact that we are the official watch inspectors for most of the large western railroads may have made us a bit more particular about our watch repairs than other jewelers.

At any rate, we invite you to see at our store the largest rack of watch repair work in the West—a tribute from particular people to our Time-to-the-Second methods.

It will cost no more—indeed it will cost less—to have your watch repaired here by the men whose O. K. "goes" on the American railroads.

Lifetime Wedding Rings

Nothing we sell gives greater satisfaction than Davidson Wedding Rings. Made of purest 14, 18 or 22k. gold with never a drop of solder. They are hammered and squeezed till they are the hardest, toughest, yet finest finished rings that can be made.

Our profit is very small, but each sale makes two lifelong friends—something that money can't buy.

SHIPS NOME-BOUND ICE-BOUND AT SEA.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NOME (Alaska) June 22.—The opening of navigation to this port is eight days overdue, based on a yearly average. Four steamers from the "outside," bringing stores and passengers, last night were still far out at sea, barred by the ice pack from reaching the Nome roadstead. The ice so far has shown no signs of moving.

PIAVE MAY BE WAY TO BERLIN.

AUSTRIANS HARD PRESSED.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS, June 21.—The Third Army, commanded by the Duke d'Aosta, is ten miles south of Montello on the Piave, pressing hard the enemy, who succeeded in gaining a footing on the right bank of the river.

The Duke, adored by his troops, is always in the thick of the fight, enduring the same sacrifices and dangers as his soldiers. His presence incites them to heroic deeds.

It is here that a regiment of Bersaglieri celebrated the anniversary of their creation by adding another page of glory to their heroic history. With their cock feathers flying and jocose words on their lips, they streamed before their commander, like Roman gladiators of old. Then, dashing forward over the wet, slippery ground and the bodies of the enemy, they attacked the Austrians with ferocity, killing right and left. They were ably seconded by the artillery.

The battle raged backward and forward, the first-line trenches changing hands ten times, while some batteries, which the Italians momentarily lost, were regained by the artillerymen with their knives.

Before such impetuosity the enemy retreated, leaving the Italians in possession of the trenches.

SAYS BATTLE IS WON.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME, June 22.—The battle situation is unchanged and infantry engagements were not resumed during Friday, says the statement issued last night to the Italian Parliament by Premier Orlando. It is now permissible to say that the battle has been won, the Premier told the Deputies Friday morning, according to the Tribuna.

The Austrians, the Premier added, are now gathering all available men in certain sections of the mountain front. Only a small part of their reserves have been drawn on by the Italians.

FOE REINFORCED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, June 22.—(Italian front.) Fresh struggles on the Italian northwestern front are foreshadowed by the bringing up of fresh reinforcements by the Austro-Hungarians, telegraphs the Milan correspondent of the Temps. German reinforcements also are said to be on the point of arriving at this front.

It is the opinion of Italian military officials that if the lull lasts some days it is bound to recommence soon with these fresh elements.

FROM HEADQUARTERS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Friday, June 21.—Cavalrymen, artillery, and airmen are giving effective aid to the Italian infantry in driving back the Austrians toward the Piave.

One of the principal activities of Allied aviators, who now have been joined by American flyers, is to prevent Austrian airmen from delivering sacks of bread and other dry foods to the Austrian troops on the western side of the Piave, where the Austrians still are fighting tenaciously.

Around Montello and in the region of the lower Piave, Italian cavalry is being used to help push the enemy back. They are aided by armored cars carrying machine guns.

The rising waters of the Piave and the activity of the Italian artillery are making it difficult for the Austrians to obtain food. While the water carried some bridges away and damaged others, the gunners and sinking boats and hammering the damaged bridges and floats.

One out of every ten Italian soldiers wounded in the present fighting bear positive indications of the use of explosive bullets by the Austrians, Capt. Thwaits of the American Red Cross has been informed by hospital directors.

Signor Baracca, considered Italy's premier aviator, is missing. His machine fell inside the hostile lines after it had caught fire during a fight.

However, it is certain that new enemy attacks will be met with spirited persistence, not only by the Italians, but by the other Allied troops. Should they strike the Asiago line held by the British, French and Italians, it is believed they will receive another severe beating.

"We invite them to come over," is how one Italian officer views the possibility of new Austrian efforts. Commanding officers feel that the Austrians will make desperate attempts as long as the Germans in France strive to obtain a decision.

CONFUSION OF ENEMY IN ITALY DESCRIBED.

By Ward Price.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright.]

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS, June 20.—The fighting is spasmodic, but vigorous, and the losses probably severe on both sides. The hamlets of Fossalta and Capo Darbine, in the enemy's lower Piave salient, were captured six times yesterday. Farther to the left the Italian divisions which are still holding the dyke on the Piave bank withstood the pressure all day of four enemy divisions trying to cross the river lower down. The Austrians have managed to bring some armored motor cars with machine guns across the stream and some field guns.

The constant fluctuations of the fight produce some odd sights. One of the most striking yesterday was that of a stark-naked man with a bleeding foot, paddling down the lane on a bicycle. Owing to local Austrian pressure the dressing station had been evacuated at a moment's notice. To avoid being captured this Italian soldier simply had to get away as he was, without waiting to snatch his clothes.

A strong counter-attack was launched yesterday afternoon by two converging routes on Montello. It still is going on. It restored part of the ground lost there with some Italian batteries that had been left behind and also yielded 1000 fresh prisoners.

The Italian attack, as the prisoners relate, anticipated only by an hour the enemy's intention to strike south to try to reach the twin bridges of the Ponte di Priule, whose solid masonry, though broken, would give better protection for crossing the river, which is the Austrians' ceaseless difficulty.

INTREPID AIRMEN.

Last evening I watched Italian and British airmen darting like great black moths out of the filmy edge of one dense gray cloud into another as they bombed and machine-gunned the Austrians on the slopes of Montello, while below them one British airman, having dropped all his bombs and emptied every drum of his cartridges, came down close and pelted the foe with the spare parts and tools in his repair outfit, the Austrians cowering under the banks and among the bushes.

The prisoners taken by the French in a raid in the Asiago Plateau are mostly Hungarians, with few Croats. They say the greatest confusion exists in the enemy's lines after his defeat. The Austrian losses have been very heavy. Their supply service is upset and all their arrangements and connections are badly disorganized. The elaborate plans they made for the advance are now producing a reactionary feeling of hopelessness and failure among the enemy.

CZECHS WITH ALLIES.

I went up to a part of the line held by the Czecho-Slavs this afternoon and found them coming away after four days' continuous fighting. They had been up against machine guns all the time. The Czechs had been lying almost constantly in the water during the battle, for the ground south of Fossalta where they were fighting is a network of ditches, swollen by the continual rain. Austrian prisoners they took looked immensely surprised to find their captors were Czechs.

"We thought the story of Czech soldiers with the Allies was an invention," they said.

Fighting is still going on heavily in the San Dona salient. While I was there the Italians were slowly gaining ground, though by now the enemy has brought a number of field batteries across. He intended to make a strong attack this afternoon, of which the Italians had warning from an enemy officer who deserted.

NEW FREIGHT RATES START ON TUESDAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

The Railroad Administration announced that local revisions will be worked out later, with the assistance of regional and district freight traffic committees, the Interstate Commerce Commission and State utilities commissioners.

LATEST TURKISH LOAN FAILS BY TWO-THIRDS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Failure of the latest Turkish loan was reported today in a dispatch from Switzerland, announcing that only twelve million pounds was obtained of the thirty-two million pounds sought.

Germany already has advanced to the Ottoman Empire nearly one hundred eighty million pounds.

RUSH MILLION MEN TO FRANCE.

that with the 900,000 mark passed, the United States is five months in advance of its schedule for troop movements. At the same time he briefly outlined the battle positions in France and Italy and drew the conclusion that the enemy was being firmly held on all fronts, though further great blows are to be expected.

The Chief of Staff's statements furnished the first authoritative information as to progress made in the tremendous exertion the government has been making to the challenge of the German drive on the west.

When the first blow was struck on the Cambai-St. Quentin line, March 21, troop shipments were behind schedule. Today they are five months ahead.

The speed with which the army is being moved to the front is sharply indicated by the fact that approximately 200,000 men have been embarked during the last two weeks. The total movement during May was not more than 240,000. It was only two weeks ago that Secretary Baker announced that more than 700,000 had been shipped; a week later, at the first of his conferences with the newspapermen, Gen. March said the 800,000 mark had been passed and today he placed the figure at more than 900,000.

On this showing the million mark should be passed by July 1. Various factors enter into the problem of transportation, however, which forbid a definite prediction.

SPEED IS IMPORTANT.

Gen. March made it clear that time gained in getting abroad enough American troops to give Gen. Foch a mastering superiority over the enemy is the vital factor. Every day lost by the Germans in pressing their effort to achieve military victory before American aid can arrive in overwhelming force is regarded as a day nearer ultimate defeat for them.

"The general situation looks well," was Gen. March's comment as he looked at the great war maps where all the operations are marked out. "The lack of fighting along the French front is of primary importance to the Allies, by giving us a chance to get more man power.

"The present lull on the western front simply means that Germany is refitting her combat divisions and preparing for another drive. It does not mean that the great battle is over.

TO RENEW DRIVE.

"We can look forward to a repetition of what we have been passing through these past few months, as far as German activity is concerned."

Gen. March refused to comment on the proposal to send an international expedition into Siberia. Apparently he still takes the view that this is as yet a political question, not a military matter. He was exceedingly reticent, also, as to American participation on the Italian front.

American troops have done well wherever the test of battle has come thus far, Gen. March said regarding the character of the troops, whether Regulars, National Guard, National Army or marines.

The fight at Cantigny, the most important engagement in which American troops have participated because it gave opportunity to judge of the full measure of their training, he said, had been fought by the First Division, commanded by Maj.-Gen. Robert L. Bullard. This division is now, he said, a thoroughly-trained, high-grade unit and was the first American division to reach France.

STAFF WELL TRAINED.

At Cantigny, Gen. March said, infantry and artillery operated in close co-operation to achieve the victory, showing the successful work of the staff officers upon whom that co-operation depended. The fight clearly showed, he said, that the training of the American General Staff officers had reached the point where the system would work under battle strain.

One of the most striking things on the western front, the Chief of Staff declared, was the supreme importance of a unified command. This was first advocated, he added, by President Wilson and carried through under the President's constant pressure until unity of command was realized in the appointment of Gen. Foch. Gen. March regarded that as one of the greatest single military achievements of the Allies which was already showing its effect in the fighting.

During the past week, Gen. March said, the fighting in France has been of minor character. Interest for the Allies has centered on the Italian front, where the Austrian drive at two points on the Piave line penetrated deeply enough to cause concern. That offensive has now been checked, he added, and the swollen waters of the Piave aided in repelling the attack. The entire Austrian bridge system on the Lower Piave was washed away.

AUSTRIANS ENDANGERED.

Austrian engineers had constructed seven bridges over which their advance forces could be withdrawn if they were compelled to give up their footing on the south bank of the river. At one point, however, in the Montello sector, the Austrians had been unable to replace the bridges up to last night and their advance forces are in grave danger of capture or annihilation.

American ambulance sections are in Italy, but the Chief of Staff thought it unwise to disclose any other movements in prospect for that front at this time.

The fighting around Chateau Thierry, where American marines distinguished themselves, was confined originally to a small force of machine-gun units, Gen. March said, under command of a major whose name had not been reported. The 12,000 marines composing the marine brigade from which these units were taken is commanded, he said, by Brig.-Gen. James G. Harbord,

WAR GAMES SHOW HOW SOLDIERS ARE MADE.

Military Maneuvers at Bovard Field Interest Great Gathering.

PREPAREDNESS DAY took on a new significance in Los Angeles yesterday. Last year's ..ent was to stir up enthusiasm for ..ness against a foreign foe. Yesterday, at Bovard Field, in patriotic parade and military field events, was shown what actually has been accomplished for preparedness.

Under the auspices of the National Defense League, a programme of military drills and maneuvers was given which conclusively proves that a year's training can transform raw material into highly-efficient fighting men. As a prelude to the war games, a parade, military in atmosphere, was staged on the principal streets of the city, consisting of high school cadets, a contingent of infantry from Camp Kearny, soldiers from Fort MacArthur, sailors from the training station at the harbor and members of the fire department. The latter carried their big service flag, into which coins were thrown along the line of march. Afterward it was found that $70.23 had been thus realized. It was turned over to the Red Cross.

The parade was headed by Grand Marshal Dan B. Miner, assisted by .. de Vidal Hundt as chief of staff. After marching through the streets, the demonstrators of preparedness were taken to Bovard Field, where realistic miniature war life was enacted before crowded grand stands.

EXPLODING GRENADE.

The principal event of the afternoon was the hand grenade throwing and attack on "No Man's Land." This event nearly ended in a real casualty, when a piece of exploding grenade flew into the grand stand, striking Miss S. Rice of No. .. West Twelfth street in the lip and dislocating one of her teeth.

The attack was staged by eight soldiers from Camp Kearny, under the direction of Lieut. Regnier and Sergt. Weill, French instructors at the southern cantonment. First the men advanced in close formation, then deployed and slowly advanced on their bellies. Men on either end of the line kept up a continuous fire from rifles. At intervals the crawling figures rose and heaved hand grenades into "No Man's Land," which exploded with heavy detonations. Over forty grenades were hurled as the skirmish line slowly advanced. They finally gained the position desired, and, according to the rules of war practice, succeeded in driving the Huns from the first-line trenches.

..t of interest was the calisthenic drill of the Camp Kearny physical culture team of twenty-four men under the direction of Sergt. .. Rollen of the British instructing corps. Their snappy style ..ed loud applause. Boxing was .. a part of this number, and in the final free-for-all fight, where every man was defending himself, the crowds applauded wildly.

MESSAGE TO WILSON.

Following maneuvers of the sailors from the Naval Training Station, a message to President Wilson was wigwagged from the field to an adjacent housetop and thence to the Western Union Telegraph station. The message read as follows:

"Hon. Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States.

"Officers and men from Southern California training camps and cantonments, together with high school and other military organizations, assembled in mass military tournaments at Bovard Field, University of Southern California, Los Angeles, under the auspices of the National Defense League, desire to express to you their patriotic sentiments, their fealty and unswerving devotion to the cause of America.

[Signed] "A. F. ROGERS,
"Secretary."

Following the sending of this message, the sailors from the Naval Reserve training camp were put through a series of calesthenics, while music was furnished by the Submarine Base Band.

OTHER FEATURES.

Formal guard mount was then staged by a company of soldiers from Fort MacArthur, under the command of Capt. V. R. Anderson. The Hollywood High School crack drill squad, which has defeated all others in competitive drills, gave a snappy exhibition of squad maneuvers under the direction of High School Major Roppert.

Another interesting feature were patriotic sketches given by the Singer Midgets. These consisted of chariot racing, boxing and military maneuvers by twelve Lilliputians, which was greatly enjoyed by the crowds. Then came a physical culture exhibition.

Gov. Stephens was present in the box of honor, accompanied by officers from branches of the British, American and French armies, which included Maj. D. R. Hannay and Capt. G. J. Forbes of the British army, Lieut. J. C. Horton of the United States Navy, Capt. P. L. Loriot and Lieut. L. F. Groslier of the French army, Douglas Fairbanks, Mrs. Katharine Fogarty and Mrs. Randolph T. Zane, daughter of Gov. Stephens.

PERUNA Made Me a Well Woman

No sufferer from catarrh of the stomach can read Mrs. Van Buren's letter without a feeling of thankfulness.

"I have spent a great deal of money with doctors for catarrh of the stomach and at times have been compelled to give up my housework for days. For years I did not know what a well day was and cannot help but feel that I would not be alive to-day had I not been induced to try Peruna. Six bottles of Peruna made me a well woman."

BRITISH WARD BLOW AT WORLD FREEDOM.

BURDEN OF TASK OF KEEPING SEAS OPEN ENGLAND'S, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, June 21.—The Premiers and representatives of the British dominions overseas were welcomed at a supper given tonight by the Empire Parliamentary Association in the royal galleries of the House of Lords. The guests included thirteen past and present dominion premiers and the high commissioners of all the dominions.

Premier David Lloyd George paid tribute to the assistance which the dominions had given the mother country. Replies were made by Sir Robert Borden, the Canadian Premier, and Sir William M. Hughes, the Australian Premier.

"The British empire has disappointed its foes and surprised its friends," said Premier Lloyd George. "Think of what would have happened if it had not been there. It has held the seas for ourselves and our allies. I am not in the least deprecating the value of the assistance from the fleets of France, America, Italy and Japan, but they will all admit that the main burden of the task has fallen on Great Britain."

"This war has taught many lessons, but none more striking than the lesson of the reality and power of the British empire. The Kaiser has proclaimed to the world that God gave Von Hindenburg and Ludendorff to him and Germany.

"I wonder who gave the British empire to his enemies. He can easily find out if he will only ask some learned divine to tell him who planted in the hearts of men wrath against injustice, abhorrence of inhumanity and love of freedom.

"The reality of the strength of the bonds that united the empire had been underestimated by everybody. The Germans thought they were paper ties and that they would shrivel and scorch into black dust in the first flash of the fire of war. They were mistaken."

Sir Robert Borden, in responding, alluded to the sympathy and co-ordination with which the American government had worked with Canada in war matters. He declared that the death knell of German militarism was sounded when the United States entered the war and predicted that that militarism eventually will go down before the onset of democracy.

LOGGERS TOLD TO DO THEIR BEST FOR WAR.

DELEGATES DISCUSS WAGES AND LABOR CONDITIONS WITH GOVERNMENT MAN.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SPOKANE, June 22.—Six hundred and ninety delegates, representing 25,000 members of the inland empire district of the Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen, met here this morning with Col. Brice P. Disque to discuss labor conditions and wages in Eastern Washington and Oregon, Northern Idaho and Western Montana.

The delegation from each of the nine divisions elected a representative for each of six committees, on hours of labor, wage scales in the mills and in the camps, overtime, conditions of labor and miscellaneous matters.

Col. Disque told the delegates that "the government is not trying to put anything over; it is up to you men to decide how far you want to go. Your employers have agreed to comply with any orders which I may issue; they are doing so; the other side of the problem is yours."

FIX FUR AND PINE PRICES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Maximum prices for northwestern fir logs and lumber and for southern pine lumber for a period of ninety days from June 15 have been established by the Price-fixing Committee of the War Industries Board, an announcement today said.

The new schedules will not result in any higher price than formerly paid by the commercial trade for yellow pine, the announcement stated, although it does mean a higher price for the government. In the case of Douglas fir, the new prices, it is said, will result in a very slight, if any, average advance to the trade.

PEACE MURDERS DOOM PRUSSIAN GOVERNMENT.

HOUSE MEMBER PREDICTS RUSSIA WILL SPRING AT GERMAN THROATS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM, June 21.—Rheinische Westfaelische Zeitung of Essen says that Hofer, Independent Socialist, speaking in the Prussian lower house Thursday, said:

"Ten thousand Red Guards were mercilessly mowed down at Taganrog by German troops, and then you say we are at peace with Russia! I am persuaded that Russia will spring at our throats when the time comes. It is base to kill an enemy after he is blinded by poison gas. The people must overthrow a government which is incapable of attaining a speedy peace by understanding."

PEEL OFF CALLUSES WITH THE FINGERS

"Hard skin" or callus spots on the sides or the bottom of the feet peel right off without pain or soreness, after you apply a little Freezone, says a Cincinnati authority. This ether drug loosens the dead, callused skin so it peels off with the fingers.

A quarter ounce of Freezone costs but a few cents at any pharmacy, but is sufficient to remove every corn or callus from one's feet. This is the only way to free the feet from corns and calluses without soreness, danger or infection.

After the corn or callus is lifted away the skin beneath is pink and healthy, and not sore, tender or even irritated.

QUICK JUDGMENT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

MOSCOW, June 21.—The president of the commission appointed to combat counter-revolution has defined the procedure which lately has ordered numerous executions as "organized terror against enemies of the Soviet rule." Prisoners, says the commission, are shot only if the vote is unanimous.

"We judge quickly; in most cases one day, or a few days at most, have elapsed between arrest and sentence," he adds.

Maxim Gorky's newspaper Novala Zhinn, protesting against these inquisitions, says that almost invariably criminals are hemmed in by a wall of evidence and forced to confess.

CONSERVATION TALK.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BURBANK, June 22.—At the regular meeting of the Farm Bureau center of the district including Burbank and Glendale, to be held Monday evening at the Burbank High School, a talk on "Food Conservation" by Mrs. Jessica C. Hazzard, who has been appointed Emergency District Home Demonstration Agent will be a special feature. A lecture will be given by Prof. Harbison on "Plant Disease; Their Causes and Control."

ONE TICKET OFFICE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, June 22.—Following the closing of the local Southern Pacific ticket office July 1, there will only be one railroad passenger ticket office in Long Beach. That will be maintained in the Salt Lake Depot. Formerly there were three offices.

School for Soldiers.

TEACH MILITARY TACTICS AT EXPOSITION PARK.

A SCHOOL of military instruction for draft men and men contemplating military service has been established, under orders of State Adjutant-General J. J. Borree, at the local armory at Exposition Park. The schools, conducted under the programme of the California National Guard, are to provide opportunity for military training for men between the ages of 18 and 45 inclusive, but are designed particularly for those of draft age.

The prime aim of the instruction, as stated by one of the commanding officers of the school, is to provide otherwise raw recruits with the fundamental knowledge of military tactics. Preliminary training of this sort will enable men to qualify as noncommissioned officers, corporals and sergeants, immediately upon entering the service. One of the principal needs is for men with leadership ability, who are able to take hold of untrained men and mold them into efficient and well-disciplined soldiers. Men possessing these qualifications are practically assured of appointments as noncommissioned officers as soon as they enlist, officers stated yesterday.

The instruction, as given by prescribed officers of the National Guard, consists of two required periods of class work per week, on Tuesdays and Fridays. The second requirement is one drill evening a week, either Monday, Wednesday or Thursday, in accordance with the schedule of the company.

The school has been established by co-operation with the local authorities, councils of defense, draft boards, patriotic organizations and bureaus of war activities. The National Guard, in which all entrants to the school must enroll, is recruited by Lieut. L. R. Lee, who is at the Armory daily except Sunday from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

The following are the officers in command of the school:

First Company, Capt. J. L. Irwin, Lieut. A. F. Swenson and Lieut. S. Veselich.

Second Company, Capt. W. R. Heinicke.

Third Company, Capt. W. P. Kelly, Lieut. C. M. Allen and Lieut. A. W. Green.

Fourth Company, Capt. A. C. Jewell, Lieut. N. J. Lannon and Lieut. C. R. Campbell.

Ninth Company, Capt. C. T. Re.., Lieut. T. R. Lee and Lieut. A. .. Foster.

A new company being organized, but not yet assigned a number, is under Capt. A. L. Anderson.

AVIATORS RUN WEEKLY PAPER.

"Plane News" is Edited and Printed by Soldiers.

Gossip of the Front Lines is Entertainingly Told.

Copy Received Here Shows Good Humor of Men.

Copies of "Plane News," which boasts that it is "the only A.E.F. newspaper edited and printed by soldiers," has come to Los Angeles friends of aviators in this service from this city and Southern California. The paper is published every Saturday at "an A.S.S.C. Post, A.E.F."—which is indefinite enough to leave a good deal to the imagination.

Like other papers printed "over there" for the men in service under the American flag, "Plane News" devotes much of its space to humor. It publishes a pretentious two-page section which it terms its feature section, filled with contributions from the men, and cartoons showing how the American soldiers take to life in France.

The paper announces on its first page that "mother's letters" are to be sent as special delivery mail, and then there is a cartoon, showing the hand of an officer with a private in its grasp, dropping him down before a table on which writing paper and envelope await him. "Gee! I'd forgotten it," exclaims the private. This was for the purpose of getting the men to remember Mother's Day by writing letters home.

The exhortation says:

TO DRIVE OFF GLOOM.

"If you ever spent extra effort on anything in your life, spend it on this letter. Make it brimful of optimism, love and good cheer. Drive away the troubles, worries and cares that may be hers; fill her with love, and let her have reason to be proud of 'her boy' by the things you say. It's up to you. If necessary, devote the entire day to making this letter filled with the devotion every man feels for his mother.

"After you have finished, label it 'Mother's Letter' in place of 'Soldier's Letter,' in the upper right-hand corner of the envelope, for it is by this mark that the letter is to be recognized and given special attention by the censors, postal clerks and carriers. If you are one without a mother, send a similar letter to the next dearest person to you, or to the one that takes a mother's place."

"Plane News" gives an account of the Y.M.C.A. officials purchasing instruments for a band of seventy-five pieces, and rejoices that there are ample musicians at hand so that after a few rehearsals concerts can be given.

ALL SORTS OF NEWS.

There are interesting accounts of volley ball games, lectures for the men, one of them being by a brother of Henry Van Dyke, who spoke on "Why We are at War," and there is an account of the taking of moving-pictures in the camp, showing the comforts and conveniences provided by the Red Cross. These pictures are to be sent to the publicity bureau at Washington, for circulation all over the United States.

In the sports section there is an account of "Capt. Kneer's Darky Engineers in Big Scrap." Here's an excerpt:

"Field Seven to a man crowded between the four doors of the local 'Y' auditorium and witnessed the funniest heap of black flesh ever collected for one scrap. Six men entered the ring at one time and let go almost before the official referee could get out over the ropes and away from the black flying arms. Josephus Lee won the fifty-franc prize by outlasting the five other blacks."

There's a good grist of general camp news and numerous items that are obscure to the outsider, and mixed all through is light persiflage and comic rhymes that show our men are in good spirits and still have their keen American sense of humor.

WAR IN RANKS OF THE HOP SING TONG.

BOND OF FOUR CHINESE HELD ON BURGLARY CHARGE IS INCREASED.

There is war in the ranks of the Hop Sing Tong, and as a result of a statement made in open court yesterday by Deputy District Attorney John Hill, Justice Brown increased the bond of Chin Hong, Jew Dong, Louie Wuey and Richard Wu from $1000 to $5000 each, to answer to the charge of burglary committed at the store of Lieu Chung, No. 520½ North Los Angeles street. The Chinese could not raise the bail, and are still in the County Jail.

They had been before Justice Brown several days the past week on the preliminary examination. It was claimed that witnesses for the prosecution had been threatened by friends of the defendants, and that this developed into a shooting scrape at Lieu Chung's place Friday evening.

It was also testified by Chung in his examination yesterday that Hong, Dong, Wuey and Wu had been expelled from the Hop Sing Tong on account of previous bad conduct, but several of their friends were at the meeting and took up the cudgel in their behalf. The result was that three of the trouble-makers were arrested and thrown into the city prison.

It was asserted that it had become necessary for Chung to hire a private detective to act as a bodyguard.

Strenuous objection was made to the increase of the bond, but Justice Brown thought the State was justified in asking that the bond be increased.

CHEERS FOR GRANDPA!

Much happiness in the Bayly and Brant families. At the Good Samaritan Hospital yesterday, a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bayly. The latter is a daughter of Mr. O. F. Brant, of the Title Insurance and Trust Company, now for the first time a grandpa.

TOURISTS TO KEEP COMING.

Travel to California will be Encouraged, Wires Angeleno in East.

That tourist business in California is not going to go to pieces because of the war is the gist of a telegram received yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce from Watt L. Moreland, president of the Moreland Truck Company, who is at present in Washington, D. C. Mr. Moreland's telegram reads:

"Am advised by Chambers, director of traffic, that no attempt will be made to curtail travel to California, but will be encouraged. All equipment necessary to handle travel will be furnished. However, it will be up to hotels and other institutions to do own advertising."

The telegram also indicates that we should go strong on community advertising, as the railroads are not advertising any more, according to the Chamber of Commerce.

CHANGES HER PLEA; TRIAL SET FOR JULY.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH ENTERING FRAUDULENT PENSION CLAIM SAYS NOT GUILTY.

Completely recovered from her collapse in court a week ago, Mrs. Gertrude E. Gould-Smith entered a plea of not guilty in Federal Judge Bledsoe's court yesterday, and her trial was set for the July calendar. She is charged with having entered a fraudulent claim to secure a pension by claiming she had not married again after the death of her first husband, John A. Gould.

Mrs. Gould-Smith on her last appearance in court entered a plea of guilty, but when advised by Judge Bledsoe that she faced a prospective term of five years in the Federal penitentiary she collapsed, and was revived several hours later in the office of United States Marshal Walton. She was advised by the court to think it over, and her plea of not guilty was the result.

Her son, William O. Gould, was arraigned last week, and pleaded not guilty. Another son, Charles A. Gould, is under arrest at Kansas City, awaiting removal proceedings. Both are charged with complicity by making false affidavits to protect their mother. John A. Gould died seven years ago. Mrs. Gould applied for a pension in the name of Gould, when it is the contention of the government that she married Smith and thus rendered void her application.

FOR CHILD'S SUPPORT.

William E. Easton, 21 years old, was made defendant in a suit filed by Theresa Hamilton, guardian of Mattie Lou Hamilton, yesterday, to compel him to contribute $20 a month for the support of a child born to Miss Hamilton, on the allegation that Mr. Easton is the father of the child. This sum is asked until the child reaches the age of 18 years.

SAYS CONVERTS MUST OCCUPY BACK SEATS.

CALIFORNIA LOYAL LEAGUE ASKS AID IN RUNNING DOWN EVERYTHING DISLOYAL.

An appeal has been issued by the California Loyal League, signed by C. A. Phelps, vice-president, and M. O. Graves, secretary, calling upon all loyal Americans to do their utmost to run down every disloyal person. The appeal also declares that newspapers and magazines that were upholders of the Kaiser, and believed Germans far superior to all other people, have not changed their minds materially since America entered the war, and cannot now deceive by their cries of loyalty, and their attempts to assume leadership. They, even if converts, should stay in the back seats, declares the statement. It reads as follows:

Los Angeles, Cal., June 22, 1918.

The California Loyal League appeals to its members and all patriotic people to assist in driving disloyalty from America. This is no time to hesitate. Our duty is plain. Our brave American army and navy are loyally facing every danger both on land and sea. Think of their fate, which may be worse than death should they fall into enemy hands. Wake up, America. You have sent the flower of American manhood to battle for humanity, for the rights and freedom of all mankind. Are you to allow them to be in more danger from the enemies of our country in America than from those they meet upon the sea or the field of battle?

The California Loyal League requests every member of the league and every patriotic person to do all in their power to run down every disloyal person, no matter of what nationality. There is no half-way house, no compromise with wrong. Our army is on the road to Berlin and will not stop to make peace until the Stars and Stripes float in triumph over that city. The Kaiser has challenged America; he shall know and feel our answer.

Our officers and men are cool, clearheaded Americans. The world looks to them to win this war, and with your help they will.

Ask every German in America if they profess loyalty to show it by helping to weed out those Germans who are disloyal, they can better reach the disloyal ones. If they do this, they are no longer Germans. They are true Americans. If they will not do this, they are enemies, and should be put where they belong. Give them the same treatment we would receive in Germany, if we followed the course they take here.

The California Loyal League wishes to call your attention to this fact: a newspaper, magazine or person who were upholders of the Kaiser, and believed Germans far superior to all other people, have not changed their minds materially since we entered the war. They may have changed their talk, but do not be deceived by their pretense of loyalty or buying bonds. When they commence to tell of their patriotic work, set them down as enemies. These admirers of the Kaiser before we were driven into the war, and who are now trying to push themselves forward as leaders in army and patriotic work, need very close watching. If loyal, they should fall in the rear and let true American leaders take the front. We need no one to lead whose loyalty has ever been questioned, and the California Loyal League would not advise our soldiers to follow such an officer. They would undoubtedly lead them into a Kaiser trap. If they profess loyalty, put them in the ranks under true Americans; they will be proud to serve even there, if loyal. If they persists in taking the lead, you make no mistake to brand them traitors. What would be the end of an American in Germany if he insisted in holding any office, while we are at war. Now, Americans, give these deceitful enemies just what they deserve—the extreme penalty of the law for every offense.

The California Loyal League appeals to every loyal organization and person to assist the league in protecting our army and navy from enemies in the rear. You are then helping win the war. The league has for its motto: "Stand by the Government." The men of 1861, Grand Army of Republic, who helped make the laws and have made it possible for the courts and officers to enforce the law, are firmly back of the league, and many of their most prominent officers are members of the league.

Americans, protect our fighters from all enemy in their rear. Give them a fair chance, and we will soon be receiving letters from Headquarters, American Army, Berlin, Germany.

Americans, crush all traitors in America, and our army and navy will bring peace and justice for all mankind.

[Signed]

C. A. PHELPS,
Vice-President.
M. O. GRAVES,
Secretary.

WARRANTS ISSUED FOR FIVE ICE MEN.

THEY'RE CHARGED BY COUNTY SEALER WITH GIVING CUSTOMERS SHORT WEIGHT.

County Sealer Fuller has obtained warrants for the arrest of five ice men for giving short weight. The cases are set for Tuesday.

Mr. Fuller offers the following suggestions by means of which the consumer can assure himself of getting full weight: The law requires each ice wagon to have a set of scales which have been tested and sealed by the Department of Weights and Measures. It gives to any person to whom ice is delivered the authority at the time of such delivery to demand that such ice be weighed in his presence, and it shall be unlawful for the person delivering such ice to fail, neglect or refuse to weigh such ice on the said scales in the wagon from which ice was taken.

A rough estimate of the weight of a block of ice may be obtained by measuring the block, estimating the contents in cubic inches, and dividing by thirty, as thirty cubic inches of ice weigh approximately one pound.

In case that the consumer is unable to obtain full weight, he can appeal to the Department of Weights and Measures, and it will send inspectors to check the ice delivered and to issue prosecution if the weight is short.

SUES FOR DAMAGES.

Isador Gold, a tailor, leaned against a railing on the second-story balcony of a Wall street rooming-house, and fell to the ground. Yesterday he filed suit against Florence L. E. Kesler, owner, and Y. Kurokawa, lessee of the building, for $10,198 damages, charging negligence because the railing gave way.

PICNIC POSTPONED.

The annual picnic of Congregational ministers and their wives, announced for tomorrow at Monrovia, has been called off, on account of the conference to be held the same day with Sir George Adam Smith.

TAX NOTICE TO CHURCHES.

Claims for Exemption Must be Made by Affidavit Before July First.

Notice has been sent to the various churches of the city by the Los Angeles Church Federation stating that the Finance Committee of the City Council has called attention to the fact that a State statute provides that, for the purpose of securing exemption from taxes on churches, a duly certified affidavit that church property is used exclusively for religious purposes must be filed in the office of the County Assessor on or before the first Monday in July.

Details and further information, the notice says, may be obtained at the office of the City Assessor in the City Hall.

WAR PICTURES.

Will be Shown Daily at Kinema Theater to Increase Interest in Disabled French Soldiers.

In order to stir interest in the dependent disabled soldiers of France and their families, the William Sandoz Mission, authorised by the French government, will give a daily exhibition of war pictures at the Kinema Theater, beginning this evening, and continuing all week. The use of the theater has been donated by Emil Kehrlein, Jr.

In addition to colored war pictures, prominent public men and moving-picture stars will speak each evening. Francis J. Heney will deliver the opening address tonight, and other prominent speakers will appear each evening.

Mme. Marie Lantes, William Sandoz and Mlle. Camille de Forest, representing the French government, are working in conjunction with Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Brunswig, Mrs. Grace M. Thomas, Miss Ruth Ann Wilbur and others of Los Angeles, in arranging the Los Angeles meetings.

FRENCH LESSONS FREE.

Citizen of Hollywood Offers This Service Through Patriotic Motives.

D. L. Cobb, a patriotic citizen of Hollywood, is offering to give lessons in French, free of cost, in a French evening war class, as an aid to more efficient service from the men and women who are going "over there" to help win the war.

Persons who expect to enter any branch of the United States war service will be eligible for this instruction. In the application, it is desired that the applicant give his name, the branch of the service to which he is assigned or expects to enter, his address and telephone number.

Announcement of this patriotic work has appeared in the regular liner columns of The Times. It reads as follows:

French Language for War Purposes, residents of Hollywood and adjacent territory who expect to enter any branch of the United States war service, and who desire to acquire some knowledge of the French language, may join a French evening war class. No charge for instruction. Give name, branch of service, address and telephone number. Address B, box 65, Times Office.

BLAME BANK CASHIER FOR AUTO ACCIDENT.

CHARGE OF RECKLESS DRIVING FOLLOWS EARLY MORNING CRASH.

Following an automobile accident early yesterday, in which his car crashed into a truck and drove it through the plate glass window of a store at Ninth street and Santa Fe avenue, Malcolm Crowe, cashier of the Commercial National Bank, was arrested at the Van Nuys Hotel and booked at the Central station on the charge of reckless driving.

The complaint was sworn to by Detectives Russell Smith and Newstettor of the flying squadron. Crowe was taken into court and the date for plea was set for June 26. He was released on his own recognizance.

With Mr. Crowe at the time of the accident, according to the police, were James O. Moore, assistant manager of the Bank of Italy, and Charles Fernald, vice-president of the Fort Dearborn Bank of Chicago. No one in the Crowe automobile was injured.

Mr. Crowe and his friends were returning to the city when the accident occurred, according to the report made out by the detectives. The truck hit was driven by M. Matsushita. Immediately after the accident Mr. Crowe and his companions left the scene in another automobile.

AGED MAN DECLARED TO BE INCOMPETENT.

COURT APPOINTS BANK GUARDIAN ON PETITION OF THE SON.

John W. Lind, 73 years old, was declared incompetent by Judge Taft yesterday on the petition of his son, Charles Lind. It developed that Mr. Lind had been married three times. Two weeks after the second Mrs. Lind died, in December, 1916, Mr. Lind married the mother of Mrs. Olaf Strom, and it was in evidence that Mrs. Strom accompanied her mother and Mr. Lind to Santa Ana, where the ceremony was performed. Eleven months subsequently the third Mrs. Lind died.

The son complained that his father, who is living with the Stroms, came under the influence of Mrs. Strom; that he was given liquor, and that he was more or less intoxicated since last January. The son said that he was unable to induce his father to leave the Stroms, and that the old man was negotiating to sell his property, valued at $10,000, for $5000.

The old man told the court that he wanted to clean up his property, go to Arizona and protect his mining claims. Judge Taft appointed the Hellman Commercial Trust and Savings Bank as guardian.

ENEMIES LOITER AT THE BORDER.

Greater Number There than Ever Before Noted.

Two Men are Brought up for Investigation Here.

Average of Dozen a Week are Interned Locally.

That alien enemies in greater numbers than heretofore are loitering on the border, with the apparent notion of communicating with Germans in Mexico, became evident yesterday, when Albert Sontag, 50 years old, and Louis Gruber, 33 years old, were brought here from San Diego by Federal officials and lodged in the County Jail to await possible internment.

Reports from the border indicate that the United States authorities there are not relaxing in their effort to gather in these Germans, some of whom have been caught while attempting to gain the Mexican side, others to get messages across the line to waiting agents of Wilhelmstrasse.

Sontag is a laborer and native of Germany. He told the arresting officers that he has resided in California seevn months and ten years in the United States. He was arrested on the American side of the border, being unable to explain his presence there.

Gruber is a carpenter by trade and a native of Austria. He has been two and one-half years in California and eleven years in America, he declared. Both men were brought to Los Angeles by Deputy United States Marshal Carse, who refused to discuss their cases.

Alien enemies are now being sent to Fort MacArthur at the rate of about a dozen weekly. These people really have no legal rights under the present necessities of war. They are taken into custody, and if an investigation does not clear them of suspicion, they are simply hustled off to the nearest military post, ultimately to be interned for the duration of the war.

"Nobody is permitted to communicate with these alien enemies after their arrest," declared a prominent official yesterday. "They are not even permitted to have an attorney, nor are they arraigned before the United States Commissioner, as is customarily done in other Federal cases to conform to the citizen's rights.

"War time is serious business, and we are taking no chances with these aliens within our gates. They are placed under arrest on good and sufficient grounds, and their cases investigated in a thorough and impartial manner. If any question of doubt arises, they are set free, but in nine cases out of ten an arrest is usually followed by internment.

"We know there are thousands of enemy aliens in our midst, and we intend to keep them quiet or concentrate them where they can do no harm and perhaps some good for America.

"The West particularly seems to be a stamping ground for suspicious Germans and Austrians, possibly because of the fact that they cannot escape detection in the East. Moreover, the proximity of the border brings them here and to San Diego

Connell held a conference Paul Shoup, president of the at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at which the question of re- the trainmen was considered. Mr. Shoup promised to take the matter under advisement.

"Settlement of the strike at the Baker Iron Works now depends entirely upon the principals," Mr. Connell said. "There is no necessity for further correspondence. The continuance of this strike means curtailment of production, and the government will not countenance this, with others working heart and soul for victory. What the government demands is production—ceaseless production. Petty differences must be set aside for the greater questions involved.

"This is no time for prejudices, with everything in the country working full blast to help our men and our allies over there. I have called on the Baker management and the strikers and their advisers to manifest their patriotism and postpone their differences."

With reference to a threatened strike of master bakers, Mr. Connell said he had been promised that no strike would be ordered.

Mr. Connell will leave for San Francisco today to attend another conference of the San Francisco board of arbitration with respect to seniority rights of train crew service affecting 150 employees of the Nevada Consolidated Copper Company's railway at Ely, Nev.

SPECIAL MILITARY INSTRUCTION
For Boys and Young Men Preparing for Patriotic Service.
The San Diego Army and Navy, during July and August, will conduct, in addition to its regular academic classes, a special course of military training and instruction under the personal direction of its Professor of Military Science and Tactics, Col. J. M. T. Partello, U. S. Army, detailed by the War Department. As a military school, the Academy is in the "M" class—a Real military school; in academic work, it is one of the three military schools in the University of California's Division "A," which represents the highest scholarship. The charges for the entire Summer Session are $100. Only the regulation khaki uniform will be required. The Summer Session is a happy combination of work and play with all the benefits of a summer on the coast and all under the careful supervision of trained men interested in the best in boy life.

What to be Saved?

PILL MIXERS IN WURST CLINIC.

Von Jimson and Dr. Dub Offer Prescriptions.

Ills are Laid to Amazing Feats of "The Times."

Great Billion-Dollar Birdseed Proposition Launched.

Somewhere in No-Man's Land there was a gathering of posthumous patriots. It was an assemblage of the Wurst Home Disregards. It was a cross between a clinic and a post-mortem over defunct advertising and departed subscribers. The advisory board and the board of strategy met for purposes of diagnosis and the laying of plans for a defensive campaign, but the conference largely resolved itself into a tearful exchange of confidences.

A group of sad-faced delegates was present and the seriousness of the situation was indicated by the solemn manner in which the representatives munched their oatmeal wafers.

Herr von Jimson, formerly of Stuttgart, Germany, seated as chairman of the board. Mr. Bar Guyem, who was seated at his right, furnished a fair proportion of the confidences and the bulk of the tears. It required the almost uninterrupted services of a valet with a bath sponge to keep him from spraying the rest of the company. Every time he thought of what was happening to him the massive fountain of his deeps would burst forth afresh, and at one time it was thought that an emergency call for a plumber would be necessary. At that moment he would have been worth $150 a share to any irrigation company.

Then there was Mr. Steve Botherum, who is sometimes handy in explaining as well as soothing in council. He it was who had the idea of running a guessing contest to place the blame.

And there was also present Doctor H. Funnimore Dub.

Of course there were others—including the right and left bower, the little joker and big casino. Only the ace and king seemed missing.

THE SYMPATHY STUNT.

Herr von Jimson announced amid loud applause that he had secured written indorsements of sympathy from a well-known newsboy and another from a prominent and influential peanut vendor. "And," he continued, "I have here a letter just come in the mail which I have not read." Whereupon he started to read in a loud and majestic voice as follows:

"Dear Sir: The way you can tell a yellow dog from a thoroughbred is the way he acts when hit. The yellow dog yelps——"

"The rest of the letter does not seem to matter," muttered Herr Von Jimson, sitting down in confusion.

IN STUTTGART.

In discussing ways and means the chairman murmured reminiscently: "Now, when I was in Stuttgart"—and then hastily added: "The Times lied when it didn't say I was born there. Of course I didn't live there very long. But anyway we saw the importance of propaganda—the idea of furnishing material to shape public opinion."

Then he explained his experiences in employing the services of Mr. Bombastes Brassley, as official faker, spokesman, orator, speech fabricator, hot-air merchant and press agent. The recollection, however, was not entirely pleasant. Every now and then there would be a hitch in the programme. Something would happen. The G strings would bust or the mule throw a shoe. The goods Brassley delivered were not up to the standard of the original package.

This Brassley person modestly began with the creation of a message or proclamation to be issued by the President. Then he manufactured a nice little speech for the Governor of the State, and incidentally some pliable and appropriate words for The Times managers. And Von Jimson sprung 'em on the public as real goods.

That would do fairly well for a starter.

But what really happened was different.

The President, with the placid assurance of a college professor, continued to write his own messages. He went on just as if he thought he had been doing tolerably well, thank you. To put it rather gruffly, the Brassley suggestions, offerings, interpolations and eliminations were spurned.

Likewise the Governor showed signs of revolt and not only scornfully refused to say what he should have said, according to the Brassley mind, but indignantly denied that he said what they said he said. The Governor knocked Von Jimson out in the first round.

This was frightfully unkind and independent on the part of the Governor and the Brassley propagandists were in real distress. Likewise The Times folks continued to plug along in their own sweet way and seemingly not caring a couple of whoops what the Bombastes bureau did or said, or how many speeches or editorials it faked.

Wasn't it cruelty to animals?

The conference—especially the Bar Guyem end of it, was in tears over this trinity of tragedies.

"Blame it all on the spiteful influence of The Times," remarked Chairman Von Jimson, between groans. "Why should The Times fling at me that I studied in Stuttgart? I wasn't born there."

"But how about these resolutions from four city councils in New York and New Jersey, a Woman's Relief Corps in Ohio, a Chamber of Commerce in Massachusetts, Grand Army posts in Pennsylvania and Connecticut, a Relief Corps and a Chamber of Commerce in Illinois and Camp of Spanish War Veterans in Missouri, the National Defense League, as well as an official ban by three foreign nations?" queried the little joker.

"The Times!" wailed the bunch in unison.

"And here's a shipping association in Nova Scotia demanding the exclusion of the Hearst publications?" continued the joker.

"The Times did it," sobbed the chorus.

"But how about this Argentine exporter?" persisted the little joker.

"Somebody sent him a copy of The Times."

RIGHT FROM PEEKABOO.

"Well, I wouldn't admit it," said the joker. "That's a mighty lot of influence you are giving it credit for. But what's this? Here's something more like it. Listen to this dispatch from Peekaboo, Nev. At a meeting of the Reformed Tapeworm Sufferers held last evening a resolution denouncing the Hearst papers was voted down almost unanimously. The publisher was indorsed for his efforts to relieve the suffering Germans by restoring France at the expense of America and the society gave hearty support to his candidacy for Governor of New York.'"

"That's fine," exclaimed Steve Botherem, enthusiastically. "Play it up on the front page in a red ink box with a flag in each corner and get a full page half-tone picture of the society in session for the Sunday feature section. By the way, how many members are there?"

"Only one, I believe," responded the little joker. "There were two, but one of them is a backslider."

"The Times! I'll bet," exclaimed Steve, hotly.

"Well, we've got to do something," snapped Chairman Von Jimson. "I was only in Stuttgart for a while."

"I was right about the flag anyhow," resumed Steve Botherem. "Put a flag on every page; use bucketsful of red ink; run the 'Star Spangled Banner' as a musical supplement; have a full page in four colors of Abraham Lincoln and Herr Hearst clasping hands in a laurel wreath, and say! we'll have group photographs of every Sunday-school class in town. That's the stuff that gets 'em—or makes 'em forget."

"But they won't stay still long enough to have their pictures taken," sobbed Bar Guyem. "Why! they positively refuse."

"Offer 'em premiums. Hold them if you have to hypnotize them," barked Steve. "Tell them you want their pictures for a great religious publication—the Police Gazette—anything long enough to chain 'em. When anybody looks hoist the flag and sing 'My Country 'Tis of Thee.'"

RAISE SOMETHING!

"That's the idea" warbled the main guy. "Raise a flag and raise money. You have to raise something to distract attention."

"We've been raising Hades long enough" interjected the little joker.

"I have it!" exclaimed Dr. Funnimore H. Dub. "We'll raise a fund of a billion dollars for birdseed for stricken France. It's got to be for stricken France somehow or other. They wouldn't let us rebuild their cathedrals or put Hearst memorial windows in their art galleries, but we'll make them take our money yet. With a fund of a billion dollars we can again till the rich soil of France. We can start every peasant and farmer to raising birdseed. There are thousands of German canaries that have no birdseed. What would be finer than that the French people should raise the birdseed for them? We could show pictures of the French and Germans once more shaking hands in amity across the bloody chasm."

IN EVERY HOME.

"But a billion dollars would raise an awful lot of birdseed," remarked Steve.

"I know it," said Dr. Dub, "but think of the principle of the thing. Here's another idea: I don't think there's a single ostrich in France. With a billion dollars we could put an ostrich in every home. Every French woman is a milliner by nature. Here would be the material at hand to trim their own hats. The man could use the ostrich for power and an ostrich egg would give the family its meals for three days."

"Maybe the ostriches could be trained to eat the birdseed," suggested the little joker, "and the farmers could raise both."

Herr von Jimson reported here that he had wired to the Big Noise in New York that something had to be done and asking for suggestions or instructions.

"What answer did you get?" asked Bar Guyem, plaintively.

"Only this," responded the chairman, showing a scrap of yellow paper, on which were these words:

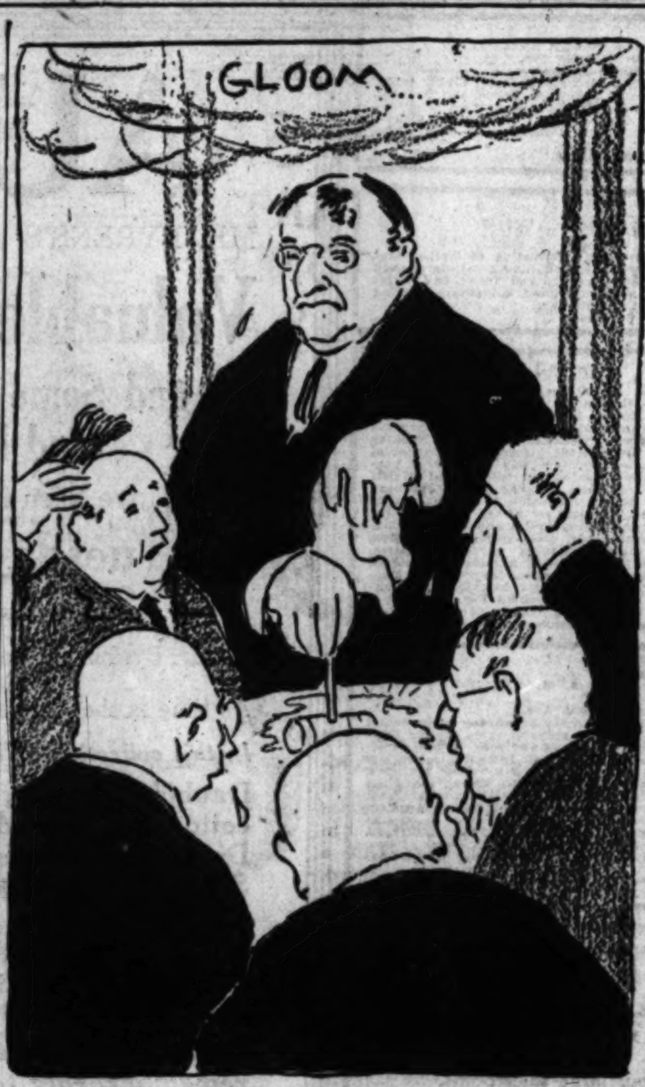
"Tell them that I don't own any of the Wurst papers. They are controlled by a syndicate led by Billy Sunday. Am standing from under. Do as you like; but raise something. And don't fake any more speeches. Say, that was the worst blow I ever got."

"Didn't I tell you," interrupted Dr. Dub. "We'll raise the flag and a billion dollars—for birdseed for stricken France. It won't cost us a cent."

"For stricken France," weeped Bar Guyem, as if in echo.

Watch the front page stuff.

P. S. He was not born in Stuttgart. And nobody ever said he was. He lived there.



The meeting of the Wurst editors.

WILL SEND GREETING.

Former Councilman, Now in France, to Get Message From Old Grand Jury Friends.

Former City Councilman T. L. O'Brien, now in the office of the base censor with the American forces in France, is to receive a joint greeting from members of the 1912 grand jury, of which he was one, penned by Edwin Strasburg. This was decided upon at the annual banquet of the 1912 grand jury members at the Avis Hotel in Pomona last week. It was the first time in six years that Mr. O'Brien had been absent.

Mrs. O'Brien is rejoicing over the fact that she knows where her husband is for the first time since October 18, 1917, when he left New York on the transport with the One Hundred and Seventeenth Regiment of Engineers. Though frequent letters came to her, locations were never given before. Mr. O'Brien writes of having had many interesting experiences, sometimes being billeted in the homes of one of the natives, and again living in a dug-out many feet under ground under a large three-story building which had been shelled and abandoned.

MAY MAKE NEW KIND OF FREIGHT CAR HERE.

J. F. Busey, Jr., No. 225 North Gage street, inventor of the Busey convertible freight car, has taken up with the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce the subject of procuring Federal contracts for the construction here of his new convertible merchandise and cattle car.

The inventor has presented his plans and specifications for such an instantly-convertible freight car as a gift to the government through Railway Director-General McAdoo. The sides of this new convertible car are made in sections of shutters, somewhat like window shutters, to be opened or closed as desired. The company plans to employ several hundred men.

YOUNGSTERS ENJOY MONSTER PICNIC.

"UNCLE MOSE" LOWENSTINE IS HOST TO THOUSANDS AT SOUTH PARK.

The battle cry of freedom called all Broadway to doors and windows yesterday morning. It was the kiddie's battle cry of summer freedom, as thousands and thousands of the yelling youngsters, packed in huge trucks, sped through the street on their way to "Uncle Mose" Lowenstine's treat—a monster picnic at South Park.

The younger set of East Side society was invited, and came joyously. There were sons and daughters of Italy, Mexico, Japan, Greece and China all happy together. Good things to eat were loaded in great cartsful. The first cry after the watermelons were unloaded was "Come on in—the juice is fine." And most of them were soon up to their ears in the fruit.

All nations joined in games and races and contests, and prizes were given for spectacular, comical and skillful feats. "Unc Mose," famous giver of good times for poor kiddies, was aided by Dr. Howard L. Moffatt in giving the young ones a vacation send-off.

One hundred auto trucks, donated by business firms, carried the 10,000 children, the 1000 cakes, the 200 gallons of ice cream and the other good things to eat out to South Park. The same machines brought the same load back—except that only a few traces of the cakes, etc., were visible on the return trip.

It took the youngsters four hours to eat, and they made a good job of it. After the games, Glen MacWilliams distributed the prizes.

WILL INVESTIGATE.

Two Men and a Woman Are Held at Central Station on Charge of Suspicion of Robbery.

Two men and a woman, giving the names of George O'Brien, John Cheatham and Fay Sherwood, were arrested by Central Station detectives yesterday and held on the charge of suspicion of robbery.

One of the officers working on the case, admitted the police, wanted to investigate the prisoners' possible connection with the hold-up a few days ago of J. W. Costello, manager of the Pacific Baking Company, but declared so far the police have no definite clews or suspicions that the trio had any hand in the robbery. Other charges may be made against the prisoners, the officers say.

APPROPRIATION MAY BE CUT; WAR TIME.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, June 22.—Serious consideration is to be given, according to an unofficial statement, by members of the Board of Supervisors to a petition from the Tulare County Grange organization, in which they ask that no further funds be appropriated for the work of the Tulare County Board of Trade during the period of the war.

In the past this fund has approximated $10,000 annually, and the grangers have taken the position that further expenditures of this size will not be in keeping with the spirit of wartime economy.

WILL CAMPAIGN FOR WOMEN'S HOSPITALS.

CITY COUNCIL OF DEFENSE TO BEGIN ACTIVE CANVASS FOR SUBSCRIPTIONS TOMORROW.

Under the direction of Mrs. J. T. Anderson, 8000 members of the Women's City Council of Defense will commence an active canvass of the city tomorrow to help raise $50,000 for the benefit of the American Women's Hospitals.

The campaign for this money was formally launched with a war banquet at the Alexandria Hotel Friday night. Yesterday the organization plans were perfected, at a conference held in the campaign headquarters in the Citizens' National Bank Building.

Before the drive was really launched, Dr. Etta Grey, California State chairman of the Hospitals Association, and president of the Medical Women's National Association, stated that $6000 has already been pledged in Long Beach. Other cities near Los Angeles have been organized, and active solicitation will begin tomorrow morning.

"The American Women's Hospitals has the indorsement of the American Red Cross, Surgeon-General Gorgas, Los Angeles County Medical Society and the War Donations Board of Los Angeles County Council of Defense," said Dr. Grey yesterday. "We purpose to work under the Red Cross, and act as a supplement to that fine organization. There is work for us to do, and every medical woman in America is behind this organization's ambitions."

Two 100 per cent. benefit entertainments were given last night for the fund. At the Majestic Theater the Eagles were in charge, with an excellent programme. At the Walker Theater the Woodmen presented a programme, featuring Marvell, the magician. The entire proceeds go to the American Women's Hospitals.

Every day during this week there will be a noon day luncheon at Christopher's. Each day there will be a speaker who has been in France. The work which the women's hospitals have done and can do in Europe will be detailed, and descriptions of German atrocities will be given.

OUR FLYERS START A HOT TIME IN HUNLAND.

DIES OF WOUNDS.

Corp. Christensen of Tustin Victim of Enemy—Member of Marine Corps.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, June 22.—Today's casualty list brought the news to Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Christensen of Holt avenue, Tustin, that their son, Corp. George G. Christensen, had died from wounds received in action while fighting with the United States Marine Corps in France. The young man would have been 25 years old on July 20, and had served in the Marine Corps nearly six years. As far as known, he is the first Orange-county man to make the big sacrifice in actual combat with the Hun in France.

Corp. Christensen grew up in Tustin, where he attended school and later learned the blacksmith trade.

Two days after the United States declared war on Germany, the young man returned to the colors, on April 8, 1917, and until October 13, last year, was on recruiting duty in Los Angeles. He also was in Phoenix for a short time on recruiting duty.

Early this year he was ordered east to Quantico, Va., and in February sailed for France. A week ago Mrs. Christensen received a Mother's Day letter from him, telling her not to worry as he was all right. He wrote he had never met his brother, Norman E. Christensen, who was also with the marines in France, as the exchange of letters had showed the brothers were drifting farther apart. Corp. Christensen was a member of the Ninety-sixth Company, Fifth Regiment, Second Battalion of Marines, with the American Expeditionary Forces.

Besides the brother also in France, Corp. Christensen has a brother, Bryan, who has just registered for the draft, and Harold, aged 5. A sister, Miss Madeline Christensen, is in training as a nurse at the Pacific Hospital, Los Angeles. Four cousins, sons of J. F. Johnson of Santa Ana, are in the service. He is also related to Mrs. Percy Wilson of Balboa and Mrs. T. C. Natland of Garden Grove.

Working Reserve Camps Give Chance to Earn Money.

Standard Wages will be Paid and Comforts Provided.

Y.M.C.A. Organizations will Have Supervision.

The Young Men's Christian Asso ciation organizations of Fresno, Tulare and Kings counties will con duct a boys' working reserve camp in the San Joaquin Valley during the present summer vacation. The pur pose of the camp will be to have boys of school age help to harvest the grapes, as the grape growers are expecting a shortage of labor. The location of the camps will be in the heart of the county's great est raisin grape section. The work will be entirely picking and hand ling grapes.

Camps will be located for the most part on public school grounds, each camp having a personnel of about fifty to 100 boys. The work will commence about August 15 and continue until September 10, if weather conditions permit. In all probability, the work will continue a few weeks after the fall term of school commences, but arrangements have been made so that those who are working will be admitted to school late. In some cases school teachers will go along to help supervise the work.

The national boys' working reserve has officially designated the Y.M.C.A. as the supervising agency of all groups of boys in the reserve. A supervisor will be sent from the Y.M.C.A. to every camp who will look after the welfare matters of the lads. He will be assisted by the secretary of the county in which they are working. The camp will be governed by a semi-military organization and the boys will co-operate with the director in the camp government.

Standard wages will be paid the workers. Piece rate work is quoted at 3 1-4 cents per tray, each tray averaging about twenty-two pounds. Boys who are willing to work are to use this opportunity for making money, as well as helping the government, can make at least $3 a day, it is stated. Those working by the hour will be given 30 cents an hour. The transportation will be by automobile, a round trip costing about $7. A mess fund will cost each person about $1 a day. The commissary department will be handled entirely by the camp director, who will look after all of the boys' money, put it in the bank for them and give them a draft for the money upon their leaving the camp.

CONDITIONS OF WORK.

Here are the conditions, to which the boys will have to sign in order that they may work:

(a) Must be of United States Boys' Working Reserve, age (16-21, inclusive.)

(b) Must have signed the Boys' Working Reserve agreement and also the Y.M.C.A. requirement, which is as follows:

"I hereby tender my services as farm helper and agree to go where I am sent, to do what I am told, and to abide by the regulations of the camp; and if health permits to remain till released by camp directors. I agree not to use tobacco in any form while engaged in this work. I desire to serve my country and my employer to the best of my ability and to improve myself in spirit, mind and body."

THE EQUIPMENT.

The necessary equipment that each boy should take on the trip is as follows:

(1.) Bedding—two heavy blankets and one quilt or equivalent. Bring tick three by six feet with a slit for filling with straw at camp.

(2.) Clothing — this is a good time to wear out your old clothes. Bring along a second best outfit for dolling up on Sunday and special occasions. Bring all extras in a suitcase which you can lock.

(3.) Miscellaneous—towels, tooth brush, comb, razor, instruments of musical torture, bicycle, Testament, etc.

(4.) A cheerful disposition and a determination to be a 100 per cent worker for God, humanity and country.

Full information regarding the plan may be had of Neil Locke, secretary of the Fresno Y.M.C.A., secretary Tulare county Y.M.C.A., Lindsay; Earle F. Dexter, secretary; L. B. Schaeffer, secretary Kings county Y.M.C.A., at Hanford.

SALVAGE BUILDING GIFT OF MRS. ORR.

GOVERNOR AND OTHERS SPEAK AT FORMAL TRANSFER TO RED CROSS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, June 22.—Addressing a gathering of 4000 people here tonight Gov. Stephens made a stirring, patriotic plea for vigorous support of the government's war programme and called upon all the citizens of this section to get in and do their part in the winning of the war, as the one all-important duty now confronting the people of the nation. He spoke for forty-five minutes and was given careful attention by the big crowd, many of his vigorous periods being roundly cheered.

The particular occasion of his coming here was the formal opening of the new home for the salvage department of the Alhambra-San Gabriel chapter of the Red Cross, a handsome little building in bungalow style, erected and equipped by Mrs. William B. Orr of Alhambra and given to the chapter.

The presentation address was made by Judge W. M. Northrup and the building was accepted for the chapter by Judge Frederick Houser, president of the organization.

Musical features were supplied by the Alhambra Band and Mrs. L. J. Selby, Los Angeles contralto, and the military touch was furnished by the Alhambra company of Home Guards, who gave an exhibition drill.

The building and grounds, located in the downtown business section, were illuminated by a profusion of colored electric lights and over all waved a huge American flag from the top of a thirty-five-foot pole.

An afternoon meeting was addressed by Mrs. Othenian Stephens and Mrs. Carlin, Los Angeles Red Cross workers in the salvage department, and the band from the State School for Boys at Whittier supplied the music.

ADMITTED TO HIGH SCHOOL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, June 21.—Admission Day exercises were held at the Alhambra High School building Friday afternoon, when a class of 111 pupils came in from the grammar schools of the city and was received in due form. Supt. Charles Barber presented the youngsters in a pleasant speech, and in receiving them into the High School Principal Forest V. Routt made the main address of the occasion.

The girls of the incoming class wore a uniform costume of white skirt and middy blouse, the various schools from which they came being designated by neckties of different colors.

BAPTISTS TO DEDICATE CHURCH EDIFICE TODAY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA BEACH, June 22.—With appropriate exercises that will extend throughout the coming week, the First Baptist Church of this city will be dedicated tomorrow, beginning with a morning service at 11 o'clock, when the pastor, Rev. C. Sidney Maddox, to whose untiring efforts his congregation attribute much of their success in building the beautiful new church, will deliver a sermon on "The Price of Victory." The dedicatory sermon will be preached at a service that begins at 3 p.m. tomorrow by Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, Los Angeles.

Among the prominent Baptist pastors who will take part in the dedicatory service are Rev. John G. Carmichael, of Bethel Baptist Church, Los Angeles, who will lead the devotionals; Dr. George L. White, superintendent of the American Baptist Publication Society, Pacific District, who will offer the dedicatory prayer, and Rev. L. A. Gould, the first pastor of the First Baptist Church here. Tomorrow evening there will be preaching at 8 o'clock by Dr. H. P. Fitch of Tennessee.

The new structure, towards whose completion the pastor and congregation have been arduously working for the last four years, cost $22,500. It is a handsome stucco structure, with beautiful stained glass windows, and is acknowledged as the most modern church building in this city and one of the finest churches in Southern California of this denomination. The dedication is a great event in Baptist circles, more than 2000 invitations having been sent out to members of the denomination in Los Angeles and neighboring cities and a record-breaking throng for an occasion of this sort in this community is expected to grace tomorrow's exercises.

The new place of worship is located at the corner of Lake and Hill streets, with the parsonage immediately adjoining it, where the busy pastor can always be found by his flock.

Included in the dedicatory week are five other services, the first one at 8 p.m. on Monday, which is programmed as community night. The Santa Monica Beach Community Chorus, led by Sam V. Carlisle, will sing, there will be chalk talks by L. E. Dunham, cartoonist, and an address by Mr. Robert White, president of the Santa Monica-Ocean Park Chamber of Commerce. Young peoples' night, Tuesday evening, will be featured by music by young peoples' societies from the First Baptist Church of Los Angeles, to which all other young peoples' societies are invited. Dr. Herbert C. King will preside, and an address on "Loyalty to Christ," will be given by Rev. J. Ross Kitt.

Wednesday will be an evening with the masters of music, both patriotic and classical, with Mrs. Owen Rice presiding. Thursday evening the pastors of all the local churches and their congregations are invited, with the Rev. A. C. Welch, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Ocean Park, presiding.

Patriotic night, Friday evening, will close the week, with an address by Guy Manners, the eminent British poet and savant, now sojourning in Santa Monica Beach, and with Mayor S. L. Berkley, who is one of the prominent workers in the church, presiding.

GAY WITH PENNANTS, WAKULLA LEAVES PORT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, June 22.—The new steamship Wakulla, the second vessel built by the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company for the Emergency Fleet Corporation, sailed today on her trial trip after having been in course of construction slightly more than five months since being launched on January 14.

The Wakulla, which was originally christened the Taconia, was turned over to the United States Shipping Board in one week's less time than it took to complete the first ship built there, the Accomac, which left here on June 1 on her maiden voyage.

The Wakulla was out for several hours last night, but returned to her dock later. Leaving at 9 o'clock this morning she passed down the bay gaily decorated with pennants and streamers as well as dozens of navy code signals displayed. A hundred or more whistles and sirens were blown in salute to the craft as she passed down the bay under her own steam.

NEED OF HOMES IS ACUTE AT HARBOR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, June 22.—The need of homes in the harbor district has reached such an acute stage that an unlimited radius of town from where homes can be moved to the harbor district has been established.

Some time ago a move was started by Los Angeles property owners to transport houses from the southern section to San Pedro and Wilmington, and a long-distance record was established when a man moved a home here from Van Nuys.

Later a Long Beach canning company moved some of its bunkhouses to Fish Harbor by placing them on big barges. Today Theodore Kelm shattered all records for long-distance moving. Kelm took out a building permit to move his five-room residence in Mojave and place it at No. 676 Eleventh street, San Pedro.

Trust Me! Try Dodson's Liver Tone!
Calomel Harms Liver and Bowels

Read my guarantee! Liven your liver and bowels and get straightened up without taking sickening calomel. Don't lose a day's work!

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and cannot salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

JAIL TERM FACES TURCK.

Commutation of Sentence by Gov. Stephens Only Hope of Fish Dealer.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, June 22.—W. I. Turck, wealthy president of the Southern California Fish Company, appears to have little chance of avoiding a ten-day sentence in jail for speeding fifty-eight miles an hour, according to information here today. Notification was received that he had failed to get an order of the Appellate Court freeing him from the sentence imposed by Justice Cox, and the only show he has of escaping the sentence is its commutation by Gov. Stephens. Turck has already appealed to the Governor, but it is not believed here that he will take any action in the matter. No further action will be taken with the case until formal order is received from the Appellate Court, some time within thirty days, when Turck will probably be ordered forthwith behind the bars for ten days.

HUNTINGTON PARK GRADUATING CLASS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, June 22.—The graduating exercises of the Huntington Park Union High School were held in the High School auditorium on Wednesday evening, June 12. The occasion was made a patriotic outburst as a climax to the numerous and aggressive war activities and patriotic demonstrations that have characterized this High School during the past year.

The programme consisted of patriotic addresses on different phases of the war by members of the graduating class, and the music and decorations were of a patriotic character.

Huntington Park Union High School has had a phenomenal growth. It was organized in 1909 and the first year had sixty students and one graduate. This year it had an enrollment of 330 and a graduating class of forty-five. The school prints its own high school weekly, and the numerous courses and activities give students a broad and varied training for enlightened citizenship.

An interesting part of the graduating exercises was the entrance march, "March Militaire," composed by Helen Hoffman, and the exit march, "Pro-Patria," by Rose Blankenship, members of the class of 1918. Ruth Pearson won first rank in scholarship, and Nettie Denning and Lenorah Darrow second rank. The class was presented by the principal, J. M. Reeder.

Manhattan Beach Resident Arrested, but Denies Pro-German Sympathies.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HERMOSA BEACH, June 22.—Antone Hendricks of Manhattan Beach was arrested yesterday afternoon by Marshal Wright Gipson of this city on suspicion of being an alien enemy and of failure to register. He is being held awaiting information from Sacramento. A shotgun and revolver were found on his premises together with three boxes of shells for the shotgun and one for the revolver.

Hendricks, who is employed by the city of El Segundo as a street laborer, denies that he is an alien enemy. He admits having been born in Germany, which country he left thirty-two years ago when he was 14 years of age. He claims to have taken out his naturalization papers, but that these were burned up in the San Francisco fire. This is being investigated by Federal officials. He also denies that his sympathies are pro-German.

EVERY TOMATO CAN WEAPON TO HIT HUN.

DECLARATION OF SPEAKER AT OPENING OF NEW CANNERY AT BALDWIN PARK.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BALDWIN PARK, June 22.—More than 500 citizens of Baldwin Park and guests from surrounding towns, including El Monte, Puente, San Gabriel and Covina, gathered here to celebrate the opening of the new cannery just completed by the Baldwin Park Industrial Promotion Association, of which J. D. Shultis is president and Fred McLeod, secretary. Speeches were made by Mr. Shultis, R. B. Hubbard, who has leased the cannery and will operate it, and several citizens from neighboring towns, all congratulating the community on the advancement made in patriotic food conservation by the establishment of this new industry.

Mr. Shultis stated that this is the only cannery in California built by the people of a town themselves. Ex-Senator Prescott F. Cogswell of El Monte was enthusiastic in his approval of the step as an active war service measure as well as for industrial growth. M. Matthews of Covina declared that every tomato can was a weapon to help the boys in the trenches hit the Hun. Mr. Hammerly of Puente and Mr. McGunn of San Gabriel each spoke briefly of the commendable loyalty of food production achievements.

Following the programme a dance and supper furnished pleasure for old and young, the small boys and the babies—including several from the prosperous Japanese district—apparently deriving much joy from the capers of the older generations, who gave spirited demonstrations of how quadrilles may still be danced to "Turkey in the Straw," and put on exhibition "clog" dancing with great gusto. As a community gathering in the cause of a community achievement for national and Allied aid toward world betterment, the affair was a marked success.

"By Many Years of Practical Experience in the Scientific Use of Analgesia, I Have Gained a Knowledge of This Wonderful Treatment Which Enables Me to GUARANTEE to Extract, Crown, Fill and Bridge Teeth and Remove Live Nerves WITHOUT PAIN"

Dr. D. E. Foster.

Today, here in Los Angeles, there are thousands of men, women and children whose health is gradually being undermined by the poison that constantly enters their blood from the cavities of decayed teeth. Many people who neglect their teeth do so because they fear the pain and discomfort which they have learned to expect as a necessary part of the ordinary dental treatment.

If these people knew the facts about my new Analgesic method of Painless Dentistry—if they could read my many testimonials from Los Angeles people whose names are familiar to them, this fear of the dentist's chair would be a thing of the past.

My scientific study of and practical experience in dentistry, dates back over a period of many years, including service as dental surgeon of the United States Army during the Spanish-American War. I number among my patients some of the best known people of this city.

Any one of my patients who is wearing these new thin metal plates, will testify that they are far superior to the old style, thick, rubber plates. They are cleaner, more sanitary and more comfortable. They eliminate that whistling sound when talking, which is such a disagreeable feature of the old style rubber plate.

The illustration above shows how I can model them so as to build out the hollows of the face and eliminate the wrinkles and lines that come with increasing age. Cross section diagram shows comparative thickness of the thin metal plate and the thick rubber plate.

Large Itching Pimples Healed by Cuticura Cost Only $1.25

"My trouble began by pimples coming on my face and chest. The pimples scaled over, and were hard and large, and were in blotches. They began itching and made sore eruptions and when any of the places got well it left an ugly scar. The eruption burned causing loss of sleep, and my face was disfigured.

"The trouble lasted six years, and everything failed to help them. I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I only used one box of Cuticura Ointment, and three cakes of Cuticura Soap when I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. S. L. Buck, Lower Penasco, New Mexico, August 16, 1917.

No beauty doctor can do more for your complexion than Cuticura Soap, assisted when necessary by touches of Cuticura Ointment. Unlike strongly medicated soaps, Cuticura Soap is ideal for the complexion because so mild, so delicate and so creamy.

KEEP YOUR JOB.

above, while imaginary and into the future a week or so, predict what is going to around these United States after a week from tomorrow, government, through its boards, begins to enforce famous "work-or-fight" laid down by Provost-General Crowder. No orhas caused the comthat it has caused. Every it was telegraphed from every draft board in the has been besieged with men who wanted to know do. These boards have said now uniformly to all these have a job, KEEP IT. The board will send for you when it is ready to ask you about your work, and you will be given plenty of time to change it if the board thinks your job is no man's job. But in the meantime KEEP YOUR JOB."

But as for the powder-puff boys, the lily-fingered youths who are "in the movies, don't you know," young men with money who are driving their father's cars about from one club to another for a few scuttles of hootch, and then end a hard day's work by a bright evening at Vernon—these are the boys the government is going to hang a uniform on, pronto!

UP TO THE BOARD.

It all comes down to what each board decides in each case in answer to the question: Is this young man doing essential work—essential to the support of his family, essential to business, essential to the government?

Provost-Marshal-General Crowder's additional regulations made public yesterday threw additional light on the enforcement of the "work or fight" rule, saying that local boards would be guided by common sense. Baseball playing as such is considered a nonessential occupation, but each case will be considered by each local board and then by the district appeal boards, and no sweeping ruling will be made against ball players and thus break up professional ball teams. The general said that each case of salemen will be considered separately. For example, automobile salesmen are considered nonessential, while traveling salesmen and experts are considered essential. Public and private chauffeurs are considered essential, providing they are working at it regularly and not idling most of their time. Theater, hotel, club and store attendants and helpers of various sorts are not looked on with approval, but regular performers in theaters, skilled definite employees with certain exact qualifications are considered essential. Gen. Crowder said on the matter of clerks:

"The regulations further provide that sales clerks and other clerks employed in stores and other mercantile establishments are engaged in nonproductive employments, but this does not include store executives, managers, superintendents nor the head of such departments as accounting, financial, advertising, credit, purchasing, delivery, receiving, shipping and other departments; does not include registered pharmacists employed in wholesale and retail drug establishments and does not include traveling salesmen, buyers, delivery drivers, electricians, engineers, carpet-layers, upholsterers nor any employees doing heavy work outside the usual duties of clerks.

"However, 'sales clerks and other clerks' include the clerical force in the office and in all departments of stores and mercantile establishments. The words 'stores and other mercantile establishments' include both wholesale and retail stores and mercantile establishments engaged in selling goods and wares."

Boards are instructed to give the agents of the United States employment service lists of the names of registrants who have been summoned for examination under the order.

"As we see it, the government wants no hard and fast rules laid down for essential and nonessential occupations," said Robert M. Shearer, secretary of board No. 17, the largest board in Los Angeles.

"The government wants nothing done to disturb business. The government is going to support the business man just as the business man is supporting the government and the war. Liberty Loans and Red Cross drives are not possible unless business goes on, and the work or fight rule has nothing to do with real business conditions and will not disturb them.

"But with the aid of the police and from examinations of questionnaires we are first going to round up young men with mysterious occupations and bring them in and decide each case on its merits. Every case decided by a local board will be reviewed by the district board of appeal and if there is one dissenting vote in the district board's decision, the registrant may appeal to the President of the United States. So you see every one is going to have justice.

"A man comes in here, for example, and says: 'I am a salesman.' We say, 'Keep your job.' Another man slouches in and says: 'I am not working. What shall I do?' We say, 'Get a job quick or volunteer and report back what you intend to do and be quick about it.'"

"After we have cleaned up the loafers and men without any visible occupations and put them on jobs on the farms or in shipyards or into the army, then we can turn our attention to young men actually on jobs, but of a kind the government thinks women or older men could do just as well—running elevators, store clerks, hat checkers in hotels, etc. Each case will be taken up individually, and it will be some time before we and all the other boards get around to them and then each case will be decided slowly, carefully on its merits. If it appears that a young man is a bell boy in a hotel or working behind a counter because it is easy and gives him plenty of time to go to dance halls, why I am afraid that young man will have to shift into a regular job. But if we find a young man behind a counter, working hard to help support his mother and father, advancing himself in his job, with a good record, why the chances are that young man will stay right where he is."

WHOM IT WILL HIT.

But while the draft board officials know exactly where they stand, the approach of July 1 is being watched with fear and trembling by members of the Nail Polishers' Association, the Pugilists' Assistants' Union, Vernon Branch, the Captain Kidd Auxiliary of the Hat Checkers and Bandits Association, and other young men of semi-leisure to whom the little affair in Europe in behalf of world democracy "has not meant a thing, my dear, not a thing, for I don't read the papers much, Clarence, old top."

Already the young men who chauffeured the elevators about town are preparing for the Camp Kearny exodus, and teaching young women (by request of their employers) to run elevators. Buildings like the Van Nuys, Los Angeles Investment and others are putting girls on the elevators as fast as they qualify for license. The girls are making good just as they are making good in the Owl, Sun and other chain drug stores, where they are slowly but surely dooming the day of the young man soda dispenser. The government is not saying to young men who have Susie or powder puff jobs to give them up, but it looks not with favor on young men who have these jobs, and as soon as the real loafers are cleaned up, then it will turn its attention to young men of the selective age who are regularly employed in what the government considers are not he-man war-time jobs.

Ultimately, therefore, will disappear Felix, the handsome waiter, who has no reason for staying out of the war except just every-day reluctance to do his bit; also his friend Harold, the beautiful volunteer lifeguard and sunburn expert, and the rest of the ilk, rich or poor, black or white. It is all the same to the government. They will not disappear in a bunch, nor on July 2 or 3, or maybe for months, but ultimately the government will round them all up and slowly but surely they will disappear into the shipyards, the fields or to France, and the complexion of daily life will change as it has in England, Italy, France, where young men are not seen doing silly stay-at-home jobs, while a war is going on, and men are needed in the trenches, behind them, or in the fields.

In the meantime the boards say to young men: Keep your jobs, or get a job if you have none, but be sure you get a real job.

AS TO MARRYING.

The government also warns young men who registered this month as having become 21 since June 5, 1917, "Don't marry now and expect you will be put in class 4, for you will not." Men in class 1 are about exhausted all over the country. There are only 3500 class 1 men left in California, for instance, and Maj. Frank S. Sutton of the Adjutant-

Whole Civil Population.

TO ORGANIZE NEW YORK CITY FOR WORK OF WAR.

Dr. Albert Shiels, Local School Head, Accepts Gigantic Job.

DR. ALBERT SHIELS, superintendent of the Los Angeles city schools, is to go to New York City to take charge of the organization of the whole civil population of the metropolis into community councils for the purpose of advancing war work. Dr. Shiels yesterday asked the Board of Education for a three months' leave of absence, without pay, dating from August 1, and has notified the chairman of the Executive Council of Defense for the City of New York that he will accept the work urged upon him.

The plan of civil organization to be instituted in New York City is to be financed by public-spirited citizens there. The idea is to work out such methods as could be applied during the war, not only in New York, but in other cities as well.

In his letter to the Board of Education, Dr. Shiels says:

Because of its varied population, great size and complexity of its social problems, New York offers an especially difficult situation. It also presents every possible angle for treatment. If a scheme by which the civilian population might be mobilized could be successfully carried out, the results would be significant. . . .

"This request is submitted to me on the grounds of patriotic service. As the chairman of the Mayor's committee puts it, this doing for the civilian population what has already been done in a direct way for the military forces is one of the great things yet to be completed. . . . I have told these gentlemen that, in view of the representations which they have made to me—that this is war work for the government—I should be willing to try to put the organization on its feet and get it started."

Dr. Shiels says that he can do this because the schools of Los Angeles are now firmly established in a programme of war work; better established, he says, than any other city school system with which he is familiar.

In undertaking this great work, Dr. Shiels will go back to fields with which he is thoroughly familiar, for he was long connected with the New York city school system, and he was prominently discussed as the logical successor to the superintendency when it became vacant a few months ago.

Dr. Shiels was educated in the New York public schools. He began a business career in Panama in 1887, when he became cashier for the Panama Railroad. He was also in charge of the British Consulate and international mail station at the city of Colon, and was Consul for Mexico at Colon and Panama. He returned to New York and engaged in the educational work, being connected with its department of education for twenty-six years.

After teaching in various grades, he was the first principal appointed in the city of Greater New York. Later he was appointed district superintendent in the territory comprising the lower East Side and the lower half of the Bronx, where he instituted many innovations in school work and a thorough method of organization. From 1911 to 1913 he was in charge of the evening schools, supervising more than 60,000 pupils, and then he became director of the division of reference and research in New York's department of education. In 1916 he and Dr. Jessup were selected to make a comprehensive survey of the school system in Los Angeles, and some months after that was completed he was called to the superintendency of the Los Angeles city schools.

In 1917 Dr. Shiels was requested to take care of the social welfare work for soldiers in fourteen of the cantonments in the United States, but because of the pressure of his work here was compelled to decline.

NEW ENGLAND SOCIETY.

The New England Society of Southern California will observe the Fourth of July with a patriotic celebration and picnic at Sycamore Grove. A programme has been arranged with patriotic songs, music and addresses. An invitation is extended to all former New Englanders and descendants of New Englanders, their families and citizens. Each county in each of the six States will have its own separate register and headquarters.

SOUTHLAND'S CROPS WILL GO FAR TO FEED NATION.

Year's Production of Beans Staggering in Immensity; Los Angeles County is Busy Growing Things.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA'S bit in food production for 1918 bids fair, as usual, to be the largest accredited to any producing area of equal size in the country, according to the indications afforded by the crop situation and outlook in Los Angeles county. This is all the more calculated to instill pride in the people of this section when some of the adverse conditions under which the crop season this year was inaugurated are taken into consideration.

The hot spell of 1917 did a damage outliving the havoc of the moment, and the dry winter, with its late cold running all too far into the present year, gave some of the annuals an unfavorable start. The growers, with characteristic Southern California spirit, however, gave extra attention to cultivating to offset the adverse effects and worked the harder to equalize things. The result is that this end of the State is able to answer the nation's call with a ringing "Here!"

No dependable figures are available to show just what Southern California as a whole is doing in food production, but Los Angeles county has the statistics to show its part in the achievement. Every other county, too, is, like Los Angeles county, putting forth every effort to surpass its previous best in the final sum total.

GREAT BEAN CROP.

This year's production of the great California food staple, beans, is staggering in its immensity. The bean crop, one of the most important in the whole war list that Uncle Sam is calling for, evens up the less favorable side of the balance sheet. California is growing beans this year to feed whole nations. Even a poor crop will be a big crop, so great is the acreage, and reports from most beans centers indicate that the outlook as a whole is encouraging for a good yield.

Los Angeles county, in common with most of the counties of the State, is now keeping tab on its crops; the plan having been inaugurated by the State Horticultural Commission following a consultation with the commissioners of the various counties. Some of the counties are not as yet in line and the plan is of too recent origin to permit of an accurate generalization of figures. In this county, figures gathered by the thirty or more inspectors under County Horticultural Commissioner Wood have been tabulated by two of Mr. Wood's deputies, E. H. Kent and Miss G. M. E. Kenilworth, for April and May and are being put in shape for June. The May statistics give a good idea of the crop situation close at home and, according to the horticultural authorities, are fairly indicative of conditions throughout the section.

The area in beans in Los Angeles county in May, according to these reports, was 78,478 acres, which was estimated to be from 25 to 40 per cent. more than in any other year. This area has been considerably increased by later plantings. The condition of the crop as a whole in May was indicated in the report as 96 per cent. of perfect. The only anxiety in the outlook is the threatened shortage of labor to handle the tremendous yield.

BEETS AND HAY.

The sugar beet acreage is much less than that of last year, due largely to the long delay in getting the difficulties between the growers and refiners adjusted, a delay which led to the planting of former beet areas to other crops. In the San Fernando Valley the beet acreage dropped from 17,500 to 3800. The total beet area in May was estimated at 13,409 acres for all the county. The beets planted, however, are in good condition, as is shown by the May figure of 92 per cent.

The county's barley hay acreage in May was given at 50,826, with only a 48 per cent. condition. The alfalfa acreage was 14,930, with the excellent condition figure of 95 per cent. Oat hay represented 13,789 acres, with a 47 per cent. condition.

The county grain situation was not so favorable. There were 21,838 acres in wheat, with the condition at 70 per cent., while the barley planted for grain amounted to 13,808 acres and had a condition of 65 per cent.

The showing for both potatoes and tomatoes was favorable, the acreage being large and the condition good. Tomato plantings amounted to 10,135 acres and were in a condition so nearly perfect as to be rated at 99 per cent. The potato acreage was 8235, the condition being given at 88 per cent.

FIELD CROP RATINGS.

Following are some of the ratings for other field crops:

Sweet potatoes, 1139 acres, 100 per cent.; cabbage, 1242 acres, 82 per cent.; lettuce, 668 acres, 94 per cent.; cauliflower, 240 acres, 92 per cent.; strawberries, 1777 acres, 89 per cent.; corn, 2854 acres, 92 per cent.; miscellaneous vegetables, 3424 acres, 95 per cent.; melons, 807 acres, 89 per cent.

The figures for vegetables are for county lands only and do not take into account the record-breaking plantings in cities and towns, due to the response of the family war gardeners to the call for back-yard and vacant-lot food production. The amount of ground in the aggregate given over to such gardens is enormous and the yield for the year is bound to be in keeping. The back-lot vegetable growers do not have the problems of big scale management, such as confront the farmers and commercial growers, to contend with.

The most hopeful thing about the fruit and nut situation as it stands at present is the outlook for 1919. The horticulturists will this year unfortunately be compelled to suffer for the heat damage of 1917. Experts in tree culture declare, however, that, barring a recurrence of an unusual hot and dry spell like that of a year ago, the orchardists are bound to have things evened up for them by a gigantic crop of the true 100 per cent. order next year.

TREES BENEFITED.

The hot weather spell of 1917, according to R. W. Hodgson, assistant county farm adviser in charge of horticultural work, greatly stimulated the growth of fruit trees, leaving them in potentially better condition than ever, notwithstanding the actual nipping off and harming of so much embryo and young fruit.

The trees are in better shape to resist possible extreme heat, Mr. Hodgson declares, and are being better cared for because of the lessons learned by the growers. More attention is being given this year to precautionary measures having to do with soil and water conditions, he says, than at any time in the past.

A 65 per cent. crop of Valencias is now being picked, according to the same authority. The heat is supposed to have knocked down from 60 to 80 per cent. of the navels that would have comprised the 1918 yield. The lemon crop was hit by the dry fall and dropped to less than 80 per cent. The hardy grape fruits did better.

PRICES TO BE HIGH.

The dry winter on top of the hot spell of the preceding summer left its mark on the apricot trees, which are hardly expected to go better than 60 to 70 per cent. There will be a 50 to 60 per cent. crop of peaches, it is estimated. The heat killed so much wood in the walnut orchards that the 1918 crop estimates range only from 45 to 70 per cent., depending, as in other estimates, both upon the prophets and the location affected.

To offset the misfortune of poor crop yields, the growers are sure of almost unheard-of prices for many products. There are some who find some consolation, too, in the fact that, under existing railway conditions, there would be a real question as to whether they would successfully ship 100 per cent. crops if they had them.

The predicament of the barley growers in Imperial Valley, what with their enormous crops sacked and waiting in the fields and not enough trains to haul them out, has aroused concern in the minds of many farmers elsewhere.

Choice.

WILL YOU WORK OR WILL YOU FIGHT?—QUESTION.

General's office predicts that by October every Class 1 man in California will be called to the colors. The same condition holds throughout the rest of the country, so the government is not going to stand for any young man hiding behind a woman's skirts, and this also applies to young men who registered a year ago and have married since that time. They will receive no deferred classification except in the case where there has been issue, and then only deferred classification based on the dependency of that issue, and none for the dependency of the wife acquired after registration.

California will send 1850 class 1 men to Fort MacDowell, San Francisco, beginning July 15. Only white men physically qualified for general military service will be called.

Batches of young men will be sent right along from June 24 from local draft boards for the camps during the summer. Tomorrow, for example, Board 17 sends away to camp 230 young men and on Friday will send sixty-six men to Vancouver camp.

In addition the government is calling for 744 young registrants to volunteer for training July 1 at Los Angeles. White men of grammar school education who volunteer will be trained free at local technical schools to be auto mechanics, blacksmiths, and in other mechanical branches and used by the government for the period of the war.

Mildred Aldrich.

PINS ROSES ON OUR MEN MARCHING UP THE MARNE.

IT IS the happy privilege of Mildred Aldrich, author of a book entitled "The Hilltop on the Marne," to be able to grow roses and pin them on the American soldiers who go marching by her cottage in the Valley of the Marne. The author is a cousin of Mrs. E. G. Kenney of No. 975 South Normandie avenue, this city. They formerly resided in Boston, but literary pursuits took the writer to Paris twenty years ago, and after the war broke out she moved into the Marne Valley to view it at close range.

"There is no denying that the Sammies are homesick," she writes to Mrs. Kenney, "but they have access to some of the most beautiful places in France for the eight days of rest they are allowed every four months. The French and English soldiers can go home, but the Americans cannot, so they are sent to wonderful places such as Aix-les-Bains, a lovely place in Savoy, one of the paradises of France.

"Ray Coyle, a California painter, who has been over here two years with the Y.M.C.A., came to see me the other day while on leave at Meaux. He was just in from the front, having been with his division all through the March offensive. He told me as he was leaving that it was the first time in two years he had sat down in a room and talked with a woman. He says that most of all our soldiers miss the companionship of their womenfolk, particularly their mothers."

Mme. Aldrich says that, in spite of war and its anxieties, her garden looks pretty this year. During the last two winters most of her rosebushes died, she writes, "but I keep it to occupy my idle moments, and it is a pleasure to all of the soldiers who pass this way. I always have a posie to pin upon them."

TO LECTURE ON FOOD.

Expert Here to Conduct Courses as Part of Local University's Summer Session.

To conduct courses in the science of food conservation and dietetics at the summer session of the University of Southern California, Dr. Louise Stanley, head of the home economics department of the University of Missouri, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday. Dr. Stanley brings direct to Southern California the aims and plans of Food Administrator Hoover, as she has been called to Washington twice recently in consultation with the National Administration.

Two courses will be conducted by Dr. Stanley here, one on household problems, the other on food and dietetics in relation to the war. The courses are open to all and regular class work begin tomorrow. The series is indorsed by the Los Angeles city unit of the Food Administration.

Sheep Herders Scarce.

Richard Jones of Heber City, a well-known stockman, is in the city. He says flockmasters are feeling the scarcity of experienced help, as so many men needed to look after the large herds of sheep in that region have been drafted. If men who know the business are not employed the sheep suffer from improper attention and from wild animals. A man to herd sheep properly must be a high-grade man and absolutely trustworthy, Mr. Jones said.—[Deseret News.

By Government.

BIDS ON THREE MILLION JARS OF JAM SOUGHT.

THE government sends word to the Trade Extension Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce that it wants bids on from 1,000,000 to 3,000,000 cans of assorted jams. These must be No. 2 and contain about twenty-five ounces. Bids must be sent to the depot quartermaster by the 27th inst.

Recently the government divided the country into zones for furnishing supplies, looking toward the equal distribution of purchasing. The western zone headquarters are in San Francisco and the bids on this jam will be let by the San Francisco office instead of Washington, as heretofore. These will be the first bids to be let there.

Owing to the extreme length of the State and its narrow width, it has been suggested that Southern California be made a purchasing zone in itself. While this has not been formally acted upon, instructions in the order for the millions of cans of jam are to the effect that all of it is desired from manufacturers and dealers south of San Luis Obispo. Hence it appears that although Southern California has not been made a zone by itself, it is being recognized as a supply base for government needs. When Carl E. McStay was East in the spring on Chamber of Commerce business, he went into the fruit canning situation quite thoroughly with the authorities and made available for them a survey of the canning situation. It is believed that this large order coming at this time is a direct result of Mr. McStay's visit and the opening of the Chamber of Commerce bureau in Washington, provided with complete data on the food possibilities of Southern California will result in large orders for supplies of food reaching the manufacturers and dealers here.

TO LECTURE ON FOOD.

Women to be Trained so They May Preach Conservation by Two Experts for a Week.

In the interest of food conservation an institute will be held every day from 9 to 4 o'clock at the Normal School for one week, commencing tomorrow, to train teachers as lecturers on conservation of food.

All school-teachers are eligible for the institute and about fifty have already applied.

Classes will be held by two expert demonstrators every day and they will be criticised by the teachers, who will themselves give demonstrations and take examinations at the end of the week for certificates.

The teachers will be assigned to various parts of the immediate country to lecture and give demonstrations that the housewives may learn the newest ways to conserve food.

Those who will teach the institute classes are Miss L. Y. Davis of the Department of Agriculture; Dr. Louise Stanley, head of the department of home economics of the University of Wisconsin; Miss Bonnie Sholes, director of home economics, Santa Barbara State Normal; Miss Grace Sutton, Pasadena demonstrator, and Miss B. E. Parcel, in charge of Pasadena canteen work; Miss K. R. Curdy and Miss Marian Andrews.

BANKER CELEBRATES RECOVERY OF HEALTH.

A. P. GIANNINI ON WAY BACK TO CALIFORNIA AFTER SUCCESSFUL OPERATION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—A. P. Giannini, president of the Bank of Italy of Los Angeles and San Francisco, is on his way home with his wife, son and daughter. The California banker has just recovered from a serious and unusual operation for stomach trouble performed in Washington by Dr. Morgan, a famous specialist. So delighted with his complete recovery was Mr. Giannini that he almost demoralized the entire staff at his hotel here in the munificence of his gifts as he started for the train that will carry him home. This, too, in spite of the fact that his car fare to the Golden State, according to the new passenger schedules, for his party spoiled a $1000 bill.

Miss Giannini started to school last fall in a fashionable school in Connecticut, and finished the term in Florida. In the winter during the coalless cold snap the school and the pupils and the teachers solved the heatless days by gathering close to the equator, thus pointing another moral to the oft-repeated axiom that California is, after all, the only place to live in comfort the twelve months through.

Still Unbroken.

"Did you stay long enough in Kay See to get city broke?" inquired a facetious citizen of Petunia.

"No," replied Burt Blurt, who was just back from the Big Burg. "I got home with over 35 cents in my pocket."—[Kansas City Star.

SCHOOLS' GOOD WORK FOR FRENCH ORPHANS.

CONTRIBUTE MORE THAT FIFTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS TO SUPPORT WAIFS.

The schools of this city have contributed in excess of $15,000 during the past scholastic year for support of French orphans. The receipts for one day at the headquarters of the Fatherless Children of France, No. 752 South Olive street, were: From the Cahuenga school, $182.50; Hoover-street school, $766.50; Magnolia-avenue school, $96.77; Rosemont-avenue school, $109.50; Tenth-street school, $109.50; Thirtieth-street school, $322.67.

Film celebrities are interesting themselves in this work. Mary Pickford has adopted several orphans, Charlie Chaplin has just sent in his check for $109.50 to provide for three orphans one year.

Several motormen are laying aside a dime a day for the yearly care of their own special French orphans. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dabney of Los Angeles have adopted fifty war orphans. The Hollywood High School, in addition to its responsibilities in connection with those orphans heretofore taken, has adopted an additional list of fourteen, making a total for this one institution of forty-seven. The school has sent to headquarters its check for $1300, and plans to send in $400 additional. The Los Angeles High School student body has just raised $750 for the orphans, and the faculty has contributed an additional $400.

WOMEN WITH HATPINS.

The very latest news from th Stables colony, sent in a letter from one of the colonists to a forme colonist who is now here, indicates that Harriman is having rather lively times just now in meeting or trying to avoid irate members of the new Utopia.

This letter relates that a large number of people are camping on Harriman's trail, demanding that he return the money they have invested, and that while he was up in an attorney's office in Leesville, the other day a number of women investors in the colony scheme gathered to wait for him. Their purpose was to demand a return of their money.

Harriman became aware of the situation and it is said he telephoned the Sheriff for protection, as he said the women were armed. The Sheriff came to protect Harriman, and found the women had no weapons but hatpins. They offered to surrender them, but the officer of the law refused to accept them.

TO SELL STOCK.

The Llano Protective Association has been organized among former members and investors in the Harriman Socialistic scheme, and its purpose is to give such aid as is possible to the people who have lost their all in the venture, and to take any steps possible to recover something out of the distressing situation.

This association, of which John Norton, No. 516 East Forty-ninth street, Los Angeles, is the secretary, has had assigned to it more than 1,000 shares of the Llano del Rio stock, which it is willing to sell at a big sacrifice. It is understood that a portion of the proceeds of sales of this stock will be used for the purpose of exploiting the actual conditions in the Harriman colonies, for the purpose of preventing the appearance of a new crop of investors.

CIRCULAR LETTER.

An undated circular letter has been sent by the Llano Co-operative Colony, from Stables, La., addressed to "Dear Comrade," and setting forth the advantages of the new location. It states that the circular letter is being sent out to absent colonists, whose addresses the colony has, and asks "even those who

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Applying this Paste Actually Removes Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Merely applying an inexpensive paste to a hairy surface, say beauty specialists, will dissolve the hairs. This paste is made by mixing a little water with some powdered delatone; after about 2 minutes it is rubbed off and the skin washed. This simple method not only removes every trace of hair, but leaves the skin free from blemish. To insure success with this treatment, be careful to get real delatone.

HARRIMAN INDICTED, HIS COLONY IN A BAD WAY.

Membership in His Louisiana Swamp Lands Now Only Half Hundred, it is Said; Trouble Piling Up.

HARRIMAN'S Land of Promise, first located out in the [illegible] reaches of Antelope Valley, now situated in the swampy lands at Stables, La., near the [illegible] of Leesville—seems to be in a bad way again, or possibly yet. And [illegible] appears to be the lode-[illegible] that continues to attract the [illegible] attention of trouble.

According to statements that have appeared in the Leesville Leader, [illegible], who is the president and [illegible] spirit in the Socialist colony that became notorious for its [illegible] here in California, and which moved on to the swamp lands of Louisiana, has been under indictment in Vernon Parish, La., for false and misleading advertising of the scheme. The membership of the colony, which once boasted a roll from 1400 to 1500 persons, has, as stated in the Leesville paper, [illegible] down to forty or fifty persons and the discontended ones are leaving as rapidly as they can get the funds to make the move.

The Harriman activities in connection with the Llano del Rio Colony have been under investigation by the Los Angeles county grand jury for some time. Simultaneously a Federal inquiry is under way into the reported presence in South America of Job's son, Gray Harriman, a youth of draft age.

WOMEN WITH HATPINS.

The very latest news from the [illegible] colony, sent in a letter from one of the colonists to a former [illegible] who is now here, indicates that Harriman is having rather hard times just now in meeting or trying to avoid irate members of the [illegible].

The letter relates that a large number of people are camping on Harriman's trail, demanding that he return the money they have invested, and that while he was up in an attorney's office in Leesville, the [illegible] a number of women interested in the colony scheme gathered to wait for him. Their purpose was to demand a return of their money.

Harriman became aware of the plan and it is said he telephoned the Sheriff for protection, as he heard the women were armed. The Sheriff came to protect Harriman, and found the women had no weapons but hatpins. They offered to surrender them, but the officer of the law refused to accept them.

[illegible] TO SELL STOCK.

The Llano Protective Association has been organized among former members and investors in the Harriman Socialistic scheme, and its purpose is to give such aid as is possible to the people who have put their all in the venture, and to take any steps possible to recover them out of the distressing situation.

The association, of which John [illegible], No. 516 East Forty-ninth street, Los Angeles, is the secretary, has had assigned to it more than [illegible] shares of the Llano del Rio stock which it is willing to sell at a sacrifice. It is understood that a portion of the proceeds of sales of this stock will be used for the purpose of exploiting the actual conditions in the Harriman colonies, for the purpose of preventing the [illegible] of a new crop of investors.

CIRCULAR LETTER.

An undated circular letter has been sent by the Llano Co-operative Colony from Stables, La., addressed "Dear Comrade," and setting forth the advantages of the new location. It states that the circular letter is being sent out to absent members whose addresses the colony has, and asks "even those who have fought us very hard" to visit the colony and promises that "those who come will be given every courtesy and afforded every reasonable opportunity for learning what they wish to know."

This significant statement is made: "Those members who wish to remain with the colony are, of course, welcome to do so. Those who do not can be taken care of in some other way in the comparatively near future, we believe."

"We hope you will write us and let us know what you purpose doing," says the circular letter, and it naively says in a postscript: "Please answer on the back of this letter as soon as possible." Just why this plan of getting the circulars back is proposed is not made clear.

Despite the glowing assurances that emanate from the Harriman Louisiana headquarters, other reports from that place must be far from reassuring to those who have invested their all in the Harriman Socialistic Utopia.

LAND FOR A FEE.

In a letter to a former colonist at Llano del Rio, and now in Los Angeles, J. R. Allison writes from Leesville that Harriman has been begging for time on accounts; that mules, and other stock are bought in the names of individuals, and that there are various affairs at the colony of which the colonists are not aware, while the prospect is that Harriman's lawyer, defending him under the indictment in Vernon Parish, is likely to get a big slice of land for his fee.

In the issue of the Leesville Leader of May 30, there appears an article signed by ten persons and headed "Some Facts as to the Methods Employed to Dupe the Unsuspecting Socialist." This article says:

"We wish to convey to the public the state of conditions existing in the greatly advertised Llano del Rio colonies of California and Stables, La., founded by Job Harriman of Los Angeles, Cal., in May, 1914. From a boasted membership of 1400 or 1500, for both colonies, there are only about forty or fifty members left, and they are here at Stables, La. The colony at Llano, Cal., has passed to the hands of capitalists, and is no more. It was a failure from its inception (unless dissatisfaction, poverty, backbiting, slavery, debt and starvation are a success.)

"At the end of three years, the management (Job Harriman is the whole thing.) found themselves facing certain failure, and according to a recent statement, Job made a nation-wide search for a suitable place to continue his schema. He landed at Stables, La., about November 1, 1917, where he claimed he had bought 16,000 acres of land. As a matter of fact, there has never been a dollar paid on it yet.

"We found this out about two months ago, and we stood together and demanded our property, and got it; also obtained a promise from Job that he would not sell any more memberships until he had secured some land on which he would have something to sell.

"About March 16, 1918, about seventy of us members who had paid into this colony quit in a body, and had to leave all the cash we paid into the colony. We got all the property we could that belonged to those of us that put in property, amounting to $16,000. Those who paid in cash simply got nothing.

"Job Harriman, president of the colony here at Stables, La., is now under indictment in this (Vernon) parish for falsely advertising his scheme, and we hope when the good people of this community and parish get through with him, he will be glad to disband his unworthy 'gang' and try an honorable way of getting a living.

"The good people of our beloved South will not stand for Job's tactics, and the sooner he realizes it the better for him. They will not sit idly by and see his despicable, autocracy-slavery-poverty-starvation (72 cents per day,) practiced on even 'Socialists;' they are respected here as 'human,' at least, and they will see that his gang quits spreading their nets to drag the country for more victims.

"It is a pitiful sight to see his poor loyal slaves, that are still hoping against hope to get something out of their losses put into the Llano, (Cal.) colony, nearly all of whom came from California. Many good people . . . old bachelors, old maids, widows, widowers, some too old to work, and some sick . . . are here, and have been stripped of their all, and now they have to work at 72 cents per day to make a living.

"These people were all enticed here already broke, and those of us who have joined this colony here, and who have paid out good United States coin into the colony, have fed them since they arrived here; and Job required each of them to sign a contract, and cancel their stock certificates, till they had worked 132 consecutive days (peonage.) . . .

" . . . A man cannot make an investigation here before he drops his money. . . . Every one of them that can get a chance is patting him on the back, and telling him what a fine thing the colony is . . . and at the same time some of these poor slaves will wink the other eye and remark that there is another 'bread ticket,' and as soon as the 'bread ticket' awakes sufficiently to begin to see the nigger in the woodpile and really wants to know something about the business, he will be insulted, and told 'If you are not satisfied, you should get out.' That's the game—get the money.

"We could go on indefinitely and the half would not be told. We only hope that all good people will not lose a chance to spread the truth about this monstrosity, and we promise to keep doing all that we can to annihilate it forever.

"There are possibly not less than 1000 persons who have handed over their good money who would indorse every word in this article, who are scattered to the four winds of the earth. However, there are a great number of people hereabouts who would be only too glad to give all the information they can to keep good, unsuspecting people from losing anything in such a scheme as this."

The above statement is signed by Mrs. W. M. Leisbing, Mrs. L. Lockhart, S. L. Goree, R. M. Emerson, Mrs. Lulu Estes, M. W. Clayborn, Mrs. A. D. Thompson, J. K. Harrison, B. Ellsobrook and R. F. Blackmon, the address of all of whom is Leesville, La.

Book plate autographed by President.

Eleven originals of the above have been received by the local Red Cross Chapter House and will be sold for the benefit of the Red Cross fund.

It's for Sale.

PRESIDENT'S AUTOGRAPH TO AID LOCAL RED CROSS.

ELEVEN book plates autographed by President Wilson have just arrived at the Red Cross chapter house at Eighth and Alvarado streets, this city, and because of the signature are expected to bring $1000 each. The plates were designed by Miss Loren Barton, niece of Clara Barton, for whom the Clara Barton Hospital was named. Mrs. Hancock Banning and Mrs. J. M. Danziger, head of the Red Cross chapter house, sent them to President Wilson asking that he sign his name and thereby add to the value of the articles.

Mr. Wilson wrote a letter and sent along with the plates, after writing his name upon them, and commended the Red Cross upon its wonderful work. He said he hoped the women would like his signature and that the plates would bring "a lot of money."

A dozen other book plates autographed by Gen. Pershing have just arrived from France and will also be sold, the chapter house hoping to get $500 each. Gen. Pershing asked the women to send as many more as possible and promised to get the signature of every Allied Monarch in Europe. He not only praised the Red Cross all over the United States, but said he was exceedingly proud of what the Red Cross is doing in Los Angeles.

Recently a Texas turkey sent to President Wilson was auctioned off and brought $40,000. With that in mind the local women feel that the book plates should easily bring $1000 each.

BIG GOVERNMENT WAR EXHIBIT TO COME HERE.

Latest Guns of All Sizes, Bombs, Etc., to be Seen at Liberty Fair.

DEPTH bombs, torpedoes, anti-aircraft cannon and guns from the mountain artillery now being used by the United States troops at the front will be included in the government exhibit to be shown at the California Liberty Fair to be held at Exposition Park in this city from October 12 to 26. Secretary F. B. Dawson yesterday confirmed the announcement that the government exhibit is to be a part of this fair and sent the following telegram to Prof. F. Lamson-Scribner, expert on exhibits, at Washington, D. C.:

"Permit me to advise that the board of directors of the Liberty Fair Association is happy in the anticipation of your co-operation with us in the big Liberty Fair. We shall be pleased to meet every obligation you have placed upon us in the matter of making effective your exhibits."

This remarkable war exhibit, to be sent to Los Angeles by Uncle Sam, will reach here in time for the opening of the fair. A special building will be erected in which to house the exhibit and ample space is to be provided for this interesting feature of the big fair, which it is expected will draw more than half a million people.

SOME OF THE EXHIBITS.

Among the many things to be sent from Washington are Browning machine guns, a Lewis machine gun, a 2.95-inch mountain gun, projectiles for the 75-mm field gun and a complete infantry equipment. The Springfield rifle of the 1917 model and the latest 1918 Enfield rifle, wooden blocks showing the penetration of the rifle bullets from the old and modern type of rifle bullets will also be shown.

The army and navy will be given special space. The army exhibit will include the tents the men use. Lay figures are to be seen wearing the full regalia of the men about to enter the front-line trenches. The uniforms furnished by the Quartermaster's Department to American troops now in France will be shown, together with the trench helmets, which have proved so valuable, and the gas masks which have saved so many lives.

The Flying Corps will be given especial attention. The aircraft bombs, which have made life uncomfortable for the Boches, will be shown with the uniform of the men of the air together with the guns mounted in the airplanes. The regimental and national colors will be seen, together with the storm and post flags. The exhibit will enable one to understand much of the war talk, which to some has little meaning.

WHAT NAVY WILL HAVE.

The navy will show the rifles which the marines are using so effectively; a torpedo ready to be launched, depth bombs which have proved a menace to the submarine, the swords, scabbards, trumpets and flags of the navy, and the winter clothing used by our men in the North Sea, together with the Lewis machine gun used by the landing parties from the big battleships.

The food supply exhibit, which is also to be sent by the government, will have an educational value. The different food fish will be seen in life-size, done in tin or glass. Samples of the whale, the shark, the kippered sablefish, eulachon, miltburbot, drum, tilefish, skates and rags will be displayed. In fact, fish few ever heard of before will be offered as a help to chop down the high cost of living.

The government intends that the people shall have an opportunity to study first hand the soils of California and the other States. The Bureau of Soils will have an exhibit. Our roads will be given especial attention and samples of road building will be shown. The forest service is not to be overlooked and the Bureau of Animal Industry and the Bureau of Plant Industry will be given separate space.

This exhibit is to be the largest ever sent into the West. Other efforts have been made to induce the Washington authorities to send large exhibits here, but until the magnitude of the present California Liberty Fair was seen in Washington nothing of the size of the present plans was ever attempted.

Sixty soldiers are to be sent to this city at once to help erect the buildings. These men will be given their instruction in work, which may mean that they will be sent from here direct to France, where they can continue the work of construction done in connection with the Liberty Fair.

This fair will be replete with special features. The sound of the hammer is already heard at the park, and the work is to be rushed to a conclusion. Tomorrow the work of tearing down structures to make room for the big exhibit at Agricultural Park is to be commenced and soon the public will have an opportunity to note the scope of the big exhibition.

SUMMER ART COURSE.

University of California will Give Special Lectures Relating to War Subjects.

In line with all departments of education for the summer session at the University of Southern California, where war emphasis will be made a specialty, the art appreciation classes will take up art in its relation to war. Miss Alma May Cook, lecturer for this department, who is also lecturer for the California Art Club and well known among the women's clubs of Southern California for her work in behalf of western art, will give a series of lectures on "The Art of the Allies" and "The Great Cathedrals Within Sound of the Firing Line." Stereopticon slides will be used to illustrate these lectures. Excursions to local art studios will also be made by this class, which is expected to prove very popular.

PI BETA PHI REUNION.

A reunion of Pi Beta Phi alumni in Southern California will be held at Bixby Park, Long Beach next Saturday. The local alumni have been recently organized with Mrs. David T. Babcock of Los Angeles as president.

SHERIFF'S FEES GO TO COUNTY.

Appellate Court so Decides in Test Suit.

Case Held to be Like that of Any Employee.

Supreme Bench will be Asked for Rehearing.

Unless a rehearing is granted by the Supreme Court, a decision handed down by the Appellate Court yesterday, holding that the fees received by Sheriff Cline for the transportation of prisoners to the State penitentiary, and of criminal insane to the asylums, belong to the county, settles the long-drawn-out controversy between the County Counsel and the Sheriff's office.

The Appellate Court, in deciding in favor of the contention of the county that Sheriff Cline should turn in $470 in fees collected by him for taking prisoners to the penitentiary and to the asylums, granted a peremptory writ of mandate on the Sheriff under which he is ordered to turn over these fees. His attorneys say, however, that it was understood that the Sheriff would within ten days after the Appellate Court handed down its opinion, take the issues involved up to the Supreme Court in order to facilitate matters. The statutory limit is twenty days.

There is pending before the Superior Court a suit by the county against the Sheriff in which the county is attempting to recover fees approximating $15,000 for transporting prisoners and the criminal insane. This suit has been hanging fire for a long time. The Sheriff has contended all along that he retained the fees under an opinion of the District Attorney that he was entitled to them under the provisions of the general law.

The case before the Appellate Court was in the nature of a test, the county asking for a writ of mandate compelling the Sheriff to turn over the fees he is alleged to have collected. An alternate writ of mandate was granted requiring the Sheriff to show cause why he should not pay these fees over to the county. Yesterday the Appellate Court made the writ permanent.

The opinion, written by Justice Shaw and concurred in by Justice James and Conrey is as follows:

"In our opinion, the petitioner's contention must be sustained. The charter adopted under and pursuant to the provisions of Section 7½ of Article 11 of the Constitution, in express terms authorizes the Board of Supervisors by ordinance to fix the compensation of such Sheriff, and under the power so granted the board did fix such salary, declaring it to be in full compensation for all services which the Sheriff was by law required to perform, and as declared by the charter, all fees received by him from any source for services which he was required to perform, should be paid into the county treasury.

"Under the provisions of the constitution, charter and ordinance, there would seem to be no question as to the county being entitled to the fees so received by the Sheriff for the services rendered. Hence, while the Sheriff is still entitled under Sections 4175 and 4176 of the Political Code to collect from the State the per diem therein provided for the time consumed on behalf of the State in performing the duty imposed, the moneys so received belong to the county.

"Under the ordinance passed pursuant to the charter provisions, the time of the Sheriff consumed in the performance of his official duties belongs to the county, and his earnings in the performance thereof, like those of any employee, belong to the employer. This conclusion finds ample support in the cases decided by the courts of this State (among which the Appellate Court cited four cases) all of which involve like questions and which were decided in accordance with the views herein expressed."

In France.

"FLYING GREAT SPORT," HE WROTE; IS KILLED.

"FLYING is the greatest sport ever invented, and when the war is over I'm going to have a little Nieuport of my own to fly on Sunday afternoons and do stunts for the family," wrote Alan Hammond Nichols, whose death following an air fight over the French lines has just been reported.

The young man, 22 years of age and a former student of Stanford, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hammond Nichols of Palo Alto, formerly residents of Pasadena and Monrovia. He had received his pilot's license in December, 1917, after over four months' training in France, and on December 14 was assigned to escadrille N-98, with which he had since been attached.

In his last fight he was wounded in the abdomen, but reached the ground. He died in the hospital at Compiegne, and was buried with full military honors at Royalcu.

AT FIRST AS DRIVER.

The young Stanford man went into the war as an ambulance driver, but later transferred to the French aviation service, where he won his pilot's license. His second transfer came in November, 1917, when he was accepted by the air service of the American Expeditionary Force.

The son of Walter H. Nichols, who is well known as a novelist and playwright, Alan Nichols in college proved himself a brilliant writer, and his accounts of training school experiences in France are extraordinarily interesting.

How he learned the "vrille" and other dangerous acrobatic flying stunts in the famous finishing school at Pau is told in the following extract from his letter:

DOING THE "VRILLE."

"In French the word 'vrille' means literally 'corkscrew.' Well, that's it! To do it, at an altitude of 1500 meters I shut off the motor and pulled the stick straight back two-thirds of the way. Of course, the machine ambled toward the sky and lost speed. Then I jammed my left foot clear down and brought the stick sharply to the left and clear into my stomach. The machine curved over, and then—and then—good Lord, what a spin! She pointed right toward the earth and flopped round and round so that I felt as if I weighed 300 pounds from the centrifugal force. At 1400 I was supposed to come out, so I put the feet straight, the stick in the middle and forward and the vrilling stopped suddenly with a queer sensation. I found myself pointing toward terra firma. A slow redress, and I put on the motor and was off again, climbing for another. That one over I started to come down in a spiral. I got it too steep, however, and went into another vrille. This time it didn't scare me at all and I came out O.K. After all this I feel like slapping the world in the face, I'm that cocky!"

WANT VOLUNTEERS FOR WAR WORK OF Y.M.C.A.

TODAY an earnest, speedy campaign is to begin in Los Angeles to secure several hundred qualified volunteers for Y.M.C.A. war work in France and Italy. The National War Work Council has pledged itself to have 4000 more Y.M.C.A. workers "over there" by September 1. So far, out of the 3616 Y.M.C.A. workers from America now in service in France, the western division of the United States has furnished only 177. It has been decided that this is due to the lack of a proper understanding of the great work in hand, and its far-reaching results in "bucking up" the American Army, and that an intensive campaign must be carried on here so as to get results within the next four weeks.

At a luncheon attended by about seventy-five prominent business and professional men at the Y.M.C.A. auditorium Friday noon, arrangements were made to appoint a general committee of thirty and an executive committee of ten, representing the various churches and also the business community. These committees will be appointed tomorrow by J. G. Warren, who presided at the meeting. The speakers were Mr. Warren, B. H. Cherrington, member of the State War Work Council, and J. A. Whitmore, member of the international council and associate of Dr. John R. Mott in Y.M.C.A. war work.

Mr. Whitmore gave vivid pictures of the Y.M.C.A. war work now in progress, and told of its constantly-widening scope. He outlined the requirements of the volunteers for this work, stating that, first of all, the man must be thoroughly patriotic, as a pacifist could do more harm than a whole regiment could overcome. He declared that political Socialists are not wanted, and that the man going into the work must understand that he must live under war conditions and take any sort of service that is required of him.

The fact was emphasized that this call for volunteers is not limited to members of the Y.M.C.A. or to church members, but that the field is so broad and the demand so pressing there is use for men in many lines.

The local committee is to pass upon qualifications except for the necessary action in the East regarding allotments, etc. It is probable the men selected will be sent first to cantonments in America for preliminary training and observation for a short time. Italy has signed a contract with the National Y.M.C.A. War Work Council, and it is probable many of the present lot of volunteers will be sent to that country for service.

ASKS DAMAGES

F. Linnastruth demands $10,000 damages for alleged malicious prosecution in a suit filed yesterday. He charges L. F. Webb and W. M. Deal for his arrest in Gardena on the 1st. inst., the charge being grand larceny. Six days later the charge against him was dismissed.

LOAN PIRATES. Swift justice was meted out by an angry populace in Los Angeles on Friday morning to a money lender who was attempting to sell, under a trust deed, the home of a mother who has two sons fighting in France. The trust deed began with a chattel mortgage for $200. In three years' time the mother had paid the money lender more than $600, yet he was selling her home to enforce collection of $700, which he claimed was still due. On Friday morning The Times gave a wider publicity to the proposed sale than the money lender probably intended. When the hour for the sale arrived a crowd of 500 indignant citizens had gathered. They invaded the building, forced their way into his private office and, with a hempen rope for a persuader, they induced the money lender to sign without duress—so he swore in his affidavit of release—a quitclaim of all indebtedness and to refund to the mother $298 of the money she had paid to him.

It was not a case of "White Caps;" the citizens made no attempt to conceal their identity; but it was an outburst of righteous fury against one so deadened to all patriotism or instincts of humanity that he could turn a mother into the streets after exacting exorbitant interest, while her sons (who were her protection) were fighting for liberty and decency in France.

Only a few days ago The Times expressed a regret that the soldiers' moratorium was not made to extend to mothers whose sons are at the front. That defect has been remedied in the territory where The Times circulates by an aroused public opinion that holds itself ready to apply an unwritten law which the loan sharks will find severer than aught that appears on the statute books. The Times is not an advocate of mob rule or violence; but The Times is not blind to the fact that the written law of California is more lenient towards loan sharks than that of any other American State. They have been heavy contributors to the campaign expenses of the State machine. In return the machine has always protected them at Sacramento and shark bills were either buried in committee or vetoed by the Governor. This leaves the field clear for the loan pirates to charge almost what commission they like, to rob the widow and the fatherless through the medium of extortionate interest charges and still remain within the letter of the law.

The case in question is the first that has come to public notice of an attempt by a money lender to seize the home of a mother of soldiers to satisfy extortionate interest claims. But there are very likely to be others. It will require individual vigilance to prevent such outrages; for the most worthy are always the last to complain. But it is well for us all to remember—those of us whom age or physical defects keep out of the service—that the least we can do for the gallant boys over there is to stand between the dependents they have left behind and the unscrupulous money lenders who are even worse than ghouls; for the ghouls only despoil the dead who are past knowing, while the extortionists rob the living ones whom it should be the pride of every citizen to protect.

Other communities where extortionists are found to be operating will do well to enforce a mother's moratorium such as Los Angeles has established and which every money lender in Los Angeles may only violate at his peril.

PEEVISH PRUSSIAN. The Kaiser is said to have been wrought up to the point of making official complaint against the lynching by a mob of Robert Praeger near East St. Louis—the victim being accused of pro-German sympathies. This is the only excuse for the lynching that has yet been offered. If the Kaiser would only come over in person to see about it it might yet be worth while.

THE NEW BROOM. There is quite a cry for change in the cases of men, streets and even cities that have names of Prussian cast. The town of German Valley, in Illinois, voted to call itself New Era, and now two thoroughfares in the city of Muscatine, Iowa, that since their establishment have been officially known as Bismarck and Hanover streets have been formally changed to Liberty drive and Bond street—thus suggesting a recent financial incident that bodes no good for the Bismarck or Hanoverian policies.

NOT SO BAD. Noticed an announcement the other day of a place that had made arrangements for an "unlimited supply of fresh milk, butter, eggs, sweets, candies, jams, rolls, meats, pastry, tea, coffee and fruits." Where was this plutocratic joint which seemingly defied Friend Hoover? Oh, yes; it was the pronouncement of the gentle maids and matrons running a canteen back of the red lines in France. Not far away was the quaint old inn where beer, wines and tobaccos could be obtained. Nobody should begrudge the American soldier such comforts and pleasures as he is able to gather while overseas; but from the way the regulators have been behaving here it should be hard to keep the Los Angeles boys out of the army after they scan the bill of fare and realize that it is served to the accompaniment of bright and flattering eyes.

SALACIOUS AND DESTRUCTIVE FILMS.

FLAGRANTLY offensive film plays are rapidly reaching the limit of public endurance. Competitive, daring indecency seems rampant among producers, and a great American institution—and the motion picture is that—is being shamelessly prostituted to degeneracy.

In the past The Times has battled for the producers, defended them, declared its belief that they would soon gauge the public taste, learn their lesson and elevate their aspirations accordingly. The wish was father to the thought. But today the pictures are more daringly offensive than ever. Half of the films produced today are cancerous. And The Times reiterates that the public taste is not salacious and degenerate; the vast majority of American citizens have a deep and abiding love for wholesome sentiment, sweet decency, health and purity.

The Times has always recognized the universal value of the cinema, its tremendous educational influence over a vast field, its wholesome possibilities as the basic, inexpensive entertainment of the masses. Indeed, it has become a great American institution as we have said, making an appeal to all ages and all classes of the population, if properly conducted, of more value to child minds than all the books.

It is then a great institution that society must arise to protect from degeneracy. The Times has no sympathy for the kill-joy type of rabid reformer who would place all forms of gaiety and human entertainment among the sinful; it has always upheld the right of the public to enjoy itself in its own way. But it insists that disgusting and revolting pictures are not popular.

II.

ON BILLBOARDS plastered all over the city, the advertisements of motion pictures are a public outrage—sex, sex, sex—procreation, birth, suggestive matrimonial intimacies, nudity, vulgarity, degeneracy, mental nudity, intellectual nudity, physical nudity rampant! And it matters not how careful parents and decent-minded people may be, the thing often crops out in the most unexpected places, with gratuitous wantonness. "Sex interests" are injected into the most harmless-appearing pictures, whose producers seem to be absolutely obsessed with a taste for the vicious. No wonder teachers are advising the school children to keep away from the picture houses; no wonder the women's clubs and the Parent-Teacher associations are forming "Better Film" committees. It is time that some energetic counter-offensive be waged against producers whose minds and imaginations can rise no higher than sexual morbidness. It sometimes seems to be almost impossible to visit the most innocent-appearing play, without seeing the inevitable salaciousness crop up somewhere. Scenes from the lowest resorts, gambling hells and brothels find such favor with producers that they may be found in three plays out of every six, hideously suggestive, often gratuitously injected into what would otherwise be a wholesome story of decent American sentiment. Our people, who would never know of the existence of such resorts, far less visit them in actual life, are dragged through these dens of sordid vice for, forsooth, a pleasant evening's entertainment.

The producers are chiefly to blame, but THE EXHIBITORS ARE NOT GUILTLESS, although the latter defend their use of such films with the plea that they have no other choice.

The Times is of the opinion that a more vigorous censorship should be established forthwith. It is perfectly obvious that certain producers—not all—there are exceptions—certain producers, we say, cannot be trusted to mend their ways, cannot be trusted to cater for the genuine public taste, which is wholesome and good, but deliberately prefer to create a demand for the vulgar and morbid—a far more subtle and invidious form of disloyal propaganda even than German kultur, for it undermines the very health and character of the nation.

The Times regards the salacious picture as insidiously disloyal to the best ideals of Americanism. And it means to war upon these shameless vice propagandists with a big club, go after them and keep after them, aided and abetted by the best elements of the public.

III.

WHAT are our soldiers fighting for across the Atlantic but to make the world a decent and a safe place to live in? What are they fighting for but those pure and wholesome ideals of the American people, which have made us a great and worthy nation? What are they fighting for but to wipe degeneracy and barbarism, loathsome standards and degraded shamelessness from the face of the earth? Over there in France the bloodiest and most terrible war in all history is engaging 7,000,000 men of the Allied armies, in order that such loathsome and putrid "kultur" may be relegated to the garbage can forever.

Are we then to permit reckless producers to infect the world with disease-laden picture plays in the subtle form of entertainment? Are we content to have the minds of the rising generation polluted with sexual salaciousness, their imaginations fired with scenes so vividly portrayed which we would shudder to have them visit in real life? The technique of the film has improved so rapidly, the science of production has reached such a skilled level—is all this perfection to be used for purposes of degradation, because in many instances the wrong men are obviously at the producing end? Is it?

At the present hour five of the most widely touted plays in town are rich in disgusting scenes, in the portrayal of vice in its most alluring form—sometimes shrouded in a hypocritical moral, to be sure, but carefully descriptive in lurid detail, in the insidious propagation of low thought, loose living. To allow our boys and girls to visit these graphically portrayed scenes of vice at a picture show is tantamount to taking them there in person. What parents among us would permit our sons and daughters to actually visit the sort of gambling hells and vice dens, the gilded haunts of lurid sin, so faithfully portrayed in the films?

IV.

IT IS unthinkable that this state of affairs can be tolerated any longer. The Times has no more apologies and excuses to offer for the offending producers. With their minds so persistently intent upon the exploitation of lewdness, in spite of frequent public protests, nothing but a newspaper censorship will meet the case. But if it is necessary to censor the newspapers for insidious enemy propaganda, it is even more urgent that the films be censored for indecency. The film shows are patronized by every class of people everywhere, their influence for goodness, sweetness, purity, clean and fundamental patriotism is unlimited and it is intolerable that this tremendous asset should be turned to evil account.

For these lurid representations are not real life; they do not reflect the tastes and habits of our people. But for the films, 90 per cent. of the public would never know such things exist. What then could be more insidiously disloyal than the undermining of our national ideals of sweetness and goodness? No vile enemy bacteria injected into the nation's food; no poisoned gas or poisoned wells could be more subtly destructive of the nation's weal than this harping upon the unspeakably indecent in the national entertainment of our people. The Times protests that the dirty-picture producer is every whit as serious a menace as the German traitor. And so The Times is going after him with the biggest stick in town. Going after his exhibitor accomplices, too!

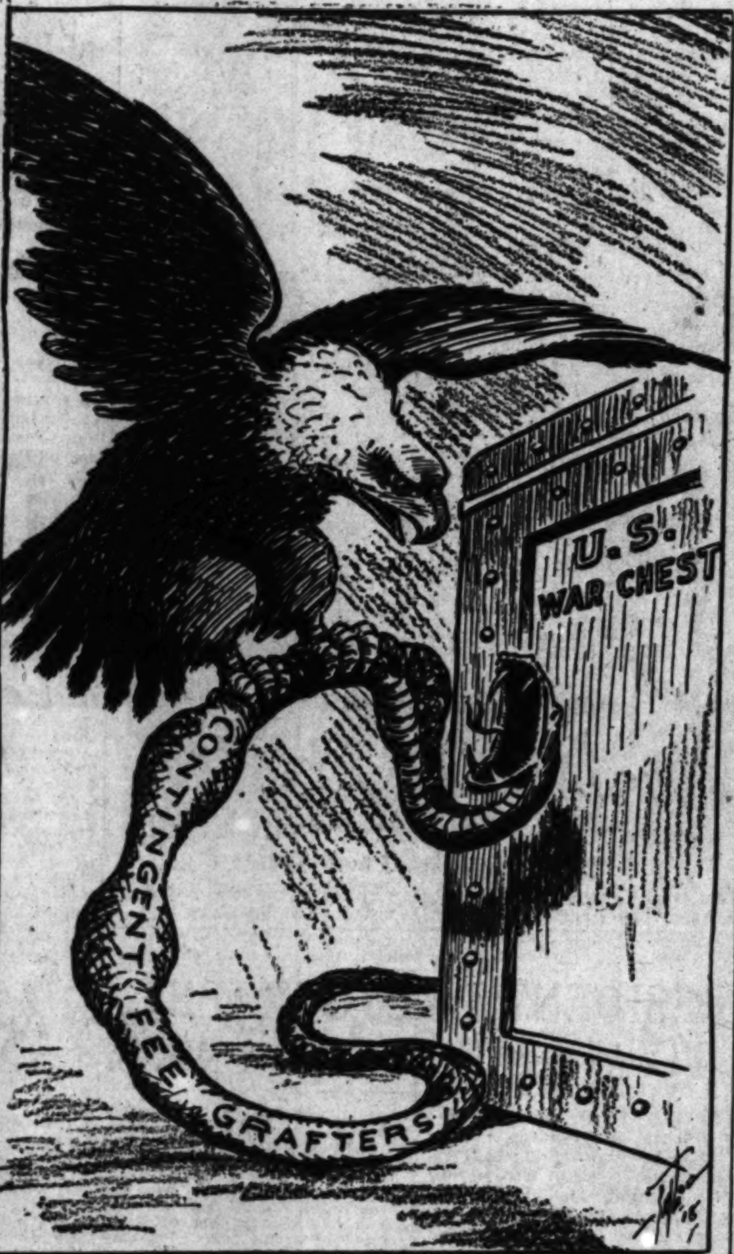
There is already evidence that society will no longer tolerate this putrid condition in the name of harmless entertainment. If books dealing with such subjects are barred from libraries, if dirty literature is barred from the mails, if unclean photographs are barred from sale, it is doubly logical that indecent film plays be barred from public exhibition. For every possible reader of a book, for every possible purchaser of an indecent photograph, there are a thousand patrons for the picture show.

V.

LOS ANGELES is the home of the photoplay. This city of all others is associated with its production. Our responsibility is, therefore, the greater; our attitude the most important. If we lead the way with a public-spirited demand for decency and real culture—that same decency, those same high principles and ideals for which our men are fighting overseas—we shall be doing the entire country an immeasurable service. This is a form of patriotism that is urgent and far-reaching—to stamp out the disloyal film, to discredit the disloyal producer or exhibitor, to see that the great influence of the highly scientifically developed motion picture, which so effectually reaches every department of our national life, is used for the betterment of ideals, for the maintenance of our best principles, for the sort of propaganda that makes for the nobility of nations. There is no limit to the educational influence of the motion picture, it can, indeed, be made the instrument of great character building, of loyalty and virtue, without the loss of one iota of interest.

The salacious film must go. We have had enough of it. It stinks in our nostrils. The Times is out with the biggest stick in town for all rotten producers and exhibitors. It stands ready to lend the public every aid in transforming this disloyal and insidious influence into an American institution of which we may be always proud. We all owe it to our soldiers, we owe it to democratic ideals, we owe it to ourselves to remove every vicious stain from our own escutcheon, while we Americans are fighting to purify the world.

Caught in the Act.



THE NEW MESSAGE. Every day a new message is given to men and it burns like a branding iron. On curb and corner, in windows and doorways the message thrills like the beating of drums and the song of the flute.

"I WANT YOU, AND I WANT YOU NOW!"

Uncle Sam's stern eyes look into the faces of men. His outstretched finger points straight at their hearts, and the big black-faced type seems to cry with a loud voice to every passer-by:

"I want you, and I want you NOW!"

Thousands of men have answered like sulky children: "Fight your own battles! It's your war, not mine. Fight your own battles!"

But with infinite patience he makes his plea:

"I want you, and I want you now! NOW is the time. Not when the Huns have finished their bloody work in France. Not when the great cities of the world are gripped by the Kaiser's covetous fist. Not when his victorious army has captured our coasts and his throne is built on the crest of the Rocky Mountains. Not when German colors float over our blessed land must you answer as Samuel did that night when God Almighty called him and his young voice trembled as he said: 'Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth.'"

"NOW is the time for men to give themselves. NOW is the time for women to lay the core of their hearts on the altar of freedom that it may bleed or be burned or buried in a lonely grave that the world may be saved from the curse of imperialism. Hear and heed the call: 'I want you, and I want you NOW!'"

Listen to the call of the United States Navy:

"JOIN THE NAVY—DO YOUR BIT—SHOW THE HUNS WE CAN TAKE OUR SOLDIERS SAFELY ACROSS THE SEAS."

A fleet of ships!

God! How our hearts leap at the sight of a ship on the buoyant waters—a battleship gray and grim as her prow churns the dark waters to foam. In the fathomless deep are dangers more cruel than hidden rocks and floating icebergs. And yet more than 800,000 American soldiers have been landed in France. No wonder that valorous men cry: "ME FOR THE NAVY." No wonder the marines are called "THE HEROES OF THE DEEP," that their proudest boast is, "THE NAVY IS THE SERVICE FOR FIGHTING MEN," and that they are challenging the world: "GET INTO THE GAME THAT IS ALWAYS ON THE SPOT." May the God of Battles give us a bridge of ships that shall reach from here to the land of Lafayette!

It's the civilian's job to back up the soldiers who are fighting in that barren, blood-soaked land where twelve million people have been maimed and killed in the past four years. Our soldiers are the picked men of America and the best trained in our nation. It costs us five thousand dollars to put a man in France, and it takes four tons of equipment and supplies, as well as months of training before he can be used on the battle front. Civilians must give because we must take care of our soldiers and "BECAUSE WE ARE PROUD OF THE MEN WHO ARE DEFENDING THE CAUSE OF GOD AND HUMANITY AND AMERICA."

Say it! Sing it! Do it!

"BACK UP OUR SOLDIERS."

We have faced gigantic problems in organization, transportation and construction. The government prohibits hoarding, but is equally imperative in the command: "FEED A FIGHTER. EAT ONLY WHAT YOU NEED. WASTE NOTHING THAT HE AND HIS FAMILY MAY HAVE ENOUGH.

If the throne of the Kaiser ever rests on the Great Divide; if his stupendous power ever overshadows this land; if the wings of the American eagle are ever broken by the formal rule of efficient despotism, the United States, for which four hundred thousand men died, better be dropped into the soundless sea and a hundred million people perish than to fall into the hands of the Hun.

We have not asked for indemnity or compensation. We are in the war for the sake of humanity and to save our own throats.

Do we want our army beaten in France?

Do we want Belgium's experience duplicated in America?

Do we want "the terror that flieth by night" dropping bombs in our dear land?

Do we want the sluice gates opened by the alien citizens of America and have the bloody tide ebb and flow as we take our place among the conquered nations of the earth?

If you still want the right to be a self-governed people, for God's sake "DO YOUR BIT DAILY. DOUBLE IT—MAKE IT TWO BITS!"

Remember it's our army!

Remember it's our navy!

Remember "IT IS OUR OWN STATES!" It is the most thrilling phrase spoken by soldier, sailor or citizen—"OUR OWN UNITED STATES!"

Are we of Los Angeles going to do our best for this cause of our own? Are we? If we are, every man and woman of ample means must go to the $1000 limit in Thrift Stamps. Nothing less will serve.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

THE SAVING HABIT.

We're learning how to save the shilling, and when the armies cease their drilling, the lesson will abide; our hard-earned scads we won't be blowing; the tail no longer will be going to blitzen with the hide. In peaceful times I failed to pickle the useful dime and helpful nickel, I put no coin in brine; I wasted money as I earned it, with foolish energy I burned it, the spendthrift's course was mine. Then came the war, and thrifty neighbors who'd saved the product of their labors, the crisis calmly met; they had their bundles in their cellars, while I and other giddy fellers were plunged neck-deep in debt. We were a bunch of also-wases; we couldn't help the Red Cross causes, or buy a baby bond; we couldn't line up with the loyal and help to can the madman royal, for all our goods were pawned. The busted man is pretty useless when war is raging, endless, truceless, and coin is in demand, when every gent should have his dollar to help to make the foeman holler, and save his native land. And I felt shamed, and I was blushing, when I beheld my neighbors rushing with coin to boost the flag; I wept for all my spendthrift folly, my soul was steeped in melancholy, my spine began to sag. But now my wisdom teeth have sprouted, along the paths of thrift I've scouted, I've salted down four bones; my package doubtless will be greater, and as it grows 'twill balk the tailor and shake the tyrants' thrones. WALT MASON.

What Else Could He Do?

Said the young woman who spends a great deal of time imagining what might happen: "Suppose a fierce lion approached me from one direction, a tiger from another, and there was a rattlesnake a short distance away, coiling to strike, what would you do?"

"Dear me!" exclaimed the young man who calls frequently. "If there were a tall tree in the vicinity, I would certainly assist you to climb it."—[Birmingham Age-Herald.

I GUESS SO.

BY CHARLES F. LUMMIS.

It may be only a whimsy—but that's the very Stuff that Dreams and Romance and Watchwords are Made of. I've been wondering How Many Letters a man has to have in his name to "Go Over the Top" in History. We will leave out, for the present, Literature and Invention and Statecraft, and widen up to the one thing that most concerns us now—which is War.

We will admit offhand that a great warrior does not need to be and probably will not be a Ph.D., D.D., LL.D., F.R.G.S., or other "Man of Letters."

And it really makes no odds in cold blood how much he has to deplete the alphabet to write his signature. Epaminondas or Themistocles would have been no more immortal generals if they could have writ their names as short as did that great American who handed his Sword to Grant at Appomattox.

But I have in thirty years dissected so many superstitions, and disproved hundreds of them, that I believe in the Spirit of every one of them. For that Spirit is Youth!

I believe in Santa Claus, Xmas, Little Red Riding Hood, Aesop, Grimm—even in Love. For all are TRUE If You Know How to Take Them.

One of my few virtues is that I'm always willing to apologize when proved wrong—though, like the other Paddy, "I'd like to see the man that can Convince me!" But I shall sure never apologize for that dear little crystal drop of my child faith, trust, Imagination and Curiosity—which has gone undried through the disillusioning fires of nearly sixty years, and the acid test of thirty years in science. Why, if that one little drop of Imagination, of irresponsible speculation, of Leisure in my Mind, were annihilated—well, I'd be as pauper as some of my fellow-Anthropologists (damn the word, but that's their chosen family name) who are much more learned than I, but who Never Were Boys.

Just now I am entertaining in my belfry one of those flittering thoughts. It does no physical good to me nor to anyone else. But it never does anyone any harm to Think; and it does us all good once in a while to wonder. For Wonder is of Youth.

And I'm Wondering. Is it an Omen, a True Fairy Tale?

There have been a few Greatest Generals who had short names. Saul, of course, Hooverized on letters and used only four. But Moses and Darius and Grant—they needed at least all five fingers, eh?

This is no History of the World, nor a German comma-hunt as to this little recess from the Hard School. Very likely I overlook some deserving great man of only four letters to his name—though you can bet that I, for one, do not overlook Leonard Wood.

Nor do I forget Haig and Byng—do you?

What seems to my childish mind as near an Augury as a folklorist can conceive of is that for the first time in human history the organized, official, committed trust of the civilized world is in the trim, slender hands of a man with a name so short you can omit your thumb. The same trust, the same power, have not been given to any of these other short-named men, nor to long-named men.

F-O-C-H! Please rhyme not with the Boche he's to whip, please God, but with "By Gosh"—which is the way Uncle Sam stands not only by him, but in that noble pride, at last aroused, under him! All together for Victory!

Now if his name were as long as Mark Twain's "perspective of a German noun" it wouldn't make any ultimate difference. But, you thoughtless things, it makes a lot of difference at the time! My little "baby-talk" is from one who has seen more roughness on the frontiers than 99 per cent. of you have. And it isn't childish. Ever see a multitude try to cheer a long-lettered man by name? Quite aside from anything else, and forgetting any patriotic preferences, which would be easier on your vocal chords—to yell "Foch! Foch! Foch!" three times, or "Von Hindenburg!" once? Say, there is something in letters, after all! The German mind is precise and respectful, and mebbe they say all those syllables in full. But if American college boys or Sammies had it to say, it would be "Hindy! Hindy!"

Anyhow, here's a physically small man, five years ago "unknown"—except as author of text-books pronounced by the German General Staff "the most important contributions to military strategy in a generation."

Today he's riding what were three horses, but are now, please God, only one. He is in supreme command not only of by far the greatest army ever entrusted to any one Generalissimo, but of the joint armies of three great countries—England, France and America—each one of whom has been at war with each of the other within modern history. Isn't that the Miracle of the New Dispensation? Nothing comparable to this ever befell before in all the story of this planet.

To me, the consent of this proud—Lilly Proud, we were!—young Nation to Salute the Veteran France and say "Ready!" is the noblest height we have yet reached. It is easy to touch our pride to give men and supplies; but to me the proudest proof of our long-neglected but now proved fitness to "Save the World for Democracy" was this very thing.

That we are the only possible saviors no thoughtful person can doubt. Without the United States Autocracy was a sure bet. The Allies were beaten. They now admit it. But Uncle Sam has Come In. And, before God, as an old American, I Wonder whether we are not doing as much to Win America as to Win the War!

But Foch, By Gosh!

It is said that the fact of America's entrance into the war is being kept from the German soldiers. The Kaiser evidently got the idea that Americans could run by watching them at the Olympic races.

Golf in your garden. It is [illegible] needed.

Only the sky is the limit of the American army in Europe.

It must be admitted that the Kaiser is mighty good to his family.

To mark the end of a perfect day swat the flies wherever you find 'em.

What has become of all the news from Russia? It used to be on the first page.

Gen. Pershing gets $10,000 a year and he does not belong to a labor union, either.

At the time this page biplaned to press George Creel had not made another apology to Congress.

The demoted Gen. Maurice is to become a war correspondent. Not much demotion about that.

Will the "work-or-fight" order of Gen. Crowder apply to Col. Roosevelt and Gen. Leonard Wood?

The plan of carrying mail by airplane has not yet put the railroads out. But the fate may be coming.

When Gen. Crowder said that ball playing was not work, in the ordinary acceptance of the term, he said a mouthful.

No one is exempt from rendering some war service. All sorts of services are needed. We all in our way can do our part.

All soldier overcoats are to be made shorter, a reform that should have been inaugurated without the incentive of the war.

There are some folks in this community who limit their sacrifices for the success of our armies in the field to eating corn bread.

Little Greece has just touched Uncle Sam for a credit of $15,790,000. Looks as if almost anybody can get money of the old gentleman.

Trans-Atlantic flights by Allied airplanes are announced for the coming fall. Boy, wake up Jules Verne and tell him what is going on.

Butter is $9 a pound in T[illegible] It must be higher than that here, we judge by how it is spread on buttered toast in the cafeteria.

If President Wilson is to get a third term, Secretary McAdoo will be wanting to know why he has been wearing that pair of patched pants.

It is announced that there are only sufficient hairpins in England to last three months. This war is no laughing matter, but such news is almost enough to start a smile.

We always feel charitable to the amateur singers who "favor the audience" in public. They may not be allowed to sing at home. Some fathers and mothers manage that very well.

More physicians are needed in the army. They can be furnished without any detriment to the health of American communities. More careful living would put half of the profession out of the business.

Naval experts claim that signs are multiplying that Germany intends to bring its navy into action. Nothing would be more welcome to the Allied fleet. Germany is not so much concerned about coming out with its fleet as it is about getting back with it.

The United States Employment Bureau says that in Minnesota the present supply of agricultural help is adequate. This is most assuring. Wonder if the labor situation is as satisfactory in other States? The nation that can furnish food the longest will win this war.

Every soldier who falls in France will be remembered by the government to the extent that an engraved certificate signed by the Secretary of War will be sent to the next of kin of the dead soldier attesting to his loyal service to the nation. It is the least that can be done.

If Mexico, at the prompting of the Hun, is seeking a pretext for a breach with the United States the present situation is fraught with sinister possibilities of trouble. The controversies connected with the Tampico oil trade and over the taxes imposed on oil companies by Carranza are already sufficiently acute. It is evident that the opera-bouffe diplomacy of Mexico again needs careful treatment.

Congress has been discussing an anti-lynching bill, with prospects that it would pass if it were not for the crush of war legislation. Statistics show that during the last thirty-three years there have been [illegible] lynchings in the United States. This is a disgraceful record and, if the States do not seem to care to move, it is time for Congress to do something. From 1831 to 1913 inclusive $792,499.23 were paid as indemnities to foreign countries.

I felt so old I ran and told

I shook my head at all she said
For still I do declare
I've aged an awful lot since
I used that little chair.

POLITICS.

The American Game.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

How many of our voters have gone to war?

By "war" I mean all sorts of war activities that have taken them out of their precincts in Los Angeles county.

In the answer to this question lies the way to master the winning style of campaigning.

Two years ago at the primary election there were 310,923 voters registered in Los Angeles county, or about one-fourth of the total registration in the State. The total this year will not run much over 280,000, or a difference of 30,000 votes available at the primary between 1918 and 1916.

The loss of man power in this registration is easily discerned. The women are in a majority, without doubt. Recalling that at the general election two years ago 170,999 women were voting at the general election while 190,275 males were casting their ballots, it may readily be seen that the female of the species will be much deadlier at the polls this year.

Up to Friday night the total registrations in Los Angeles county reached 265,622, and the registration will close July 27, barely over a month hence. The sex division has not yet been made by the county statisticians, but it is known that the women are in a majority.

The Republican registration in the city is 77,616, and in the county 46,286. There are more than two Republicans for each Democratic registration, the latter figures in the city being 38,317 and in the county 21,143. The undeclared vote in the city is 30,292 and in the county 18,687. The Progressive vote is negligible.

One voter in every five, now registered, will not be able to participate in the August primary, having failed to state a party affiliation. Whether this is an indifferent vote, or one that is waiting to see who survives the primary, is an interesting item for speculation.

Candidates who lay their wires to capture the women vote probably will be elected. The women are running things this year, and it is surprising, since they are in the majority, that more of them are not looking for places on the ballot.

Celestine J. Sullivan. Celestine! Celestine!! Where have I heard that name before? Oh, yes, it comes back to me. Celestine was the busiest politician in California four years ago. He was trying to elect Capt. Fredericks as Governor, and he had a whale of a time. He became known from one end of the State to the other as the busiest and most effective political manager that ever followed a lost cause. He got out of the job all there was in it, believe me. Then we heard no more of Celestine.

Politics seemed to struggle along lamely without him, and one campaign or another slid by without "Sully" on the hustings. Then the other day I read where Celestine J. Sullivan was coming to Los Angeles, and I wondered if he was bringing out a candidate for Governor from the redwoods of the north. He was met at the train by the Mayor and a brass band, and was paraded through the streets to a luncheon, where the Governor—none less—introduced him to a breathless audience.

The greased skids are said to be about ready for Harrington Brown, who is our popular postmaster. It has been decided by the powers that plan and execute shake-ups that Mr. Harrington is about to be thrown out of office and that A. B. Foster, now assistant postmaster, will be given his chief's job. Foster, who was trained in the department at Washington, and who is credited to Oakland, and Senator Phelan, was brought here some months ago to expedite increased work in the office. Things were not running right, it is said. After a while, E. F. Dishman, the assistant postmaster, was thrown out, and Foster took his place. Those who know why he was brought here in the first place say that he will be eased into Postmaster Brown's job in quite the same manner. Trickery!

Jerome Bassity, a San Francisco political wiseacre, tells me in a letter that the folks up north are breathlessly waiting for Mayor Rolph to announce his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor. Methinks Jerome's wish is the father of the thought. Still it would not be surprising if the multi-millionaire Mayor would hop into the puddle. Stranger things have happened. I can't figure how he could grab the nomination, but that he would liven up the campaign is certain. He has the dinero and the reputation for spending it. The other candidates seem to have neither, and the hungry ward politicians are gloomier this year than ever before. One of 'em said the other day that he guessed he would go over himself and kill the Kaiser. That would open the purse strings of politicians, he said, and the people would be interested in something aside from the winning of the war.

Announcement was made yesterday that Phillip D. Wilson would be a candidate for State Senator from the Thirty-fourth Senatorial District in the Republican primaries. Mr. Wilson has a large acquaintance throughout the city and State, where he has been prominently identified with the real estate business. He was secretary of the Los Angeles Realty Board for many years and succeeded in building up that organization to be the largest realty board in America. Lately he has been in the real estate business and also has been identified with the anti-single-tax movement, being secretary and managing director of the People's Anti-Single Tax League, with offices in the Citizens' National Bank Building.

Friends of S. W. Odell, a former Progressive and Prohibitionist, who is asking for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Ninth District, are still trying to hold a conference, to run all real Republicans out of the race. This proposition was killed once before by the Republican County Central Committee. Any time the Odell supporters are able to guarantee to a candidate "indorsed" by their conference that no other candidates will appear, a conference might be a good thing, but it will have to be clean.

Jim Doherty, ostracized member of the Baker's Union and now connected with the State Labor Bureau, says he is a candidate for the Senate in the Twenty-ninth District, and wants some publicity. About the only difference between him and Mouser is that he had not yet issued a pronunciamento against the soldier-lawyers of Los Angeles.

Albert I. Stewart—whoever he is—wants to be a Supervisor. He is a candidate in the Third District and has issued campaign cards bearing this clever slogan: "Why Not Select and Elect Him?" Somebody tells me he is a storekeeper on Sunset boulevard.

M. I. Grossman says I forgot to mention him among the deluge of candidates for justice of the peace. I deny it. The fact is I did not know it.

Ned Hamilton says they are all fussed up in the north over Heney's announcement that he will not fight with Dist.-Atty. Woolwine during the campaign. The people around the Bay District had been waiting anxiously for the fireworks and are sorry that the Wild Ass has decided not to defend himself against attacks made upon his loyalty.

Joseph F. Chambers, who was unquestionably one of the most able police judges we ever had, is again a candidate for that office. That he will land the job most everybody concedes. He is an able lawyer, honest and conscientious. He would have done honor to the Superior bench and it is to be regretted that he lost, when a candidate a few years ago.

Jeff Davis, who must be a real Democrat if there is anything in names, is sorry that Congressman Kettner will be a candidate for reelection. If the latter should finally decide to retire to private life, Jefferson will get into the race. He says so himself in a long announcement issued a few days ago. It looks to me like the only Congressman from the south who is to have opposition is C. H. Randall. Congressman Osborne will have no opposition and Congressman Kettner has everything his own way. Mr. Randall will run on his prohibition record—surely not his war reputation.

Councilmen Mallard, Criswell and Reeves opposed the confirmation of Benjamin F. Pearson as a member of the Civil Service Commission, notwithstanding their admission that "he is one of the best men in the city, a man whose reputation cannot be questioned." Because of these superior qualifications six members of the Council approved Mayor Woodman's appointment. They refused to be intimidated by the labor union agitators, Dr. John R. Haynes, etc.

Every time a Councilman wants to take a few days off he asks permission to go "up the aqueduct." The last one to get clearance papers was Mr. Conaway. Incidentally the momentous billboard ordinance will be presented tomorrow for final action and Mr. Conaway is fernist it. Whether he is present or not the amended measure is to be enacted, for at least six and maybe seven members are for it. They would rather have the signs eliminated at once from the residential districts than take a chance on a court decision which might be delayed for three or four years.

DOCTORS NEEDED FOR THE NAVAL RESERVE.

RANK OF LIEUTENANT AND GOOD PAY OFFERED THOSE WHO ARE ACCEPTED.

An opportunity is offered to the doctors of Southern California and Arizona to enroll in the Naval Reserve of the United States naval forces. This announcement was authorized by Dr. Morton W. Baker, medical aide to the commandant of the Twelfth Naval District, from headquarters at San Francisco. Members of the medical profession are urged to respond to this call for patriotic service.

Applicants upon being enrolled will receive the commission of assistant surgeon, with the rank of lieutenant, junior grade. The Naval Reserve Medical Service affords a doctor a varied and valuable experience and advancement if the assistant surgeon is found proficient. His duties may be at a training station, a naval hospital or on board ship, or it may be an assignment to a foreign station. After enrollment, the assistant surgeon is requested to send full information to the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery as to his specialty and to the assignment he would prefer.

In addition to a liberal allowance which is made by the Navy Department for quarters, fuel and light while ashore, an assistant surgeon's commission carries a salary of $166.66 a month, with a uniform gratuity of $150, which is allowed by the United States government.

All applicants are requested to send at once to the Medical Aide, Commandant's Office, No. 461 Market street, San Francisco, for information and enrollment papers.

WHAT WE ARE FIGHTING FOR

How much there is to be thankful for when we think of the devastated homes in the war-swept countries, and then view the beauty and charm of what is still OUR OWN homeland and its lovely homes.

You, "whose dwelling is the light of setting suns and the round ocean, and the living air, and the blue sky . . ." of Southern California, how wise you are to have chosen this country for your home!

"Home" is the word that has always been most inspiring to everybody.

In fact, the strongest incentive that has ever been held up before people has always been the picture of a Heavenly Home.

That picture marks the ideal toward which all are striving.

This aspiring spirit is what has drawn so many people of appreciative hearts to Southern California, to get closer to Nature in its most beautiful aspect.

The people of Southern California are artists at heart. They are appreciative of the REAL things of life: the shams mean less to them than to people of less favored locations.

When the test of breadth of view and National or World Patriotism is applied, they respond whole-heartedly.

In mind and heart we are citizens of the United States and of the world, but the center of our affections is Southern California and our HOMES.

They are indeed a strong and worthy incentive for our own boys to perform well and quickly the great task now before them.

—or interior arrangements of equal effectiveness and beauty—can be "brought to life" inexpensively in your own home, if Barker Bros.' artists are permitted to be your counsellors.

You see a certain picture on the screen. It thrills you with its sense of perfect artistry. You say, "The setting is exquisite and the acting superb!"

Perhaps you do not fully realize how closely the two are allied—that the natural charm of the actors is to a great extent dependent upon the harmony of their surroundings.

Yet some of the most inspiring homes of Film-Land are simple ones. Barker Bros.' Staff of Decorators are skillful in the "saving art of substitution" and, if modest expenditure is a condition with you, we can help you to have a truly lovely, cheerful and worth-while home at a figure that may happily surprise your brightest hopes.

We respectfully suggest that it is both profitable and patriotic—particularly at this time—for you to consult with Barker Bros. ALWAYS on matters of home-furnishing. A LITTLE of OUR time may save MUCH of YOURS—a LITTLE money spent RESULTFULLY may save MUCH spent IN VAIN!

Gay Beach Umbrellas

What Counts.

BEAT GERMANY, SAYS GOVERNOR.

Executive Gives War Talk to the City Club.

None but Americans are Wanted Here.

I.W.W. Must be Stamped Out, He Declares.

BY THE WATCHMAN.

Gov. Stephens talked war [illegible] nothing else at the weekly [illegible] of the City Club yesterday. If he [illegible] interested in re-election, no [illegible] could tell it by anything he said. [illegible] is running over with [illegible] and thinks and talks only of the [illegible] big issue before the people. In [illegible] doing he made a tremendous [illegible] among many of the city's [illegible] business men.

During the last month or so the City Club has listened to other candidates for Governor. They made fine speeches and talked a lot about the war, but not quite enough to satisfy a public that refuses to be greatly aroused over political ambitions.

Gov. Stephens was introduced by Marshall Stimson, who said the chief executive is deserving of the leadership of the great commonwealth for another term; that it would be extreme folly to swap horses in the middle of the stream.

The Governor said that America never will be satisfied in this war until Germany has been overwhelmingly and completely defeated and our people will never quit until Germany has been brought to her knees and the world made safe for women and children.

TERMS TO KAISER.

Our reply to the Kaiser's peace overtures, and our ultimatum to Germany, will be in the famous words of Gen. Grant: "No terms except an unconditional surrender."

Gov. Stephens said California has no room for fifty-fifty Americans, not even seventy-five-twenty-five Americans, but it has place for 100 per cent. Americans.

"One of the big problems [illegible] now is to stamp out in our State every trace of disloyal propaganda and sentiment. We shall tolerate no seditious utterances in California.

"There is no room in this great commonwealth for that cowardly, sneaking and disloyal element known as the I.W.W. This vicious element seeks to hinder and defeat our country's war work. Defiant of the law, criminal in purpose, cowardly in methods, it must be dealt with rigorously and stamped out of every community.

"WORK OR FIGHT."

"There is no room in California for the loafer either. It is outrageous to tolerate either the work shirker or the idlers. Work or fight is the slogan that is ringing throughout the country.

"A peace this year would mean a German victory. Until the common enemy has been driven back across the Rhine, the American people will hurl back peace proffers with the contempt that they deserve."

Gov. Stephens said the condition of the State's finances is most gratifying, but that where saving can be made without crippling the war work of the State, it will be done. He said it is time for loyal Americans to forget everything but our task of winning the war, to forget our rivalries and our bickerings, our animosities and our selfish interests.

WOMEN FOR STEPHENS.

With representative women [illegible] every city in Southern California present, the Women-for-Stephens Club will hold its first [illegible] meeting at the Hotel Clark Tuesday, when a luncheon will be given at 1 o'clock. Six women and two men will sing the praises of Stephens.

Mrs. Florence Collins Porter will preside. Frank P. Flint and [illegible] Crail will represent the male [illegible] of the Southland, while speeches also will be made by Mrs. C. C. [illegible]ley, Mrs. F. A. Gibson, Mrs. [illegible] Harbison and Mrs. E. E. [illegible]

ADDRESS BY DR. EVANS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, June 22.—[illegible] three girls and forty-two boys received their diplomas at the [illegible] commencement exercises held in Poly stadium, Friday evening, when the graduates of both the boys' and girls' high schools gathered for the exercises of both institutions. Silas Evans, president of Occidental College, delivered the address.

Hot Water for Sick Headaches

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headache of any kind is caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons, called toxins, sucked into the blood, through the lymph ducts, excite the heart, which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head, producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilide, aspirin or the bromides which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank before breakfast for awhile, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar, [illegible]

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

[illegible]OLDIER'S DEPENDENT "CLIENT" OF SECCOMBE.

[illegible] Relative of American Now Fighting in France Driven Insane by Troubles—Other Cases.

[illegible] A. H. Seccombe, the money [illegible] who was only thwarted [illegible] publicity in The Times from [illegible] out of her home and into [illegible] Mrs. Jennie Lloyd, a [illegible] with two sons fighting in [illegible] has made a victim of the [illegible] another soldier now in [illegible] was the declaration yesterday [illegible] investigators into Seccombe's [illegible]

[illegible] county grand jury is investigating [illegible] Seccombe, and Herbert M. [illegible] and Mrs. Bertha M. Hughes [illegible] already been summoned to tell [illegible] grand jury of Seccombe's [illegible]

[illegible] latest case of Seccombe's action against the family of an [illegible] soldier is that of Edward [illegible] of Santa Monica, a [illegible] man, 60 years old, who has [illegible] declared mentally unbalanced. This is said to be the [illegible] of his troubles and fear that [illegible] be forced into the street.

PITIFUL CASE.

[illegible] 1911, Adams borrowed [illegible] from Seccombe, giving a note [illegible] and a trust deed on his [illegible] worth over $5000 at Santa [illegible] that he had acquired with [illegible] savings. He paid $20 [illegible] on the debt for three [illegible] and then his son-in-law, [illegible] E. Broyles, now fighting in [illegible] continued the payments and [illegible] paid $800. Mr. Adams and the [illegible] of his family thought that [illegible] due only to suddenly learn [illegible] Seccombe had foreclosed and [illegible] the property. This was [illegible] blow to the father-in-law, [illegible] that he lost his mind.

[illegible] Attorney J. H. Ryckman, to [illegible] Broyles appealed for help to [illegible] family home, had the court [illegible] Broyles guardian of his [illegible]-in-law.

[illegible] Ryckman says that, even at [illegible] own figures, if Mr. [illegible] paid Seccombe $84.60 on or [illegible] a given Saturday, Seccombe [illegible] be compelled to give a clear [illegible] to the home. At that $744.60 [illegible] have been paid for the use of [illegible] for less than three years. Mr. [illegible] raised the money on the [illegible] Saturday, presented it to Seccombe, [illegible] who it appears, was too busy [illegible] accept it, and said to come in [illegible]. Mr. Broyles went in Monday [illegible] with the $84.60 and says Seccombe [illegible] refused to accept it, saying [illegible] the time fixed by law expired on [illegible]. Ever since that time, the [illegible] say, Seccombe has been [illegible] to get possession of the home [illegible] Santa Monica, in which live Mr. [illegible] and his daughter, whose [illegible] are his only support, together with the soldier's money received from his daughter's husband, [illegible] Broyles, in France. The reason [illegible] so far Adams and his [illegible] have avoided eviction is [illegible] because of a suit brought by [illegible] Ryckman against Seccombe, [illegible] which has been pending [illegible] August, 1915, setting forth the [illegible] of the transaction and asking [illegible] clear title to the Santa Monica [illegible]. The case has been kept [illegible] in the courts, while down [illegible] Santa Monica sits the aged father [illegible] for his son-in-law to come [illegible] from France and fearing every [illegible] he is to be evicted.

LOSES EVERY CENT.

[illegible] Del Beato, a photographer [illegible] 300 Sunset boulevard, says [illegible] he fell into Seccombe's clutches and ended by losing every dollar he possessed.

"Being badly in need of ready money to meet an emergency I went to Seccombe and sought a loan of $300," says Mr. Del Beato. "He loaned me $300 and took my note for $400, charging me $100 commission on the deal. He demanded a trust deed on a bungalow court worth $5500.

"The rate of interest was to be 3 per cent. a month in advance. I kept up the interest for several months, but one day I missed a payment. He then appeared and demanded $50, saying that if I did not pay that penalty he would sell my property. I paid it.

"Shortly after that I was the victim of an auto accident. I was forced to remain in bed for nearly three months. During that time Seccombe foreclosed on the bungalow court and attached everything I owned, even to the automobile. When I arose from my bed I learned that he had secured a $500 judgment against me. And even then he kept coming after me for the interest.

"As soon as possible I went into the courts and had the $500 judgment set aside. Now I am suing him, in the Superior Court, for $8500 damages."

This incident grew out of a loan of $300 cash in hand.

ANOTHER CASE.

Harrison Cassell, a local attorney, had an exciting experience with Seccombe a few months ago, which he relates as follows:

"A contractor residing here borrowed $75 from Seccombe, giving a note for $87.50, the extra $12.50 being Seccombe's bonus for loaning his own money at a high rate of interest. When the contractor gave a trust deed on his property it was with the understanding that Seccombe would not have it recorded, because the loan was to be paid off quickly. The contractor paid off the loan in good time, but did not demand the return of the trust deed, thinking it had not been recorded.

"One day the contractor negotiated a loan of $1000 on the property, through a client of mine, but upon investigation we found that Seccombe's son, acting as trustee, had foreclosed on the trust deed, and Seccombe had bought in the property. When we threatened to go into court to clear the matter up Seccombe transferred the deed to a man named Bateman. I went to Seccombe and offered him $200 to settle the case and clear up the property, but he laughed at me, declaring that he had something like $1800 in it. At that I went into court and sued to quiet title, but before the case went to trial Seccombe learned that I had complained to the District Attorney about his methods, so he came and settled with us for something like $200. I understand that the contractor still finds himself in Seccombe's debt to the extent of many hundreds of dollars on loans prior to that which I have just related. He doesn't know how much he owes the money lender, and I doubt if he ever will know."

SON BY FIRST WIFE.

Clinton Seccombe, son of the money lender, stated yesterday that he is not the son of Mrs. Katheryn Seccombe, but of A. H. Seccombe's first wife, now Mrs. Carrie R. Cook, residing on Magnolia avenue. He says the latter has no means of support other than the money given her by her children, two sons and a daughter, and that he contributes about $10 a month to this purpose. For this reason, he says, he included her in his plea for draft exemption. He was given deferred classification because of his young wife.

HOWENSTINE TRIAL TO CONTINUE TUESDAY.

COURT'S REQUEST TO JURY AT SUGGESTION OF COUNSEL FOR DEFENSE.

The trial of Dr. Frank T. Howenstine, one of the defendants in the alleged draft-conspiracy case on trial before Federal Judge Bledsoe, will be resumed Tuesday morning, the court being occupied with other matters tomorrow.

It was stated yesterday that action based on the physical condition of draft men such as young Leroy had brought about the issuance of governmental orders prohibiting the admission of persons into the encampments who have tubercular affections. It was stated yesterday that Dr. Browning, government medical expert, had examined Leroy and had declared him tubercular.

Regarding the incident reported in yesterday's papers wherein Judge Bledsoe warned the members of the jury against conversing about the case during its progress, it was stated yesterday that the attention of the judge to the fact that jurors were understood to have held conversations regarding the case was brought about through the activities of counsel for the defense, and that it was the defense counsel that requested that the jury be given the warning.

CONTEST OVER ESTATE.

Petition of Adopted Daughter to be Named Administratrix is Opposed.

The petition of Ella V. Sandon, adopted daughter of Robert Sandon, who died in 1902, to be named administratrix of his Los Angeles property, valued at $30,000, was opposed in the probate court yesterday by two daughters, Hattie E. Terry of this city and Nettie M. Price of Ottawa, Kan. They asked the court to name Mrs. Terry administratrix.

Mr. Sandon's will has been probated. It bequeathed the bulk of the estate to the widow, Mrs. Ella L. Sandon, who was made administratrix. She died, leaving the position of administratrix open. The property of the estate is located at Georgia and Washington streets. Mr. Sandon was a resident of Madison, Wis.

Miss Marjorie Wilson and her best friend.

SAILORS FIRST.

Because he expects to be called into the service of the merchant marine, Kenneth G. MacLean, a moving-picture cameraman, was allowed to give testimony in Judge Avery's court yesterday, another divorce trial being sidetracked for that purpose. Mr. MacLean is being opposed by Margaret MacLean, the couple making serious charges against each other. Alleged love letters were introduced by Attorney Griffith Jones which Mr. MacLean said were from an "old friend." As to other letters Mr. Jones wanted to offer in evidence, Mr. MacLean declared he never received them. The case was continued until July 3.

To Help Training Camp.

MANY EVENTS ARRANGED FOR MILITARY CARNIVAL.

AN ADDED feature to the big field meet and military carnival to be held at Exposition Park next Saturday for the benefit of the Hollywood Officers' Training Camp will be the Marjorie Wilson Sweepstakes which will be the grand finale of the programme of military contests. The winner of the event will receive a cup to be donated by Miss Wilson.

Six horses will be entered in the contest, including some of the finest mounts quartered at Exposition Park. The event will follow a programme of athletics, relay races, airplane flights, boxing, fencing, wrestling, jiu-jitsu, wild west rodeo and other numbers.

Each purchaser of a ticket to the event in addition to receiving admission will be given two Thrift Stamps. The remainder of the proceeds will be used to equip the school with rifles, gas masks, first-aid equipment, etc.

Among the field and track events to be held are the following, medals to be awarded the winners of each:

A 100-yard dash, 120-yard low hurdles, pole vault, 50-yard dash for women, mile relay, eight men. The latter event will be open to all A. A.U. registered athletes.

The pageant is in charge of Joseph A. Eliason, Councilman Conaway, Capt. A. T. Easton, U.S.A.; Charles Gunn, Henry McRae, Councilman Olsen, C. C. Craig and W. B. Mansfield.

Expanding.

MORE BANKING CAPITAL SOON FOR THE HARBOR.

Branches of City Institutions are to be Opened—New Stores Going Up.

LOS ANGELES banks are looking toward the harbor, which is seeking more banking capital to finance the building operations so badly needed to accommodate increased population. At least two institutions are known to be making arrangements to open branches at San Pedro. One of them is the Hellman Commercial Bank, which owns a controlling interest in the State Bank of San Pedro. The Hellmans are back of the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company and their interests in the harbor district are of growing importance.

The Guarantee Trust and Savings Bank is also expected to open a branch there. It is known that options have been taken on two corners for the proposed branch and that the erection of a new office building is also under consideration.

The real estate situation in the business section of San Pedro is said to have been the only thing that has been keeping out branches of the Los Angeles banks for some time. On account of street grades the present business district is limited and the certainty that it will soon outgrow its present bounds and the uncertainty of the direction of the growth has up to the present deterred some investments.

BUSINESS AVENUE.

It has long been the accepted belief in San Pedro that Pacific avenue will eventually become the leading business thoroughfare of the harbor district and it now seems certain that business will grow toward the avenue up Sixth, Seventh and possibly Eighth and Ninth streets.

While building operations at San Pedro so far have been confined almost entirely to industrial plants and dwellings, the pressure of the demand for stores and offices makes it seem certain that the much-needed business blocks will not long be delayed. Probably in no other town in the Southwest is there such a demand for business locations as at San Pedro.

This is due to the remarkable increase in population on account of shipbuilding and army and navy training, fish canning and other industrial enterprises combined with the fact that most of the close-in vacant property is owned by absentees, who do not understand the permanent nature of the growth and to whom enormous rentals offered seem no temptation to improve their idle property.

FOR MODEL HOMES.

Permanent homes and not temporary barracks should be erected at the harbor for shipyard workers in the opinion of Mark C. Cohn, director of the housing bureau of the State Housing and Immigration Commission. He has enthusiastically indorsed the plan of the San Pedro Community Association to subdivide the Dodson ranch and erect model homes on the tract modeled after the Garden City plan.

"The fact has been demonstrated in many places that bad housing conditions lead to bad results from a social standpoint," said he. "They add to the total derelicts for which the public has to care whether these be criminal or merely incompetents. The turnover of labor where there is good housing is small. Where there is bad housing the working population has no stability. Rather than to erect temporary houses on the tidelands, the energies of the community had better be expended building permanent homes on the sightly hillsides about the harbor.

"It is up to the people of Los Angeles to provide housing accommodations as near the shipyards as are offered in other cities building ships if we are to get the better class of men."

TELLS HOW COTTAGE CHEESE CAN BE USED.

FEDERAL DEMONSTRATOR HERE TO GIVE LOCAL HOUSEWIVES USEFUL TIPS.

How cottage cheese may be used in every dish from soup to dessert, and its value as a substitute for meat will be demonstrated to Los Angeles housewives during the next ten days by Mrs. H. K. Davis, who is here representing the Department of Agriculture in the interests of food conservation.

"Every year in the United States 30,000,000,000 pounds of skim milk, the necessary by-product of butter, are poured down sewers or fed to farm animals," said Mrs. Davis yesterday. "That is an economic waste the Department of Agriculture is going to put an end to by showing the public the use and value of cottage cheese. The amount of skim milk wasted would supply enough cottage cheese to release every pound of beef in the country, if necessary. And there would be a by-product of whey that can be fed to cattle besides. We must remember, too, that Europe is short today 35,000,000 head of dairy cattle, and we must be prepared to replace this loss."

Mrs. Davis will give her demonstration Tuesday at 9 a.m. at the State Normal School; at 2 p.m. at the corner of Union and Raymond streets in Pasadena; at 4 p.m. Wednesday at the University of Southern California, and at 2:30 p.m. Thursday at Hamburger's auditorium. Other meetings will be announced later.

All demonstrations are open to the public, and new dishes will be made at each one. Over 150 uses of cottage cheese are in her "repertoire." Mrs. Davis is one of the four city demonstrators sent out by the Department of Agriculture in this campaign for meat conservation and cheese consumption.

Save Them.

NEED NURSES FOR SOLDIERS.

Don't be Selfish, Civilians are Earnestly Urged.

Red Cross Speakers Start a Campaign.

Tell How Several Patients may be Served.

"Save a nurse for the wounded!"

"Don't be selfish to your sick neighbors!"

"Don't leave an expectant mother without essential nursing care!"

These slogans are being used in every community by Red Cross speakers in the nurses' drive now under way. The purpose is to bring home to the public the importance to the nation of employing graduate nurses in private homes only when their services are essential to saving life.

The army and navy already have drawn from the private civilian practice more than 12,000 nurses, some 10,000 of whom were Red Cross nurses, assigned them under the terms of their enrollment by the Red Cross to active duty in the army or navy nurse corps.

More than 20,000 additional graduate nurses must rally to the colors in order that no wounded soldier or sailor may lack for anything that skilled nurses can contribute to his recovery or restoration to the fighting line.

When this army of nurses is in uniform, every remaining private nurse, hospital nurse, and public health nurse will be needed to help the sick in many places. At the same time, the only way to assure that those very sick or recovering from surgical operations shall have essential nursing is for the public to help each nurse to serve several patients at a time. In hospitals each nurse ministers to a number of sick; the visiting nurses going from home to home can give absolutely essential attention to a number of families. To monopolize the time of a graduate nurse to care for one patient who is not dangerously ill, is to deprive many sick of a few hours of life-saving attention and every possibility to lessen the number of nurses that can be spared from civilian health protection to nurse the men in uniform.

Don't employ a nurse unnecessarily, it is urged. Don't keep a nurse on a case a minute longer than she is absolutely needed.

Retaining a nurse in war time merely because one can afford to pay her or find her services or companionship pleasant, may be destructive civic and national selfishness. One's love of ease may be depriving an expectant mother of care or may leave some one injured without attention.

Help every nurse to serve her country, say officials.

Advices from A. L. Flint, chief of the Washington (D. C.) Office of the Panama Canal, indicate that the prevailing shortage of trained female nurses is being seriously felt in the Canal Zone hospitals, where additional nurses are urgently needed. In these large modern hospitals not only the employees of the Panama Canal and Panama Railroad and their families are cared for, but the soldiers stationed on the isthmus to protect the canal. These nurses are paid $85 a month, including quarters, from time of sailing, with laundry of uniforms, less $20 a month for subsistence. Living conditions on the isthmus are said to be very satisfactory and ample provision has been made for leave of absence and social entertainment.

WOMEN FOR CANNERIES.

Many Enrolling in Ramona Acres District to Prevent Loss of Fruit and Food.

The women of New Ramona Acres and Ramona Acres have solved the problem regarding help for the rush season at the canneries in the Ramona Acres district. Learning that the canneries there feared a shortage of help which would result in the loss of much fruit and food, several women volunteered their help whenever the need arrives. They have placed themselves subject to call and promise to handle the situation at the standard wage for such work. Automobiles will call for them in the morning and bring them home at night.

Mrs. R. A. Clapper is leader of the plan and is receiving the registrations of the women who are showing their patriotic spirit to help save the food for use next winter.

FOOD PRESERVATION

With the Herrick in your home, food can be prepared and kept until wanted. All unused portions of food can be saved for later use. In the course of one month the food thus used that would otherwise have to be thrown out on account of spoilage, lost flavor or uninviting appearance will amount to more dollars than you imagine. The actual savings of food will in due time pay for the finest refrigerator you can buy.

SEND MONEY TO ITALY.

Proceeds Realized from Diamond Ring by War Relief Society Is Cabled Overseas.

In accordance with the wishes of M. J. McDermott, the donor of the diamond ring recently won by Mrs. A. W. Witzel, the Wilshire Auxiliary of the Italian Women's War Relief cabled yesterday to Thomas Nelson Page, the American Ambassador at Rome the sum realized, amounting to $600. It was explained to Ambassador Page that it is Mr. McDermott's wish that half of the money go to the widows and orphans of Florence and half to the widows and orphans of Naples.

The Wilshire Auxiliary has cabled a total of $2600, or 22,440 lire, to Italy for war relief.

HUNTS U-BOAT BASES.

Former Manual Arts High School Student Now Ensign on Submarine Chaser.

Franklin W. Peck, a graduate of Manual Arts High School and nephew of Mrs. Frank Bryson of this city, now is somewhere in the Pacific as an ensign on one of the United States' new submarine chasers, looking for supposed enemy bases, according to word just received by Mrs. Bryson.

Ensign Peck is 20 years old. At the entry of this country in the war he enlisted in the Naval Reserve at the harbor and after passing his examination was commissioned and sent to San Francisco. It is from the latter port that he has just sailed.

When at Manual Arts School young Peck took a prize for debating. Later he studied law but gave it up to join the colors.

Nemo Back-Resting Corsets

No. 309—now $3.75 advanced to $4.25

We already have explained that these advances in price are compelled by the greatly increased cost of manufacture, and represent only a portion of that additional cost. Further advances may be compelled in the near future, and there even may be a serious shortage of Nemo Corsets because of our inability to secure a supply of materials of the NEMO STANDARD QUALITY at any price.

We repeat our promise that the NEMO STANDARD shall never be lowered.

At the Front in France.

DEATH'S MIASMA MADE BEARABLE BY HELP FROM FOLKS AT HOME.

Drabness of Months in the Trenches Would be Unendurable Without Agencies to Maintain Morale—Cheery Letters Have Part in the Great War.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent of The Times.

AMERICAN FRONT IN FRANCE, June 6.—No other war ever involved so many human agencies as the present. That is because no other war ever required the same mode of existence, which would be maddening except for the relief brought the men through the medium of certain recreations and diversions.

Formerly war was more a thing of movement. Discipline probably was not so severe, at least when the troops were not in action. Then there was the old-time canteen in which liquor was served, and through the medium of which the soldiers secured a certain sort of relaxation. The isolation from civilian life and environments was not so complete, bombardments were not so intense, nor rifle fire so deadly; the machine-gun had not multiplied death, there were not the long vigils in trenches, sometimes chokingly hot, sometimes cold almost beyond endurance and half filled with filthy water, and where the vermin seeks to feed alike of the quick and the dead.

In short, men are living in a miasma of death, where life was not thought possible. One man could not do it alone. Association makes it possible, and the mental relief obtained from other sources makes it bearable.

It is doubtful whether any army could retain an effective front except for the extraordinary efforts that are made through various agencies to maintain the morale of the men. Dispair, hopelessness would result. Fighting does not hold half the dread for them that the drab life of the trenches does. Far removed from the conditions to which they are accustomed, and surrendering the things that make life worth while, these things must be supplied to them as nearly as possible so as to make ther isolation tolerable. Far from home, every effort is made to bring home to them, or at least some of the elements of civilian existence.

This is accomplished through various agencies. Letter writing is encouraged and reduced to a science. Conteens containing the special brands of tobaccos to which they have been accustomed, and their favorite knick knacks are maintained close to the lines. Cinema and other entertainment features are provided; able speakers with a knowledge of human needs bring messages of cheer and comfort; libraries are maintained; good women come to minister to the men, possibly to nurse, or again toil over big doughnut vats within range of the German guns. Nothing is overlooked. The chief agencies in this are the Red Cross, the Y.M.C.A., the Knights of Columbus and the Salvation Army. Supplementing these is much individual effort.

MONTHS OF WAITING.

The popular conception of the war is a front several hundred miles long with armies grimly facing one another—vast military machines ever in motion and its units experiencing the exhilaration of almost constant combat. They do not figure the dull hours, or weeks or months of waiting, of the days of being pounded by artillery before getting the command to charge. Neither do they visualize the army behind the army, although they themselves may be a part of that army.

These millions of fighting men reaching from the Adriatic to the North Sea are only the tip of the spear. The army which is going to win this war reaches from the front line, trenches thousands of miles back and across the seas. The man buying a bond back in the States, the girl writing a cheery letter, the motherly woman who is conducting her kitchen so as to make possible a few more pounds of food for the Allies, the woman who is learning to make bandages back home, or who has come to nurse, and the entertainer who has given up a profitable engagement to sing to the men behind the trenches—each and all of them are members of the great army, which is going to win this world war, and which couldn't be won without any one of them.

Vagaries of Appetite.

FRENCH RADISHES TICKLE THE SAMMIES' PALATES.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.
Staff Correspondent of The Times.

AMERICAN FRONT, May 25.—The soldier's appetite is not without its vagaries, and there never is any telling to what its fancy will turn. This probably is governed somewhat by the demands of his system.

Ice cream, chocolate and other delicacies are craved by him, exploding a popular belief that fighting men subsist on raw meat. Just now, however, with the coming of warm weather, he has developed a powerful penchant for French radishes. My attention was called to this while visiting a number of small villages back of the lines where troops were billeted. The soldier might be eating an omelete or a steak, but always in front of him was a dish piled high with radishes, almost as red, fresh and inviting as cherries.

French radishes are superior to any that I have ever seen, being at once tender, crisp and juicy, and seldom do you find a pithy one. Their excellence probably is due to the frequent rains and their rapid growth. These radishes just seem to hit the spot, and it is an easy habit to acquire. Wine and women hold no allurements for the fighting men when there is a fresh picking of this pungent and refreshing vegetable available.

SUES FOR LOST LOVE.

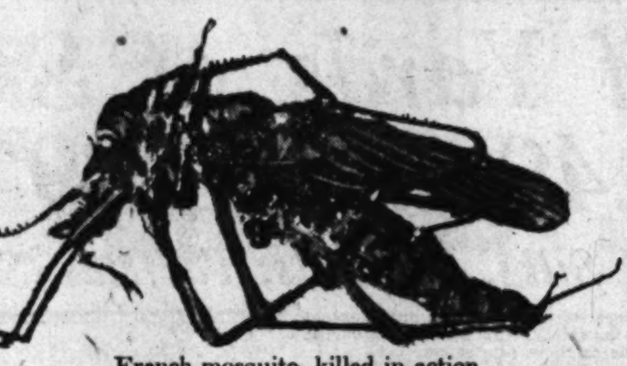
Manufacturer Seeks Heavy Damages From Former Resident of Minneapolis.

How wealthy Gabe Pauntz won the love of young Mrs. Rose Lowith is told in a $75,000 lost-love suit of Albert L. Lowith, filed yesterday. It is alleged that Mrs. Lowith met Mr. Pauntz on May 1, 1917. She at once began to receive from him gifts of clothing and jewelry, the complainant asserts.

Finally Mrs. Lowith started to quarrel with her husband, and, according to Mr. Lowith, neglected their 5-year-old son. Her affections, he says, were transferred to her admirer. Recently Mrs. Lowith fell ill, and a breakdown resulted. Mr. Lowith had her removed to a hospital, where she was cared for.

He asks $50,000 actual and $25,000 exemplary damages based on the alleged malicious acts of Mr. Pauntz. Mr. Lowith and his brother were associated in the manufacture of ornamental iron fixtures. Mr. Pauntz, who is said to be worth more than $250,000, came to this city from Minneapolis. It appears that, notwithstanding the alleged acts of Mr. Pauntz, Mr. and Mrs. Lowith continued to reside in the same home.

Yes, This is Slightly Enlarged.



French mosquito, killed in action.

This is an enlarged photograph of the insect contained in Private Knollin's letter from the French front.

Slain at the Front.

FRENCH MOSQUITO HERE AS WAR-HORROR RELIC.

THE remains of a mosquito killed by an American soldier on the French front reached Los Angeles yesterday in a letter from Private L. C. Knollin, Co. A, Thirtieth Engineers, A.E.F., to James Knollin of this city, a brother. Accompanying the corpse of the mosquito was the following account of the affray:

"The front on which we are now is very quiet, except for the attacks of large forces of mosquitoes. I inclose one that just lit in the danger zone near to my nose and immediately was bombed. It will be a good souvenir for you, showing you some of the perils of war that the newspaper correspondents probably fail to report."

The mosquito was passed by the censor in its original shape as crushed on the letter paper by Private Knollin.

The censor was less indulgent with other sections of the letter. Where Knollin wrote of going "swimming several times in the — River," the name of the river was completely erased. Some general descriptive matter regarding the work of the engineers, however, was allowed to pass.

"We have been draining ditches," the letter said, "trimming underbrush, cutting roads, laying duckboards, putting up buildings, sweeping the whole woods, changing the course of a brook and making other such repairs to the country as are needed. There are 600 of us in the company, and 600 men can do a lot of work."

WINERIES GIVEN TIME.

County Bone-dry Ordinance, if Passed, Will Not Affect Them for Two Years.

The County Supervisors and the winery interests conferred yesterday over the provisions of the proposed bone-dry ordinance, and it was stated afterwards by Supervisor Delorey that a compromise was made, the effect of which is that the ordinance will not act against the winery interests for about two years.

The wineries wanted to know if the ordinance would prevent them from manufacturing and selling wine in the county outside of incorporated cities. This it does, the county having full power to pass such prohibitive measures. The two years' time granted will enable the wineries to clean up their crops.

The ordinance will come before the board for action next Wednesday. It becomes effective thirty days from the date of its adoption. It provides that no liquor shall be manufactured or sold that contains more than one-half of 1 per cent. alcohol.

FOR MARKSMANSHIP.

Former Hollywood High Student Presents Trophy in Memory of Slain Friend.

Edwin D. Cook, a former student of the Hollywood High School, and who is now in an officers' training camp, has presented to the school a large silver cup, which stands about one foot high. Every year target shooting will be held, and the cadet with the highest average for the day will have his name engraved upon the trophy. William Ropper, a cadet major, was the first to win this honor.

Engraved on the cup are the words, "Presented to the Hollywood High School, for marksmanship, by Edwin D. Cook in reccognization of Robert Hall, '15." Robert Hall is the first student from the school who was killed in action. He was in an ambulance division and went into "No Man's Land" under heavy shell fire to rescue wounded. Hall was a life-long friend of Mr. Cook.

BALLOONISTS TO BE WELCOMED.

Arcadia School Soldiers will be Officially and Otherwise Greeted.

Los Angeles and Southern California will give the soldiers of the Arcadia Balloon School their first official welcome next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. A parade led by members of the Chamber of Commerce, the Mayor, City Council, mounted police and the Firemen's Band will escort the soldiers into the city. They will be taken to Clune's Auditorium to see "The Eyes of the World," being invited there especially by W. H. Clune. The 600 men will be under the command of Lieut.-Col. Hensley.

After the performance Douglas Fairbanks will give a big watermelon feed to the soldiers in the dining-room of the Temple Baptist Church. Mrs. James T. Neighbors, godmother of the balloonists, is managing the welcome, being assisted by forty other women. They call themselves "Mothers," and a house is being built at the camp where they will go twice a week and help the soldiers with their sewing and mending.

PENCIL DAY HELPS ST. ELIZABETH'S.

DAY NURSERY REALIZES NEARLY SIX THOUSAND DOLLARS FROM SALES.

St. Elizabeth's Day Nursery will realize between $5000 and $6000 from the sale of pencils on its fourth "pencil day," which it holds every two years. The institution is supported entirely from the proceeds of these sales, and it is expected the funds just secured will be sufficient to sustain the place for the ensuing two years, unless the care of children of soldiers proves too heavy a drain.

St. Elizabeth's, in addition to its regular work, proposes to give free care to the children of soldiers when the mothers have to go out to work. The institution can care for 100 children, and it now has eighty. It is located at No. 135 North Anderson street.

One of the features of the pencil sale was the auctioning by Mary Pickford of a gold pencil donated by Mrs. Dan Murphy. The bidding was spirited, and the winner was George Allan Hancock, whose final bid was $500. Then Miss Pickford sat down on the platform, with the box of pencils in her hands, and the buyers lined up to purchase. No change was given, and thirty-seven of the pencils were sold for $37.

ON THE WAY to BERLIN

by Harry A. Williams

AMERICAN FRONT, June 6.—If there is one thing the soldiers in the trenches crave more than anything else it is music—a bit of harmony or sentiment in the deafening drama of war. Cannon fire cannot kill this divine passion and the trill of a bird is sometimes heard in the battle's lull.

Music always has been a feature of war, but largely of the martial, stirring kind which sent men into battle with measured tread and quickened pulse. This war has produced a heart yearning for the softer and tenderer melodies.

There is some rare talent among the men and sometimes they produce their own harmonies, but they much prefer to hear it from the lips of a woman.

In a temporary club back of the lines the other night an American sat down to the piano, and, running his hands along the keyboard, drew out everything from classical music to rag. This surprised the French officers present, who believed that Americans could produce nothing but the syncopated stuff. He started with Chaminade and followed with a Liszt rhapsody, and then, just to prove that his American education had not been neglected, switched to Irving Berlin. Then he interpreted McDowell, Grieg and Bach with the skill of an artist, and completed his repertoire with a few selections on the 'cello.

LIKE SENTIMENT.

However, the buck privates as a rule know little about classical music and care less for it. They prefer a lullaby, or some old, familiar song or southern melody, with possibly a touch of rag here and there. Above all, they want something with sentiment—something that speaks to the heart, for most of the fellows have sweethearts back in the States.

An entertainer must use great discretion. One was guilty of a grievous faux pas when he sang "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now." It so happened that three men in that company had learned that the girls who had promised to wait had married slackers back in the States. That song didn't help them to forget it. The action of those girls inflicted a worse wound than a German shell. If there were many such fiancees in the States, winning the war would be an easy matter for the Kaiser Attention, Boys and Girls!

Join the Army of Thrift.

Organize to Back Up the Soldiers Going "Over-There." Hear the Bugle Call to Service. Make the Spirit of '18 Equal the Spirit of '76

In '76 the boys and girls in America helped to fight when our Nation was in a death grapple. Will the boys and girls of '18 be less devoted? Let us give the answer in clarion tones that will reverberate to Berlin.

Young Americans living in California and Arizona are invited to enlist in the great reserve thrift army to be recruited by The Times-Mirror Company under a minutely prepared plan, which will insure maximum support to those who go to France. This army, to be composed of boys and girls from 6 to 20 years old (school age,) will form a mighty buttress for the boys from 21 to 31 who wear the khaki and carry a gun.

Recruiting for The Times Thrift Army Will Begin Monday, June 24th

You all want to do your bit. You also want to make your work count to the utmost. Working as individuals you will not accomplish nearly the results that you will by joining an organization. It is organization that will beat the Kaiser. It is by joining hands with others in a great phalanx under intelligent and patriotic control that will do most to hold back the brutish Hun.

The young people of California and Arizona possess potential power. But like the great force that sweeps over the Falls of Niagara, this power must be harnessed and directed to accomplish any practical results. The Times proposes to organize this vast power.

We want to show you how you can make every day—yea, every minute—count in helping to shorten the war and hasten the hour of victory. We will teach you to work so that when you go to bed every night you can say to yourself: "My work this day has helped to shorten this war and to insure the Kaiser's downfall."

Hundreds of thousands of War Savings Stamps have been sold to the children by the children. They have opened their hearts and their little pocketbooks to such an extent that in many cases their resources are exhausted. Must they quit trying. Is there no way they can continue to serve by saving and investing in Thrift Stamps?

Yes, there is a way—an easy way, a pleasant way, a way that means achievement, gainful but enjoyable effort.

The Times will buy thousands of War Savings Stamps to be given to the boys and girls of California and Arizona in exchange for their co-operation.

A vast Thrift Army is to be recruited. This army will be composed of privates, corporals, sergeants, lieutenants, captains, majors, colonels and generals, and there will be a badge and enlistment card for each officer—commissioned rank and noncommissioned rank.

All will start on even terms as privates. Promotion will come through efficiency. War Stamps will be the reward for promotion, with additional grand prizes at certain stages of the great offensive.

It will be easy to gain promotions and secure War Savings Stamps, but, of course, the earlier you start the better chance you will have. Therefore, you should call at The Times' recruiting office Monday, June 24th, and ask for the chief recruiting officer, or fill out and mail the coupon printed herewith.

What War Savings Stamps Are

In "War Savings Stamps" Uncle Sam has made immediately available for every man, woman and child in the country a profitable, simple and secure investment. They have behind them the entire resources of the Government, and of the people of the United States. They steadily increase in value from the date of purchase until the date of maturity, and this increase is guaranteed by the Government.

Seats have been provided for 7000 persons and in view of the interest in the phase of national defense on which Judge Bledsoe will speak, it is expected that all these will be filled. Although most persons have become familiar with the laws of the draft and other emergency war measures adopted by the United States government, comparatively few, it has been found, know the provisions that are made to protect the dependents of the men who volunteer their lives in the cause of liberty.

FIGHTING WILL WIN.

Talk About Money, Food, Etc., Does Not Hit the Real Mark, Declares Soldier.

The life of a drafted or enlisted man at an army camp was described by Col. John W. C. Abbott, late of Fort MacArthur, at a dinner of the Knox Presbyterian Men's Bible Class Friday night. He expressed his admiration for the finished, typical Americans turned out of the rough material from farms and cities by army training.

"There is a lot of talk about money winning the war; about food winning the war, and about this and that winning the war," he said. "That is all right in a way, but in the last analysis it is fighting, fighting and only fighting that is going to win this war for us." Col. Abbott expects to leave the first of the month for service in Hawaii.

The Story of Success is a Tale that Never Grows Old

The busy little "Want Ad," through its innumerable service-giving qualities, has forced its way into the front rank of modern business, and it is universally recognized as a powerful and indispensable medium of publicity.

The original function of the "Want Ad" was the procuring of help and employment. At the present time, however, it is used to fill all of the multifarious wants of the human family.

Some idea of the enormous scope of modern "Want Ad" service is afforded by the fact that a single issue of The Times "Want Ad" section often comprises more than [illegible] pages.

The Sunday Times frequently contains more than 150 columns of separate classified advertisements, approximating 40,000 lines and more than 315,000 words.

Each one of these announcements reflects a peculiar human need or desire, and each word has been weighed and selected by the advertiser for the purpose of inspiring some reader to definite action regarding the proposition exploited. In fact, every Times "Want Ad" is a highly individualized message, and is one of many sign posts on the road to business success.

A careful day after day reading of The Times "Liner" section will make for an enlarged knowledge of local business conditions and reveal many money-making opportunities.

The Times

Regularly prints practically all of the "Want Ads" printed in the other Los Angeles newspapers in addition to many exclusive advertisements not published in any other newspaper.

THOUSANDS OF NEWLY DRAFTED MEN SWELL CAMP KEARNY RANKS

Descendants of Swedes, Norwegians and Finns Come from Northwestern States—Changed Attitude of Trained Soldiers for the "Rookies" is Shown.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CAMP KEARNY, June 22.—More and more is the conviction gaining ground here that the United States has something to spring on the Germans. America has something up her sleeve. Officers who are entrusted with the supervision of what are known in the army as "specialities" say, and with authority, that they are convinced the United States is going to do a big part when the great smash comes.

Here in camp a vast energy is being molded into shape and made into a human machine, the purposes of which are all bent towards the defeat of German autocracy. The mixing and molding process began again this week, when several thousand men, only a few weeks removed from civilian life, climbed off trains from the north and soon were swallowed up in the melting pot.

Their arrival was the means of demonstrating the changed attitude of the trained soldier towards the rookie. When the first drafted men began to mingle with National Guard and Regular Army men, the feeling was that the rookies, or recruits, were intruders upon some sort of eminent domain, solely controlled by the old-timer. The men arriving this week got a much warmer welcome than even they expected. Figuratively speaking, they were received with open arms by the men who, for more than eight months have been under intensive training here.

FROM MANY PLACES.

Coming from almost every walk of life, bank clerks, office men, laborers and farmers, the newcomers were suddenly taken from their homes in Idaho, Minnesota, Montana, Missouri, and North Dakota, and some from Pacific Coast States, and dropped into the midst of the most concentrated activity they ever witnessed in their lives. There can be no waiting; everything has to be done on time.

Many of these men are Swedes, Norwegians, and Finns by descent.

"What nationality are most of the men?" was a question asked of Col. Patrick Hamrock, commander of the One Hundred and Fifty-seventh (Colorado) Infantry, which got the first 1500 of the men from Camp Lewis.

"Americans," was the quick response. "You can't judge a man by where he was born. These men are all full of a patriotic feeling towards United States, of which they are citizens, for the most part."

A captain was assigning squads to tents. He looked them over with a trained eye, used to sizing up a man's physical and largely his mental qualifications.

"Swedes mostly," he said, "and they will fight a buzz saw."

CHANGE OF CLIMATE.

The men had come from the north in chair cars and in warm clothing. The change of climatic conditions, from the hills of the northern part, to within a few miles of the Mexican border, was a little hard on the men, but by the time they had been issued khaki clothing, had taken cold showers and shaved, they felt instinctively that they were now members of the Fortieth Division in reality.

These new men were taken under the fatherly wing of the sergeants and corporals in the units to which they were assigned. In contradistinction to previous occasions, when there was said to be a feeling between volunteer and draft men, fostered mostly by all too apparent pro-German propaganda, these men were well received and it was evident that the pro-Germans have failed of their purposes to instigate a feeling of antipathy for the drafted men on the part of volunteers, and a spirit of animosity on the part of the drafted men towards the volunteers, represented by the National Guard men here.

A well-planned scheme was started just before the first men of the draft arrived here to work up this discord between the draft men and volunteers. It took only a few weeks, during which the two branches of the service were amalgamated, to show the man who enlisted and the one who waited for his draft board to send him to American Lake that all are working for the same purpose, to whip the Kaiser.

FELLOW FIGHTERS.

So when the lastest men in the draft got here, the older soldier looked back at his beginning and looked upon the newcomer as another man to help whip the enemy. When the rookie wants to know anything here, he need not hesitate to ask the old-timer.

The secret back of the change is in this, that the man who is well-trained, who has sweated and worked for more than eight months, has learned that a real attempt was made to make him dislike a draft man, and that the sooner the thousands who joined the Sunshine Division are ready for overseas service, the quicker will the division as a whole move in battle array along the front in France. And if there is anything the trained man here wants, it is to get over there where he can help in every way possible to put a few more kinks in kultur. The men here are going right along with their training, and their attitude towards the schemers who tried to create discord is the best answer to how they look upon pro-German activities in their midst, whether the scheme is tried out by a wolf in sheep's clothing, who struts about in the dark spot of the war and works every angle possible to hinder the war programme of the government, or by an out-and-out German.

THE MARINES.

[The following verses, anonymously contributed, were in the mail of First Sergeant L. C. McLaughlin, United States Marine Corps, recruiting division, in the Central Building, this city, yesterday. The sergeant would like to know the identity of the marines' admirer.]

Why do I like the Marines?
Those brave and fearless boys,
They who have done so much
To the Huns—the Kaiser's toys;
They who have laughed at Death,
They who have led the way,
And who will hang the Stars and Stripes
Over Berlin some day!

Why do I like the Marines?
Those boys who do the right,
Whom Kaiser Billy didn't know
And said, "America won't fight;"
They who have surprised him,
And who will end him sure,
And who will fight to Victory
Though many a wound endure.

Why do I like the Marines?
Who cross o'er No Man's Land,
Singing and whistling and joking
And walking so straight and grand;
Who took so many prisoners,
And sure will whip the Hun;
Ah, why do I like the Marines?
Because my brother's one.

CONSTANTINO DAY.

Barnes Music Company will Present Special Programme under Direction of Famous Tenor.

"Constantino Day" will be celebrated next Thursday afternoon at the Barnes Music Company, with an elaborate programme of operatic numbers prepared and presented under the personal direction of the great Spanish tenor, Florencio Constantino.

Thursday will mark the seventy-ninth anniversary of the presentation of the famous Hallet & Davis pianos to the American public, and the Barnes company will receive guests at Nos. 231 and 233 South Broadway, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Constantino, president of the California Temple of Arts, will speak on the possibilities of making Los Angeles one of the greatest centers of art and music in the world, and artists of the California Temple of Arts will present a varied programme.

Letters from a Rookie.

CAMP KEARNY, June 22.—Dear Tim: Well, old scout, I've lost my dog, not in grit but that hairy beast you gave me, because, when it comes to getting the best of Germans, believe me, Xanthippe, that's me. While I was up in Los Angeles with the he-man outfit some pie-faced person musta tied a string on that dog and alienated his affections, for he's gone. If ever I find out who he is I'll make him wish he was in the trenches, where he wouldn't get hurt. But I'll tell you about that trip. The captain came up and says: "Say, Buck, you have been having such a good time gold-bricking around here I guess you can take a vacation and go to Los Angeles, with the he-men." I says: "Fine," but, believe me, the skipper musta had it in for me, 'cause I never did so much work in all my life. That outfit just never seems to want to quit.

I had two mules to drive, and it was just like driving alligators. They stopped and gold-bricked on me all the way, till I says: "Say, you two attributes of the silly part of the animal family, if you don't get a move on I'll knock your ears to parade rest." And a skipper came along and says, "It seems to me I saw you swearing at those mules. Don't you know that profanity is not the proper thing for a mule driver?" And I don't know how he could see me swear when he was outa hearing. So I says, "Yes, sir, I'll talk nice to 'em." And I did. I says: "Say, you two gentle little kittens, if you don't stir your bones I'll give you five days with the brake on." And the darned beasts started to move.

But I got it back on the captain. The colonel put me on guard, 'cause he said I had a soft seat all the way and he wanted the regular soldiers to rest. The colonel said: "Now nobody is to go past the picket line." So when the captain came out I told him he couldn't go past the line. He says, "But I got to water those horses." I says, "Can't help it, sir, the colonel said nobody was to pass. If you are nobody you can pass, sir." And he didn't say a word. He just said, "I'll give you a nice pair of mules tomorrow." And believe me, Xanthippe, he did.

Speaking of mules, Tim, there's a guy in the engineers that has been in the army about twenty years. He has a mule and the darn thing broke its leg. The skipper said the animal would have to be shot, and the old boy, who is a corporal, pleaded and said he would take care of it. Then the corporal began to get sick worrying over that ignorant mule, and whenever one of the buck privates wanted the corporal to do something for them they'd tell him that they heard the captain say he was going to shoot the beast. Finally one of the boys told the corporal he knew where he could get some medicine that would make him well, and then he could take care of the mule better. So the old boy went downtown and spent all his money buying a stock. But he got things mixed and got some horse liniment, and when he took it inwardly it made him squirm. But he said he was doing it for the mule. So it didn't kill him and he thought it oughta help his mule, and he put it on the thing's broken leg, and now it looks like the mule would get better. The corporal is also improving.

Talking about mules. I had something nearly as bad on my hands. One day a shrapnel shell failed to burst, and the skipper says, "Buck, you're a brave man, and besides, we need the soldiers in this outfit to fight the Huns. You carry that 3-inch dud over to the ordnance department and get a receipt for it. If you don't come back I'll know the thing exploded after all." And, believe me, I don't want to carry around no duds. If I am going to be killed in this war, I want to be mowing down Germans when it happens, and that's me, Tim. He says, "Carry it carefully, Buck." But he didn't have to tell me that. All the time I was carrying that thing around I thought of how Nell had promised to take good care of my dog if anything happened to me. And I sat right down and wrote her a letter with the dud beside me, and pretty soon a guy comes in and slaps a board on the table, and I said, "Hey, be careful. That's a dud." And he didn't stop; he beat it. I took the thing to the ordnance department, and a guy wrote down something, and he asks, "What kind of a bomb is it?" I says, "The captain says it is a he-bomb." The clerk says, "You mean a high explosive." I says, "I guess I know what I mean. The captain said it was a H.E. bomb and it came from the He-man Regiment, so I guess I'm right." The clerk says, "Now, take this back to the regimental supply officer and get his o.k. on this slip." I says, "Can I leave this He-bomb here?" The guy says, "I should say not. The thing might explode."

So I had to carry it a mile back and the supply officer put his name on the slip, and I went back to the ordnance office. Then the clerk says, "Take it to the infantry school of arms." I would just as soon hand it to an infant's arms. I weighed about twenty pounds. Then the fat Irishman at the school said, "I don't want the thing." And I was carrying it across the parade ground, when the censor came along. He says, "Say, Buck, what have you theah?" I told him I had a package, and he says, "I'll take charge of it. Can't tell what you have in it. Maybe intoxicants." So I says, "That's me, you can have it." I guess he thought it was a pair of old shoes or something, but he will never know the difference if he goes to monkey with that He-bomb.

Well, Tim, old kid, I gotta get busy. They made me saddler in this outfit, and there are no saddles. I guess I gotta keep gold-bricking, unless they give me some real work to do.

Your friend, BUCK.

Young Man and Armenian Girl are Ordered Sent East to Meet Mann Act Charge.

Removal proceedings before United States Commissioner Long yesterday resulted in Salvadore Pezzuto, 21 years old, and Belle Bahooshian, 18, being ordered sent back to Short Hills, N. J., for trial on a charge of violating the Mann Act.

That he urged Miss Bahooshian, a pretty Armenian girl, to come to California in order to get married was the confession made by Pezzuto to the commissioner. The couple rode to California in a chair car, and were arrested at Elsinore, in which town Pezzuto had friends.

Pezzuto had not secured a divorce from his wife when he lured the Bahooshian girl West, he told the commissioner.

NATIONAL ARMY MEN DECLARED BEST FED TROOPS IN THE WORLD

Nutrition Survey Finds Ration Condition at Camps Excellent; Sending of Sweets from Homes to be Discouraged; Battle Conditions Exist on Ranges.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CAMP LEWIS (Wash.) June 22.—National Army men at Camp Lewis, in common with other American service men, are the best fed troops in the world, according to the nutrition survey party, which has just completed an investigation of conditions at this and other cantonments. The findings of the members of the survey party will be reported to the surgeon-general's office.

Capt. Paul E. Howe, in charge of the survey, is a former professor of physiological chemistry at Columbia University, was associated with the Rockefeller Institute and is the author of a textbook on nutrition. Associated with him are Lieut. S. C. Dinsmore, former State Food Commissioner of Nevada; Lieut. C. C. Mason, formerly with the Maryland State Board of Health, and Lieut. B. H. Harrison, former manager of the spice department of a big coffee corporation.

The enlisted personnel of the board includes Sergts. D. B. Wilshire, chemist for a breakfast food corporation, and L. A. Scarborough, chemist for a big milk condensing company.

QUALITY—QUANTITY.

"The quality of the food served at Camp Lewis could hardly be improved upon," said Capt. Howe, "and as for quantity, there is no ground for criticism here." He declared that Camp Lewis was making a good record in food conservation work.

Soldiers are accustomed to grumble occasionally over their mess, Lieut. Mason declared, but said that the cause of this complaint was not a lack of sufficient quantity of wholesome food, but rather because of temporary dissatisfaction with the kinds of food served. The officers say that a ration a day is more than enough for a soldier, but that in addition the average National Army man eats a great deal of candy and other articles at the post exchanges.

Because of these uncontrollable factors, he says, the nutrition board cannot determine exactly how much food is eaten by the average recruit. The soldier needs only 3000 calories a day, says Lieut. Mason, but more than this is furnished in the ration and a good many men consume food with double this number of calories in a single day.

ENOUGH AT CAMP.

Lieut. Mason is opposed to civilians sending sweets or food of any character to soldiers. In the first place, he says, the soldier is better fed than the average civilian, and many of the packages of food which come to camp are sent from homes where the food could be used to better advantage than at the cantonment.

The officer declares that one bad feature of sending food to the soldier is that their regular programme of eating is destroyed. Regular eating and sleeping do a great deal towards whipping the new men into shape, according to Lieut. Mason.

In addition to studying the soldiers' diet, the nutrition party was interested in the garbage problem and all phases of food wastage in the camp. The quantities and kinds of food sold in the post exchanges received particular attention and may result, it is said, in recommendations to the War Department that in the interest of the soldier's health more stringent regulations be placed on post exchanges concerning when and what food may be sold.

One exchange in the One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Depot Brigade, where the new troops at Camp Lewis are quartered, sold enough candy, cakes and general foodstuffs during May to feed an entire battalion of 600 men for thirty days, according to Lieut. S. C. Dinsmore.

In the course of his investigation of one exchange the officer found the following facts regarding a month's business: The total weight of the food sold was 79,501.63 pounds, the total value being $18,528.40. In terms of calories the bulk was expressed as protein, 4,033,796; fat, 13,700,272.2; carbohydrates, 40,854,807, or a grand total of 58,588,875.2 calories.

Figuring on the basis that 3000 calories is sufficient for a man each day, the food would be sufficient for 600 fighting men for a month.

These same subjects are being investigated by this party in the various army camps in the United States. The party travels from camp to camp and State to State under direct orders from the War Department, and makes technical reports to the Surgeon-General's office.

The work of the nutrition survey party, like that of the psychological boards, is one of the many ways in which Uncle Sam is using science to win the war.

FREE FROM FIRES.

Camp Lewis, now nearing its first birthday, has never had a more serious fire than a pan of grease catching flames on a barracks kitchen range, and every effort is being made to keep this record intact. The cantonment has its own fire department, with men who had department experience in civil life, and, with many small hose-cart stations and an elaborate alarm system, is ready to cope with any situation.

The latest fire-prevention move is to remove underbrush and dead timber from the woods surrounding the cantonment. A detail of 600 men has been engaged with this work for a week. The buildings on the south side of the cantonment border very close to the fir woods.

The men are raking the dead leaves and small brush into heaps, which are burned. Sergeants directing the work say that they have proof that not all of the woodsmen have been transferred to the spruce woods.

ON TARGET RANGES.

Work invaluable in conditioning men soon to see service across the water is being done on the target ranges at Camp Lewis. Actual battle conditions are being reproduced as nearly as possible on the new "B" range, where the rifle work is being done.

Movable targets representing the enemy, hidden behind mounds or in shell holes, are used. A man concealed in a protected pit operates these targets on signal from officers in charge, bringing the enemy into view unexpectedly while scouting parties are working. As the range is unknown, valuable practice in estimating distances is received by the scouting parties.

Shortly after the new range was established a few days ago roads traversing the region were closed to the public. Despite signs and published warnings five motor cars went into the zone, and only the watchful eyes of lookouts posted in crows' nests in tall fir trees saved the passengers of the machines from being riddled by a volley from the soldiers' rifles. In one instance the officer in charge was about to give the order to fire when he happened to glance toward the lookout station and see the soldier on duty waving to him. He did not give the order. An instant later a car with five passenger drove directly behind the target. When the car had passed the command to fire came and the target was almost shot to pieces.

GO TO SAN FRANCISCO.

Approximately 1000 of the One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Depot Brigade men, placed in the limited service department by the medical officers at Camp Lewis, have been transferred to the Presidio at San Francisco, where they will become United States guards and protect factories, mills, mines and other industrial establishments, thereby releasing men for [illegible]

LOOKING ON AT CAMP KEARNY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CAMP KEARNY, June 22.—After going from one unit to another for some time, we have at last located Edwin F. Schallert, former musical editor of The Times. He was a member of the One Hundred Fifty-seventh Field Hospital, and was transferred to the One Hundred Fifty-ninth Sanitary Detachment, where he is now holding out as company clerk and making good.

Hospital Librarian.

Miss Mary Sale, who was for several years librarian at the Los Angeles County Hospital, is doing duty for the camp library here at the Base Hospital. She sees that patients who are unable to leave their beds or wards are plentifully supplied with reading matter.

Dentist Promoted.

Capt. C. E. Markey, a former Pasadena dentist, is in command of the dental forces in camp now, since Col. Franklin F. Wing, former division dental surgeon, was transferred to the Western Department at the head. He was attached to the Utah regiment. At dental infirmary No. 2, Lieut. J. E. Frates and Lieut. John Leggett, both former dentists of San Francisco, wield the teeth-fixing tools.

Brings Back Bride.

A. R. "Bud" Rose, son of former Mayor Henry H. Rose of Los Angeles, has returned from Los Angeles with his bride, and has settled down to the well-timed life of a benedict.

Plan Pageant.

Corp. Edward F. Robson, who was formerly an actor and stage director, now has the job of arranging for a pageant to be held at Balboa Park, July 4.

Train Candidates.

Work at the Officers' Training School is progressing rapidly. The men are getting all that is coming in the way of instruction, and already have seen several weeks' of strenuous activities.

The school is in command of Lieut.-Col. Harry P. Wilbur, of the Grizzlies. Capt. Ewing Werlein is adjutant and Capt. Harry C. Byrnes of the One Hundred Fifty-seventh Infantry, is senior instructor. Capt. Wyatt J. White, One Hundred Fifty-seventh, commands Infantry Co. 1; Capt. Edward J. Helsley, One Hundred Fifty-eighth, Co. 2; Capt. Harry Fink, Engineer Reserve Corps, Co. 3, and Capt. Irwin Clawson, the artillery battery. Lieut. Charles E. Hensel of the One Hundred Fifteenth Supply Train, is supply officer, and Lieut. Harry R. Day, assistant. Other instructor officers are Lieut. Winthrop Knight, One Hundred Sixtieth; Lieut. B. G. Tabor, One Hundred Fifty-ninth; Lieut. Thomas G. Pool, One Hundred Fifty-seventh; Lieut. John R. Fry, One Hundred Fifty-ninth; Lieut. Raymond E. Elkins, Lieut. Charles R. Blood and Lieut. Carl B. Johnson, all of the One Hundred Fifty-eighth, and Lieut. William M. Jones, One Hundred Fifty-seventh, Lieut. John S. Fahy, One Hundred Forty-third Field Artillery; Lieut. Bennie C. Hampton, the Grizzlies, and Lieut. Harold S. Jennings of the Utah Regiment will be in the artillery battery.

Unique Distinction.

Sergt. E. L. Gibson, orderly for Maj.-Gen. Frederick S. Strong, is the only cavalryman of the Sunshine Division who retains his place in the cavalry. In other words, he is the only regular cavalryman in the division who is entitled to wear a yellow hat cord, the sign of the mounted soldier. He is still a member of the Fourth United States Cavalry and is on detached duty as mounted orderly of Gen. Strong.

New Bakery.

Most of the bread-making activities at camp will be centered in one large building, which is now nearing completion in bakery row.

Back from Fort Sill.

Capt. Harry L. Powell, formerly in the office of the Los Angeles City Engineer, is back from the school of fire at Fort Sill. He is commander of Battery F, One Hundred and Forty-third Field Artillery, the Los Angeles battery. He says that school of fire is right, as the Firt Sill place is getting warmer every day, aided and abetted by the sun.

SURE KAISER BEATEN.

California Soldier Not Alarmed at Enemy's Drive—Writes of, Big American Army.

"The Kaiser is beaten right now. I wish I might write you of the mighty American army that already is in France. Do not be alarmed about the German drive; it is the enemy that is alarmed."

Private John H. Ficod, Jr., Co. E, One Hundred and Seventeenth Regiment, United States Engineers, young Californian now in France, thus wrote on May 29 to Mrs. A. P. Whetstone of No. 1010 West Third street, this city, in a letter received here yesterday.

"We are well fed and well clothed," the letter states. "The sweets, however, are lacking, the chocolate and cakes and dessert that the American soldier likes. The Y.M.C.A. provides a few of these things, but cannot begin to supply the demand. But the Y.M.C.A. is performing a wonderful work, and is, I consider, an indispensable arm of the service. They are at the 'front,' and that means on the firing line, not ten miles back."

SEES CHRIST IN PILLOW FOLDS.

CURIOUS PHENOMENON OPENS LOCAL MAN'S EYES TO PATRIOTIC DUTY.

Considerable sensation was created among the tenants of a rooming-house at No. 659 South Maple avenue yesterday morning when W. J. Mann took several friends into his room and showed them a picture of the Christ, with [illegible] crown of thorns, which had accidentally been formed in the folds of the pillow upon which Mann had rested his head the night before.

"Did you ever see anything like that?" said Mann, glancing first at the pillow and then at the onlookers. "I'm not superstitious, but I don't believe that relief picture was made on the pillow by accident. I believe it is a sign. One of the things I'm going to do is to economize and save money for the Red Cross. I'm too old to go to war, but I am not too old to work and I intend to do all I can for the Red Cross and the various relief funds. This experience has certainly opened my eyes."

Wounded.

ANGELENO LAD IN BIG BATTLE.

Former Hotel Bell Boy Tells of Gas Attack.

In Hospital Now, but Hopes Soon to be Out.

"Germans will Think End of World Coming."

John Pierre Cleverie, who, until he left to join the American army, was bell boy in the Gates Hotel in Los Angeles, was in the thick of one of the recent big battles on the French front and was seriously injured by being gassed. His mother, Mrs. A. J. McKenzie of San Diego, has been officially notified that her son was seriously wounded in action on May 3. Yesterday her anxiety for her son who she feared might have died since then was allayed when she received letters from him written in the hospital.

The letters show the spirit of the American fighting man and describe in the matter of fact way of the Sammy the fierceness of the recent fighting.

In a letter dated May 8, five days after the attack, Claverie says: "I thought I would let you know I was gassed and came out O.K. and I guess I will soon be out of here. There sure was hell to pay that night the Germans sent gas over in the town we were in. It was a crime, the after effects; but we paid them for what they did and they never will forget it. They shelled the town all night with gas, and the devil himself couldn't have gone through it. We are biding our time and when it comes the Germans will think the world is coming to an end."

GUIDE DURING ATTACK.

Claverie, who was born in Los Angeles, of French parentage, seems to think one of the greatest hardships is wearing a French uniform when his own clothes were lost, but the former bell boy tell of acting as guide during the gas attack. He says, "I was sent out that night to act as guide for two sections of my company and went through it all and I hope I don't have to again."

Another letter written on May 1, before the attack, from his dugout, on a scrap of French writing paper, tells of the shells dropping all around as they work. He refers with appreciation to a box of candy he received from a woman in Los Angeles whom he had known in the hotel, and then tells regretfully of leaving half of the box when they moved hurriedly to another point. The boy, who was considered somewhat a "dandy" among the other bell boys, says he hopes soon to be relieved and get cleaned up as he is "all in rags and a tramp would turn his head to see" him.

IS FEELING BETTER.

Although still ill from the gassing, he remembered it was "Mother's Day" on May 12 and wrote again to his mother to tell her he was recovering. He says, "This is the eighth day and I feel about the same, my eyes are bad and I cough a lot. We have been given new clothes and we look a little better, quite a difference from the French uniform."

Claverie, who left San Diego on September 19, 1917, for Camp Lewis, was on his way to France by Thanksgiving and by New Year's had been transferred to Co. B, First Engineers, with the Expeditionary Force. Soon after he wrote of the night work of the engineers and then on April 21 of being sent to a distant point far from the location of his last letter.

Claverie's father is J. M. B. Claverie of Los Angeles. The latter was born in Bordeaux and Claverie's mother is from Marseilles. Though he has relatives in France the boy hasn't had time to see them yet, he says.

Queer Situation.

APANESE FISHERMEN'S STRIKE WORRIES HARBOR.

overnment's Tuna Price Stops Sardine Catching—Canners Puzzled.

THERE is considerable uneasiness at the harbor over the strike of Japanese fishermen has tied up the fish canning and thrown out of employment about 1500 fishermen and several hundred white men, girls and women. A peculiar feature of the is that the men went out not of any action of the canners, because of the price of tuna by the Federal Food Administration. The canners are therefore only indirectly involved.

In fact, neither the fishermen nor W. G. Crandall of San Diego, Administrator for Southern California, who was appointed by P. Merritt, State Food Administrator, will admit that it is a strike.

Crandall, in anticipation of the opening of the tuna season, fixed the price of tuna at $100 for canned fish and $90 for Immediately all the fishing boats owned by Japanese suspended operations.

WON'T FISH AT ALL.

Although they were fishing for and not tuna the fishermen refused to work. The sardine was satisfactory, but because the tuna price they refused to at all.

what the outcome will be is The Japanese have the of nonresistance down to They make no demands; start no fights. They smile, the price of fish and shake their Meanwhile the 500 fishing are tied up, the canneries idle women out of work.

Crandall is firm in his decision that the canners shall pay no more than $100 a ton for fish. The canners say they are not interested in the price of fish so long as the government fixes their margin of profits, if the retail price is not made too high to affect consumption on account of the high price of fish. However, all of them welcome government price fixing.

FISH GETTING WARY?

The canners admit that on account of competition they have been at the mercy of the Japanese for several years. One of them pointed out yesterday that while the number of fishing boats had been increasing for the last five years, there had been no increase in the amount of fish caught. Five hundred boats last year caught no more fish than 100 boats caught in 1914.

In view of the fact that the Japanese are thoroughly and effectively organized, it has been suggested that perhaps there is something more to the regulation of the supply delivered to the canners than a generally accredited increase in the wariness of the fish against being caught.

ALTADENA MAN ON RETURN FROM EAST.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—A. F. Gartz of Altadena, Cal., has been in conference with some of his friends in the Senate and the House and has started for his home in the West.

He came East principally to visit his sons, both of whom have commissions in the Flying Corps of the army and navy reserve. One is stationed with the army camp at Atlanta, and the other is at the Cape May naval balloon station. Both hope to see active service overseas soon.

The Joy Of Coming Motherhood

A Wonderful Remedy That is a Natural Aid and Relieves the Tension.

The expectant mother revolves in her mind all we understand by destiny. And it is of the utmost importance that her physical comfort be our first thought.

There is a most splendid remedy for this purpose, known as Mother's Friend. It is applied over the muscles of the stomach, gently rubbed in, and at once penetrates to relieve strain on nerves, cords and ligaments. It makes the muscles so pliant that they expand easily when baby arrives and pain and danger at the crisis is naturally less.

Mother's Friend is for external use only, is absolutely safe and wonderfully effective. It enables the expectant mother to preserve her health and strength and she remains a pretty mother by having avoided the suffering and danger which would otherwise accompany such an occasion. Every nerve, muscle and tendon is thoroughly lubricated.

Mother's Friend is prepared by the Bradfield Regulator Co., J-23 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. They will mail you an intensely interesting "Motherhood Book." Write them to send it to you, and in the meantime send or phone to your druggist today for a bottle of Mother's Friend.

Every woman should aid nature in her glorious work. Mother's Friend makes it possible for you to do so, and should be used regularly, without fail, night and morning.

From the "House of Smolin" Come Sports Hats Rare in Charm —Here just now, just in the height of the summertime, when the links, the long, sinuous line of the motor trail, the shining beach call and call and call!

—Now, there's one, for instance, of khaki Milan, there's a ribbon hat—row after row of little, quirky ruffles of ribbon wound 'round a dashing bit of close-fitting frame; there's a whopper of a severe-line sailor, its blue linen flange colored, here and there with a colorful motif; there's a soft and tractable hat of chenille and ribbon; a silken hat, and one of rough-textured ratine combined with smooth hemp straw; perhaps one of braided ribbon combined with silk will capture you, or one of soft, rough braid with its embroidery of silk braid—all are here, and choice is possible at $10.00. Third Floor.

The Needful Slipover Sweaters of Wool May Be Had at $4.95 to $9.75

—Indeed, it may almost be said that no woman's wardrobe is complete without one of these gay, comfortable, slip-over sweaters in the true sports model.
—One adds such a festive "air" to a white beach frock, and yet it is so comfortable as the tide breeze drives landward.
—Then, there's the

Silk Sweater A Thing of Beauty

—One of these may be had at $29.50 or one may pay $55—as one will.
—Just imagine, for instance, a shimmering silken sweater of pure white, or a delicate pink, or one of the many shades of blue, of sombre but rich and regal purple, of stunningly becoming black, of gay apricot?
—Or, think of the two-color combinations, some of which have the wide collar and the wide, youngish sash; some, too, with the roll collar, and, again, those with nary a bit o' collar. Second Floor.

SURE KAISER BEATEN.

California Soldier Not Alarmed at Enemy's Drive—Writes of Big American Army.

"The Kaiser is beaten right now. I wish I might write you of the mighty American army that already is in France. Do not be alarmed about the German drive; it is the enemy that is alarmed."

Private John H. Ficod, Jr., Co. E, One Hundred and Seventeenth Regiment, United States Engineers, young Californian now in France, thus wrote on May 29 to Mrs. A. P. Whetstone of No. 1010 West Third street, this city, in a letter received here yesterday.

"We are well fed and well clothed," the letter states. "The sweets, however, are lacking, the chocolate and cakes and dessert that the American soldier likes. The Y.M.C.A. provides a few of these things, but cannot begin to supply the demand. But the Y.M.C.A. is performing a wonderful work, and is, I consider, an indispensable arm of the service. They are at the 'front,' and that means on the firing line, not ten miles back."

SEES CHRIST IN PILLOW FOLDS.

CURIOUS PHENOMENON OPENS LOCAL MAN'S EYES TO PATRIOTIC DUTY.

Considerable sensation was created among the tenants of a rooming-house at No. 659 South Maple avenue yesterday morning when W. J. Mann took several friends into his room and showed them a picture of the Christ, with the crown of thorns, which had accidentally been formed in the folds of the pillow upon which Mann had rested his head the night before.

"Did you ever see anything like that?" said Mann, glancing first at the pillow and then at the onlookers. "I'm not superstitious, but I don't believe that relief picture was made on the pillow by accident. I believe it is a sign. One of the things I'm going to do is to economize and save money for the Red Cross. I'm too old to go to war, but I am not too old to work and I intend to do all I can for the Red Cross and the various relief funds. This experience has certainly opened my eyes."

Wounded.

ANGELENO LAD IN BIG BATTLE.

Former Hotel Bell Boy Tells of Gas Attack.

In Hospital Now, but Hopes Soon to be Out.

"Germans will Think End of World Coming."

John Pierre Cleverie, who, until he left to join the American army, was bell boy in the Gates Hotel in Los Angeles, was in the thick of one of the recent big battles on the French front and was seriously injured by being gassed. His mother, Mrs. A. J. McKenzie of San Diego, has been officially notified that her son was seriously wounded in action on May 3. Yesterday her anxiety for her son who she feared might have died since then was allayed when she received letters from him written in the hospital.

The letters show the spirit of the American fighting man and describe in the matter of fact way of the Sammy the fierceness of the recent fighting.

In a letter dated May 8, five days after the attack, Claverie says: "I thought I would let you know I was gassed and came out O.K. and I guess I will soon be out of here. There sure was hell to pay that night the Germans sent gas over in the town we were in. It was a crime, the after effects; but we paid them for what they did and they never will forget it. They shelled the town all night with gas, and the devil himself couldn't have gone through it. We are biding our time and when it comes the Germans will think the world is coming to an end."

GUIDE DURING ATTACK.

Claverie, who was born in Los Angeles, of French parentage, seems to think one of the greatest hardships is wearing a French uniform when his own clothes were lost, but the former bell boy tell of acting as guide during the gas attack. He says, "I was sent out that night to act as guide for two sections of my company and went through it all and I hope I don't have to again."

Another letter written on May 1, before the attack, from his dugout, on a scrap of French writing paper, tells of the shells dropping all around as they work. He refers with appreciation to a box of candy he received from a woman in Los Angeles whom he had known in the hotel, and then tells regretfully of leaving half of the box when they moved hurriedly to another point. The boy, who was considered somewhat a "dandy" among the other bell boys, says he hopes soon to be relieved and get cleaned up as he is "all in rags and a tramp would turn his head to see" him.

IS FEELING BETTER.

Although still ill from the gassing, he remembered it was "Mother's Day" on May 12 and wrote again to his mother to tell her he was recovering. He says, "This is the eighth day and I feel about the same, my eyes are bad and I cough a lot. We have been given new clothes and we look a little better, quite a difference from the French uniform."

Claverie, who left San Diego on September 19, 1917, for Camp Lewis, was on his way to France by Thanksgiving and by New Year's had been transferred to Co. B, First Engineers, with the Expeditionary Force. Soon after he wrote of the night work of the engineers and then on April 21 of being sent to a distant point far from the location of his last letter.

Claverie's father is J. M. B. Claverie of Los Angeles. The latter was born in Bordeaux and Claverie's mother is from Marseilles. Though he has relatives in France the boy hasn't had time to see them yet, he says.

Queer Situation.

JAPANESE FISHERMEN'S STRIKE WORRIES HARBOR.

Government's Tuna Price Stops Sardine Catching—Canners Puzzled.

THERE is considerable uneasiness at the harbor over the strike of Japanese fishermen which has tied up the fish canning industry and thrown out of employment about 1500 fishermen and several hundred white men, girls and women. A peculiar feature of the strike is that the men went out not because of any action of the canners, but because of the price of tuna fixed by the Federal Food Administration. The canners are therefore only indirectly involved.

In fact, neither the fishermen nor Capt. W. G. Crandall of San Diego, Food Administrator for Southern California, who was appointed by Ralph P. Merritt, State Food Administrator, will admit that it is a strike.

Capt. Crandall, in anticipation of the opening of the tuna season, recently fixed the price of tuna at $100 a ton for cleaned fish and $90 for uncleaned. Immediately all the fishing boats owned by Japanese suspended operations.

WON'T FISH AT ALL.

Although they were fishing for sardines and not tuna the fishermen refused to work. The sardine price was satisfactory, but because of the tuna price they refused to fish at all.

Just what the outcome will be is problematic. The Japanese have the position of nonresistance down to perfection. They make no demands; they start no fights. They smile, ask the price of fish and shake their heads. Meanwhile the 500 fishing boats are tied up, the canneries idle and the women out of work.

Capt. Crandall is firm in his demand that the canners shall pay no more than $100 a ton for fish. The canners say they are not interested in the price of fish so long as the government fixes their margin of profits, if the retail price is not made too high to affect consumption on account of the high price of fish. However, all of them welcome government price fixing.

FISH GETTING WARY?

The canners admit that on account of competition they have been at the mercy of the Japanese for several years. One of them pointed out yesterday that while the number of fishing boats had been increasing for the last five years, there had been no increase in the amount of fish caught. Five hundred boats last year caught no more fish than 100 boats caught in 1914.

In view of the fact that the Japanese are thoroughly and effectively organized, it has been suggested that perhaps there is something more to the regulation of the supply delivered to the canners than a generally accredited increase in the wariness of the fish against being caught.

ALTADENA MAN ON RETURN FROM EAST.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—A. F. Gartz of Altadena, Cal., has been in conference with some of his friends in the Senate and the House and has started for his home in the West.

He came East principally to visit his sons, both of whom have commissions in the Flying Corps of the army and navy reserve. One is stationed with the army camp at Atlanta, and the other is at the Cape May naval balloon station. Both hope to see active service overseas soon.

The Joy Of Coming Motherhood

A Wonderful Remedy That is a Natural Aid and Relieves the Tension.

The expectant mother revolves in her mind all we understand by destiny. And it is of the utmost importance that her physical comfort be our first thought.

There is a most splendid remedy for this purpose, known as Mother's Friend. It is applied over the muscles of the stomach, gently rubbed in, and at once penetrates to relieve strain on nerves, cords and ligaments. It makes the muscles so pliant that they expand easily when baby arrives and pain and danger at the crisis is naturally less.

Mother's Friend is for external use only, is absolutely safe and wonderfully effective. It enables the expectant mother to preserve her health and strength and she remains a pretty mother by having avoided the suffering and danger which would otherwise accompany such an occasion. Every nerve, muscle and tendon is thoroughly lubricated.

Mother's Friend is prepared by the Bradfield Regulator Co., J-32 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. They will mail you an intensely interesting "Motherhood Book." Write them to send it to you, and in the meantime send or phone to your druggist today for a bottle of Mother's Friend.

Every woman should aid nature in her glorious work. Mother's Friend makes it possible for you to do so, and should be used regularly, without fail, night and morning.

SUPPLIES FOR FRANCE SAFE.

Reported Capture by Enemy is Denied.

Homes Already Bombed are the Only Loss.

American Committee's Work Described.

Emphatic denial of the recent report that millions of dollars worth of lumber and other relief material contributed by Americans and sent to Miss Anne Morgan and others of the American Committee for Devastated France had been captured in its entirety by the Germans is contained in a letter from the committee that has just been received here by L. N. Brunswig.

The letter is written by Miss Elizabeth Perkins, one of the vice-presidents of the American committee, at the New York offices, No. 16 East Thirty-ninth street. It is as follows:

"We have had a hard time refuting the statement that we had lost everything in France. The fact is, we have saved all supplies and live stock; we have kept trace of all our refugees, and the children are having their education continued wherever they move to. French officials assure us the planting was well protected and has not fallen into German hands; and as to the villages themselves, they are probably more destroyed than before, but, as we don't do any building, the only destruction has been to already bombed houses, to wooden shacks erected by the French government.

"I enclose our last cable.

"ELIZABETH PERKINS."

The cablegram sent June 5 from the war zone by Mrs. Anne M. Dike and Miss Anne Morgan, heads of the society's committee in France, reads:

"In the field we are evacuating refugees, running dispensaries, feeding thousands of refugees at our rest stations. Army has called upon us to establish mobile canteens in six places. We are also helping hospital work and furnishing supplies to American wounded. Paris depot clothing refugees as they pass through. Situation grave, but everyone calm and confident, with supreme faith in American support. Our American troops magnificent. Our bank account totally drained. We are moving with events, but in desperate need of funds. American Red Cross heart and soul with us, but their transportation greatly overburdened, and we have advantage in having workers and motors already in war zone. Need for immediate financial assistance greater than ever. Vital we should be able to put supplies wherever available and distribute immediately in this emergency. Our children's colony now moved out of war zone. This is one of the most important ends of our work, and must be maintained at all costs. Cable even small sums without delay. Inform all families safety of every member carefully watched.

"DIKE-MORGAN."

[Mrs. A. M. Dike, Miss Anne Morgan, Committee.]

"These admirable women had twenty-eight villages assigned to them in April, 1917," said Mr. Brunswig yesterday, "and the French commander, Gen. Petain, has been most laudatory in his commendation of the American relief directed through their philanthropy and self-sacrifice. Their headquarters were established in the old ruined chateau of Bierancourt, until the May 27 German drive."

PRETTIEST GIRL STILL SOUGHT.

Send in a Picture to the Rotogravure Department and Watch Results.

The search for the prettiest girl in Los Angeles is still on. It is such a big task that it necessitates care and time to complete it. The Times has received many pictures, but must see many more before a decision can be reached. If you do not feel that you care to enter the lists yourself send pictures of the prettiest girls of your acquaintance.

Send the pictures to the Rotogravure Department and watch the big sepia sheet for the result.

TO GIVE LECTURES ON WAR PROBLEMS.

GOVERNMENT AND INDUSTRY WILL BE TOPICS OF SUMMER SESSION COURSES.

The changes that the war has made in the relations of the government to industry and commerce will be set forth during the summer session of the University of California, which will open at the new Los Angeles High School Building, tomorrow.

This will be one of the courses to be given by Dr. Stuart Daggett, professor of railway economics, on the Flood Foundation at the university. He will treat of the relations of government to industry and commerce, and lecture on land legislation, the trust problem, the railway problem, commerce, shipping subsidies and shipping control. He will also give a course on "The Principles of Economics."

One of California's artists, Prof. E. Neuhaus, will give courses on art during the session. Prof. Neuhaus is widely-known for his paintings, a number of which were exhibited in the Fine Arts Building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. He is also eminent as an author.

Information as to the work of the summer session may be had at room 417, Union League Building.

TYPISTS ARE NEEDED.

Government Has Good Positions at Washington—Salaries Have Not Changed.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces that through some misunderstanding an impression prevails that the government has raised the usual entrance salary for stenographers and typists in the departments at Washington, D. C., to $1400 a year. The commission states that there has been no change in initial salaries for positions of this kind; the usual salaries at the beginning range from $1000 to $1200 a year, appointments at $1200 being in the minority. The War Department makes all appointments to such positions at not less than $1100 a year, and agrees to promote to $1200 a year after three months' satisfactory service. Appointments at salaries higher than $1200 a year are rare, and the appointees must possess exceptional qualifications.

There is still great need for stenographers and typists in the government offices at Washington. Those who have had considerable office experience are most desired. The Civil Service Commission urges qualified persons to offer their services to the government. Full information my be obtained from the representative of the Civil Service Commission at the local postoffice.

Curriculum.

WAR SESSION FOR SUMMER.

Local University will Open Classes Tomorrow.

Courses will be Given with Bearing on Crisis.

Faculty of Over Sixty will Give Lectures.

The war summer session of the University of Southern California opens tomorrow. Registration is practically complete, with a faculty of over sixty, including all the regular department heads and a list of seventeen visiting educators from other universities East and West.

The avowed object of this year's summer session is the patriotic one of creating efficient and enlightened support of the nation in the world crisis. In all departments from art to zo-ology the main courses will be given with a direct bearing upon war needs and war conditions.

Housewives, military instructors, young men who plan to seek admission to officer's training camps, literary workers, musicians, teachers, public speakers, playground directors, gymnasts—all will find courses expressly devoted to their needs as seen in the light of war conditions.

MILITARY SCIENCE.

In military science a complete curriculum for the training of officers and drill masters is to be given by Col. Lewis M. Koehler, U.S.A., retired, a veteran of the Indian wars and Spanish and Philippine campaigns. The drill ground at Exposition Park will be used.

In playground and physical education work, Dr. C. Ward Crampton, director-in-chief of that work for the school system of New York City, will be in charge. Under Dr. Crampton's direction, Prof. Ralph LaPorte and his aides will supervise a model playground at the newly-opened field in Exposition Park.

In public school music, the summer work will be headed by Miss Julia Ettie Crane, president of the Crane Normal Institute of Music at Potsdam, N. Y. Miss Carolyn Alchin of Los Angeles will head the work in harmony and ear training.

In English literature, Dr. Richard G. Burton of Minnesota will give courses in war literature. Dr. Allison Gaw, Drama League director, will give courses in modern drama. Dr. Benjamin Stelter, Prof. Paul S. Wood and Mrs. Maryette G. Mackey will lecture on literature, new and old.

Dr. Ernest Carroll Moore's courses in education will be added to those of Dr. Thomas B. Stowell, professor of education and dean of the summer session. A faculty of three will assist.

IN ENGINEERING.

In engineering particular attention will be paid to laboratory work designed to give practical instruction to those entering the service.

Americanism will be the major note in sociology. Dr. George E. Howard of Nebraska, who was president of the American Sociological Society in 1917, will lecture on "The Biography of American Statesmanship." Dr. Emory S. Bogardus will head the regular faculty.

Six courses in French are scheduled, under Prof. L. M. Riddle, Asst. Prof. Kenneth M. Bissell and Louis Briois, visiting instructor. In Spanish, Don Felipe M. de Setien of Madrid will give courses and will preside over the "Spanish House." No German will be given.

Zo-ology will be taught at the Venice marine biological station, an adjunct to the university. Deep-sea life will be studied in the university's special dredging launch. Will S. Thompson, fish expert for the California State Fish and Game Commission, will give a series of lectures. Prof. A. B. Ulrey will direct the regular work.

FOR ARTILLERYMEN.

Blaine A. Stair, inventor of a sanitary drinking tube that is now being used by many soldiers in France, has received government recognition of an ear stopple that he has devised for the use of artillerymen and others. According to Mr. Stair, who is a Los Angeles man, the stopple eliminates all loud noises and concussions without destroying all sense of hearing.

Do What These Doctors Tell You

Sworn Statement of the Composition of the Formula of Nuxated Iron.

How it helps to increase strength and build up delicate nervous, run-down folks.

The Board of Directors have authorized the broadcast publication of the sworn statement of the composition of the formula of Nuxated Iron, so that the public may examine it for themselves and judge as to its merits. It is conservatively estimated that this remarkable formula is now being used by over three million people annually. Among those who have used and strongly endorsed it are many physicians who have been connected with the best hospitals and medical societies, Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, Former Presidential Cabinet Official-Secretary of the Treasury; Vice-Presidential Nominee Chas. A. Towne, former members of Congress; distinguished U. S. Army Generals (Retired), Judge Atkinson of the United States Court of Claims at Washington and former Health Commissioner Kerr of Chicago.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this statement for the benefit of their readers. It is suggested that physicians make a record of it and keep it in their offices so that they may intelligently answer questions of patients concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to any one who desires such. It is as follows:—

Cut this Out

Sworn statement of the composition of the formula of Nuxated Iron.

Iron Peptonate (Special specific Standard) (Quantity given below.)

Sodium Glycerophosphates U.S.P. (Monsanto.)

Calcium Glycerophosphates U.S.P. (Monsanto.) F. E. Nux Vomica U.S.P. Cascarine Bitter Magnesium Carbonate Pe. Ginger U.S.P. Oil Cassia Cinnamon U.S.P. Calcium Carbonate Precip. U.S.P.

Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron peptonate, of a special specific standard, which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost; but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy. Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increases brain power, as glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorus in that particular state so similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of man.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphates) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron" by the Dae Health Laboratories, Paris, London, and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you. We guarantee satisfaction to every purchaser or your money will be refunded.

Take Nuxated Iron for Red Blood, Strength and Endurance

In regard to the value of Nuxated Iron, Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, says it has proven through his own tests of it to excel any preparation he has ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves and strengthening the muscles. Dr. J. W. Armistead, Grove Hill, Ala., graduate of the University of Alabama School of Medicine, Mobile, 1882, says: "In the cases I used Nuxated Iron I have found more beneficial results than from any preparation I have ever used in 34 years' practice." Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "Contrary to general opinion, lack of iron in the blood does not necessarily mean you do not have enough blood, but it means your blood is not of the right kind. If you feel tired in the morning; restless at night; if you suffer from weakness or lack of vitality, go to your family doctor and have him take a specimen of your blood and examine it, and if it shows iron deficiency, get him to give you a prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Do this so as to be sure that you do not get hold of some of the numerous forms of metallic iron preparations on the market which may do you more harm than good. Or if you do not want to go to this trouble, purchase an original package of Nuxated Iron and see for yourself that the words Nuxated Iron appear on the package—Not Nux and Iron, nor any other form of iron than Nuxated Iron."

Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it no matter how much you eat or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good, and as a consequence we become weak, pale, sickly looking, just like a plant in soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time. Sold by all druggists everywhere.

AT WAR WITH YOURSELF!

HELP NATURE TO DEFEAT THE DISEASE IN YOUR BODY.

Keep up the fight. Do not give up. Nature is trying to serve you in conquering the wrongs that may exist.

Red blood, vim, courage, vitality, all seem lacking. No wonder you are nervous and discouraged.

Why not call to your aid a strong, dependable ally? Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has for nearly fifty years proven its merits as a most powerful tonic and blood builder to the many thousands who have been returned to good health by its use.

Clear the coated tongue, get rid of unsightly skin trouble. Let this remarkable remedy rid your body of the impurities of the blood, let it tone and strengthen you. It often cures the lingering chronic cough.

Dr. Pierces Golden Medical Discovery is absolutely herbal, free from alcohol or dangerous habit-forming drugs. All druggists. Liquid or tablets.

San Francisco, Cal.—"A member of our family always takes Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as a tonic and blood purifier, and to regulate his bowels, and keep him in good health."—MRS. S. A. ROBBINS, 286 Hickory Avenue.

Portland, Ore.—"I certainly can recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I had liver trouble so bad that I was just yellow and had indigestion, too. Also had woman's trouble, and I was weak and nervous. I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and his 'Favorite Prescription.' I took six bottles of each and was a well woman.

"My husband had trouble with his lungs. He was very weak. I gave him 'Discovery' and it cured him.

"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Pierce's Remedies."—MRS. FRED PATTERSON, 420 Kirby Street.

Maude Fulton.

WORK IS MORE FUN THAN FUN IS, SAYS WRITER.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

"WORK is more fun than fun is—if you get me!"

It was Maude Fulton, author-star of "The Brat," which took New York by storm two seasons ago, who said that, characteristically popping an epigram even in the act of catching a train, which moment is to most people in this world probably the most epigramless instant in their whole lives. Miss Fulton is on the very last lap of her tour with "The Brat," and was just tripping into the San Diego train when I caught her.

Concerning work and fun, now, Maude Fulton ought to know, because who is there in the world has an opportunity for wonderful gaiety if not a star on Broadway? And certainly she's an expert on work. For she has followed more avocations than Bill Desmond in his professional career—and Bill says he has played nineteen different avocations on the screen. Of course, the first step was that milliner girl's job in St. Louis—at $2 per. Which isn't $2 per day, either, but per week! And then there was stenogging and cow-girling, and chorus-girling—and, oh, everything.

But of course the great point now is the amount of money she has made and is going to make from stock royalties with "The Brat." "Haven't had time to count it yet, even!" said Miss Fulton.

At least maybe the money seems the great point to you; but it isn't to Miss Fulton. The great point to her is the leisure she will now have in which to work—because, you know, she has four plays finished.

"That is, they're all finished except the writing," said Miss Fulton brightly. "The scenarios are done, and all the characters are buzzing about in my head. But I'm going to rest first. I've gone to work with the whistle for two years now, and from now on I mean to take my time. I'm going to lead myself by the hand instead of taking myself by the ear.

"And I'm going to play around for six months first," said Miss Fulton, finishing up with the bright little grin that gets you as "The Brat." "At least, I'm telling myself that just to kid myself along. As a matter of fact, I'm sure I shall go to work the first of September. All of August I shall spend with my friends, Kate and John Kelly, fishing on Feather River.

"No, I'm not going to live in an apartment nor a hotel nor in a regular house. Guess! I'm going to build a bungalow on some nice, bright, high, clean roof."

Maude Fulton, Author and Star of 'The Brat.'

But about those new plays. They're all comfortably named even if they aren't on paper yet, in the fashion of eager mothers giving their babies pre-natal names. "The Market Place" is the most serious, Miss Fulton declares. It is a story of ambition in New York, and Miss Fulton thinks to be ambitious in New York is a heart-breaking experience. Certainly there creeps into her usually gay voice a little note of sadness, and she is remembering, perhaps, the chorus girl days when she lived on 15 cents a day! The setting of "The Market Place" is Greenwich Village, from which you will at once glean that the sort of ambition meant by the title is artistic ambition—the feverish grasping after new thought forms of artistic expression. It's the soul of Greenwich Village, as well as its droll body, that she will write about.

Another of the plays is a California story, and it is named "Sonny"—and Sonny is a girl. "Little Sister" is the name of another, a whimsical little comedy of behind the scenes; while "M'sieu Boncouer" is a tale of the faded and fading aristocracy of New Orleans.

Of course, this must only be whispered, because before you have contracts and things something is so very, very liable to happen to break the charm—but "M'sieu Boncouer" is intended as a play for Jack Barrymore, and was written especially for him by Maude Fulton, after a chat between the two, during which Mr. Barrymore said he would like a new play and he thought Miss Fulton could write one for him, etc., etc., and Miss Fulton said maybe she could, she'd try, etc., etc., in that direct way of hers.

Of course, Miss Fulton has tried her hand at a war play.

"But I'm afraid of it, frankly," said Miss Fulton. "There are so many things you may not touch upon—all war plays have to be censored, you know—and by the time you'd finished your play probably all the things you couldn't say would be changed."

However, Miss Fulton declares that she owes everything to Oliver Morosco, and that she should offer all her plays to him first—"though maybe," said Miss Fulton, "he won't want any of them."

Miss Fulton admitted that seeing New York from the private limousine of starship is quite a different matter from seeing it from the sight-seeing bus of chorus girlhood.

"And well, yes, it would all have been too wonderful for anything—in fact, it was—making a hit in one's own play that way. But what do you think was the fly in the ointment? An ulcerated tooth! Yes, ma'am. And the only thing that made me able to stand the pain I had to endure at the hands of the dentist was the fact that right across from his office in the Longacre Building was a great big yellow sign reading—'Coming—The Brat — by Maude Fulton!'"

While you're interviewing Maude Fulton, author, you mustn't forget you're also interviewing Maude Fulton, actress. And being both an actress and an author, she's as full of surprises as a Jack Horner pie. For instance, to hear her slanging her way through the scenes of "The Brat," one would never dream that she is always thinking not only with originality, but with real seriousness, or that her basic knowledge and ideas of playwrighting were founded on studies of Euripides!

And her philosophy of life? It's all summed up in the sentence: "Life always seems to me a more or less fatalistic pattern—and at the same time, it's funny as the deuce!"

OLGA GRAY RETURNS.

Olga Gray, who was with the Triangle playing forces for a short time, during which she supported J. Barney Sherry in a most unusual picture entitled "Fanatics," is again at the Triangle studios, having been especially engaged for an important part in Director Christy Cabanne's new picture, the temporary title of which is "The Mayor of Filbert." Sam Landers will crank the camera.

JESSE LASKY SPEAKS.

ANNOUNCES PRODUCTION POLICY FOR COMING YEAR.

That hereafter, during the period of the war, the Lasky-Famous Players Company will eliminate from its productions all photodramatic offerings of a morbid, depressing or tragic character, as well as those concerned with religious problems, fairy tales, costume plays, allegories, etc., was the announcement of Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, issued a few days ago. The decision to take this stand, he declares, was arrived at after a thorough canvass of both trade and public. A part of Mr. Lasky's statement follows:

"The present world-wide conditions have, it is hardly necessary to say, resulted in a pronounced revulsion of feeling and a decided alteration of the public thought, which in turn have had a marked influence on the character of amusements provided for public entertainment and edification today. America is finally involved to virtually the fullest extent in the world war and each day brings closer to the people of this country the actual meaning of the struggle for democracy. At such a time it is obvious that the duty of those engaged in manufacturing motion pictures or producing stage plays is to inculcate the spirit of cheerfulness, striving invariably to lift the thoughts of the people above their troubles, or, by the tone of the entertainment offered, to relieve their minds, if only temporarily, from the tragedy now at our very doors. . . . Wars are as much the concern of the people at home as of the men in the trenches, and without the spirit of optimism, cheerfulness and confidence at home no battle is likely to be won.

"In addition, we have become convinced that photoplays dealing with religious subjects, fairy tales, allegories, costume plays and the like are neither desired nor accepted today by exhibitors or public. This conviction is the result of a thorough canvass of the situation. . . . Wholesome dramas, uplifting in character; clean comedies, comedy dramas and plays dealing with the more cheerful aspects of life will be exclusively chosen by us for production."

HART FINISHES HIS FIRST ARTCRAFT LAP.

With his return from the mountain locations where he has been filming the final scenes of "Riddle Gawne," William S. Hart has completed the first year of his contract with Artcraft, according to which he was to make eight pictures. More than this, Mr. Hart has two weeks to his credit, having finished his eight subjects a fortnight ahead of time.

During his two weeks of vacation, Mr. Hart isn't planning to go out and kill things, but instead will remain at the studio planning his next picture, since his contract with Artcraft has still some time to run.

Plans for the second year are practically completed, with several subjects already settled upon. His next picture, commencing the second year of his contract, will show the beloved Bill as a soldier—when it is expected his conquest over such hearts as are not already his will be complete.

HE WILL SCREEN A SINCERE RODEO.

"The Fighting Gringo" is the temporary title of Director Cliff Smith's latest Triangle western subject, in which the cowboy star, Roy Stewart, will appear. Smith is now reading over the continuity preparatory to beginning work on the exteriors, which will be shot at the Culver City studios.

This story was written by Roy Stewart himself, and the western star will have his first chance to play the hero in a picture play of his own creation. With the completion of the interior scenes of "The Fighting Gringo" work will be held up on the picture for the big summer round-up on the O'Neill ranch, near San Juan Capistrano, the largest cattle ranch in California. This started on June 2 and 40,000 head of cattle are being handled.

On the night of June 29 Director Smith and his company, numbering 33 all told, will take the train for the O'Neill ranch, where their horses will be awaiting them. Stewart and the Triangle cowboys will take part in the round-up and Director Smith expects to get some exceptional cattle stuff for his latest picture.

NO JIU-JITSU FOR THEIRS, THANK YOU.

During one of the rehearsals for a scene in "His Birthright," the first of the pictures made by Sessue Hayakawa and his company, the star has a battle with half a dozen rowdies who have been employed to "beat him up." Director William Worthington asked George Stout, manager of the Hayakawa studio, to "get the toughest looking specimens of humanity you can lay your hands on, as this is going to be a strong rough-house and I want these fellows to look like real scrappers."

Stout combed the district in Los Angeles frequented by the rougher element and obtained the men he thought would fill the bill. But they didn't, for Hayakawa put them all out of commission during the first rehearsal, using his jiu-jitsu knowledge with telling effect.

"Splendid!" said the director. "Now we'll take it."

But they didn't, because two of the combatants picked themselves up, and, rubbing their bruises, exclaimed: "No, you don't. We're through."

HERE IS A NEW ONE ON RATTLESNAKES.

William Farnum has added another pleasure to life. It is that of catching rattlesnakes. Mr. Farnum is known throughout the United States and especially in Catalina Island, as a champion fisherman, and now he believes that there is almost as much fun in catching rattlesnakes as in hooking swordfish.

Mr. Farnum was making one of the big scenes in Zane Grey's story, "Rainbow Trail," in the San Fernando Valley this week. He was riding down a hill toward the camera, listening intently to Frank Lloyd's directions, when suddenly before him he espied a large rattlesnake. Bill quickly drew his gun,

EVERYBODY SING!

ARTHUR FARWELL'S TWELVE COMMUNITY CONCERTS.

Everybody sing! The people of Los Angeles, without regard to whether or not they can read music at sight or have had previous vocal training or experience, without examination or voice trials, without dues, fees or tickets, are freely invited to take part in the "Twelfth Community Chorus Meetings and Community Concert," under the direction of Arthur Farwell, beginning Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Manual Arts High School auditorium, No. 4201 South Vermont avenue.

Mr. Farwell, who is president of the New York Community Chorus and director of the Music School Settlement of New York, comes to Los Angeles for the summer session of the State university, one of his chief activities here being to conduct this series of community chorus meetings. It was Mr. Farwell who, together with Harry Barnhart, in 1913, founded the "Community Chorus" movement, gave it its name and established its principles. While he understands how much Los Angeles has already done in this direction, he will, as one of its founders, explain the community chorus idea as he conceives it, and by the present practical demonstration will help the people of Los Angeles to find their own fullest and freest powers in song, and to realize the truest powers of American democracy through singing together.

To Mr. Farwell the community chorus is not just another kind of chorus organization, a little different from other kinds; it is in fact, at bottom, not primarily a musical movement, but a social and democratic movement of the people, welded together and led by song. The community chorus does not exist for purposes of exhibition, but to mobilize the spirit of democracy and to serve the community as a "singing unit." "Service" might be its watchword, declares Mr. Farwell, and the opportunities for such a singing unit to serve both the city and the nation at the present time are many.

No one need have the slightest hesitation in attending, without further notice, the first or any of the other song meetings of this series. Song should be free for all, says Mr. Farwell. Every community should have its time and place regularly, where any and all can go and join in song with their brother man. The meetings of the present series will be held at the Manual Arts High School, every Tuesday and Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Ellis Club Concert Held This Afternoon.

This afternoon, at Temple Auditorium, the Ellis Club, under the baton of J. B. Poulin, will present one of their always interesting, diversified programmes for the benefit of the American Red Cross. Every dollar taken in goes to this cause, the club paying all the incidental expenses to giving the concert, even to bringing Mme. Jeanne Jomelli, the well-known French soprano, here as soloist.

This club has been exceedingly active in various war activities, both as an organization and through its individual members. They have given talking machines, records, and small instruments to the convalescent camps, and in this concert expect to raise not less than $2000 for the fund.

Mme. Jomelli is popular here, having appeared as soloist with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra and on the Philharmonic Courses. She will sing the Tosca aria, three shorter numbers by American composers, and the "Ave Maria" of Gounod as an obligato with the club humming the accompaniment.

By special permission from Dr. Brougher, tickets will be on sale at Temple Auditorium today from 11 o'clock on.

Music Teachers Plan Big Things.

Great plans are under way for a rousing musical convention to be held in Los Angeles July 9, 10, 11 and 12. There will be something doing every minute of the time. One evening is to be given over to composers from San Francisco, Oakland and San Diego.

There will be one evening of chamber music, at which Harold Webster will present a quintette. Morton Mason and C. E. Pemberton will each supply quartettes for the occasion. Everyone has been wonderful about falling in line and offering whatever talent they possess. Arthur Alexander, who has just returned from New York will be heard at some time during the convention.

The last night of the convention will live long in the memory of all who see the remarkable pageant illustrating the history of music. After the pageant a huge community sing, led by Hugo Kirchofer, will be the closing feature. Mr. Kirchofer has been in the cantonments leading the boys. He is peculiarly fitted for leading community singing.

The convention will open with a big concert at Trinity. Such artists as Leopold Godowski, Gregor Cherniavski and Charles Wakefield Cadman will take part.

Under the very capable and efficient leadership of Mrs. Marshall Stookey Anderson the Matinee Musical Club of Los Angeles has made great progress during this last year. The membership has increased in a marked degree, a large majority of the new members being professionals, many of whom are nationally known as leaders in their lines.

The programmes have been exceptionally fine, having been rendered by both visiting artists of national repute and by equally talented members of the club, under the chairmanship of music, Mrs. Edith Lillian Clark, and of drama, Mrs. Rowena Blincoe. A chorus and double quartette is being formed under the capable leadership of Mrs. James Washington Pierce.

The treasurer's report shows the club is in splendid financial condition in spite of the many large disbursements. A pledge had been made to donate $250 to the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, which not only has been met, but the amount nearly doubled by a series of "Symphony Teas." During the second Liberty Loan drive a $100 bond was taken by the club and is being met by a number of "Liberty Teas," two of which have already been given at the homes of members.

The officers for the ensuing year are: President, Mrs. Marshall Stookey Anderson; first vice-president,

One Thing Needful.

OD FAITH IN PICTURES AS WELL AS IN LIFE.

toplay Producers Work Hard to Get Accuracy and Sincerity, Says Critic.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

t the Pacific Electric depot Wednesday evening, in one of those delightful long twilights from the East or invented the West by the daylight-saving which makes a liar of the the Lord loveth a cheerful group of sailors stood chat- as much ease as their sun- would permit. I am not well up on navies to know wheth- they were marines, naval re- or plain jackies. Of one thing they were very, very of them had the roving eye everything. His eyes lesser suns, and their rest- fall on many persons and and finally on me. Then I identified them. They belonged to Harland Tucker, until recently the leading man of the Morosco Stock Company and a most promising actor.

Everybody in the city was willing to claim exemption for Harland, that is, everybody except himself.

At the time I hated to see him go. It seemed to me that we needed his smile at home. We needed his youth, too, and his refined and excellent acting.

When I saw him Wednesday, with his new loose blue suit and little dinky white hat, and tried to guess whether the sunburns down neck and throat stopped short of the soles of his feet, I was glad somehow that he had gone. It struck me that it was better, after all, to be living life instead of playing at it.

He had been gone three weeks, and this was his first leave of absence from his camp, his ship, or wherever it is that new sailors are kept. I wanted him for the night, but so did eight other people, and some of the others had asked first.

Now, the point is that Tucker is seeing life, and is going to see more and more life for every day that the war lasts. He is coming back to us full grown and new-made. He is going to know what suffering means, what hardships the world contains, what heartaches are in the breasts of men and women, what oppression is and what the price of freedom. He is going to see fine sentiments crystallized into noble practice. He will hear men sing when the soul is free and he will see men die where death is better than life. He will bring this back to the stage. We will all feel it, and know it when we see him in a play again.

We must bear in mind, also, that this nation is sending forth thousands of Tucker's clean pattern, who are going to grapple with the big idea and return to us with the broader vision. These men will never again be deceived by selfishness, by anything sordid, by anything that has not a great end. Some of them will even outgrow the idea of being born and of dying. Many of them will believe in the federation of man, not merely as a thing to die for on the field of battle, but a thing to be lived in paths of peace.

Among these thousands will be hundreds who are playwrights for the screen and the stage, and who are actors in both great fields of dramatic expression. They are going to let daylight into those of us that stay at home, with less opportunity to learn the great lesson. They will refuse to let us sleep on ourselves. They will startle us with the word that is realization. They will force us to face tremendous truths that we have only half-way recognized in the past. Our drama is going to get a great shake-up, and this shake-up will affect the spirit and the growth of the nation. We shall never realize, perhaps, how true it is that this war is our war until it is over, until the cancer of Prussianism has been cut from the breast of Germany and has left the world clean and in health once more, until our boys have come back to us with the message written in flame upon their hearts.

Thursday afternoon, in front of Grauman's Theater, at Third and Broadway, I met Dell Reynolds, one of the young men of Los Angeles who has found big things to do in this war and whose fine mental energy and clearsightedness has been of great use at the national capital. Dell thrust a vigorous thumb into one of my easily-counted ribs and said: "Just here for tonight and back at Washington tomorrow. I am in the labor end of it now, and when I get back the things we are going to do to you scenario writers and picture directors will be a plenty. You have about twenty days left in which to decide between a shovel and a gun."

Of course, he was not terrifically and specifically in earnest. He admitted that many of us had turned out some excellent plays touching the one great subject of today, and that our news features had added to the sterling work of the newspapers in helping carry the message of food conservation and those of bond-buying and Thrift Stamp saving to all of the people, and that we have helped nobly in the great work of inflaming the public mind with patriotic zeal.

Reynolds is a man who sees all around a subject and then straight through it, and it was comfortable to have him admit that moving-picture people have an excuse for living. When our greeting was over I fell to thinking quite seriously of the intentions of most of the big men I knew in the moving picture business, and it did not take long to decide that Reynolds was more than right.

As the picture industry stands today, no other work in the world contains a higher percentage of efficiency or a larger number of workmen who are absolutely in earnest about giving the public more than its money's worth. That goes, from top to bottom. Every man connected with the moving picture business works as if each picture he touches, however remotely, was to be his masterpiece, works as if something vital and of vast importance depended on how his part is done.

Most of this hard work proceeds from the immense good faith of all producers and their employees to get hold of an idea that includes a wholesome theme and that is visualized by a story of beauty and strength. They follow this up with an attempt at a realism that will be surprising, yet that will remain natural and unstrained.

We all know that drama is a succession of surprises, but we are prone to forget that these surprises must adhere to unity. This great dual law is always to the foreground in motion-picture production.

If those who want to write for the screen would only realize that to have a happy idea is the merest beginning in photoplay building they would either do more hard work in the development of that idea, or they would resign their ambitions in that direction. Probably no one man was ever responsible for a really excellent picture, even before it reaches the hands of a director. A good scenario is the result of many conferences, innumerable suggestions and much midnight oil when it is electricity. Pictures are not just guessed at. Whoever touches them with effect, dare not guess—he must know.

PHOTOPLAY AUTHORSHIP IS ART, NOT DAY LABOR.

Improvement of Stories Essential to Pictures; War a Creative Force.

BY T. B. HANDY.

THE war, responsible for death and destruction "over there," has been the moralizing force of the photoplay "over here."

C. Gardner Sullivan, prize scribe of the Ince forces, said so. Q.E.D.: such must be the case. For Mr. Sullivan, today one of the screen's premier artistes d'escriver, has helped release the photoplay from its swaddling clothes and is now turning out some of the highest grade grist from the photodramatic mill.

"The effect of the war has been an improvement in pictures, but for how long no one knows," said he. "In these times no one knows very much about anything, least of all how the cinema will turn out. We do know, however, that there has been a definite, unbreakable ban put upon the sex stuff."

Sex stuff, Mr. Sullivan averred, is a back number. It is like anything else that one has an overdose of. The war has produced a great seriousness all over the world. People nowadays have troubles of their own, real troubles, troubles that need no affectation.

"We have to mix up the sentiments in our stories. Our public wants sweet pathos. But it wants comedy pre-eminently. We try to please our exacting public. In our stories there must be an intermingling of joy and sorrow, the former predominating. And there has to be action. We no longer want the unrestrained hair-tearing and bemoaning of the damaged baggage, a frizzly heroine who couldn't be ruined if she had to; neither do we want too much comedy. But we must have a happy ending, and but little preachment. The public is like you and I—it resents being preached at."

In reply to my question anent the beautifully-delicate decorated subtitles which have distinguished the Ince pictures, Mr. Sullivan remarked that their very uniqueness has made them a success. And then, too, he said, they save, in their explanation by sketch, what would probably take a considerable number of words.

Like all other advance novelties, the illustrated subtitle has met with opposition, but with its intrinsic delicacy and easy efficiency it is bound to survive the acid test of public opinion.

"Good pictures are those which walk along and tell their story with few subtitles," Mr. Sullivan told me. "The public does not care for lengthy explanations or verbose expressions. The new pictures are surprisingly simple, only one of many improvements. They aim to convey their theme by inference. You know, it is so much more subtle to prick your enemy with a pin point than to belabor him with a railroad tie.

"As motion pictures advance they will be more and more technically perfect. There will be less flaws in direction, artistry and action. The photography has about reached the pinnacle of perfection, but we writers can do a lot to improve our scripts. One reason for the improvement is that the general run of 'free lance' writers has been eliminated. We no longer have room for the woman, who, unable to longer earn her living at the washtub, is willing to take up photoplay authorship as a vocation. In fact, out of hundreds of scripts submitted in months, we will make probably one selection, and that only as a possibility.

"Amateurs have a chance in this business as everywhere else. Only they must have original ideas that will develop into good plays with plenty of action. And by action I do not mean that the heroine must be rescued from the villain every ten feet. The public is used to the tricks of the camera and its judgment is merciless. More and more they are coming to judge a play by its intrinsic worth and less by the star. The star system is not half so bad as it used to be, although there will be stars as long as there are pictures.

"Among the stories that are going out is the vampire tale. Parents are tiring of having the morals of their children corrupted. They don't care to patronize the film vampire any more. This sort of play has had a great deal to do with keeping up censorship, of which I approve, provided that it is not prudish. But when the censor taboos an entire Marguerite Clark film because Miss Clark, as a frightened fairychild, runs into the room of an old bachelor, I protest. We authors respect the public, but we get tired of writing wholely and solely for the 5-year-old child."

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

A shabbily dressed little woman entered the State Savings Bank at Oakland, and made her first payment on a $50 Liberty Bond. "My husband and I have only one pair of glasses between us and this money was to have bought another pair," she said as she tendered the deposit. "I don't read much more, for my husband feels that he needs the glasses during the day while he is at work, and at night he likes to look over the paper. He tells me the news, though, and I can see that we all have to get in and help if we want to win."

Richard S. Aldrich, son of the late United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, is in New York awaiting opportunity to sail for France, where he will engage in Red Cross work. He is a brother of William T. Aldrich of Boston, prominent among architects here, who also is taking up work in France, in which his professional knowledge will be used in reconstruction.

Kirlas is a real "candy kid" at Allentown, Pa. The Greek was stationed at Camp Meade, when a call came from Camp Anniston, Ala., for a man skilled in making candy, which was Kirlas's old trade. He was selected. "I do not want to go to Alabama to make candy," he protested. "I want to go to France to fight the Germans." He will go across soon.

An impromptu reception was given a detachment of 600 soldiers from Camp Merritt in the streets of Dumont, N. J., a few days ago when they lined up for a period of rest before entering trains for a southern cantonment. Several of the women of the village suggested making chocolate for the soldiers, but the officers of the unit declared they were to move at any moment and therefore probably would not have time to enjoy the hospitality. The women then called upon Mrs. Butler, a noted New York singer, who was working at the time in her war garden, dressed in gingham, and she volunteered to sing and sang patriotic songs to the accompaniment of her own piano, which was moved out on the front porch of her home. Mrs. Butler sang "May God Be With Our Boys," "Send Me Away With a Smile" and "My Old Kentucky Home." She then played "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia."

William Stevenson, a farm employee, of Waverly, Pa., has bought Liberty Bonds "until it hurts." His salary is only $50, yet he contracted to buy $250 worth of bonds, paying $25 a month. Of the remaining $25 he needs $22.50 for board, leaving him $2.50 for spending money.

A Denver flag, a relic of Revolutionary days, bearing thirteen stars, used as a conspicuous feature of the street decorations at the time Gen. U. S. Grant visited Denver forty years ago, brought $5625 into the Red Cross funds at San Francisco during the recent campaign. This valuable relic was the property of F. W. Angier, now a resident of San Jose, but formerly a resident of Denver for fifteen years. Angier presented it to the San Francisco Red Cross Chapter to be auctioned.

The flag was sold for $1000 at a campaign luncheon of Red Cross workers in San Francisco. One of the subscription teams bought it and, after placing the money in the Red Cross fund, presented it to John A. Britton, chairman of the campaign.

The following day Britton announced that the thirteen stars would be auctioned off, and that natives of the thirteen original States in San Francisco would be given the privilege of contributing money in the name of the stars representing their respective States. The sale of the stars brought $3000. Then the staff was auctioned, in the name of California, and brought $1625, making the total sum realized $5625.—[Denver Post.

The Baltic provinces, ceded by the Bolsheviki to Germany, have four ports, Riga, Reval, Libau and Windau, the first named leading all Russian ports in exports.

All printers among the Russian prisoners in Germany are being kept busy on propaganda books in Russian, to popularize the Kaiser and everything German.

A Pittsfield (Mass.) young man started to move to another town. When he looked around for a hat to wear up street he found that every one he owned had been packed and shipped to his new home.

It is estimated that Australia has cows enough to give each man, woman and child in the island continents three each, while Argentina can do even better. There are five cattle to each inhabitant in the big South American republic.

The straight line is an abomination to the Chinese. They endeavor to avoid it in their streets and buildings, and have banished it completely where country field paths are concerned.

The German Emperor is no blood relative of the deposed Czar of Russia, but he is a cousin of the Czarina as he is also of King George of England, the three being grandchildren of the late Queen Victoria of England.

Algeria has 7,500,000 acres of forests, of which cork trees make up 1,112,000 acres.

The first steamboat on Lake Erie, the Walk in the Water, was launched at Black Rock, a short distance below Buffalo, just 100 years ago. She made her maiden voyage from Buffalo to Detroit in the following August.

The Citizens of Albany, N. Y., experienced a thrill on February 28, 1795, when 500 emigrants' sleighs passed through that city on their way to the distant and little known Genesee country of Western New York. The Genesee Valley was then considered the "Far West."

A Pittsfield (Mass.) man dug out of his garden all the flowers that had a "Kaiser" handle to their name or anything that smacked of the terrible Teuton.

About 90 per cent. of Norway's dentists are graduates of American dental colleges or have taken post-graduate courses in the United States.

There are now 5063 prisoners of war in England working in agriculture and 1400 more are to be employed.

The Island of Tasmania lays claim to having the world's richest tin mine.

A wireless station has been recently erected at Cape Juby, on the coast of Africa.

For many purposes cast iron is preferable to steel because it is comparatively rustproof.

A notice posted along the route of a certain southern railroad states that during twelve months 2792 head of cattle, horses and sheep were killed by the trains. This is the equivalent of 1,000,000 pounds of food, and would be sufficient to feed 70,000 soldier for thirty days.

Unknown persons broke into the conservatory of music at Morningside college, Sioux City, Iowa, one night recently, took nearly 100 German song books that were being used by members of the German Methodist Episcopal Church, which held its meetings there, carried them to the athletic field and burned them. German Bibles were carried out, but not burned.

Hitherto British Columbia has been a potato-exporting province, and as a matter of fact did ship a large amount of potatoes last year from the United States, Austria and the Orient is explained by the deeds of the evaporating plants. There are seven of these large plants at work in the province preparing potatoes and other vegetables for the needs of the Allied armies.

The Bureau of Fisheries at Washington recommends the introduction of whale meat as an article of food. The meat is devoid of all fishy taste. It bears some resemblance to beef and the bureau thinks it would not be surprising if within a short time the meat of whales in both fresh and preserved form will be extensively utilized. Whales are mammals, like cattle and sheep; they suckle their young and their flesh is meat and not fish.

While German music is one of the great art possessions of humanity it is a remarkable fact that not one of the great German composers was a Prussian. Bach was a Thuringian, Handel a Saxon, Gluck and Mozart Bavarians, Haydn an Austrian citizen and probably a Croat, Weber and Schubert Austrians and Schumann and Wagner Saxons. Richard Strauss was a Bavarian, Mendelssohn a Jew and Brahms a native of Hamburg. Beethoven was born in Bonn and was of Flemish descent.

Darius the First Postmaster.

Far from being a latter day institution, the postal service in some form or other dates back to distant past. We are told by historians that the Persians under Cyrus had mail service in the sixth century before Christ. At that time mail was handled by couriers who were provided with the finest and best groomed horses in the empire for just that purpose, so important was a rapid and positive means of communication considered by the ruling body.

Roads were marked with posts, and relay stations were established at suitable intervals, perhaps every twenty-five miles. Obviously, the relay arrangement was resorted to, so that a rider dashed between one station and the next, where a second rider took over and carried the mail to still another station, and so on.

For the most part, the mail matter comprised dispatches, although some merchandise was carried, which might be compared with our present parcel post. In order that no pieces of mail matter might be lost a most elaborate recording system was employed.

Darius, the last king of the Persians, was the first postmaster of record. Before ascending the throne he was in charge of the elaborate and extensive postal system that connected all portions of the extensive Persian empire with the government seat.—[Scientific American.

STEINWAY
One of the contributory reasons why the Steinway Piano is recognized as may be found in the fact that since its inception it has been made under the supervision of members of the Steinway family, and embodied in it are certain improvements found in no other instrument.

The World's Standard

It is not merely the combination of wood, felts and metals, but it is the knowing how to combine them in order to produce the highest musical results which has made the Steinway the piano by which all others are measured.

The Steinway is a work of creative art which stands alone—unqualifiedly the best.

soon as the top of the monkey was broken and Fred hit the the whole sixty monkeys be- to jabber and to leap frantically about. One of them went through the hole in the top of the cage, and before anyone could catch him had climbed a telephone pole and was doing some rapid wire-walking. Everybody went after him, including Fred Stone, Director Donald Crisp and the Lasky fire department. Mr. Monkey only moved farther along the wires and got an electric shock. Meanwhile the other fifty-nine monkeys had broken loose and were overrunning the community. Prim and elderly ladies walking along Hollywood boulevard displayed unheard-of agility when monkeys dodged across the sidewalks in front of them; Mrs. Theodore Roberts, who lives across the street from the studio, looked up from her knitting to see a monkey sitting in the open window beside her, and her pet Airedale, King, leaped to give battle; another monk ran into the harem scene in Douglas Fairbanks's latest picture and sent the scantily clad ladies of the harem scampering to cover; and Wally Reid declares he chased monkeys all the afternoon. Several of the monkeys were finally recovered, but a number were still at large at last accounts.

HE'S NOW CHASING THE GIDDY LITTLE SUB.

Chasing submarines "somewhere in the Atlantic" is the present occupation of Clarke Irvine, former editor of the Screamer, a publication devoted to film folk and their doings, and who joined the United States Navy about a year ago, according to word received a few days ago by a friend in this city.

"We are really at war now," writes Mr. Irvine. "Since the subs have come to our shores we are on the lookout every minute for the Fritzies. We have to go at night with darkened ship, which means many a bump around decks in the dark, for there are no lights at all except below the water line, and there is no atmosphere there worth breathing, so all stay above. No smoking and no loud talking, because the Boche is liable to be running above water near, and he can hear us and so direct a tube of TNT to us, and then we would do a glorious fizz bang and then go down where Davy Jones keeps his drink. You people back home do not for a minute realize what this means. War is here and WE know it. When men have to work overtime, any time, all the time, keeping guns trained on the horizon looking for subs day and night, it is no fun. A periscope is hard to find and we have to look carefully for it. Such is life on the bounding billows.

"Tell Charlie Chaplin a lot of us fellows saw his first million picture, and it handed us a million laughs."

NELL SHIPMAN IS A REGULAR HEROINE.

Nell Shipman, Vitagraph leading woman, proved herself a heroine, a few days ago, when she rescued Alfred Whitman, Vitagraph player, from drowning, when a canoe in which Whitman was seated tipped over and spilled the actor into the water.

When he struck the water Al lost his bearings and proceeded to swim against the rapids. The director on the shore yelled to him, and he swam all the harder, thinking the director wanted the action kept up. The actor swallowed much water and was in a bad way until Nell Shipman, who had been appearing in the scene with him, courageously followed him up, and he put his hand on her shoulder, keeping himself afloat until both were swept onto a large rock where they rested until taken ashore.

LET NOT YOUR HEART INTERFERE WITH ART.

Sympathy must never be allowed to interfere with one's art, says Lila Lee, the new Lasky star, out of the fullness of her first day's experience before the camera, in "The Cruise of the Make-believes," under the tuition of George Melford.

Miss Lee was appearing with Raymond Hatton in a scene, the business calling for Hatton, playing an elderly gentleman of leisure, to sit down at a table, drink some coffee and have a coughing fit, while Lila Lee was to walk out of the picture just before he finished the business. But so convincing was Mr. Hatton's cough that the small star forgot to walk out. Instead she stopped, looked up at Mr. Melford, and said sympathetically and in a loud stage whisper, "I'm afraid he's really choking!"

Marcin Play for Screen.

A well-known play which is to be transferred to the screen is "Cheating Cheaters," Max Marcin's underworld comedy drama. Clara Kimball Young is to produce it for the Select Pictures programme.

Miss Young, who will go East this week, via Canada, will stop over for a few days' rest at Lake Louise.

Blanche Sweet Goes East.

Blanche Sweet has just signed a long term contract with Select Pictures, and will go to New York on July 1, to film her next picture, "The Unpardonable Sin," from Rupert Hughes's story.

May Irwin a Film.

And now it's May Irwin who is taking a flyer into the flickering films. The comedienne is working in the picture for Universal, called "Thoroughbreds," showing Miss Irwin as an up-to-date business woman, who, though ignorant of life, wins success as a farmer through perseverance and sound business sense. The film is to be used as propaganda designed to aid the government in spreading its back-to-the-farm philosophy to help win the war.

The picture is being made at Southington, Ct., on a stock farm owned by the American Jersey Cattle Company.

Charlie's Back-fire.

The following, overheard at the Charlie Chaplin studios:

Charlie, to Brer Sid, Did you go shooting last Wednesday?

Syd: No.

Charlie: You don't know what you missed.

Corn Goes to New York.

Jacob H. Corn has returned to New York after straightening out the tangled affairs of Paralta Plays, Inc., Mr. Corn having acted as personal attorney for Messrs. Herman Katz and John E. de Wolf, owners of Paralta Plays.

Russell Recuperates.

William Russell has been finishing work on the third of the William Russell productions. The recent injury to Mr. Russell's knee prevented his working for two weeks. He still finds a cane necessary. He has just completed a strenuous week in Los Angeles doing "train stuff" on special cars secured through Charles Pike of the Salt Lake. "Hobbs in a Hurry" is the name of the feature that Mr. Russell has just completed.

Cinderella Stuff.

Stopping stenoging to appear on the screen is what Marion Niles has done. Miss Niles is the stenographer whose beauty attracted the attention of President Harry E. Aitken when he saw her in the Triangle offices one day, and commanded the producing forces to give her a chance. She has changed her name to Marion Marvin, and is cast for a small part in Director Christy Cabanne's new Triangle super-production, "The Mayor of Filbert."

Stick to the Rube Parts.

Charles Ray received a bulky express package at the Thomas H. Ince studios the other day. Opening it he found a pair of overalls, a farmer's straw hat, heavy-soled black boots, a small spade and a horseshoe. Attached to the latter were these few words: "Stick to the rube parts, Charlie, and I will shoot my last dime laughing and crying with you. Your 'Back to the Farm' movement in pictures has movie cafe and club life looking colorless and artificial." [Signed] "A Pittsburgh Admirer."

For the benefit of the above Ray fan and others who prefer the young star in rural character, let it be said Ray is now being filmed in "String Beans," a five-reel Paramount drama conceived and written in the atmosphere of a harvest moon, new-mown hay and hard cider.

Played in Films They Did.

Two young society women of Chico, Misses Marian Sprbul and Dora Smith, were visiting Fatty Arbuckle's studio in Long Beach, the other day, when they were mistaken for "extras" about to work in the scene.

"Get on the set!" shouted Fatty to the girls, who laughed at the comedian's mistake, but complied nevertheless. Next day the two girls came to the studio wearing evening gowns that caused even the leading woman to gasp with envy. Needless to say the young women were thrilled at their debut in pictures—and gave the money they earned to the Red Cross.

Mary Looks for Home.

Mary Pickford, Artcraft star, is looking about for a new dwelling, the lease on her present Western avenue home having expired. She has about decided on a beautiful house in the Wilshire district.

Wally's New One.

Wallace Reid, who has just finished making "The Source," is producing his next picture at the Morosco under direction of Walter Edwards. The story, still unnamed, was taken from a famous New York stage success. Ann Little is Mr. Reid's leading woman in the new picture, as she was also in "The Source."

Film "Light of Asia."

Negotiations are under way between Krotona Institute and a leading film company for the filming of "The Light of Asia" pageant, which will run three weeks at the grounds of the Krotona Institute, in Hollywood, with the opening date fixed as June 29. The scenic settings of the pageant, on the top of a Hollywood mountain, together with the importance of some of the participants, including Walter Hampden and Ruth St. Denis, make the filming of the scenes desirable. It is not settled as yet whether the pictures will be used as a part of a film weekly or as a feature in themselves.

Edwards on Vacation.

Director-General J. Gordon Edwards of the Fox company, having finished directing "The Message of the Lilies," Theda Bara's latest picture, has gone on a vacation to Big Bear Valley, where he will spend his days in fishing for mountain trout. Mrs. Edwards accompanied her husband on the trip.

She will Swim.

Going swimming is what Jewel Carmen, Fox star, intends doing during her two days' vacation, interspersed between Gouverneur Morris's story, "You Can't Get Away With It," and a new picture which she will commence this week.

She's a Nice Girl Now.

Louise Glaum has completed her third Paralta production. These pictures mark a new departure in the type of characterizations which Miss Glaum, who climbed to fame in the screen world as "The Peacock Vampire," has portrayed, the character being of the "noble" type. The story, which is entitled "Wedlock," is by Denison Clift, who also wrote the screen version. Wallace Worsley directed.

C. Gardner Sullivan,

Star scribe of the Thomas H. Ince forces.

MUSIC AND ITS DEVOTEES.

Mrs. Edith Lillian Clark; second vice-president, Edward Lebegott; recording secretary, Mrs. Henry Clay King; corresponding secretary, James Washington Pierce; treasurer, Mrs. P. Oscar Gardner; directors, Mrs. Clayton J. Hinman, Mrs. Henry Henderson, Miss Ella P. True.

Concert by Pupils.

An interesting concert by pupils of different grades will be given at the De Chauvenet School of Music, at the school auditorium, Fraternal Brotherhood Building, No. 845 South Figueroa street, next Saturday, June 29, at 3 p.m. Those taking part are: Lucille Logan, Francis Ransom, Peter Cathalinat, Lucille Masson, Augusta Logan, Esther de la Vega, Rachel Moya, Christina Knebel and Bessie Moritz, who will be heard in piano, vocal numbers and on string instruments. The concert will be free to the public.

Pupils' Recital.

Two of the pupils of Dwight C. Rice—Bernice Rogers and Virginia Tallenday—will give a piano recital at Mr. Rice's studio, No. 124 West Avenue 52, next Thursday evening.

Informal Musicale.

One Tuesday evening a piano recital was given by pupils of Mrs. Alice P. Cannon, at her home, No. 119 North Hobart boulevard. The assistants were Mrs. Gertrude Held, soprano, and Frank Klasses, violinist.

Park Spooning Permitted.

If the cops in your town won't let you spoon in the parks, come over to Cleveland, says a dispatch from that Ohio city. It is all fixed there and Cupid has the key to all park gates.

Cupid (that is, Chief of Police Smith,) says police will not bother lovers in Cleveland parks if they do not annoy other park visitors. Rowdies and others will not be allowed to "spot" them with flashlights or embarrass them in any other way, Smith orders, under pain of arrest. But the Chief also advises the loving ones to stick to the park benches for their spooning instead of searching out the real dark spots, as the benches are secluded enough for loving and the chance of disturbance is less in the open than in the secluded spots, the Chief opines.

SCREEN.

Films.

ALHAMBRA TO TALLY'S.

THE ATTRACTIVE OFFERINGS IN MOTION PICTURES.

Alhambra.

The great screen spectacle, "The Warrior," with the wonderful Maciste, has garnered another record. The picture already has been acclaimed as the most remarkable "punch" production ever made, with a record number of genuine "hair-raising" thrills throughout the course of its seven absorbingly interesting reels. Manager Bosley, who will present "The Warrior" at the Alhambra for a week, beginning today, feels elated at the fact that the feature offering has passed the careful scrutiny of the national board of review without the necessity of a single elimination.

Clune's Auditorium.

W. H. Clune, the pioneer moving-picture exhibitor of Los Angeles, has under consideration a plan to send a print of "The Eyes of the World" to France that the soldier boys may have a chance to see the story on the screen. The picture will hold over for another week at the Auditorium, beginning tomorrow afternoon, as the attendance has been so big during the past week as to warrant one more week.

Clune's Broadway.

Commencing Sunday afternoon, the talented young romantic star, Wallace Reid, will be the feature attraction at Clune's Broadway, where he will be presented in his latest photo production, "The House of Silence." The photoplay has been adapted to screen form from the well-known novel, "Marcel Levignet," and is said to fit this versatile young actor's every talent, which, by the way, are many, for it is doubtful if any other screen star has been blessed with the ability to appear in such widely-different roles, and do them as creditably as Mr. Reid's recent appearances attest.

Garrick.

Grazing on the gay white range is not so worse, Buckaroo Fairbanks discovers in "Manhattan Madness," which shows at the Garrick this Sunday. He finds that a cowboy in New York City is livelier than a dog in a flea circus, and that the reputed slowness of the big town on the Hudson, as treated in the campfire yarns on the ranch, is the result of the pipe dreams of a cowpuncher Homer. In "Manhattan Madness," with Douglas Fairbanks, appear Jewel Carmen and Dorothy Gish.

Grauman's.

Marguerite Clark, America's most charming and lovable screen star, will appear at Grauman's tomorrow in a celluloid version of "Prunella," a Paramount photoplay. "Prunella" was played on the stage by Marguerite Clark a few years ago, and was one of her most successful vehicles. It held New York enthralled during the season it played on Broadway. The screen version has been taken bodily from the play and many features of the reproduction on the stage.

Palace.

The romance of a cattle queen and a soldier of fortune on the Mexican border in the days just preceding the Vera Cruz incident is depicted in Rex Beach's story, "Heart of the Sunset," which shows at the Palace starting this Sunday. The raids and depredations of a Mexican rebel general on the border ranchers, the killing of the cattle king and the marriage of his wife to the soldier of fortune, and the anger of the bandit general and his revenge all make "Heart of the Sunset" the smashing classic of the Southwest that it is.

Quinn's Rialto.

Increase in attendance at every performance last week has necessitated a second big week at Quinn's Rialto of the inspiring patriotic drama, "My Own United States." Arnold Daley, famous American actor, and Anna Lehr, are seen in the important roles, and are supported by a cast that has been a sensation along Broadway during the week. "My Own United States" is a photodrama that should be seen by every American—man, woman, and child—and it has found the undivided approval of the local press. The picture is historically correct and inspiring.

Riviera.

The lure of the city for the small-town girl is graphically pictured in "Station Content," starring Gloria Swanson, which comes to the Riviera this Sunday. Gloria Swanson will be remembered by Riviera patrons for her superb characterization with William Desmond in "Society for Sale," and with J. Barney Sherry in "Her Decision." This time Miss Swanson is seen as a Triangle star in her own right, and in a vehicle that gives her plenty of opportunities for emotional acting. The production is made from a well-known story.

Superba.

Monroe Salisbury, star of "The Red, Red Heart," "The Guilt of Silence," and other distinctly successful photodramas, is in town at the Superba in his latest Bluebird masterpiece, "The Eagle." The screen favorite appears as John Gregory, a bandit who robs to avenge the death of his mother, whose scanty savings were taken from her by fraudulent mining stock operators. The scenario of "The Eagle" was written by Henry Christeen Warnack.

Symphony.

When the Earl of Gilleigh decides to masquerade as a burglar, and a burglar makes up his mind to trade places with the Earl, in "Lend Me Your Name," at the Symphony this Sunday, little do either reck just how the "innocent enjoyment" will turn out. Harold Lockwood has his hands full all the time handling his two roles, and his arms full part of the time—that is, full of femininity.

Tally's Broadway.

After a postponement of two weeks because of the extended engagement of Ambassador Gerard's "My Four Years in Germany," which closes at Tally's Broadway Sunday night, "The Lesson," Constance Talmadge's newest feature will positively be shown for one week, starting Monday. "The Lesson," which is adapted from a story by Virginia Terhune Van de Water, one of America's best known women writers, is a worthy vehicle for the charming young star.

De Luxe.

Today and tomorrow, Douglas Fairbanks, the smiling and athletic screen favorite in "Mr. Fix-It." Tuesday and Wednesday, Jack Pickford in "His Majesty Bunker Bean," and a special added attraction, "Canada's Fighting Forces," showing the much talked-of war maps. Thursday and Friday, Bessie Barriscale in Grace Miller White's romantic story, "Rose O' Paradise." Saturday, William Russell in "Hearts or Diamonds."

WOMEN.

Queen Wilhelmina of Holland is a practical dairymaid. She can milk a cow, churn butter and make excellent bread.

A Lenox Dale (Mass.) woman, whose husband was one of the first of the reservists to return to fight for his country and who was killed, has bought a Liberty Bond in each of the three issues, although she has a child to support and works in a mill.

The Jewell County Republican tells how dogs belonging to J. E. Shrove, near Burr Oak, ran a coyote on to his inclosed porch. Hearing the noise Mrs. Shrove got out of bed, ran out with a gun and shot the coyote. The Republican adds: "By the time her husband got home for breakfast, she had the hide off. —[Kansas City Star.

Insurance experts contend that a woman who is in good health at the age of 45 is likely to outlive a man of the same age, because she is apt to be more temperate and is less liable to accident.

More than 2000 women and girls were on parade recently in the opening of the Red Cross drive in Madison county, Indiana. Only four men were in the parade. Two were bandmasters, one drove a float and another rode in an ambulance.

The Rev. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, the first woman preacher in America and a pioneer of the equal suffrage movement, recently celebrated her ninety-third birthday at her home in Elizabeth, N. J. She was ordained more than fifty years ago.

Mrs. Rebecca Mayo, age 90, still conducts a shoe store in Provincetown, Mass. She has had charge of the business since her husband died, in 1875.

Women may serve in the naval reserve as telephone switchboard operators, nurses and yeomen or clerical workers.

Eleven million women and girls are at work in our industries.

Women teachers in the Pittsburgh public schools are to receive a $100 war bonus.

Miss Elizabeth Carpenter Blanding, age 85, of Attleboro, Mass., has been teaching for sixty-nine consecutive years and she is still continuing this work. All these years she has taught only in Attleboro.

The number of traveling saleswomen in the United States is estimated to have increased at least 25 per cent. since the war began.

Mrs. McC. Carr, a poetess, who translates French and Italian, is operating a turret lathe in an airplane factory at Swissvale, Pa. When patriotic American women registered for war service, Mrs. Carr responded. Soon after a job in the factory was offered her and she accepted. And she is happy. In her own words: "It's very nice. The shop is big and clean and smelly—and immeasurably better than the stuffiness of a store."

Babies are the most popular thing in Bartlesville, Okla., according to Mrs. C. L. Kellam, matron of the Provident Association. Recently she had a baby under her charge to adopt. She announced it in the local paper. The next day five women were on hand at her office at 8 o'clock. They passed the entire morning at her office, arguing as to which one should get the child. During the day more than 100 telephone calls were made of Mrs. Kellam, wanting particulars about the baby.

A new law in New York prohibits the employment of women under 21 as telegraph messengers.

The Detroit postoffice now has thirty women mail carriers in service.

Oregon has passed a law prohibiting women from acting as messengers.

IN STORES AND HOMES.

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

By Olive Gray.

Up-to-datest:

To gather the skirt of diaphanous material into a shaped band extending about half 'way round at the front and allow the fullness to flare at the back.

To pipe, or cord the summer skirt, instead of hemming it.

To make your underthings—when you do your own sewing—from angel silk in one of the new adorable shades. Angel silk works up so easily and washes and wears so well.

The service locket shaped like a Liberty Bell. Handsome and made of gold, this locket may contain two pictures—hers and his.

The summer wrap of taffeta—black for example with a broad band of white inset and over-filmed with chiffon plisse, or with lace in either black or a creamy tint. Made in cape-shape this wrap may be all-enveloping and is extremely smart as well as useful.

Now is the Time to Buy:

The suit, frock or gown at fractional cost of former prices. There are sales during the coming week, where all things of the kind are possible.

Summer silks, at that store out Seventh street which has been making a new record in silk selling and will still further add to its silken laurels.

Old hickory for porch use, at less than hickory prices—yes, less than mere stickery prices.

Fine wool suitings at before war cost and before war quality. The man who has gained a pre-eminent reputation for silk buying has also been buying the suitings for that so reliable house.

Keep cooleries—such as lawn umbrellas, tents for the beach and other helps toward shady comfort at home or out-away-from. A sale of those summery comforts will be an event of the week.

Flowery Go-Aways.

"I just envy Adelaide, getting married" exclaimed Angela, the while her eyes seemed glued to a display of trunks, bags and suit cases in a big store. "You look as though you were coveting takeage and sendage, instead of envying Adelaide," said I, following her gaze. "Well, it's the same thing. Think of possessing oneself of such travelphanalia—all flowery lined and hat-boxed! It is the only thing that would tempt me from girl-bachelor blessedness," and she sighed as I dragged her away.

The Collar de Medici.

After several half-hearted attempts to stem the tide of loose and comfortable neckwear modes, the Medici collar was thought to have subsided; but lo! it is predicted for fall and winter wear in all its wired entirety. The fact of its historic interest and its romantic suggestions are about the only features in its favor. Here's hoping that the upbristling revival in neck wearingness be confined to but the most stately sort of dress!

A Skirted Tent.

When is a tent not content with being a tent? When it wishes to become an umbrella as well. When it is one of those offered at that store not Broadway and not Seventh, but both. The top of the tent is an umbrella and the walls are a nice full skirt, fastened to the umbrella as though it were a yoke. So when buying it you are making your money do true Hoover duty, even at regulation price—and when the sale is at an "at was" cost—just begin to calculate!

"Bleu Diable Bleu."

Named for the "Blue Devils," as they were called, those brave French soldiers who so well defended the Alsace border that they were given the name, is that new shade in fabrics, matching their uniforms in tint. It is a lovely color—and becoming to both fair and brune. A window of the color in silks, at that Angelic silk store, kept by a man truly French, but even more truly American, attracts much attention. This shop, by the way, has been always first to display the new coloring in silks. It was too first to show the Alice blue, first to exhibit Nelrose. And now, behold it over the top with "bleu diable bleu."

Angelic Under Friffs.

Jeanne considered it a real "find" when she discovered that angelic silk for use in fashioning under things. The colors are so beautiful and the material is as soft as down and cool as are the more expensive silks. When made into camisoles, camivlopes, or knickties, and finished simply with hems, stitched in fancy running stitch, and run-ribbons, such underthings are lovely.

Blanket Binding.

Summer Hooving includes the freshening of blankets for the summer beds, for there's no use in pretending that there are many blanketless nights in Southern California. The new binding for blankets is declared washable and far more durable than ribbon. It comes in rolls just right for the ordinary blanket, or may be purchased by the yard. Pink and blue seem to be the only colors available.

Fooling the Butterfly.

These are the days of the butterfly—the days of green corn and other succulents which call for the creamery aid. It is, perhaps, because of this and the need for saveage that a big Broadway store offers, during the coming week, a special price on those butter blenders which enable the good housekeeper to camouflage two pounds of butter from one, by the aid of a pint of milk and a bit of churning. "Backward, churn backward! oh, butter in flight!" Or quite as unpoetical and Mandates of La Mode.

Persian blue ribbon is a dainty note of contrast with pale pink.

White coats of jersey or broadcloth are everywhere conspicuous.

Separate coats for fall are of green and blue plaid Scotch cheviot.

So many dainty summer frocks are trimmed with bands of quilling.

Linen and pique are combined with calico for small girls' dresses.

Tiny pleatings or goffered ruffles are used on the finer simpler blouses.

A blue serge suit should be accompanied by a waistcoat of ivory tone.

Pastel shades in cotton dresses are always correct for children under 6.

Gingham has a very prominent place in summer wardrobes this season.

Pipings of bright color make otherwise plain frocks very interesting.

A new corset for thin women has a short front steel ending at the waist line.

One of the latest fur collars is of nutria with tassels at its square corners.

The sole trimming of some very smart dresses is a scarf of contrasting color.

Smart serge frocks are already being made for little girls' school wear.

Stone marten dyed to look like skunk is one of the new furs for the summer.

Calico dresses are a war-time fad.

Millinery still clings to sailor lines.

Silvertone velour is again in evidence.

Bathing suits are adorned with sashes.

Sweaters are often of the blouse variety.

Tricotine dresses are being made for fall.

Percale and pique make a good combination.

KATHLEEN CLIFFORD IN ORPHEUM CIRCUIT.

Kathleen Clifford, the diminutive and clever, promises to be one of the most interesting additions to the Orpheum ranks in recent times. For one so small and not yet Miss Clifford has a remarkable career as a public favorite to her credit. And she confidently looks to the near future to add to it materially.

Coming from a wealthy family Miss Clifford had the advantage of European travel as a child. The most of her education was looked after by a governess. She attended a private school in Dresden and was "finished" at Brighton, England. As a result, her accomplishments are many.

As a 15-year-old girl it was Kathleen Clifford's good fortune to attend a dinner where Charles Frohman, the foremost American producer, was also present. She told him she would like to go on the stage.

"What can you do," asked Mr. Frohman.

"Nothing," responded Miss Clifford nonchalantly.

"Sing?"

"No!"

"Dance?"

"No!"

"Act?"

"No!"

"Well, then," remarked Mr. Frohman, "you surely ought to try the stage. You have nothing to unlearn."

Being pretty, petite, and piquant, Miss Clifford was engaged then and there to make her first appearance in "Top O' the World," a big Frohman musical production then in preparation. When the "part" was sent to her Miss Clifford thought it a catalogue and destroyed it. Another was supplied and she learned the lines, but could never speak them in answer to "cues." So it was decided to let her romp through the show at her own sweet will, and when the opening came here was the biggest name at the top of the list.

And ever since then Miss Cliffords' career has been one triumph after another. She was starred in Little Dorrit with Digby Bell when the newspapers of New York hailed her as an actress with a future. Then she went into vaudeville. In this connection she boldly put on trousers and was hailed as another Vesta Tilley, becoming the New York and London rage. Miss Clifford writes all her own material, composes her own songs, and the words as well. She designs her own costumes and attends to every little detail. It is generally admitted that she wears the smartest men's clothes on the stage.

WHY THE POPULARITY OF WALLACE REID

Via the vehicle of the moving picture screen, we have had of late several demonstrations of how the great majority of us admire youth and its athletic manhood. One of the chief demonstrators of this is none other than popular and handsome young Wallace Reid.

Many people ask the question, "Why is Reid so popular and why do people stand in line outside the theater and await the opportunity of admission. What does Wallace Reid do that is so different from any other male star of the silent drama?"

We will all admit that Wallace's actions on the screen work as a tonic for us, even though we be unconscious of this element or the secret of the make-up of his pictures. Whatsoever it is, we go and continue to go, and come away with a smile refreshed and with a much more "pep" than we had before entering.

The chief reason for this is because we have seen a young man full of life, exercising every ounce of his muscular force, and that many, in fact a great portion of us are unable to do some of the things Wallace Reid does, we take a certain pleasure in seeing him do these acts, and come away with almost a feeling that we have also gone through the episodes ourselves.

Very few of us have such an extraordinary supply of brains to make up for poor bodies. The fact is that many of us have little to boast about either mentally or physically. But if we are not good animals, we ought to feel ashamed to look our fellow men in the eye until we have undergone such a course of training as to make ourselves strong, healthy, generally efficient.

Neither really ladylike and refined, I see they have announced intention of providing Colonial in costume on special occasions, which is a delightful condescension. But I don't think that bereaved nation should demand such a sacrifice on their part how their sensibilities shudder at such public Beach Gardens Red Cross was really brilliant. There shabby about things when Mrs. Sherman Hoyt attends to them. Mme. Schumann-Heink was in most attractive bong and mood, and it was certainly a nice dramatic episode when her son in uniform, mounted the platform and kissed her in full view of the whole assembly. It was quite amusing when she was surrounded by the children and two small colored boys had forgotten to remove their caps. Madame was making a gay speech when her eye caught those caps, so she grabbed one in each hand and went right on talking, while the two small coons looked utterly bewildered.

What do you think of the street dancing idea for the Red Cross? Quite a la the old Nice carnivals, and the New Orleans Mardi Gras. Covina tried one once, you know, but the city fathers decided they were altogether too frivolous. We drove past the Figueroa street one the other night and they all looked happily innocent.

So the fourth McCall sister is married now, too—only two of the famous sextette left. "And they won't have to wait very long, they say." It must be a very luxurious experience for the papa of six charming daughters to have four marriages in the family in less than a year. But it doesn't seem to affect his golf at all.

Ethel tells of a screaming experience she had last week. She had gone to lunch in town alone and was seated at a small table. The place being crowded, a presentable man soon took the seat opposite her. She summed him up for a tourist, since he was carrying an umbrella on one of our deceitful cloudy mornings. A very good umbrella, mark you. He soon opened conversation, to which she responded affably. However, as time went on, she felt it desirable not to leave the place at the same time as he; she had embarrassing visions of him wanting to pay her check. So she ordered something else and he finally left, alone. Presently she observed that he had left that very good umbrella behind, so she decided to hand it in at the desk when she paid her check. That check, by the way, came to 60 cents, and she put down even money. "Oh, but," remarked the cashier, "the gentleman said you would pay for his lunch, too!" Ethel's disconcerted face can be imagined. But she hurriedly recalled that, as the table was near the desk, the girl had probably seen them in deep conversation, so she wasn't going to admit that he was a stranger. She paid up like a lady. Then bethought her of the umbrella, pursed her lips firmly—and retained it. But as she left the store, behold the gentle stranger returning for his umbrella. With the utmost coolness he demanded it of her. But this was more than Ethel could swallow. "I just paid 70 cents for your lunch," she remarked acidly. "Give me the 70 cents and you can have the umbrella."

The brute smiled cynically, said he had nothing to say about that, but intended having his umbrella anyway. He grabbed it, Ethel held on. He tugged. Ethel clung. A crowd began to gather. The gentleman amiably explained that the lady had annexed his umbrella. It was quite dreadful. Then, to cap her woes, up strolled a burly policeman, and the gentleman loquaciously launched his accusations again. The officer thought they both better go to the police station, and took hold of Ethel's arm! Well, what would you have done? Ethel completely refuses to tell us what she did. After working us up to a dreadful pitch of excited sympathy she left us to think what we liked. Don't you hate an unfinished story?

I have another unfinished story I am watching anxiously. There is a little spinster dressmaker who was given a soldier's name to write to, at Camp Lewis. She is English, writes a rather charming hand, and evidently a very good letter. At all events a delightful correspondence established itself and in due time became sentimental. He wrote her a beautiful poem, said she was obviously the sweet, high-principled ideal girl he was looking for, and asked for her picture. Sadly she wrote, saying she feared she was older than he. He wrote that he was 35—and a year or two made no difference in true love. But she, alas, must claim a good many more years or two than that. And she dreaded to send that picture, she is under no illusions about her beauty. So she tried to tell him, but he insists that it can only be her excess of modesty. And now he is coming down on leave and says he is going to marry her whether or no. She wonders. . . . She can't bear to go away and she can't bear to stay.

She asked me to gaze at her keenly, criticise her ruthlessly and then tell her what I would do, were I she. I didn't know. It's rather heartbreaking, isn't it? He arrives on Sunday.

Yours, thoughtfully, BETTY.

SOCIETY.

BY VIRGINIA WOODS.

Important Wedding.

In the marriage next Tuesday evening of Miss Maria Teresa Terrazas and Edmund Mariano Harrison, members of two aristocratic families of Mexico, will be united. The wedding will take place at 8:30 o'clock in Cathedral Chapel, and the Rt. Rev. J. J. Cantwell, bishop of the diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles, will officiate.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Gen. Louis Terrazas, a wealthy Mexican, but now a refugee from his native land and living in El Paso, Tex. She also is a niece of former Gov. Enrique Creel, who was at one time Mexican Ambassador to Washington. Her father, Louis Terrazas, Jr., died suddenly a little over a year ago at his home at Sixteenth street and Harvard boulevard.

Mr. Harrison is a son of Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Harrison of No. 5933 Carlton way, Hollywood, and is a descendant of President William Henry Harrison on his father's side. He is a grandson of the late Hon. Mariano S. Otero, who was a delegate in Congress from 1879 to 1888 and was a cousin of former Gov. Otero of New Mexico.

The bride-elect is only 18 years old and tomorrow evening Rt. Rev. Cantwell will give her her diploma when she graduates from Immaculate Heart Convent in Hollywood.

The sisters from Sacred Heart Convent will decorate the church for the wedding, using an abundance of white sweet peas, ferns and palms. Miss Terrazas will wear an imported gown of rare old lace, combined with white satin, embroidered in seed pearls. Her veil was brought from Paris for her grandmother's wedding. She will carry a shower bouquet of white orchids and bride's roses, and her veil will be caught to her hair with a wreath of orange blossoms.

Her sister, Mrs. Louis Robinson of San Francisco, in a gown of white satin and race lace, will be her matron of honor and will carry pink roses. Her three younger sisters and Mr. Harrison's sister will be her bridesmaids. They are Misses Carmen, Elisa and Elvina Terrazas and F. Margarita Harrison. They will wear frocks of white organdie, beruffled, and their bouquets will be of tiny pink rosebuds. Mr. Harrison will have for his best man his brother, M. Otero Harrison. During the ceremony members of Miss Terrazas's graduating class will play the wedding music and will sing the mass. Her uncle, Alberto Terrazas, will give her in keeping.

On Friday afternoon Miss Isabel Cram, a classmate, gave a shower for Miss Terrazas, having as guests the other classmates and Mrs. Terrazas and Mrs. Harrison, mothers of the couple. Because the Terrazas family is in mourning, there was no formal announcement of the engagement until today.

Luncheon for Visitors.

Mrs. F. H. Conant of Berkeley and Mrs. Charles Cooper of Honolulu were honor guests at a luncheon at which Mrs. Maddison W. Stewart of No. 870 West Adams street entertained on Tuesday. Mrs. Cooper and her daughter Frances also were house guests for a few days of Mrs. Frederick A. Klamp of No. 1810 Vista street.

Among Mrs. Stewart's guests were Mrs. Conant, Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Harry Gray, Mrs. Frederick A. Klamp, Mrs. Charles Cooper of Montana (a cousin of Mrs. Cooper of Honolulu,) Mrs. Emil Waterman of Honolulu, Mrs. J. Ross Clark, Mrs. Granville MacGowan and Miss Winifred Folon of Boston.

For Former Honolulu Friends.

In the nature of a reunion for four of her former Honolulu friends, Mrs. Frederick A. Klamp of No. 1810 Vista street entertained at luncheon on Thursday, having as honor guests Mrs. John Murray Marshall, Mrs. Charles Cooper, Mrs. Manuel Phillips and Mrs. Emil Waterman. Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Waterman and Mrs. Phillips still reside in Honolulu, and Mrs. Klamp and Mrs. Marshall lived there many years.

For Senior Class.

Miss Katherine Robbins, who has just graduated from Marlborough School, entertained at a tea party on Thursday in compliment to the senior class. There were twenty-four guests. She and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Robbins of No. 702 St. Andrews place, left for San Francisco on Friday to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Robbins's son, Albert Robbins, who is in the officers' reserve camp at the Presidio.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Margaret Donaldson West and Samuel Hudson McClung was announced yesterday at a tea at which Miss Katherine West, sister of the bride-elect, was hostess. The two girls are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Frederick West of No. 2018 Berkshire avenue, and it was at their home the affair was given. All of the guests were members of the Delta Sorority, and the decorations and refresh-

I found more of those Boys' Wash Suits at 59c

These clever little suits are made of gingham and Indian head and you know you couldn't buy the material for as little as 59c.

All sizes from two to seven years. No phone orders on these—none sent C.O.D. and not more than three to a customer.
Fourth Floor—Jacoby's.

Ad-MAN'S WEEK

I had a hard time getting these Slip-on Veils to sell at 9c

—The merchandise man, the department buyer and salespeople all were against me, but I carried the day—and here are the veils for Monday, both black and brown, at 9c.

—There are to be no phone orders, no C.O.D.'s and no exchanges, of course.
Main Floor—Jacoby's.

The big chief says: "Don't stop---keep things humming," and so again Monday I am going the limit in value giving---

In my first ad, last Sunday, I promised you that I was going to keep things humming all over the store and I did. I promised you I was going to give you values such as you hadn't seen in a month of Sundays, and I kept that promise, too. I promised the Big Chief the biggest day he'd had in two years and I gave it to him.

—All the store folks, from the head of the house down, have insisted that I run this Ad-man's week over Monday, and, of course, I am glad to do it. You may depend upon it, though, that I am going to see that it's a bigger day, from whatever standpoint that you want to look at it, than was the first day.

—As was the case last week, many of the best specials are not advertised — it would be well worth your while to look for the Ad-man's signs on the tables and counters throughout the store.

—These savings will make it possible to buy many additional Thrift Stamps this week!

THE AD MAN.

Several hundred women's Pink Union Suits
have been priced at 59c

And they are priced at 59c only because I want to make this Monday sale a record-breaker. These suits are low necked, sleeveless models with tight knee—all of them are way less than manufacturers' cost at 59c.
(The extra sizes are 69c.)

Women's white Swiss ribbed vests at 16c

About 1000 lace trimmed vests and bodices have had a good share of their prices cut off for this Monday's sale. Main floor—Jacoby's

136 Girls' Wash Dresses will be about half price at $1.29

There are two-piece Middy styles, combinations of white and colored material, and there are dozens more of pretty one-piece models in plain colors, checks and plaids.

They are all splendid dresses and fully worth the price they were marked before I started planning this Monday sale. All sizes from 6 to 14 years inclusive.
Fourth floor—Jacoby's.

I've gone into every section of the silk store and taken

Silks and Silks and Silks

Hundreds upon hundreds of yards of 36-in. Crepe Failles --- taffetas --- satins and fancy silks and reduced them for Monday to $1.08......

—I know it was "high handed"—and I expected a big fight from the silk man (which I got, by the way,) but I've set a high mark for the silk store to reach on Monday—and I know that offering values like these is the one thing that will make it possible for us to reach that mark!

—And so these wonderful silks go at $1.08 in spite of all the protests!

—The range of colors and patterns is so broad—the yardage is so great and the price is so extremely low that I feel I would be well within bounds if I was to advertise this as ONE OF THE MOST EXCEPTIONAL SILK SALES WE HAVE EVER ADVERTISED! Sale begins at 9 o'clock Monday —None will be shown in the windows!

I have priced 2600 pairs of Burson silk and fiber silk stockings for Monday at 74c a pair

—We ordered these stockings way back in 1916 and had long since given up all hopes of receiving them.

—They arrived just last week and you can depend upon it that I grabbed them the minute I saw them and now Monday, you are going to buy them at a great deal less than the mill is asking for them today.

—They come in both black and white—the name "Burson" tells you what splendid service they will give.

Children's Stockings 19c

—White and black ribbed top stockings, all sizes, 5 to 9½, they were samples, that's the reason we can sell them at full half of their worth.

Women's stockings 21c

—Black and white gauze lisle stockings with spliced heels and toes, some of them have tiny imperfections.

Main Floor—Jacoby's.

Four silk fiber Hair Nets (for one hour, 9 to 10 o'clock) at 9c

For just one hour Monday morning we are going to sell these splendid silk fiber hair nets at four for 9c. Many women use these nets for veils as well. No phone orders and no exchanges. Main Floor—Jacoby's.

Pique collar and cuff sets and separate collars at 12½c

Some are plain, others are quite elaborately embroidered, but all of them are so very much underpriced at 12½c that I look to see them fairly fly out, Monday.
Main Floor—Jacoby's.

I'll attract hundreds of men with this sale of SHIRTS at 89c

They are splendidly made of percale and madras, all of them with very attractive stripes and novelty patterns. They are so special at 89c that I am going to reserve the right to limit quantities—no phone orders will be accepted.

Men's athletic union suits, 68c

Fine checked Nainsook union suits with elastic seam at the back—there will be all sizes to start the sale with.

Men's socks, 12½c

Just imagine any kind of socks at 12½c, and these will be recognized as socks that always sold for much more—they come in black, white, tan, gray, lavender and other colors. The manufacturer says they are slightly imperfect — that's why we have priced them so sensationally low.
Main floor—Jacoby's.

Pre-Inventory SALE

EASY to choose—easy to save in this sale. The illustration suggests how a woman will feel when she comes here tomorrow. She will find so many hundreds and hundreds of pretty things that she can pick out just what she wants in a jiffy.

Usually we do not make clearances until after inventory. But we have decided that since it costs so much in the way of time, energy and real dollars to take inventory, that it is better to make our stock adjustments BEFORE than AFTER.

So, we have gathered all of the incomplete assortments and all merchandise which we considered should be sold quickly and replaced by new goods, and marked them very much lower—as you can readily see below.

When you read these prices remember that they are quoted on styles. Mark-downs without style are not good values.

The values in this sale live up to Paris Store style reputation.

MISS EMMA GLADYS TALBOT was married Tuesday evening to Mr. Chester Wilson of Oceanside at the residence of Rev. A. R. Moore, No. 1023 Fremont avenue, who is her uncle. Rev. Moore read the marriage service in the presence of relatives and friends. The bride wore a gown of white satin and carried a bouquet of roses and orchids.

A surprise party was given Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Mullins, No. 1030 Milan avenue, in honor of their son, Kiernan, who has entered the Naval Reserve Corps and is now stationed at Camp Kearny. Those present were Margaret and Celia Fagan, Alice and Katherine O'Brien, Kathleen Pieren, Mabel Shelton, Jack and James Turney, John Degnan, McGrath, Louise and Ernestine Fleur, Emma Aldridge, Estelle Posy, Lucy Stroop, Mary Becker, Mabel Haskel, Helen and Jesse Mullin, Harold and Clarence Fergeron, Wesley Merriman, Archie Clyde, Virgil Cochran, Mercedes and Edward Caldaren, William Becker, Jack Reber and Harry Arnold.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Burns, No. 721 Mound avenue have had a short visit from there son, Marion, who is attending the aviation school at Berkeley.

Mr. and Mrs. George Goodman, No. 1730 Lyndon street, have gone to Wyoming, where they expect to remain during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. N. Hamilton, No. 1130 Stratford avenue, celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary with a dinner for nine last Sunday.

Mr. Charles A. Dodge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan S. Dodge, entered Annapolis Military School June 19, he having passed all of his examinations with great credit.

Charles Hinman, No. 1317 Spruce street, has joined the navy and is now stationed at San Pedro.

William R. Powell, No. 1955 Milan avenue, has gone to Mare Island, where he will be stationed, having enlisted in the Marine Corps. He is one of the young men from South Pasadena who on June 5 became 21.

Redondo Beach.

THE Rebekahs held a patriotic tea at the home of Mrs. A. T. Hembree of the Esplanade Friday afternoon. The home was decorated in patriotic colors for the occasion. Mrs. A. T. Hembree, Mrs. R. H. Wilson and Mrs. Joseph were the hostesses.

The ladies of St. James parish gave a social Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Charles Field of No. 124 South Catalina avenue. About forty ladies were present. The proceeds of the social were to help furnish a sisters' dwelling home at the church.

The Redondo Review No. 2 of Maccabees celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary at the Masonic Hall Wednesday night. The honor guests of the evening were ladies from Los Angeles who have been members of the association twenty years and more, including Mmes. Fisher, Herring and Hathaway, charter members of the Redondo Review No. 2. The evening was spent in a social way interspersed with piano solos by Mrs. Clara Venable, vocal solos by Miss Zelma Baetz, accompanied on the piano by Miss Fleda Baetz, and the relating of reminiscences of early days of the lodge by Mrs. M. V. Fisher, Mrs. Lillie Herring and Mrs. Hattie Hathaway of Redondo Beach and Mmes. Longuevan and Faye of Los Angeles Review No. 1. Mrs. J. C. Ginn, district deputy of the association, made a short talk on the most popular topic of the day, "Patriotism," explaining the work done along that line by the various reviews.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Venable, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Wilson of Manhattan Beach and Mayor and Mrs. Neilson of Santa Barbara returned last Sunday from a week's fishing trip to Santa Ynez. They caught about 300 trout on the trip. The trip was made by automobiles and they camped out during the time. The Wilsons and the Neilsons have been guests of the Venables the past week.

Miss Rachel West, teacher in Spanish at the Redondo Union High School, left Tuesday for her home in Sacramento. Announcement of the engagement of Miss West and Mr. Russell Armstrong of this city was made last week before Miss West's departure for the north. The marriage will take place in the fall.

Rialto.

A DELIGHTFUL birthday courtesy was extended Mrs. Porter Brimmer Wednesday evening by her daughter, Mrs. Amelia Kendall. The honoree, who, with her husband, recently celebrated their sixty-fifth wedding anniversary, had reached her eighty-fifth natal day, and local relatives were invited to an informal chicken dinner. The prettily-laid table was centered with beautiful roses, and plates were laid for Messrs. and Mmes. Merton E. Brimmer and daughter, Elizabeth; Harry W. Brimmer and sons, Lorne and Burleigh; Mr. Arthur Brimmer and sons, Porter and Maurice; Mrs. Clarence O. Crawford of Pasadena, the honoree and husband, and hostess. Later in the evening a number of friends motored to the hospitable ranch home to extend birthday greetings.

Mrs. Paul Weller of Atascadero is the house guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Welborn, and her sister, Mrs. Edward Burrington.

Miss Grace Ginther of El Paso, Tex., is the guest of Mrs. Mary Dunlap, who, with her sons, Van and Francis, are occupying the Williamson home on North Riverside avenue.

Duarte.

TUESDAY, Mrs. E. B. Rivers of Los Rios Rancho gave a charmingly smart luncheon complimentary to the ladies of the Foothill Auction Bridge Club. Tables were arranged for 1 o'clock luncheon. French bouquets of lovely garden flowers graced the tables, and after the lunch the ladies played at bridge until late in the afternoon, when they sauntered through the beautiful gardens of Los Rios and lingered to visit on the shady lawns.

One of the seasonable affairs was the week-end sailing party given by Lieut. and Mrs. Arthur Gordon Maddock in their boat the Rosalie. Catalina Island was the chosen haven, and the list of guests included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bashor, Sergt. and Mrs. Lewis Collins, Sergt. Paul Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Boone, Miss Catherine Miller, Miss Marie Bashor and Messrs. Robert Miller and Eugene Bashor.

The ladies of the Duarte Helping Hand Circle met Friday with Mrs. Herbert Jackson. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock.

The June event to the members of the Duarte Reading Circle and their families is the annual picnic at Ganesha Park in Pomona, and on Tuesday about sixty people motored to the park for a picnic supper. One long table decorated with flags and flowers and ferns was arranged for all the guests to be seated at one time. During the afternoon the recreation grounds were the attraction of the younger set, and swimming and croquet were the favorite amusements.

The Japanese pavilion in the gardens of the E. B. Rivers home was the scene of a merry dancing party Friday evening, when Neil Miller was host to the members of the younger set.

Friday afternoon Mrs. Levi Harris was the hostess of the ladies of the Methodist Church at a prettily-appointed June gathering. Sewing and patriotic knitting employed the ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sarwine entertained the first of the week with a happy birthday party in honor of their grand-daughter, Miss Edith Sarwine of Los Angeles.

Santa Monica Beach.

MRS. HERMAN JANSS entertained at her new home, No. 315 Seventh street, which she has taken for the summer, with a delightful luncheon, Thursday. Her guests were: Mmes. Claude Ogden, C. L. Bundy, M. E. Flowers, Jack Richardson, Miss Carrie Winston and Mrs. Tracy Morphy.

Complimenting Miss Helen Crampton of No. 1217 Fourteenth street, who is soon to wed Mr. Malcolm Whaley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whaley of Venice, a miscellaneous shower was given last week at the home of Miss Stella Miller of No. 2728 Lake street, Ocean Park. Dinner covers were laid for twenty-five guests. The young people are keeping their wedding day date a secret, and although their many friends are keeping close watch, it is rumored that they plan to slip away some day and tell no one of the time of the ceremony.

A surprise to their large circle of friends was the announcement that Mrs. Charlotte Mosher Stedman and Mr. Charles S. Hoyt, both of the Nadine apartments, this city, had quietly wed in Los Angeles recently, culminating a romance that began less than a year ago and ripened rapidly under the Southern California skies. The bride is the daughter of George W. Mosher, prominent manufacturer of Washington, D. C., and is a member of an old Pennsylvania family. Mr. Hoyt, who is one of the owners of the apartments, comes from pioneer stock that is prominent in the history of the State of Ohio. The newly-wedded pair are now on their honeymoon, motoring in the Yosemite Valley, and visiting San Francisco and Monterey. On their return they will be at home at the Nadine.

Pomona.

A JOINT reunion of the alumni classes of Pomona High School 1917 and 1918 were held in the Ebell Club House Tuesday evening, following a plan inaugurated last year in which the graduating class and members of the class of the previous year meet for a farewell get-together before the members scatter for the summer. A musical programme, followed by dancing furnished the entertainment of the evening. Miss Anita Weigle of the class of 1918 delighted the members with violin solos, and Miss Ellena Warner of the class of 1917, this year a student at U.S.C., gave whistling numbers. Howard Deems of last year's class came up from Long Beach and rendered on this occasion two solo numbers. Eugene Kennedy and Charles Whiteside, two members who are now in the United States service, stationed at Camp Kearny, obtained permission to be present at the reunion. Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Evans acted as patron and patroness.

Dr. and Mrs. Stacy Clapp, No. 393 East Alvarado, entertained at their home Monday members of the Dinner Bridge Club and others, being their guests. The dinner table was made attractive with dahlias. Auction bridge was the entertainment of the evening. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Trickey, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ralph Shoemaker, Mr. and Mrs. B. Chaffey Sherherd, Miss Helen Martin, A. H. Peck and Dr. and Mrs. Clapp.

Miss Irene Emily Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hall, was married at the family home, No. 168 West Pearl street, Tuesday morning, to Edmund R. Adkinson of Santa Ana. Both young people were students in Pomona College and have a large acquaintance in Pomona and Claremont. Rev. Lloyd Darsie, chaplain of the Y.M.C.A. of the Submarine Base at San Pedro, read the ceremony in the presence of a few intimate friends of the young couple. Miss Grace Miller, classmate of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Russell Adkinson of Santa Ana, brother of the groom, stood as best man. Miss Doris Carver, also a college classmate, played the "Lohengrin" and Mendelssohn wedding marches. The bride's wedding dress was of white embroidered Georgette crepe, and she carried a bouquet of My Maryland roses. Following the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served, and Mr. and Mrs. Adkinson left immediately for a wedding trip through the northern part of the State by auto. Both of the young people were graduated at the commencement exercises held at Pomona College Monday. Miss Hall was a graduate of Pomona High School of the class of 1914, and has resided in this city with her parents all of her life. Mr. Adkinson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Adkinson of Santa Ana, and in college he played an active part in the athletic and other activities of his school. Guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Adkinson and Russell Adkinson of Santa Ana, Rev. and Mrs. Lloyd Darsie of San Pedro, Miss Matalie Wright, Miss Zona Robinson and Edward Wright of Los Angeles, the Misses Esther Daniels, Laura Batkin, Lenora Miles Mary Davies, Doris Carver, Agnes Leonard, Edith Powelson, Grace Miller, Agnes Leek, Margaret Pendergast and Frederick Brackett and Bennie Osterman.

Miss Ollie Hansler, daughter of Mrs. Frank Hansler, No. 420 East Fourth street, Pomona, and Ben May of Los Angeles, brother of Hal May of this city, surprised their friends by being quietly married at the Presbyterian parsonage in San Bernardino Saturday afternoon. The fact was not made known until this week. The couple left Pomona early last Saturday by automobile, going to San Bernardino, where they were married, later returning through this city to Los Angeles and the beaches, where they will spend a couple of weeks before locating in Los Angeles, where they will make their home. The bride is a native daughter of Pomona. Her father, the late Frank Hansler, was one of Pomona's early settlers.

Downey.

WEDNESDAY at 4 o'clock was solemnized the marriage of George H. Clark and Miss Ruth Ardis. The impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. C. R. Gray, presiding elder of the Methodist Church. Only the immediate friends and the families were present. The bride was dressed in white and wore her mother's wedding veil. She carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas, which conformed to the delightful color scheme carried out in the decoration of the rooms. The bride is the popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ardis and possesses rare charm of character which endears her to a wide circle of admirers. The groom is the son of Rev. and Mrs. George H. Clark, who were former residents of Downey. Mr. and Mrs. Clark are at home in Long Beach.

Tuesday Mrs. J. Ed Van Meter entertained at dinner at her home on North Crawford street, the occasion being the birthday of Mr. Hogan Willeford, her brother, and also the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Cunningham. The affair was of the nature of a home town reunion, as most of the guests were former residents of Marion, Ill. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Hogan Willeford, Mr. and Mrs. Cline V. Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pulley, Capt. and Mrs. Ben Price, Miss Carrie Price, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Willeford, Mr. and Mrs. Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Lenz, Mrs. Jack Gall and Lloyd Bracey.

Upland.

MRS. N. G. PEHL was hostess Friday at a luncheon of charming appointments at her home, No. 207 First avenue. Yellow and white daisies were effectively combined with fernery in the decoration of the table. Covers were marked for Mrs. George Aaron Brest, Mrs. William L. Brown, Mrs. William Churchill Cline, Mrs. Chad K. Francisco, Mrs. George Gregg, Mrs. William B. Duncan, Mrs. D. D. Crew, Mrs. Perry O. Long, Mrs. Fletcher H. Manker, Mrs. Evert B. Venice.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Corinne Hancock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Hancock of No. 124 Brooks avenue, to Mr. Eugene Austin Warren of Los Angeles, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Warren of Los Angeles. He is a graduate of the University of California, and was captain of the university tennis team for two years. He is a member of the Skull and Dagger Society and of the Zetta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. The bride is scarcely more than a school girl, only last year graduating from the Venice High School. The marriage marks a romance that began six years ago when they were both school children. Following the ceremony the young people slipped away for their honeymoon, refusing to divulge their destination. After July 1 they will be at home in Los Angeles.

The Anderson summer home at Playa del Rey will be the scene of some jolly beach parties soon. Miss Eleanor Anderson, who has been at Stanford University all winter with her sister, Mrs. Lee Schleisinger, nee Miss Laura Anderson, has returned home for the sumer vacation, and the latter will arrive Monday. Their mother, at the Los Angeles residence of the family, No. 4300 Victoria Park drive, is planning many affairs in their honor, several of which are expected to take place at the summer home at Playa del Rey. Mrs. Schleisinger is a bride of six months, having married Lieut. Schleisinger in San Francisco last winter. He has since gone to France, his bride accompanying him as far as New York City.

Marked with pretty appointments was the dance at Venice given by Mrs. Kingsbury of No. 1316 McCadden place, Hollywood. Those bidden were Misses Betty Tanner, Bernice Allen, Charlotte Hoy, Margaret Hoy, Margaret Hanahan, Cecile Kingsbury, Gladys Rebok, Messrs. Charles Tanner, Roy Morrison, William Watson, Henry Mills, Harvey Priester, Robert Rager, Gifford Leece and Kent Redwine. The party was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. C. Hoy and Mrs. Kingsbury.

One of the happy social events of the past week was the loge party at Venice given by Mr. Wallace Daniels of 623 Gramercy place. The guests inculded Messrs. and Mmes. H. K. Jones, S. B. Hudson, Mmes. W. H. Daniels, Wallace Daniels, Miss Fay Daniels and Robert Schutte.

Complimentary to Lieut. Laurence Fox, Mrs. F. H. Hope of No. 1817 Ocean avenue, Santa Monica, entertained with a daintily-appointed loge party at Venice. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gray, Misses Gertrude Rhodes, O. Dorland, Grace Gray, Lieuts. D. D. Duncan, H. H. Raymond and Laurence Fox.

Santa Ana.

A MISCELLANEOUS shower for Mrs. Roy Noble, a very recent bride, who was formerly Miss Mary Hamilton, was given at the home of her mother, Mrs. L. M. Hamilton, Monday evening, when a number of her girl friends bestowed upon her a large number of beautiful and useful gifts. Pink sweet peas and asparagus fern decorated the pretty home, and pink and white prevailed in the dainty refreshments. Mrs. Hoxsie assisted in entertaining, and those present were the Misses Blanch Crowther, Rose Parker, Gladys Cook, Sybil Pritchett, Lily Chaffee, Amy Brown, Edna Brooks, Gertrude Adams, Alpha Burry, Myrtle Huff, Louise Calhoun, Ruth Riley, Verona Cozad, Verna Fulton, Edith Carey, Mildred Hoxsie, Hazel and Ivy Hamilton.

J. C. Pake, purchasing agent, and E. E. Hendricks, auto superintendent of the Southern Counties Gas Company at Los Angeles, were guests of the Efficiency Club, composed of gas company employees in Orange county, at a pleasant meeting Wednesday evening.

Lincoln school-teachers were the guests Wednesday afternoon and evening of Mrs. H. M. Robertson and Mrs. Charles F. Heil at the Heil cottage at Newport Beach. A dip in the ocean, and wiener bake on the beach, were only two of the features. Those who shared in the pleasure were Mr. and Mrs. Heil, Wendell, Helen and Elizabeth Heil, Mrs. Robertson, Mr. Casky, Mrs. Trees and the Misses Linda Paul, Glenna Abbott, Mary Giffen, Ursula Lee, Lois Thacker, Alma Stewart, Adeline Hill and Annis Snow.

Long Beach.

MISS MARY EDITH HENRY was married to Ernest Butler Tuesday afternoon at the home of Rev. Henry Kendall Booth, pastor of the Congregational Church, who officiated. Only parents of the young couple witnessed the ceremony.

Mr. Butler, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Butler, has been a member of the city engineering force for several years. The bride, a native of New York, is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Henry, who took up their residence in Long Beach three years ago. For the past two years Miss Henry has been connected with the Long Beach Press.

After a honeymoon spent in San Diego and vicinity, Mr. and Mrs. Butler will be at home July 1 at No. 511 Almond avenue, in a recently completed bungalow.

In honor of Miss Elizabeth Raycraft, whose engagement to Mr. Howard Hill of Philadelphia was announced last April, Miss Helen Wills entertained Tuesday evening with a miscellaneous shower. Sweet peas were used in decorating, the same color motif being employed in carrying out the menu. Little Ruth Bartow, dressed in pink, acted as messenger, bringing in a large basket tied with pink tulle and filled with dainty gifts. Among those participating in the event were Betty Wilson, Bernice Rose, Marie Mace, Gertrude Weir, Dorothy Raycraft, Lucile Kain and the hostess.

Mrs. Edgar McFadyen has returned to Long Beach after a ten-day visit to Santa Cruz. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. J. R. Rochford of San Francisco.

Colton.

A DECIDED surprise to friends and relatives alike was the marriage Saturday last of Miss Zella Palmer and Lee Fortner, popular young people of Colton. The wedding took place in the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Grimsley, mutual friends, Judge J. B. Hanna performing the service. Immediately afterward the newlyweds left for a honeymoon trip to Los Angeles and the beaches. The pretty bride wore a novelty suit of sand color with white hat, gloves and boots. Mrs. Fortner is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Palmer and since graduating from the local high school has been book-keeper at the store of her uncle, E. G. Palmer. Mr. Fortner is an employee of the Hub City Garage.

To pursue Red Cross sewing and enjoy a social visit together, women of the Eastern Star Chapter gathered Thursday afternoon with Miss Leone Erichsen, the worthy matron. At 6 o'clock they were joined by the men folks and a merry outdoor basket supper was served at one long table decked with red carnations, coffee and delicious "Liberty ice," made after an original recipe with corn syrup substituted for sugar, being supplied by the hostess.

As a benefit for the altar of the new Catholic church in South Colton, a delightful card party was given Friday afternoon by Mrs. J. L. Moran, the guests being mostly members of the Altar Society of the Church of Saint Bernardino de Siena of San Bernardino. Light refreshments were served following the tournament.

In celebration of their birthday anniversaries occurring on the same day, Miss Audrey Adamson and Miss Leone Brown were hostesses to about forty members of the younger set Monday evening at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brown. The affair was a lawn party, the grounds being strung with Japanese lanterns and made cosy with many chairs. Dancing, cards, music and outdoor games kept the young people in high spirits. A birthday supper of ice cream, cake and mints was served on the lawn, pink sweet peas, two birthday cakes with pink candles and pink ribbons falling to each place from a big lantern containing fortunes, made the long table attractive. Miss Audrey welcomed her sixteenth birthday and Miss Brown her seventeenth. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Adamson chaperoned.

Redlands.

MISS BERTHA JONES, one of the popular young ladies of the city, is to be married this month to Louis M. Corbell of Buhl, Idaho, and she has been honored with many delightful affairs given by her friends. She has just returned from Hemet, where Mrs. G. H. McFarland, Mrs. J. O. Percival and Miss Myra Blackwell entertained for her.

Mrs. Myrtle Igo entertained at her home, the Eyes of the World ranch, in Mill Creek Canyon, with a picnic for the members of the Woman's Relief Corps and G.A.R. on Tuesday. The guests made the trip in an automobile and had a most delightful time at the beautiful ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Haupt entertained Friday evening with a pleasant affair in honor of Archibald Bell, a brother of Mrs. Haupt, who leaves in a few days for Montana, and for Miss June Taylor, who celebrated a birthday anniversary. The guests were Altie Kemble, Hazel Sargent, June Taylor, Marjorie Putnam, Louise Hilands, Margaret Strickland, Margaret Enworth, Mabel Beddall, Irene Edon, Mildred McCann, Sarah Sloane, Harriet Bell, Mrs. W. E. Sloan, Donald Anderson, Glen Pry, Arthur Field, Dean Wattawa, Gordon Edon, Miller White, Elnathan Wattawa, Carlton McCann, Archibald Bell and the host and hostess.

Miss Clara Driesem of Grand Rapids, who came to Redlands a short time ago, and the Rev. J. Vissia, pastor of the Christian Reformed Church here, were married at the church during the week. A reception was given for them by members of the congregation.

Arthur D. Chapman, son of Mrs. T. A. Chapman of Bonita street, and Miss Hazel Bernhardt of New York were married there several days ago. Mr. Chapman is now in the photographic division of the Signal Corps and expects to go to France soon.

At a delightful party given Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Ferguson on Sylvan boulevard the interesting announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mildred Ferguson, to William L. Barker of Riverside was made. The announcement came as a real surprise to the many friends of the bride. The guests were Gladys Sturtevant, Georgia Stockton, Cora Rickett, Gwendolyn Denhart, Alvarita Darling, Ethel Bergstrom, Beryl Bergstrom, Verla Nicks, Bonnie Warren, Esther Ferguson, Mrs. J. R. Barker, Mrs. N. Ferguson and Mrs. Robert Leith. On Friday evening Miss Sturtevant entertained, it also being a farewell for Miss Denhart, who is going to Montana for the summer. Those present were Cora Rickett, Verda Nicks, Bonnie Warren, Georgia Stockton, Ethel Bergstrom, Alvarita Darling and Esther Ferguson of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Milligan entertained at their home on Eureka street for the members of the choir of the Methodist Church. To the boys of the choir in the service, Ray Cochran, Ray Canterbury, Fred Clock, Karl Grassie, Milton Brown, Ralph Sherrill and Morris Bell, letters were written during the evening. Piano selections were given by Mrs. L. D. Van Arnam, and Miss Vera Loan and Miss La Ura Tolle gave readings. Mrs. J. E. Hollett, Mrs. G. G. Kennard, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. S. A. Skinner assisted in entertaining the guests.

The alumni of the University of Redlands in its annual banquet paid a tribute to the boys of the alumni now in the service. They are Campbell Greenup, '12; Clyde Gerber, '13; Tracy Jackson, '13; Wallace Beebe, '14; Milnor Blowers, '15; William Geistweot, '15; Gordon Palmer, '16; Gardner Turrill, '16; Armin Hentschke, '16; Charles Gillette, '17; Leonard Cooper, '17; Carey Berger, '17; Lawrence Lehigh, '17. Othello Kincher, Marvin Holt, George Hedstrom and Emmanuel Jacobsen of this year's class have also enlisted.

Everett Russell Lord-Wood, son of Mrs. William Lord-Wood of this city, and Miss Elizabeth Cole were married recently in Washington, D. C., where he is now in government service as an artist.

Torrance.

A SURPRISE party was given by the N.B.B.O. Sewing Club a week ago Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Margaret Paour. One of the features was a mock wedding, the central figures being Miss Mabel Morford and Miss Dorothy Hoffman. The former acted as the groom and the latter as the bride. Mr. Frank Steinhilber was the preacher. The evening was pleasantly spent in music, games and delicious refreshments. The decorations for the evening were carried out in red, white and green effect. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Morford, Mr. and Mrs. A. Gorton, Mrs. E. B. Morford, the Misses Mabel Christopher, Florence Curdy, Alice Sheller, Mildred Adams, Oliva Lee, Erma Morford, Lucy Morford, Marguerite Paour; Messrs. Bob Woods, Bob Nuckles, Russell Martin, A. Butterfield, Elwyn Christopher and Edward Burns.

The Ladies' Aid of the Baptist Church gave a social Friday night at the home of Mrs. Newby on Arlington street. A male quartette sang during the evening. The admission was 1 cent per foot of height, an objection to having the measurement taken meaning a fine of 10 cents. A bean-guessing contest was one of the features of the evening.

Inglewood.

WM. HUDSON is home for a few days' visit from Fort Scott.

Mrs. Ralph Sunderlin is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Ellsworth of Minnesota.

Mrs. Emeline Sinsabaugh and three daughters left Tuesday for Sierra Madre, where they expect to remain for the summer. They plan to return to Manhattan Beach next fall.

Mrs. L. Berger and daughter, Miss Eloise, are entertaining a number of Miss Berger's girl friends of the Los Angeles High School at a week-end house party in the Berger cottage on Nineteenth street. The girls are doing considerable surf bathing.

Ontario.

AT TWILIGHT Tuesday evening, just as the last rays of the setting sun were tinting the mountain tops with crimson, Miss Laurel Augusta Mayhew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis H. Mayhew, became the bride of Dr. Harry William Fredericksen, the wedding being solemnized in a beautiful garden setting at the ranch home of the bride's grandfather, William H. DeBerard, in Arch [illegible] avenue. With countless hanging baskets of carnations, Shasta daisies and plumosus fern, with potted plants and numerous arches of graceful date palm leaves, the broad lawn was converted for the occasion into a veritable fairyland. The Wedding March from "Lohengrin" with Miss Grace Minto Elliot at the piano announced the approach of the bride and bridegroom, who were unattended and took their places for the ceremony beneath an arch of blossoms and ferns, where they were met by the Rev. John Barron Toomay, pastor of Bethel Congregational Church, who officiated. The bride was veiled in a simple frock of white organdie and wore the conventional veil, caught to the coiffure with Cecile Brunner rosebuds. She carried a shower bouquet of Cecile Brunners and orchids and her only ornament was a circlet of sapphires and pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. The bride's going-away gown was a tailored affair of gray jersey cloth and with it she wore a large white hat. A wedding collation followed the ceremony, after which Dr. and Mrs. Fredericksen left by motor on their honeymoon. Later they will be at home at No. 552 Lynn Haven court. The bride, an attractive young woman, has made her home in Ontario since childhood and has hosts of friends. Dr. Fredericksen is a well-known optician and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Fredericksen. The wedding was witnessed by seventy-five relatives and intimate friends.

Miss Mayhew was the recipient of many pretty prenuptial events following the announcement of her approaching marriage, notable among which was the luncheon with which Mrs. John Stewart Ingalls and Mrs. Harvey Oliver Chapman entertained Saturday afternoon at the Ingalls home in El Morado court, when the bride-elect was the especial guest of honor. Covers at the luncheon table were marked for Miss Mayhew, Miss Katharine Salter, Miss Margaret Swan, Miss Lillian Graves, Miss Anna Stoeckel, Mrs. Robert E. Rogers, Mrs. Ernest DeLong, Mrs. Arthur Berle DeBarard, Mrs. Harvey Oliver Chapman and Mrs. John Stewart Ingalls.

Mrs. Freeman A. Squires also entertained in her honor one afternoon recently with a towel shower at her home in West Ninth street. Present were Miss Mayhew, Miss Myrtle McNay, Miss Marie Rowe, Miss Viola Poister, Miss Elsie Hamilton, Mrs. Gordon Granville Whyte, Mrs. Frank L. Allen, Mrs. Martin Stewart, Mrs. Otis H. Mayhew, Mrs. Jacob Jesson, Mrs. H. A. Scullen, Mrs. Wilbur D. Chapman and Mrs. Squires.

Miss Catherine Rafferty, who is soon to leave to make her home in Fresno, was happily surprised Monday evening, when a merry party of friends gathered at her home, No. 521 West Grove street, to bid her farewell. The party numbered Miss Helen Salling, Miss Minnie Smith, Miss Esther McShea, Miss Madge Hardy, Miss Gladys McDonald, Miss Elsie Allen, Miss Mamie Dinger, Miss Linda Moeller, Miss Marguerite Rafferty, Miss Catherine Rafferty, Mrs. Elizabeth Mellus, Mrs. Beatrice Garham and Mrs. Clara Moore.

Mrs. Anna B. Hayes was hostess Tuesday afternoon at her home, No. 518 South Laurel avenue, at a sewing bee, the guests devoting their time to sewing for French orphans. Present were Mrs. George A. Patterson, Mrs. O. W. Von Wagner, Mrs. P. A. Sandison, Mrs. J. T. Voshall, Mrs. Harry Allen, Mrs. C. R. Bentley, Mrs. H. H. Beckley, Mrs. Princess Long, Mrs. W. L. Hibbard, Mrs. A. E. Hart, Mrs. Lydia Libby, Miss Jane Currie, Miss Gertrude Bentley and Mrs. Hayes.

Beaumont.

DR. F. D. WEST and a party of local people including Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Millington of El Segundo, Miss Mabel Gilman and Miss Frances Gilman of Banning, left Friday for a motor trip through the Yosemite and other northern sections. The party expects to be gone about ten days.

Mrs. W. C. Brown and Mr. John Fitch of Whittier are enjoying the cherries at the ranch home of Dean and Mrs. C. S. Mook in Apple Valley. The guests are the mother and grandfather of Mrs. Mook. The visitors are en route to Jefferson, Iowa, where they will spend part of the summer with Mrs. Mook's sister, Mrs. Henry Meyers, and later go to Chicago for a visit with Mr. Fitch's daughter, Mrs. F. C. Miller. They expect to return to California in the fall and may motor across country with Mr. and Mrs. Meyers.

R. L. LeBeau and children with his house guests, Mrs. H. W. Turner and Miss Frances Turner, motored to Riverside Sunday for dinner and supper at the Glenwood Mission Inn.

D. L. Sheckler of Beaumont avenue and brother, who lives in Fallon, Nev., have returned from a visit to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. They went by the way of the Needles and returned by Phoenix and Yuma.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Farnsworth expect to spend the summer at Big Bear Lake. Mr. Farnsworth is an enthusiastic fisherman.

Mrs. K. R. Smoot of the Mesa Miravilla has been spending the week visiting friends in Los Angeles.

After serving three years on the faculty of the local high school, Mrs. Cornelia Dodds has tendered her resignation. Mrs. Dodds taught English and supervised the publication of the Live Oak and the forensic contests. The family will spend the summer in their home here looking after their ranch interests. The plans of Prof. and Mrs. Dodds for the future have not been announced.

The George H. Decker home in Apple Valley was the scene of a merry week-end party, when their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Gonzalez, and two children motored down Saturday. They were accompanied by Miss Blanch Fulton and Miss Josie Richardson all of Camarillo. The guests returned to their homes late Sunday evening.

Sierra Madre.

PREPARATORY to going to France for active service as a special nurse, Miss Dorothy Camp will leave here shortly for Vassar College to take up the training course. Miss Camp is the daughter of E. W. Camp, chief counsel of the Santa Fe system in California, and her brother, Lieut. Charles Camp, has been in active service somewhere in France during the past year.

The Dickens Fellowship Club was entertained at luncheon Saturday in the Red Cross headquarters, by Mrs. A. J. Rust.

The last meeting for the year of the Parent-Teacher Association took place on Wednesday afternoon. Officers for the ensuing year were installed and a musical programme was rendered. The main feature of the occasion was a patriotic talk by Mrs. Milton Steinberger on "Loyalty to the Flag." Mrs. Steinberger was among the first volunteer nurses in France at the outbreak of the war. Since her return to this country she has toured the different counties making patriotic speeches in behalf of Red Cross work, Thrift Stamps and other kindred subjects, displaying considerable ability as an interesting speaker.

Mr. Fred Eaton, former Los Angeles Mayor, with Mrs. Eaton and their two boys, left here last Saturday for their home in Santa Monica Beach, after having spent the winter months in Sierra Madre.

Mr. Charles T. Gray returned to his home here last week, after a six months' visit to New York City and its environs.

Miss Verna Trible entertained recently with an announcement party in honor of Miss Maybelle Caley,

The Economic Proceduer in Beautifying the Home

The correct treatment of windows and doorways, the effective cushioning of summer furniture, and the refreshing influence of attractive pillows—these are the basic fundamentals in making the home invitingly comfortable for summer.

And so much can be accomplished in this way for comparatively little cost. Especially is this true where the co-operation of experienced decorators, such as the "California" places at your free disposal, is sought.

The variety and diversity of new drapery, upholstery and cushioning materials shown in our drapery section on the second floor is a tribute to the ingenious artistry of the textile world.

The new cretonnes are shown in a multitude of beautiful color effects, and the warp prints in quiet, soft pastel colorings. New stripe and bar effects are shown in the English printed linens and very decorative patterns in the very popular chintzes, from the inexpensive to the finest qualities made.

With all these new and correct materials from which to draw suggestions and inspiration, the "California" can render important service to you in refreshing and beautifying your home, whether it be modest or magnificent.

Feel free to consult our drapery department for home beautifying suggestions, even though you may not be ready to buy.

Some unusual materials for hangings and cushions are shown in one of our windows this week.

Editorial On Work

What a boon is work. Work is action applied to useful purpose, and action is the secret of life. Work dissolves care and prevents pessimism. It refreshes and renews body and spirit.

Work will win the war; will cool the worry of warm days; will bring you all the good things that you want.

And there is no scarcity of work. If you haven't any, borrow some to start on, by helping the first person you see who has a little too much. The magnetic force of your action will bring you more work, good health and contentment.

Besides you will be really helping to win the war.

Mrs. George H. Rowe entertained Tuesday evening with a surprise birthday party for Mr. Rowe at their home, No. 516 South Orange street. The evening was spent informally and seasonable refreshments were served. Miss Nellie Genevieve Rowe gave several clever little readings. Special guests were Rev. and Mrs. Vernon Cowsert and Mrs. T. F. McCrea, of San Diego. Mrs. F. G. Latter assisted the hostess in serving.

Mrs. Mary E. Edwards, formerly of Glendale and now of El Paso, Tex., who is a house guest of Mrs. Percy de Gaston at her home, No. 608 North Central avenue, has been the honor guest at several pretty affairs among which was a dinner given on Sunday by Mrs. James A. Farrell, of No. 123 East Broadway, following which the party enjoyed a scenic motor drive. Included in the plans for Mrs. Edwards's entertainment before her return next week for her home, a trip she will take in her Chandler Six in which she drove here via the Grand Canyon, will be an informal party given by Mrs. de Gaston Tuesday evening at which Mr. Edgar F. Vance of Los Angeles will also be a special guest.

A Red Cross benefit garden party given yesterday evening on the beautiful grounds at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Toll, No. 1625 Kenneth road, proved one of the most enjoyable affairs of the opening summer season. Many musical numbers added to the evening's pleasures, and much amusement and entertainment was derived from the readings of B. T. Robley, of the University of Southern California extension work, who has just returned from a tour of the cantonments. Dr. Henry R. Harrower assisted the host and hostess in arranging the affair.

Mrs. Leroy Bosserman was hostess last Thursday evening at her home, No. 814 South Central avenue, at a dinner for twenty choir boys of St. Mark's Church. Special guests of honor were Winston Marshall and Richard Marshall and Allen Pollock, all of whom will soon leave for the summer. Music and games formed the evening's entertainment.

Willowbrook.

QUITE determined to be the first June bride, Miss Ellamae Laughlin not only planned her wedding for June 1, but on the stroke of the midnight hour the beautiful ring service was read by Rev. Mrs. J. S. Brown, which united in marriage Miss Laughlin and Ray Henderson. The bridal party, taking their place to the strains of "Lohengrin," played by Miss Pearl Flood, stood before an improvised alter of ferns and flowers and flags. Miss Anna Herskind was maid of honor, and little Miss Winifred Butts the ring bearer and flower girl. Recitations, music and refreshments preceeded the ceremony, which was followed by a shower of rice and rose petals as the bridal couple left for Redondo, their future home.

At the all-day weekly meeting of the Willowbrook branch of the Red Cross Tuesday, an unusually large number of members gathered for work. During the noon hour, pupils from the grammar school, assisting in the dedicatory exercises, unfurled the service banner and its thirty-six stars, representing Willowbrook, Belle Vernon, Springdale and Rico Acres. A large American flag was raised over the postoffice building by three little girls from the first grade to the strains of "America." Immediately following the flag raising, the service banner was hoisted, an original stanza to the music of "America" being sung. The exercises closed with the pledge of allegiance. Mrs. J. L. Unterleiter and Mrs. E. E. Gray were hostesses at the luncheon served at 1 o'clock.

From Our Soldiers' Graves.

At present, in the case of American soldiers who die in France, a cross marks the grave. At the transverse of the cross stands a metal shield with a design in low relief revealing a youth with broken sword, his face lifted to heaven. Round the shield runs the inscription: "He died to keep men free." Underneath are his name and regimental status. It is the intention of the Red Cross to remit this shield of glory to his relatives after the war, when some permanent form of remembrance shall have been devised by the War Department.—[Elizabeth Fraser in Saturday Evening Post.

Redfern Corsets

A FASHIONABLE WOMAN

knows that her figure is made with her corset. She may have beautiful, natural lines from the artist's point of view, but she knows that her form must be modeled by the corset in order to have the contour which is necessary for her fashionable dress.

Redfern Corsets

represent the best there is in corset designing and making. Every part of the figure in a Redfern Model is relaxed.

The corset is scientifically boned with flexible boning, and put together so accurately that it cannot fail to fit comfortably if the proper model is selected.

Redfern Corsets are not expensive—they parallel the highest priced corsets in style and beauty at much lower prices. $3.50 and up.

WHERE BROTHERLY LOVE LEADS WAY TO "SCUPPERS OF BLOOD."

BY SUZANNE M. DANIELS.

[SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR TO THE TIMES.]

THE doctrine of the universal brotherhood of man is a very beautiful one, and I had always had a consuming curiosity to meet some of the more earnest propounders of this philosophy. It is a somewhat impractical idea, when one takes the shortcomings of the human race into account, but I was positive that its protagonists are gentle creatures, who eschew the hatreds and class prejudices of more biased souls, and roam the world wrapped in mantles of kindness and humility.

Unfortunately, no such lofty beings were numbered among my acquaintance, and it was only by the merest accident that I was enabled to study the altruistic ones at close range, and to judge for myself the peculiar manifestations they made of their love for their fellow-men. I was standing in front of a small book shop, studying the serried rows of magazines displayed there, when the voice of a man beside me interrupted my train of thought.

"Young lady, are you an anarchist?" he inquired.

"Heavens, no," I gasped, staring at him in horrified astonishment. I edged away, ready for flight, but, seeing that he was quite old and had a kind face, I lingered on.

'TWOULD BE INTERESTING.

My answer seemed to pain him not a little. "You ought to be," he responded with a hopeful look. "You'd find it very interesting."

"I might find it a little too interesting," I suggested. But my interlocutor was quite undaunted by my lack of enthusiasm. Fumbling in the pocket of his shabby brown coat, he drew forth a ticket and handed it to me.

"This will admit you to one of our meetings, if you care to come. Be glad to have you bring any of your friends, too."

I thanked him for the invitation. Arriving home, I drew the grimy ticket out of my purse and reread it. "What's that?" inquired a relative, with mild curiosity.

"An invitation to an anarchistic soiree on Main street," I responded. My reply produced an astounding effect, every one being immediately galvanized into amazed attention." "How interesting!" some one remarked. "And do you take your own bombs, or do they supply you there?"

"I'll have to find out when I go," I answered. But finding somebody to go with me proved a difficult matter. The consensus of opinion was that, in these troublous times, anarchists being persona non grata with the government, it was well to give them a wide berth. I eventually secured some dauntless souls to accompany me, however.

AT THE MEETING.

We were admitted readily to the dingy hall where the meeting was held, but were obliged to choose seats in the front row, directly under the speakers' noses. The rear of the room was crowded with people, sitting and standing. As I gazed upon the motley assemblage, I was stricken with doubts as to the benevolence of the motives that actuated them. They were a peculiar looking crowd, numbering many foreigners of the lower classes. Several youths with flowing locks were there, and quite a number of the fair sex, who had cropped their tresses in mannish fashion.

The ceremonies were inaugurated by a middle-aged woman, clad in a shapeless garment, which we judged was some sort of a Bolshevik uniform, and flat-heeled shoes, who made a brief and not uninteresting speech. Perhaps, its very brevity was what subsequently inclined us to vote her the star performer of the evening. In ringing tones she bade us hasten the day when brotherly love should rule the world and all the warring factions would fall on one another's necks and forever be chums. In conclusion, she gave us a gentle hint that we might facilitate the arrival of this gladsome era by adopting the anarchistic method of spreading universal love.

"SCUPPERS OF BLOOD."

Upon the conclusion of her discourse, a tall, dark man arose and began a lengthy dissertation upon the wrongs of the working classes. From time to time his cold, black eyes swept our little group with a hostile stare. His talk bristled with vituperative denunciations of the capitalistic exploiters and the plutocratic press, and he adjured his hearers to hate their masters poisonously, and plan for the day when they could overthrow them. As an example of the abiding love he had for mankind, he prophesied that the day was rapidly approaching when Los Angeles and all other cities in the United States would "run scuppers of blood," as the downtrodden arose and slaughtered the malefactors.

Our doctrinaire divides mankind sharply into two categories, those who earned their living by hard manual labor, and the indolent, worthless classes who merely used their brains when wresting a livelihood from a reluctant world. It mattered not how valuable to his fellows a man's profession or work might be, he was marked for extinction just the same when the revolutionary era should be ushered in. It would have been interesting to have had a peep into the recesses of the man's mind, and discovered how he classified himself. For he was a lawyer, and, according to his own definition of a worker, he toiled not, neither did he spin.

A LOVING NEIGHBOR.

His address ended in a furious denunciation and an exhortation for his hearers to rise up and strike off the chains of wage slavery. He pounded the desk, rumpled his hair and became apoplectic with rage as he screamed out his defiance. When he finished, it would have needed little more to incite his auditors to commit crime and violence against those possessed of more plethoric pocketbooks than they.

"Whew, that certainly is loving your neighbor as yourself," gasped one of our party. "Wanting to cut his throat if he has a dollar more than you have."

The next speaker was a brawny youth of 25, who unblushingly told us that he had recently completed a three years' term in an Illinois prison. This announcement invoked enthusiastic cheers, from which I judged that a genuine mark of distinction in such circles was to fall foul of the law at same time in one's careed. He further informed us that, upon the completion of his term, the warden had given him the name of a farmer in the communty who was sorely in need of help and who was willing to accept ex-convicts as laborers. But our delightful young man ascertained that he would be paid only $2 a day, whereas, his labor would have been worth at least $4 or $5 to the farmer. He preferred to be a vagrant rather than have the agriculturist exploit him in this unseemly fashion.

ALAS FOR CONSISTENCY.

The meeting broke up in stormy extemporaneous speeches anent the wickedness and depravity of the upper classes, and the gentle sweetness that characterized the exploited ones. "They care no more for us than if we were the dirt beneath their feet," shouted one irate orator, "whereas all men should be equal and love one another as brothers."

And in the next breath he was reveling in vivid descriptions of the orgy of dynamite and blood that would herald the coming of the new era, when peons and peasants would teach the world the true meaning of democracy.

"The trouble with them is, that they are sore because they haven't a strangle hold on the wealth of the community themselves," suggested one member of our party.

As we left, we encountered the nice old gentleman who had extended me the original invitation. He inquired hopefully if I had become a proselyte to anarchism, and suggested that I attend one of their dances the following evening.

I did drop in at several of their meetings and lectures. What I heard would have aroused any one's risibilities, if it were not for the ugly menace one perceived in this method of inflaming the prejudices and hatred of the illiterate and excitable portion of the community. But it was rather comical the way they all desired to overthrow every law and custom that the human race had evolved through long ages of experiment and suffering.

INIQUITY OF MARRIAGE.

One woman waxed particularly eloquent over the iniqutiy of marriage. She thought it would be a vast improvement to substitute for this archaic system the delightful customs prevailing among the cave men, when each fond suitor sallied forth and hit the lady of his choice on the head with a brick and carried her away. She deplored woman's lack of freedom under modern conditions, but I could not see what the improvement would be, if all laws protecting women were to be revoked.

Among the poorer quarters of Los Angeles there are many thousands of ignorant, ill-informed persons who swallow the arguments handed out to them by these agitators who earn their livelihoods by playing upon their class prejudices. And they sincerely believe that the way to become wealthy themselves is to kill off all those who already have acquired comforts, and confiscate their property for their own desires.

COURAGE.

By Anna C. Sullivan.

Dear Lord, I do not wish to be
A whiner in adversity;
If Thou to me hast sent Thy rod,
Let me accept each stroke, Great God,
Not be a coward turning back
For fear of snags along the track,
Nor hide my head in cringing shame
And thus disgrace the very name
Of child of Thine.

I have no need to join the band
Of slackers in Thy glorious land,
When back of all that comes to me,
Thy hand, Great God, I clearly see.
In bravery then I take my stand
And fight with Thee at my right hand:
And when by foe I am thick pressed
I turn to Thee and find sweet rest Within Thy arms.

Thus, Lord, I welcome every blow
Dealt at me by the advancing foe;
For why should I retreat or cry,
With Thee, my captain, standing by?
I'll hold the place here by Thee given,
But know that the great goal is heaven.
What matter though the strife be long,
If through it all I hear Thy song,
And fighting die.

Thus only can I hope to win
The crown Thou hast reserved for him
Who on Thy word will e'er depend
And will endure unto the end.
What though it always is not bright,
Beyond it all the "Gates of Light"
Ever my guiding star will be
To lead me home to heaven and Thee,
And peace and rest.

ONE LANGUAGE IS ENOUGH FOR US.

BY ADALBERT BEACH,
[In Sacramento "Bee."]

England's richest gift to the American colonies was her speech—the language of Shakespeare and Milton. Consider the virility, viability and adaptability of the English language, as exemplified by the epochal documents which have been written therein.

As a medium through which advanced thought and original ideas are expressed, English today occupies an exalted position, from which it will never be dislodged. There is no land where the English language and literature have reached higher development than in the United States.

Which serves to remind us how rich in great men is America. There is no better reading than the biographies, or autobiographies, of great men. Many works instinct with lofty spirituality, and displaying exalted intellectual power, have been written in modern English. There is no language in the world better fitted than English to convey to the human mind great and noble ideas—whether those ideas be in the domain of art, science or literature, or in any other line of manful endeavor.

English is the language of the United States of America. There is no other true national language within the borders of the Great Republic.

READ ONLY THE BEST.

A good way to perfect oneself in the proprieties and niceties of English speech is to read only the best works written in the English language. Neither native nor foreign-born can afford to spend their time reading mediocre or spiritless books. Happy are the young men and young women of America whose interest is centered in good and pure literature—in the noblest creations of the human mind. Lovers of good English will not neglect either the Bible or the writings of Joseph Addison.

Not enough attention is paid to teaching English in our schools, colleges and universities. Men of power always know the exact meaning of the words which they employ to express their ideas. The humblest American citizen ought to understand the language of the United States. There are many gainful occupations in which it is essential that the conscientious worker shall know English. Work and worth should go hand in hand.

Every patriotic American, every loyal citizen of the United States, every lover of liberty and law, every sincere believer in those institutions which are peculiar to a free democracy, every friend of intellectual development, ought to pride himself on being able correctly to speak and write the noble language bequeathed to us by old England, and which has been greatly enriched in the last 150 years by the writings of men and women of superior mentality and high character.

OUR OWN LANGUAGE.

Every inhabitant of the United States ought to be taught the English language, to the entire neglect, if necessary, of all other languages, ancient and modern.

The career of Carl Schurz in America should be an inspiration to every foreign-born person dwelling beneath the Stars and Stripes. Nothing will do so much to make us a true homogeneous people as the universal diffusion of the English language throughout Uncle Sam's vast domain.

William Shakespeare, the mightiest intellect of all the ages, wrote in English, and in English which will be admired and enjoyed until time shall be no more. Faultless diction, exactitude and amplitude, and inexorable logic are qualities which distinguish Shakespeare's principal plays. In Rare Ben Jonson's phrase, Shakespeare "knew little Latin and less Greek."

Shakespeare is supposed to have attended the grammar school at Stratford, but of this we are not certain. When Shakespeare flourished there were few grammars and fewer dictionaries. There was no Goold Brown in his day.

ADMIRABLE VEHICLE.

Men of the transcendent genius of Shakespeare are capable of operating independently of tuition and training. Genius is invariably marked by an extraordinary faculty for original creation, interpretation and expression. Shakespeare "exceeded all the sons of men in the splendor of his imagination."

Language is the vehicle of thought. And Shakespeare's immortal works demonstrate conclusively that English is an ample, adequate and admirable vehicle of the sublimest and subtlest thought.

By the suffrages of enlightened mankind, Shakespeare occupies first place among the world's mighty thinkers, albeit leaders of men have in great crises uttered words which were worthy of Shakespeare, as when President Lincoln remarked, on the fall of Vicksburg, that "Again the Father of Waters goes unvexed to the sea."

The English poet Tennyson had a marvelous vocabulary. He was wont to work wonders with words. Tennyson's poems and dramas are of wondrous worth and beauty.

Tennyson was well acquainted with the laws which govern the material universe. He understood spiritual laws. He linked the natural with the divine. He knew literature and life. He added to the glory of the English language throughout the world.

WORKS WORTH READING.

William E. H. Lecky is an illustrious historian, philosopher and moralist whose writings strikingly exemplify the adaptability, flexibility and beauty of the English language. He is one of the world's greatest men—great both in intellect and in soul. His views on public and private morals, and his thoughts on all those great movements to promote the progress and prosperity of nations, and to compass the supreme happiness of mankind, are held in high esteem.

Lecky is a brilliant rhetorician, a masterful logician, an accurate thinker, an undoubted authority on the use of words. His splendid diction is the wonder and admiration of the intellectual world. The serious student of the true philosophy of history, the lover of the lore of liberty, the seeker after spiritual and ethical truth, the admirer of faultless and elegant English, will familiarize himself with the mighty thoughts of Lecky.

Read Lecky's "History of England in the Eighteenth Century," in which the author treats at length of both the French Revolution and the American Revolution.

GOOD IN ENGLISH.

We are often told that a work of genius written in a foreign language loses much of its pith, marrow, flavor and beauty by being translated into English.

On this point Ralph Waldo Emerson declares:

> I rarely read any Latin, Greek, German, Italian, sometimes not a French book, in the original, which I can procure in a good version. I like to be beholden to the great metropolitan English speech, the sea which receives tributaries from every region under heaven. I should as soon think of swimming across Charles River when I wish to go to Boston as of reading all my books in originals when I have them rendered for me in my mother-tongue.

Read Emerson's illuminative essays on "Culture" and "Books."

Love for the manifold beauties of the English language inspires the typical American man of letters.

Language, literature, learning, knowledge, education, culture can have no higher, holier, nobler function than to increase the sum of human joy, to make better men and better women, to apotheosize character and conscience, to advance the cause of civilization. Sterling literature is intimately related to life at its best. Literature and life are intertwined.

USEFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Poor, indeed are those who wholly neglect the cultivation of the brain and the acquiring of useful knowledge.

These are the words of Daniel Webster:

> It is the glorious prerogative of the empire of knowledge that what it gains it never loses. On the contrary, it increases by the multiple of its own power; all its ends become means; all its attainments help to new conquests.

The student of literary history is impressed by the number and variety of meritorious works which have been written in the English language. Those of the English-speaking nations may well be proud of their language.

Then hail to the English language—the mother tongue of our patriot fathers, and of noteworthy American litterateurs, scholars, scientists, philosophers, editors, teachers, heroes, humanitarians, historians, humorists, orators, statesmen, discoverers, and inventors; the language in which music's myriad voices are attuned to divine melodies; the language of many a hardy pioneer who has made "the desert bloom as the rose;" the speech of those who "fired the shot heard round the world;" the language in which has been heard the battle cry of freedom in countless sanguinary conflicts, from Lexington Green to Appomattox Courthouse, and from Appomattox to the fair fields of France; the language spoken by those who for centuries have waged relentless warfare against autocracy and against tyranny and slavery in all their forms; the language of those whose sentiment is, in these stirring days of 1918, as it was the sentiment of Gen. John A. Dix in the early days of '61, "If any man attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot!"

Every enemy of the English language is an enemy of the United States.

USEFUL INVENTIONS.

For deep-sea fishing a tiny submarine carries the line to any desired depth.

Enough matches to light all its contents are attached to a recently-invented cigarette box.

It is now proposed to use a rubber sponge molded to fit the inside of the casing, and in this manner produce a puncture-proof auto tire. The car still rides on air, but this air is confined in innumerable little sacks.

Alcohol is being made in Ciudad Juarez, Mex., from a plant called sotol, which grows uncultivated in Mexico and Southern Texas. Consul E. A. Dow reports that from eighteen to twenty-five gallons of alcohol can be produced from one ton of the plant.

The Dutch water wheel is a new device which is now being used in Egypt, and it is also suitable for short lifts. The wheel is simple and easy to run. This machine has been tried in the United Provinces in India and a favorable report made upon it.

The machine that makes artificial comb foundation for beehives is the invention of Frances A. Dunham, who patented it in 1881. The ready-made comb of beeswax permits the bees to devote themselves entirely to filling the cells, increasing the output of honey.

Heather is ground to form a new sort of flour, and is then mixed with blood from the slaughter-houses, when it replaces such commodities as peanut flour, copra flour, etc., which can no longer be obtained in Denmark. It would appear that the promoters of this new form of fodder believe that this is not a temporary substitute for that customarily used, but that this industry will have a lasting character.

To make the artificial eye practically indistinguishable is the aim of a British army surgeon who is experimenting with a ball made of cartilage as a substitute for a metal or glass one. A sphere of such construction, when put in place, establishes connection with blood vessels and the surrounding tissues. When thus fixed in the cavity it is supposed to be capable of movement corresponding to that of a normal eye, and furthermore fills the space so that there is no depression, as is invariably the case when a shell is used. Although time must yet prove the practicability of the scheme, there is reason to expect that the war has brought forth another triumph in plastic surgery.

Danish scientists claim to have discovered a method of manufacturing yeast without using grain as raw material.

To replace worn heels on shoes an inventor has patented a separate heel that can be attached without the use of tools.

Of European invention is a lifeboat for sea-going vessels that will carry 100 persons and right itself if capsized.

An inventor has patented a fruit corer with a spiral blade so that a user can remove as much of the fruit as desired.

A motor-sleigh of German invention is driven by pointed rods alternately pushed back against its roadway by the motor.

A spring support carried on rollers from an overhead frame is intended to share the load of heavy flatirons used by tailors.

An English golf enthusiast has patented a club, in the head of which is a device to measure the force of stroke.

DESPARD.

By MARY MADDOCK SMALE.

Despard was young, but not too young,
And rich and good looking, and "brave," he said;
"I want to fight," was a song he sung,
"I want to fight till I am dead,
Or the Kaiser is vanquished;" but one who knew
Said: "His boasting is far from true,
No meaner coward remains unhung."

Conscription came and Despard went,
To his doctor to learn what his symptoms meant,
His skin was yellow as it could be,
His nature was yellow as you can see.
The willing doctor grasped the wad
Of bills that came from that hand to his,
A shaking hand neath a pallid phiz,
And winked: "I see you believe in God."

"Your liver is soft, your arteries hard,
You never will pass at all, Despard;
And as for your leathern hue, my man,
It's plain 'scare,' showing through the tan.
Perhaps in a year, if you fast and pray,
I may pass you in, if you come my way."
Despard rejoiced, and shouted long
For the Liberty Bonds and composed a song;
Then carried an' actress, his love despoils,
Out to the beaches and down to Doyle's.

"She's a hard little nut," he said, "to win,
From the ways of right to the paths of sin,
For her wit is as keen as a bayonet;
But she cares for me, and she'll love me yet,
When she finds me a patriot brave, you bet."
He ate more, drank more, talked more, too,
Of his patriot forbears, bold and true.
He sang to the girl his patriot song,
He "wanted to go" but his heart was wrong
In one way, but "right" in another, still,
He always had thought it wrong to kill.

Then loosing the power of his speeding car,
He climbed the hill from the ocean bar,
And turned on the track where the racers go,
Where even the lightning seems too slow.
A man stepped out from the dripping lane,
Limping and old; though the light was plain,
He saw not the car, no horn he heard,
Till it struck him; he died without a word.

Despard leaped out when [illegible] was stilled,
To look on the face of the man he'd killed,
Then turned to the girl with a [illegible] in his tone:
"Just an old 'vet' from the Soldiers' Home."
The girl got down and knelt in the road,
Pale were her cheeks that had lately glowed,
"Grandfather!!" she screamed, as the old man's face
Turned on her knee from it's [illegible] place.

Despard will never forget again,
While he holds his place in the [illegible] of men,
The sorrow that shaded her countenance fair,
The horror and loathing that trembled there.
Back from her heart the red blood flew
Till rage was the only thing she knew,
And Despard the brute she was [illegible] to.
"Coward and traitor," she cried with scorn,
"Hell was cheated when you were born.
The scars he wore for his country's sake,
Could ransom your soul from the burning lake.
Fool! with your craven chin [illegible] high,
Could you not halt till a king [illegible] by."

Blood on her garments, so [illegible] soiled,
Blood of a hero, by Fate [illegible],
Purging the soul of the girl that fled
To the battle front from her [illegible] dead.
Careless of danger in charge [illegible]
Working her soul's salvation [illegible]
Intrepid she, where the [illegible] roam,
While Despard stays and [illegible] home.

History of the Tricolor.

The Tricolor, the French [illegible] standard, of blue, white and red [illegible]vided vertically, originated during the first French Revolution. In 1789 the leaf plucked by Camille Desmoulins in the garden of the Palais Royal became a rallying [illegible] and green was to be adopted as the national color, but, remembering that green was the color of the hated Prince d'Artois, they rejected it on the following day. They first chose, instead, blue and red, the colors of the city of Paris, and later added the white of royalty that had been faithfully preserved by the National Guard. This standard was adopted with enthusiasm. A few months after the taking of the Bastille, Bailly and Lafayette offered to Louis XVI the three-colored cocard as a badge of the reconciliation with the King. Thus the Tricolor originated as the symbol of the liberty of the French nation, and it continued as such even when afterward the "reconciliation" with the King ended with his decapitation.—[New York Tribune.

Despard leaped out when his car was stilled,
To look on the face of the man he'd killed,
Then turned to the girl with a sneer in his tone:
"Just an old 'vet' from the Soldiers' Home."
The girl got down and knelt in the road,
Pale were her cheeks that had lately glowed.
"Grandfather!!" she screamed, as the old man's face
Turned on her knee from it's lifted place.

Despard will never forget again,
While he holds his place in the ranks of men,
The sorrow that shaded her countenance fair,
The horror and loathing that trembled there.
Back from her heart the red blood flew
Till rage was the only thing she knew,
And Despard the brute she was talking to.
"Coward and traitor," she cried with scorn,
"Hell was cheated when you were born.
The scars he wore for his country's sake,
Could ransom your soul from the burning lake.
Fool! with your craven chin held high,
Could you not halt till a king passed by."

Blood on her garments, so late unsoiled,
Blood of a hero, by Fate despoiled,
Purging the soul of the girl who fled
To the battle front from her gallant dead.
Careless of danger in charge or rest,
Working her soul's salvation out,
Intrepid she, where the star-shells roam,
While Despard stays and slays at home.

History of the Tricolor.

The Tricolor, the French national standard, of blue, white and red, divided vertically, originated during the first French Revolution. In 1789 the leaf plucked by Camille Desmoulins in the garden of the Palais Royal became a rallying sign, and green was to be adopted as the national color, but, remembering that green was the color of the hated Prince d'Artois, they rejected it on the following day. They at first chose, instead, blue and red, the colors of the city of Paris, and later added the white of royalty, that had been faithfully preserved by the National Guard. This new standard was adopted with enthusiasm. A few months after the taking of the Bastille, Bailly and Lafayette offered to Louis XVI the three-colored cocard as a badge of the reconciliation with the King. Thus the Tricolor originated as the symbol of the liberty of the French nation, and it continued as such even when afterward the "reconciliation" with the King ended with his decapitation.—[New York Tribune.

You see it really pays to attend a solid substantial school with a long record of efficiency such as the Willis-Woodbury, for they are receiving more calls for book-keepers, secretaries and stenographers than they are able to fill! More than twice as many pupils have enrolled this June as in June of last year. You'll find it cool and pleasant. 5th floor, Hamburger Bldg.

The most difficult household problem is that of keeping the silver clean. Have you discovered the wonders of Nonollo? It does the work with a dispatch and thoroughness which delights the housewife. Don't fail to use it for polishing and cleaning everything—woodwork of all kinds and kitchen utensils. Ask your grocer for Nonollo and "try it on your piano."

Young women are wearing military capes of blue lined with red and trimmed with gold buttons.

If you have not lunched on the balcony at Young's, 638 S. Broadway, you have missed a treat. Fresh fruit and vegetables are used in their clean, up-to-date "cuisine"—also the very best of meats and bakery goods. If your palate craves a dainty, you're sure to find it there. Served with the efficiency which appeals to the busy man or woman.

It's the knack of wrapping the hair so it will not be kinky that makes Mrs. Hudgen's permanent wave so satisfactory! She gives each curl her personal attention and as she has a diploma and seven years' experience, failure is unknown in her shop. She can quickly tell what wave your hair will take. Prom. 8, Brack-Shops.

Late summer evening frocks will be seen in dark organdies trimmed with net.

Good old-fashioned ginger bread with whipped cream! Doesn't that make your mouth water? It's a special at the very newest tea room in Los Angeles—the Assembly, 5th floor, Brack-Shops. All dishes served taste as if cooked in your own home. Don't forget they serve dinner every evening as well as tea and luncheon.

Have you tried the 50-cent dinner at the Boston Lunch Room, No. [illegible] S. Hope? The most excellent "French pastry" is to be had there! Thursday evening is the special night for fried Belgian hare—and on Sunday night one has the choice of hot or cold meats. You will especially enjoy their hot muffins!

Wool embroidery in several colors is very smart trimming for sport suits.

Why be fat? You can have the figure of a Hebe without effort, diet or drugs. Pleasant and healthgiving. Indorsed by best physicians. Improves circulation. Weight Reducing Co., 618 Brockman Bldg.

Bring in your old furs and have them remodeled or you may be too late in getting them for fall! Fur expert, Alice Hardy, 520 S. Broadway, busy at her shop, Braun Bldg., third floor.

Sleep On.

on. Your son was called today.
heard. He kissed the flag and rode away.
he went I saw him turn and wave brown hand, in parting, at your grave.

on. He did not ask you why he should go—that he should fight and die, simply knew, through kindred ties of blood, he must go. His spirit understood.

on. It was his wish to go.
was your son. The fates had willed it so he, like you, man's rugged cross should bear, do you honor, comrade, over there.

on. The years seem but a day for liberty, bled that it might live and, so from your dust your son will rise to fame.

With the Same Pride.

One star for all she had,
And in her heart
One wound—yet is she glad
For all its smart
As they are glad who bear
The pangs of birth
That a new soul and fair
May come to earth,
Seeing she, too, was one
Who from death's strife
Granted her first-born son
Proudly to life,
Now with that very faith
Life justified,
She grants a son to Death
With the same pride.

Reductions! Beautiful Silk Suits—Some to $39.50—Others to $29.50

—It is practically impossible to manipulate type so that you may know—

1.—What splendid suits they are—

2.—What a magic word "Reductions!" is in this case—and

3.—The difference between the suits to be $39.50 and those to be $29.50—

—They are all reduced because of that habit of good business which has to do with the selling of short lines quickly. From most angles it seems perfectly absurd to mark them down, so perfectly are they in accord with Fashion, so eminently desirable at the prices they have been—but they are marked down— and that is the point—Do not underestimate it—suits that it may be impossible to duplicate in similar styles of similar materials at higher prices than these have been marked—are to be $29.50 and $39.50—Monday at Bullock's.

—Beautiful silk suits as eminent in their character as in their practical serviceability——Suits of silk and satin—in models of which the illustrations may give you an idea—suits of taffeta, silk faille and heavy satin in navy, Copenhagen, beige, taupe, tan and black.

—Words cannot tell—but take the words for granted and back them with the sincerity of Bullock's—and this assurance that it is an offering that many would wish not to miss—$29.50 and $39.50—at Bullock's—3rd Floor.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY ADMA WHITAKER.

THE fresh air camp for needy and anemic children is receiving the hearty support of the clubwomen. A market has been established at No. 840 South Broadway for the very urgent exchequer purposes, and the generously laden gardens of flowers so abundant just now, will contribute the daily stock. Give and buy flowers to help children. But there is also great need of clothing for these ill-supplied youngsters, and affluent mammas may donate all the suits and underwear that little Johnnie and Mirabelle have grown out of in the complete assurance that every garment will be worn to a shred by its new possessor. Canned goods for use at the camp will also be welcomed.

To whet interest in the scheme numerous good speakers will make addresses at headquarters—for instance on Tuesday, next, at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., Mrs. E. M. Farmer will discuss "War Bread and Babies"—the sort of practical talk that will help the mothers to provide the best substitutes for the scarce foods. Similar talks will be given every day covering every branch of child welfare. Mrs. C. F. Flinn has some valuable information on physical training and will speak at 2 p.m. on Monday.

Maternity Cottage.

The annual meeting of the Maternity Cottage Hospital was held at the Alexandria on Thursday evening, when the reports showed that 198 mothers and babies had been cared for, all the bills paid, and a small balance left in the treasury. The Maternity Cottage has an excellent record, for in ten years during which 2297 mothers have been cared for, only one has lost her life, and the baby lived to become the youngest member of the Gardena Woman's Club.

The newly-elected officers were President, Mrs. W. Baurhyte; vice-president, Mrs. Foster Elliott; recording secretary, Mrs. G. W. Grimes; treasurer, R. Morgan, Galbraith; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Kenneth M. Bissell; auditor, Mrs. A. S. McKevett; directors, Mmes. F. S. Barnard, Beatrice Duane, H. L. Shepherd, Anne Dewey Chapin and C. S. Salisbury.

Ye Colonial Dames.

A new organization has been formed under the title of "Ye Colonial Dames," which is to be ultra-exclusive in that all of the fifteen members claim to be descendants of those who signed the Declaration of Independence, and must also be Daughters of the American Revolution. Their forbears are all described as having been "landed proprietors in England," which, of course, is a superlative recommendation. The president is Mrs. F. F. Gouchier and the secretary, Mrs. Ralph Van Steward. They meet at each others' houses on the first Tuesday of the month, the first two meetings having been held at the homes of the president and secretary, respectively.

Woman's City Club.

The Woman's City Club will open its doors to all members of other clubs for the programme tomorrow, when Monteville Flowers, president of the Lyceum circuit, will make an address on "The Case of Germany."

Luncheon will be served in Hamburger's Cafe at noon and the programme begins in the auditorium at 1 p.m.

Woman's Fellowship Club.

The Woman's Fellowship Club held its annual election last Thursday when the following officers assumed office: President, Mrs. Carrie Smith Paulson; vice-president, Mrs. Waian Courtright; secretary, Mrs. Janet Evetmore; federation secretary, Mrs. Anise Matson; treasurer, Mrs. John C. Hill; directors, Mmes. Reybold E. Blight, David A. Harrison, W. C. Smalstig.

F. W. Blanchard made an address on "Democracy in Music," and Mrs. B. A. Davis read her poem, "The Service Flag."

Audubon Society.

At the last meeting of the Audubon Society on Thursday, annual reports were read which included the observations on eight field days and the 101 varieties of birds recorded. There are eighty-eight members of the society. Mrs. W. S. Bicknell, the president, in her capacity of district chairman for birds in the Federation, has made twenty-three addresses. There are thirteen stars on the service flag of the organization.

Retiring officers were decorated by the president with the newly-adopted rosette of the order, and the new board was welcomed with complimentary congratulations. Miss Ada Wilson of Pasadena read a paper on her two months in the White Mountains—and thus closed the last meeting of the club year.

At Alhambra.

Alhambra clubwomen and Red Cross workers celebrated the opening of their new Salvage Home yesterday, provided by the generosity of Mrs. William Meade Orr of Pittsburgh, whose winter home is in Alhambra. Members of the Alhambra and San Gabriel chapters of the Red Cross collaborated, as did an enthusiastic concourse of residents, to make the event a dazzling success. Mrs. Clarence Van Graham, president of the Woman's City Club is secretary-treasurer of the committee, of which Miss Margaret Halstead is chairman. Gov. Stephens graced the occasion and made a patriotic address, and other speakers were Judge William Northrup and Judge Frederick Houser. A good musical programme was provided in which Mrs. L. J. Selby sang, and the Alhambra and Whittier bands took part.

Mrs. Orr's gift house is a complete and artistic home for the salvage corps, and consists of four fully furnished rooms.

At Glendale.

The British Ambulance Society of Glendale will hold a gala affair on Wednesday afternoon next when a bevy of Los Angeles visitors, including a contingent from the Friday Morning Club, will appear on the scene. Under the modest title of a programme tea all sorts of alluring attractions will be provided, including a few brisk short speeches, music, and, it is hoped, an army officer or two.

The picnic meeting at which the installation of officers of the Glendale Federation of Parent-Teacher associations, as well as of the individual associations took place at La Ramada on Monday afternoon, was largely attended, the enthusiasm of the gathering increasing through the long programme following the luncheon, despite the warm weather. Mrs. Arthur Brown, the retiring president, was presented with a rose-filled basket in a little speech by Mrs. Blake Franklin, to which she gave a feeling response. Mrs. Charles Toll, the first speaker of the day, spoke in helpful detail of the ways in which the Parent-Teacher associations may co-operate with the boards of education. Supt. Richardson D. White told of the possibilities of constructive summer work, especially through the Junior Red Cross. Mrs. W. A. Galentine talked of child conservation and Mrs. H. V. Davies read an original poem. Prof. Harry Howe and E. K. Barnes talked on Thrift Stamps and announced the big Liberty parade for Tuesday. Mrs. Kemper Campbell told of the drive for women physicians and hospitals and Prof. George U. Moyse gave an address on patriotic service. Talks by Mrs. C. C. Noble and Rev. Clifford Cole concluded the programme, which included several readings by Mrs. G. E. Roach and Miss Mildred McKee and songs by the Treble Clef of the Tuesday Afternoon Club.

The annual luncheon and final meeting of the year of the Thursday Club, at the home of the re-elected president, Mrs. Wesley Bullis, was an informal affair at which the board of directors acted as assistant hostesses to the thirty club members present. A few impromptu toasts were given and the luncheon was followed by a brief musical programme preceding the business meeting, at which committee reports were read and a summary of the year's work by Mrs. Bullis was discussed informally by the club members. The hostesses of the afternoon were Mmes. C. A. Barker, Harold Davenport, Edwin Virden, J. Herbert Smith, A. J. Becker, T. Gaither, James Wilbur, Mary Ayers, S. E. Brown and Miss Ida Meyers.

The newly organized Wednesday Club, which will meet fortnightly without vacation through the summer season, with the object of carrying on Red Cross and Belgian relief work in addition to social pleasures, held its third session at the home of the president, Mrs. William Gibson of No. 700 West Ninth street. Plans for the summer were discussed while surgeon's aprons and baby shoes were uninterruptedly constructed and arrangements were completed for the picnic at Echo Park which will constitute the next meeting.

A child conference held under the auspices of the U and I Club on Monday proved instructive to the mothers of the thirty-six children brought in for medical inspection by Drs. Maude Wilde, Chapin and Hagen, who, together with Mrs. B. Booth, gave advice as to corrective measures for defects in many cases unsuspected. The club believes it has set a precedent here for more organized investigation along this line.

The war relief section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club held its last regular meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. W. Beach, who served luncheon to the members preceding the business meeting. Reports of the work of the past year were read.

Entre Nous Club.

The last meeting of the season of the Boyle Heights Entre Nous Club Wednesday afternoon was well attended and demonstrated the thoroughly patriotic spirit of the club. A comprehensive paper on "American Authors" was read by Mrs. McCormick. Miss Myrtle I. Eldred gave patriotic and classical piano selections. The salute to the flag by Mrs. C. L. Vose brought forth a rising vote of thanks. Mrs. V. Fisher gave some of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's latest inspirations, followed by a vocal selection by Mrs. May Powell and a violin duet by the tiny Misses Alice Petzelt and Lucile McGregor. The book review by Miss Adda M. Post proved extremely interesting.

Woman's Democratic League.

The last meeting of the Woman's Democratic League took place at the Douglas Building on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. B. A. Davis presiding. The Woman's Land Army was discussed by Mrs. Marie A. Larkey, Mrs. Ada French and Miss Ruth Avery, and Mrs. L. A. Beach talked on the general topic of war conditions at home. The league has adjourned until October.

At Redondo Beach.

Mrs. M. J. Frick, retiring president of the Redondo Beach Woman's Club, has submitted the following report of the club's activities during the year. American history was studied by a section of the club with a view to intelligent comparison of present conditions. The book section kept abreast with the modern war literature and met once a month for general discussion. The home economics [illegible] advanced course in the Univ[illegible] California on "Feeding the [illegible] and thus learned the values of [illegible] substitutes and how to use them [illegible] the best advantage. D.A.R.

The Tierra Alta chapter of the D.A.R. has adjourned for the summer. The last meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Caroline [illegible] West Avenue 56, when the installation of the new officers took place.

Mrs. W. B. Labrie made an address, Miss Dorothea [illegible] provided a piano solo and a patriotic programme was given by the children of the chapter.

Canadian Woman's Club.

The Canadian Woman's Club needs more Red Cross workers and asks for volunteers for Friday, [illegible] a.m. to 5 p.m., or part time, at the Allies' Aid Association's headquarters in the Hibernian Bank Building.

SKINNING THE SHARK.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) June 19.—Shark skin trench boots and puttees may be a part of the equipment of American soldiers before this war is over. As everyone knows, leather of the usual kinds, made mostly from cowhide, horsehide and goat skin, is very scarce, and promises to be scarcer, although the supply so far is holding up better than experts expected.

The Bureau of Fisheries has taken advantage of this leather shortage to push one of its favorite projects—the use of shark skin and other fish skins for leather. The project has now reached the stage of a very promising infant industry. A number of tanners are in the market for shark skins; they have been tanned in considerable quantities, and shoes and other goods have been made from them experimentally. One tanner had a pair of shoes for his boy made from shark skin, and asserts that they wore better than any ordinary leather shoes the boy ever had.

The layman is apt to imagine that shark skin is a queer, exotic-looking product, like alligator skin. Such is not the case. You cannot tell it from cowhide leather unless you are an expert. Dr. Lewis Radcliff of the Bureau of Fisheries, who has charge of the work of popularizing the despised shark, has a whole drawerful of tanned leather samples, made from the skins of various sharks, and also of codfish, cusk and menhaden, and from the intestines of whales. The tanned shark skin looks, feels and smells like ordinary leather, and a high gunmetal finish has been successfully imparted to it. The most impressive piece of leather in the collection is that made from the major intestine of a whale. It is so thin that light will pass through it—but nothing else will. Whenever this sample is shown to a manufacturer with a view to interesting him in its use he always tries to poke a hole in it with his finger to show how useless it is, and he always fails.

There are not enough whales left alive to form the basis for much of a whale-leather industry, but there are plenty of sharks. There are sharks in all the waters of the world from the Arctic and Antarctic oceans to the seas under the equator. For years sharks have been neglected and allowed to multiply at the expense of far more valuable fish upon which they prey. Now the Bureau of Fisheries has shown that they are excellent food; that the oil of their livers is a good grade of fish oil, and that their skins make a good leather and offer a large enough cutting surface for the making of boots and shoes, harness and all other small leather articles. There is every reason to believe that the shark is to be the basis of an industry of world proportions.

The thing that is needed now is enterprise on the part of fishermen, tanners, manufacturers, canners and preservers of foods. Those who want to get in on the ground floor of a new and promising industry would do well to look into the proposition which the shark offers. It is probably the first safe project ever offered the public by a shark, and the first opportunity to skin a shark with profit.

One well-known American who has gone into the shark business in earnest is Russell J. Coles, who recently came into the limelight as the companion of Col. Roosevelt in his expedition after devilfish. Mr. Coles is an angler and all around sportsman. He formed the habit of visiting the experimental station and fish hatchery of the Bureau of Fisheries at Beaufort, N. C., and so became interested in the scientific and commercial aspects of fishing. He is now considered an ichthyologist (that is a fishologist) of some attainments, and is giving most of his time to the promotion of the shark industry. With some heavy nets, which were recommended to him by the Bureau of Fisheries, he is catching fifty to sixty sharks a day off the coast of North Carolina for commercial purposes.

This new shark business is to serve a quadruple use. It is to add to our food supply, our oil supply, out leather supply, and to conserve other food fishes by reducing the numbers of the sharks—for all sharks are voracious beasts of prey.

The value of all the shark products has been abundantly proved. The Bureau of Fisheries has succeeded in popularizing the use as food of one small kind of shark—the gray fish. A few years ago it was never eaten. Last year 4,000,000 pounds of it were used as food. But most of the hides of these gray fish were wasted. And in like manner, the meat of most of the larger sharks, which were taken for their hides, was thrown away. The future of the industry depends upon educating the fishermen to use all parts of the shark, and the manufacturers to offer a ready market for them. When meat, hide and liver oil are all properly utilized a big shark, now often thrown away, will be worth a good many dollars.

Fishermen just at present are getting good prices for the fish, which they have been accustomed to catching, and so are unwilling to devote their time to a new and untried industry such as shark fishing. Then, too, many fishermen are now engaged in war work, as are many boats that would otherwise be available for fishing. All of these factors, combined with the well-known conservatism and inertia which always operate to prevent the human animal from taking up new projects and occupations, are apparently all that prevent a rapid development of the shark industry. No doubt a more rapid expansion will come after the war, when there is more capital and more labor available.

Sharks are found at some time of the year in practically all of the coastal water of the United States. Although the very large sharks are somewhat rare, those from nine to twelve feet in length are by no means scarce, and these furnish leather with a large enough cutting surface for most manufacturing purposes. The Gulf of Mexico, the waters off the southern coast of California, and those of Southeast Alaska are mentioned by the Bureau of Fisheries as specially promising localities for shark fishing. In the Gulf of Mexico, these fish are so abundant that attempts to seine menhaden have failed owing to the fact that the sharks always tore the nets to pieces. Off the Southeast Alaskan coast, there is a variety known as the mud shark which tanners are especially eager to obtain, although the fishery experts say that its hide is really no more valuable than that of other sharks. The Island of Hawaii is also a good field for the shark industry, and one fisherman there says he can supply 200 tons of shark hides annually.

Heavy nets seem to be the best means of taking sharks, but they may also be harpooned, shot and taken with hook and line.

RED CROSS AFFAIRS

At Hooker Gardens.

The Ebell Club, representing 1600 women, is taking great interest in the Red Cross benefit garden party to be given tomorrow at the Hooker gardens, No. 325 West Adams street.

At this garden party Carlos F. Hardy will be one of the four-minute speakers. Miss Mary Louise Hand will be heard as a whistling soloist. Raymond Fruth, the blind xylophone player, will be in the dance hall. A Punch and Judy, with Miss Margaret Goetz in charge, will provide fun for the children.

The social science section of the Ebell will devote itself to psychic phenomena. The oracles may be consulted by means of the soothsayer, the palmist and the card reader. Artists taking part will be Dr. Ameen Fareed, who will personate Omar Khayyam reincarnated.

Mrs. Agnes Ross Thomas will donate her knowledge of palmistry, personating a priestess of the temple. Mme. Amage Ringer, a clever French fortune-teller, will be in attendance. Mrs. William W. Huntington, numerologist, will prophecy according to the science of numbers.

Children's Festival.

A children's festival will be given on June 29 at Red Cross Shop, Eighth and Alvarado streets, by the Country Club Heights Red Cross Auxiliary. The committee extends an invitation to all children, those without pennies being as welcome as those more fortunate. The grown-ups also will be amused, as those in charge have worked unceasingly to make Saturday a banner day. Mrs. William F. Howard, No. 978 Western avenue, is chairman of arrangements, and Mrs. W. M. Duffield is chairman of the day. Mrs. John J. Abramson is programme chairman. Others on the committee are Mrs. William Noble, Mrs. A. H. Davidson, Mrs. John Switzer and Mrs. William Reed. Miss Winona Hartley and Miss Ruth Colburn. The Fisher School of Hollywood will feature dancing. Under direction of Mrs. William Duffield, eight little girls will sing Mrs. Duffield's songs of childhood. Music during luncheon will be furnished by Miss Viola Foley on the violin and Miss Elpha Foley will sing. These entertainers will dress in Spanish costume. Mrs. Harley Brundige will be one of the sales ladies in the clothing department, and Miss Maude Befang Fisher will entertain by giving interpretive dancing. Ice cream cones will be sold by the Troop Boys, and there will be many other features.

Bridge Tea Tomorrow.

Tomorrow there will be a bridge tea at the Red Cross Shop, with Mrs. Mary Le Grand Reed hostess, assisted by Mrs. Amelia Hogan, Mrs. Katherine Fisk, Mrs. James Bastable, Miss Lerman and Mr. Dunning. Luncheon 12:30-1:30. Mrs. Edward Crowley and Mrs. Thomas Fenton luncheon hostesses.

On Tuesday there will be special bargains in all departments of the shop, and luncheon will be served from 12:30 to 1:30. Luncheon hostesses will be Mrs. Thomas Fenton and Mrs. Edward Crowley.

On Wednesday, vaudeville and film stars will be honor guests. Mrs. Winifred Kingston and Mrs. William Brill will be hostesses. Mrs. H. Joe Isaacs and Mrs. Victor Rossetti will be luncheon hostesses. The luncheon programme will be in charge of Mrs. I. H. Norton.

On Thursday a popular programme will be in charge of Bert Cammack and H. C. Crippin, with Mrs. Vera C. M. Carter hostess; luncheon hostess, Mrs. Gale Butts.

On Friday, stars of the legitimate stage will be honor guests; Mme. Helen Thorner and Mrs. Claire Tappaan, hostesses; Mrs. M. N. Keeling and Mrs. F. M. Fairchilds, luncheon hostesses.

Musicale and Reading.

There will be a musicale and reading for the benefit of the Red Cross under the auspices of the Angeles Mesa auxiliary, on the lawn of the C. L. Buratti residence, No. 5423 Sixth avenue, this evening. The music will be supplied by professional members of the Symphony Orchestra. A silver offering will be taken all of which will go to the Red Cross.

For Benefit Ball.

The Sunshine Auxiliary Red Cross will give a benefit ball and card party on Tuesday evening at Kramer's studio, when Miss Goldie Schneider and Mr. Philip Fessenden are married. Mr. and Mrs. Myers White, assisted by a large number of their friends, will be in charge of the ball and card party, and all the money will be turned over to their auxiliary.

WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The home economics section took an advanced course in the University of California on "Feeding the Family," and thus learned the values of food substitutes and how to use them to the best advantage. The club's contributions to the numerous war calls amounted to $608.19, and Liberty Bonds were purchased to the extent of $1200.

D.A.R.

The Tierra Alta chapter of the D.A.R. has adjourned for the summer. The last meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Caroline Haught, West Avenue 56, when the installation of the new officers took place.

Mrs. W. B. Labrie made an address, Miss Dorothea Haught provided a piano solo and a patriotic programme was given by the children of the chapter.

Canadian Woman's Club.

The Canadian Woman's Club needs more Red Cross workers and asks for volunteers for Fridays, a.m. to 5 p.m., or part time, at the Allies' Aid Association's headquarters in the Hibernian Bank Building.

FAR-REACHING BEAUTY.

Los Angeles Grocery Store Inspires Attempt to Beautify Philadelphia Business Places.

It needs not the tongue of men or of angels to convince us that Los Angeles has the best grocery store in the world—nor, in fact the best anything; but it is inspiring when a great editor who visits us declares the fact not only here, but to his readers in Philadelphia.

During a recent visit to Los Angeles, Mr. Cyrus K. Curtis, president of the famous Curtis Publishing Company (Ladies Home Journal, etc.) expressed amazement that such a store as that of the H. Jevne Company, should be located west of the Rocky Mountains; for he frankly averred that the store was the handsomest grocery store he had ever seen anywhere.

His admiration did not end with this expression; but upon return to Philadelphia he prepared an article in the Public Ledger calling attention to this "corner grocery" and contrasting it with the specimens in that city. In fact, Mr. Curtis has declared it as his intention to give his city no rest until it has reached the Jevne standard.

Mr. Curtis speaks especially of the inviting window displays, and mentions how an unintending man was lured by them into the hospitably open doors, and when within was enticed from one handsomely arranged show case to another, until he was buying in spite of himself, from the stock of high class goods so attractively exhibited. From this the thoughtful writer draws the lesson and emphasizes the truth that while clothes may not make the man, an attractive appearance does have much to do with the popularity of a store and the happy arrangement of goods goes a long way toward selling them.

Cuts showing the spacious aisles, the plate glass show cases and the handsome fixtures of the Jevne store help to "show how it is done" in Los Angeles. Attention is called to the fact that good taste and skill in the manner of offering wares rather than a large capital to start with, have been at the foundation of the success of H. Jevne Company, and a comparison of prices is made to prove that attractiveness need not mean additional cost to the purchaser.

A spontaneous tribute such as the one paid by the owner of the Public Ledger, should cause a thrill of pride in the breast of every Angeleno; for intelligent appreciation such as this, holds a mirror up to nature—the nature of one of our city's institutions. All who are sufficiently discriminating to patronize such institutions and help to build them up are felicitated in the well deserved praise accorded.

Magnet Used to Pull Staple Out.

A piece of iron staple three-quarters of an inch long was removed from the lower part of the left lung of Miss Lucille Williams, 20 years old, in St. Vincent's Hospital, Toledo. The staple was removed by a physician who used an electric magnet.

The girl had been treated since she was 9 years old for tuberculosis. How the staple got into her lung neither she nor her parents could state.

Physicians say that the girl's recovery now is expected to be rapid.

HAPPY THOUGHT CLUB
SYMPOSIUM

AMONG the visitors at the symposium of the Happy Thought Club yesterday was an Englishman—none other than Lord Howe-Long, Baron of Reezun, Knight of the Turkish Bath. It is hinted that the mission of the baron in this country is to recruit a regiment of expert crapshooters for the task of cleaning up Berlin, but that he is saying nothing. So far as the club is concerned, his call was for the purpose of intrusting to the organization the original harp that once through Tara's halls the soul of music shed. This is the wonderful instrument that was played by the magic fingers of Sheila Mahone at the crowning of King [illegible]. It is even possible to trace the name of that ancient Gaelic [illegible] as it was carved upon the [illegible] of the time, although the Old Resident said that it looked to him as if it meant that the thing was made by the McCormick Harvester Company.

But the pioneer's eyesight is not as good as it used to be.

At any rate, the harp is a worthy and important addition to the wonderful collection of historical relics now reposing in the club museum. The American Amalgamated Harpists have asked for an enlarged photograph of the famed instrument to be placed in the boudoir of their organization. Arthur Moore Cuming, a descendant of the poet who gave the harp its fame to modern readers, is anxious to have permission to use this ancient musical tool in connection with his work with the Happy Thought Band and Orchestra. This suggested the idea to Prof. Watts Eaton Hughes of equipping the galaxy of sustained harmony with instruments of great historic interest, and members of the club are requested to locate some of the same to that end. The professor thought that he knew where he could find the original horn of Roland and he fancied that if this was used in the band by a performer wearing a duplicate of the armor of the ancient paladin it would of itself be an incident of great significance.

The Old Resident promised to leave no stone unturned to secure the fiddle on which Nero was so busy performing while the angry flames lapped up his capital. He thought that he himself might be able to do justice to that instrument, and he hinted at a historical painting in which he would be shown wielding the bow over this famous violin while the fire department was making a run to the East Side brewery.

It was understood that before he died Nero was compelled to hock the instrument at a pawn shop and the Old Resident has wired the postmaster at Rome, N. Y., to ask every pawnbroker in town in an endeavor to locate the fiddle.

Members or friends of the club who aid in this quest, or make possible the identification or acquisition of other notable instruments of history, will be amply rewarded. Has anybody seen the noiseless curfew of Cromwell? Meanwhile in accordance with the terms of the poet and at the suggestion of the Cheerful Idiot the harp of Tara will hang in the music shed that will be attached to the studio.

It was this harp that was used at the crowning of all the Irish kings of almost 2000 years ago, and it has been thumbed by Walachi [illegible] of the Golden Collar, and by Brian Boru, the wild man of Bor-

Residents of Edendale are ecstatic over the discovery of the love letters of Adam and Eve. They say that it proves their contention that the suburb is properly named and that the original Garden of Eden was located on their fig and olive-clad slopes.

Prof. Watts Eaton Hughes, scientist and antiquarian, has completed what he believes is the correct translation of the answer of Eve to Adam's first letter, and therefore the earliest contribution of woman to written language and literature. He submitted it yesterday as follows:

"Adam Man: I looked all over for the missing rib you spoke of and where do you suppose I found it? Floating around just under my heart. You won't mind if I keep it, will you dear? It's the first thing you ever gave me.

"I'm so glad you love me, and I know I could never live without you. When I heard what you said about me the first time. Of course, I'm glad there aren't 'three or four others' like me; I'd hate awfully to have triplets or quads. You'd have to strip the fig trees every week to keep us decently clothed.

"If I catch that red-haired arboreal anthropoid simian making eyes at you I'll have her put out of the garden. I saw her stealing some hard green apples up in that tree the other day, and I told the snake she ought to be punished, but he said: 'Give her time, virtue is its own reward.' I wonder what he meant? You say she isn't in our class. I should say not. We're right at the very head of 'A' class, aren't we, darling?

"I found the honey you left under my tree—that is, not right away, but after I had sat in it and got my new fig leaf all stuck up, and ants crawled all over. The honey wasn't very much, but the tunic is ruined. "Of course I love you—whatever that is—and I'm sorry we were created grown-up, 'cause I'd love to have you talk baby talk to me and call me your "little tootsie wootsie" instead of just plain

EVE.

P. S. I asked the snake if he couldn't get me a sheet of paper to write on instead of this bark and he said: 'Ask old Sparerib, he usually has three sheets in the wind.' Why did he call you Sparerib?"

"Of course there had to be a postscript to the first letter written by a woman!" scornfully exclaimed the Cheerful Idiot at the conclusion of the reading.

"Yes" and I notice she was already worrying about her clothes," remarked the Old Resident. "Those sure would knock on any-

At the symposium yesterday the secretary asked for suggestions concerning the annual outing and picnic of the club, which is held in midsummer. Members are asked to jot down their ideas and drop them into the question box, where they will be considered by the Committee on Arrangements when it meets. It was also submitted that the club should properly celebrate the glorious Fourth, and Harikari Shimose, the Nipponese nightingale, hinted that he would like to be invited to make a fraternal ovation on that occasion.

He may be fed up for the event.

The sunny secretary reported that members had handed in a few offerings in the parody contest outlined by Gen. Goliath Gander of the Gander Jingle Book, and some of these were read:

Allie Mooney, who is working in a canning factory by day and contributing to the world's best literature by night, said that the Gander announcement had affected her in this way:

"There was a man in our town
Who was of wondrous size.
He looked to be full nine feet round,
And he had goo-goo eyes!
But when that fatty lamped a dame,
She'd laugh right on the spot,
And say, without a blush of shame,
"What a big catch I've got!"

Ambrose Cairngorm, the lightning calculator, also came up to the scratch and said that he had written some verses in order to settle a bet. It leaked out like this:

"There was a man in our town
As wise as any goat.
This guy did one day nearly drown
Because he rocked the boat.
He'd never come in when it rains,
Or dodge the noonday sun,
And so when he blew out his brains
He used an empty gun."

Gen. Gander said that fair progress was being made in the parody contest, but that he did not feel that he could make a proper reward on the offerings thus far submitted. The poets have not exactly touched the spot as it were:

Mollie Caudell, the manicure and monologue artist, asked permission to come in with an entry in the contest of limericks of persons and places. She had it pinned to the cuff of her shirt waist, and when it was released it rambled along in this insouciant manner:

"There was a strange woman named Sue,
Who lived all her life in a shoe;
But isn't it droll—
She had a good soul—
She was almost too good to be true."

"More tongue than soul," growled the Old Resident.

"But possibly well-heeled," continued the Cheerful Idiot.

"Shoo-fly!" exclaimed Esmereida Hooligan.

"Is that awl?" asked the secretary seriously.

It was.

Em. Bongpong, the buxom maid of the hanging gardens, was also listed as among those present, and her little contribution was along these solemn lines:

"There was a sad party named Steve,
Who seemed to do nothing but grieve;
His sobs and his sighs,
His tears and his cries,
Were almost too much to believe."

Will B. Good, who has a pack of fifty-two cards for learning the golden text in every Sunday-school lesson of the year, had an offering, which was somewhat in his line, and which was as follows:

"There was an old ruler named Saul,
Who tried to pin Dave to the wall;
But the day was quite dark
And the spear missed its mark,
But, gee! 'twas a mighty close call!"

Ida Noe Howe, the cute little teaser of Tulsa, said that the tournament affected her this way:

"There was a stout party named Teddy,
Who could raise particular Ned; he Would grind his strong jaws,
And brandish his paws,
And for battle he always was ready."

The Old Resident said that he would offer a special premium of a magnificent picture of a winter scene in Westlake Park to the one who could guess the person to whom Ida's verse referred.

Hattie Harrison Shiner, the clever Clio of Claremont, has also had her pink dream of victory, and from her engagement with the muse returns with the following spoil:

Our Banner in Berlin.

The Huns are gazing with faces pale
And a feeling of awe, 'tis true,
For from the imperial flagstaff flies
The red, the white, the blue,
In Berlin.

Our banner stands as in days of yore,
For honor, justice and vim;
It shed glory bright, on the cause of right,
When the Sammies came marching in,
To Berlin.

'Tis loyal we'll be to the stars in blue,
With the stripes of red and white;
'Twill open the door of "kultur" wide,
And let in the liberty light,
In Berlin.

Tommie Tomtom Thompson, the ten-toed terror of Tioga, has been affected by the discovery of the correspondence of Adam and Eve, and has fought it out with himself in this form:

What Happened.

The letters of Adam and Eve have been found!
How the news will fly the glad world around—
And now we will know what Adam said,
And what Eve thought, as the words she read.

If it hadn't been for that rib, that was found,
And the dust that was scraped from off the ground,
Adam would never have had a care,
As to whether his clothes were fit to wear.

The collector would never be coming around
With a bill for Eve's last summer's gown,
The baby would never have had the colic,
And life would have been one long sweet frolic.

Letty M. E. Ramble, the girl with the glad hand, shows a burst of speed on the age-old quest for beauty and when it is taken apart it rattles like this:

Camouflage.

The foolish maiden seeking beaux, doth paint and dope her face Until of nature's loveliness she never leaves one trace.
The man who'd dare to sample it, would sure get painters' colic;
One could not call it art-i-face
nor even art symbolic.

Adam Simp, the grand old bard who cares not who cuts the ice so long as he writes his country's songs, has been eased of another spasm. Adam may get battered up occasionally, but he has never taken the count. This time he breaks out like this:

Going Through.

The old ship ploughs the storm-tost wave,
She scrapes the Reefs of Gold,
Upon her deck the captain, grave,
Guides while the seagulls scold!

Her smoke screen hides the course she lays
She short-hauls and she tacks.
Each man MUST do his duty now—
God help the one that slacks!

The air tanks threaten in the sky,
The U-boats lurk beneath—
The captain cocks his weather eye
And narrow skins the reef.

"We're on the way to win!" he roars.
"That's where we go from here—
Defy the grave and bump the stars!
Hold fast and let me steer!"

The old ship grinds along the rocks,
Loud screams the wild sea bird,
Above the rattling of the blocks,
The captain's voice is heard:

"Stand by the ship She's going through
That rock that's dead ahead.
It's lack of faith—she split in two
The U—and on she sped."

Each sailor at his post stood true,
And well the "U.S.A."
Upheld traditions old and new,
And made some more that day!

Sunkist Salome, the feverish bardine of the Angora belt, has been heard from and according to the best returns it happened in this way:

No Upper Crust.

A conundrum to you I'll submit,
So gather together your wit
Just why is a slacker,
Without any backer
Like lemon pie without any lid?

You'll find that in slacker and pie
(If you to consider, will stop)
Some yellow streaks you will espy
And not enough crust to go "over the top."

Gladys Vivaigrette Slosson, the mystic maid of Moneta, not only dabbles in blank verse, but blankety-blank verse. She not only yields free verse when tapped, but bargain counter verse. Here is an example of her open-faced Muse as shown in a letter to Jane:

Just to Jane.

I took a ride last Sunday
And barely missed being killed,
By a jolly bunch of joyriders,
Whom to me were speeding to kill.
So I made up my mind this Sunday
To sit down in a comfortable chair
And read of the thousands of Sammies,
Who are fighting for us "over there."

And I thought how I'd like to be with them,
And get a knock at the Kaiser too;
And go shouting through Berlin
With him laid on a 2x2.
Then right in the midst of my reading,
Ouch! something hit me on my head.
It was naught but a picture frame.
Thank goodness, I still have my head.

As I sat there and watched everything swaying,
Of course, I was swaying, too.
It dawned on my mind it was an earthquake,
I started for outside, wouldn't you?
Stubbing my toe as I did so,
My, you ought to be glad, Jane, it wasn't you.
Now'll apologize for the beginning,
Autos aren't wholly to blame.

For if they are not lucky to get you
Maybe an earthquake will, Jane.
My dear, as I come to the ending,
And I give one tho't to the Huns,
Maybe they think the earthquake surprised us,
But I'm sure THEY never will, Hon.
And you must write to your friend real soon.
Now Jane, I hope you have enjoyed my letter,

Sunset Sallie came up after going down the third time, and when pounded on the back was relieved of this fragrant morsel:

While speaking about that old Vulture,
Can you tell me why "K" begins Kulture?
We think the Chinese could answer with ease—
"The British are ruling the C's.

Director David Oliver Tobasco of the club studio, reported that he had received a wonderful scenario that he though he might be able to use for Valisa Van Bush Vandevere, the baby Bernhardt. It is called "Prunes; or the Bloody Trail of the Deaths' Head Vampire." The plot is a harrowing one and has the audience fairly gasping for breath during seven reels. The story deals with a beautiful girl who has married a man she has never met. She fears that he is older than herself but how much. For three reels she is shown sitting at the window with a pair of field glasses while her new husband is plowing. She is watching his whiskers grow. If they come in gray she will raise sage on the old farm. If they are black she will buy a tin Lizzie. The suspense is sickening and it takes a strong and powerful audience to stand the tension. The professor was afraid to say offhand how the bet was decided but it was sure some scenario. It would be a warm baby for Doug. and Mary all right.

Under the spell of excitement the symposium dissolved.

Training for Frightfulness.

It is carefully estimated by those who have studied the proudly published reports that up to the time of the beginning of the world war Emperor Wilhelm of Germany had slaughtered some 61,730 pieces of game. It was one of the Kaiser's dearest delights to go to the imperial game preserves and shoot. There was no excitement and not the slightest danger. The animals were not very wild, and by no means ferocious. At least 4000 of this total killing was a bag of stags. Elk, roebuck and other timid animals of the deer kind have been favorite victims of the imperial and royal "sportsman." As Americans view sport, there has been no sport in the Kaiser's achievements. He has not had to go and seek the game. It has been driven to his gun and camp stool. He has undergone neither peril nor hardship. Except for the sylvan setting, the imperial "sport" has been as unthrilling and as uninspiring as the wholesale butchering of beeves in a Chicago abattoir.—[Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TO THE PUBLIC:

The following is an excerpt from a letter we received a few days ago from the manufacturers of Red Cross shoes:

Recently we have received several letters from firms who sell RED CROSS shoes, inquiring about the status of our trade mark—this question having, no doubt, occurred to them on account of the vast publicity that is being given the RED CROSS Society in their efforts to secure members and funds.

We have such a deep respect for the splendid work of the Red Cross Society that we do not want to abuse the legal rights and privileges that we enjoy. In other words, you will find in all our advertising that we are not featuring the Red Cross emblem itself and only continue its use because we are compelled to in order to maintain our legal rights.

Therefore, it is our earnest desire that all retail stores handling the RED CROSS shoe follow this same respectful attitude and in no way capitalize the Red Cross Society publicity or their noble work as a means to further the sale of these shoes.

Congress passed a law as far back as 1905, prohibiting the use of Red Cross for trademark or advertising purposes except by those entitled to use it previous to that date. As the origin and use of our trademark antedated this law by many years, we were never and are not now affected by it.

We are trying to minimize the use of the emblem itself to the greatest extent we can consistent with preserving our trademark rights, a fact well known to the officers of the National organization who recognize the fact that we could not abandon it without jeopardizing the foundation of our business.

But we have no idea of exploiting the wonderful work of the American Red Cross for personal benefit or for business aggrandizement.

BILLY M'CANN.

It began up close to the cannon's roar
Where the anti-aircraft pounds Heaven's door.
On a field of mud, whipped up by lead,
All littered up ghastly with living and dead.
This last of Billy McCann.

He told his folks when he marched away
That he'd come back some calm sweet day
And tell them of the deeds he'd done,
Of battles he'd lost and battles he'd won,
But alas for Billy McCann.

He lay in the trenches one winter day
And the wet snow covered him where he lay,
While the mud made him an unearthly sight,
And he wondered. "Why the devil do I have to fight?"
Ran the thoughts of Billy McCann.

The cannonade grew as the darkness came,
And the snow turned into a beastly rain.
Then came the order for "over the top"—
The first man out with a nimble hop
Was Private Billy McCann.

Through the ink black darkness of night they came
The "sloshing" of feet 'mid the patter of rain.
The cannon did bellow, machine gun did bite.
But nothing daunted, they rushed through the night
Led by Billy McCann.

It's nice for you who sleep in a bed
To think of fierce battles and picture the dead,
But 'twas awful unholy, the sights they saw
Of real men butchered and bleeding and raw,
As seen by Billy McCann.

The sky was lit up by a fearful glare
Of rockets exploding high up in the air,
While the big shells whined close overhead
And laughed at the plight of the dying and dead.
And laughed at Billy McCann.

Then into the German trenches they came Shooting, stumbling—then shooting again.
The enemy resisted, wavered—then fell,
While on rushed the "Yanks" through a lane of pure Hell,
Still led by Billy McCann.

The battle was won, yes—almost they say,
When out stepped a Hun from the midst of the fray
Fell down on one knee, and—with laughter clear
Took three shots at Bill who happened quite near.
Quite near was Billy McCann.

Bill uttered a word, not found in the book,
And over his pistol took one calm look.
A bullet went shattering through Fritz's head,
And Bill laughed when he saw that the German was dead.
Bitter laughter for Billy McCann.

The Red Cross man found him, as Red Cross men will,
Three bullet holes through him. There he lay still
With a circle 'round him of a brilliant red hue
And his eyes staring up at a sky that was blue.
Thus they found Billy McCann.

You say he is dead? I say 'tis not so,
For Billy was breathing, though painfully slow.
Three wicked Hun bullets had come into their own,
For they'd torn through flesh, through skin and through bone.
And 'twas near the end for Billy McCann.

In a quaint French hospital, where all was white,
A Sister of Mercy was with him that night.
She witnessed the passing: 'twas peaceful, she said,
For Bill "went" with his fingers laced under his head.
Thus the passing of Billy McCann.

'Twas early next morning when the general came,
He looked down at Bill and asked for his name—
Then pinned a bright object upon the bed,
"A cross from the living to one who is dead."
"Croix de Guerre," for Billy McCann.

I've been in this war near a thousand years,
I've seen men die with eyes filled with tears.
Some "went" laughing, while others were stern,
But the kind of death which I pray for and yearn
Is like the passing of Billy McCann.

THE AMANA COLONY.

Secluded, almost self-sufficient, the Amana Colony of Iowa views from afar the world with its disturbing influences and smiles in gentle toleration. Ecstasy and despair, excitement and boredom do not enter into this community, where the simple life and spiritual development are all-important.

The Amana Colony runs smoothly, efficiently, with seldom a hitch in its machinery. There are no flustered housewives, no delayed meals. Community kitchens, run by shifts of women who take turns at this work, each feed forty or fifty persons. Amana houses all seem to have been evolved from the same gabled pattern. Within they are spotless and unadorned. The crudeness of the unpainted exteriors is softened by grapevines that spread and clamber over trellises close to the building they shadow. Each home has its garden full of old-fashioned flowers blooming gloriously in stiff beds and borders as our grandmothers would have planted them.

The chief flaw in the colony from the point of view of the members is its popularity as a show place. The fame of this practical Arcadia is widespread and each day brings tourists who gaze curiously at the colonists in their quaintly simple dress and grow enthusiastic over the country fare served at the hotel dining-room. The colonists held out sturdily against the invasion, but it long ago ceased to hope that public interest in its affairs would cease, and built a hotel in token of its surrender to the tourist swarm.

THE HOME CANNERS.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) June 13.—The home canning drive, beginning in the far South with citrus fruits, and rolling northward in a mighty wave of June apples, strawberries, green peas and sweet corn, is now in full swing. A billion five hundred million quarts of preserved foods is the stint which the kitchen canners have set themselves, and all the auspices are favorable for its completion.

Canning has been going on for months in Florida, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. Corn, which is just being planted in the Middle Western States, has already been canned in the South, as have many fruits. A little farther north June apples, peaches, cherries and berries are now being put up, while snap beans, peas and tomatoes are next on the waiting list.

According to C. K. McQuarrie, State agent in Florida for the Department of Agriculture, the difference in the ripening of vegetables and fruit is twenty-four hours for every ten miles of latitude, barring considerations of altitude and the proximity of bodies of water, acting as heat and cold equalizers.

One of the most forceful demonstrations of this regional difference in canning and preserving time is the fact that the girls' clubs in Florida are now canning "fish, old hens that have stopped laying, surplus roosters, and the pigs that they have fattened in their 'raise-a-pig' contest." This branch of the food preservation work is always attended to after the fruits and vegetables are out of the way.

The organized club work among the boys and the girls of the country has proved that the preservation of food by the various methods now taught by the Department of Agriculture is not exclusively women's work, nor girls' work, but an activity in which boys and men are also interested, and in which the whole family can work as a unit to great advantage. In many rural districts, where women and girls are doing the actual farm and garden work, old men and women, assisted by the smaller children, are doing the preserving.

The older people are especially interested in the lectures and demonstrations, for they realize how much Uncle Sam's educational methods have improved. Boys and girls love the classes of instruction because of the added importance that their acquired knowledge gives them in their homes and among their neighbors.

In one of the kitchens at the Department of Agriculture here classes in canning and preserving are being taught every day by trained demonstrators. Side by side with school teachers and commercial demonstrators are Congressmen's wives and other women of leisure who are training that they may go into widely-scattered communities and teach these sure methods of food preservation. A conspicuous feature of this kitchen is the simplicity of its equipment. On the shelves are scores of jars of fruits and vegetables, the work of boys and girls throughout the country, from coast to coast and from one border to another. Every jar is in perfect condition, and the contents certainly look tempting.

The Food Administration has announced that there will be enough sugar available for the actual needs of every family for canning and preserving. In many communities the housewife will be obliged to sign a pledge that she will not use sugar for any purpose except the preservation of necessary food. Hoarding will be impossible, and waste will result in actual want to the waster.

The great fruit-growing States of California, Oregon and Washington are laws unto themselves in canning and preserving, just as they are in fruit growing. Their climate is regulated by a warm ocean current and their great crops are entirely beyond the attainments of the States on the Atlantic seaboard, that are in the same latitude.

Alaska and Hawaii are now sending to the Department of Agriculture urgent requests for club organizers and demonstrators.

The actual work of demonstration and conducting the clubs for boys and girls is not a war-born measure, but has received a tremendous impetus through the necessities that war has created for team-work in the family and concerted action on the part of the community. Thus, while there are, on an average, 150 trained demonstrators in each of thirty-three northern, central and western States, many of them are working at no expense whatever to the government.

Food conservation and preservation have become a nation-wide contagion. The value of it has been realized by school boards, chambers of commerce and department stores. Scores of private individuals have given of their private wealth to support the demonstration and club work.

Every demonstrator is thoroughly trained by the Department of Agriculture and the methods are kept up to date by short courses of intensive training held at frequent intervals in various centers. In the new experimental kitchen some of the recipes of one or two generations ago for preserving corn, rye, barley and other grains, now little used, are being tested and brought into style through little changes that will tickle the palate.

A group of women trained in the science of cooking will make every possible test of each recipe, and it will then be passed over to a good plain cook, whose only training has been acquired in her mother's kitchen. If it meets this final test it will then be sent out to help make the food of the nation do more than double duty.

"Every empty can is a slacker can," is one of the slogans that the demonstration agents will use freely this summer. Another idea that they are attempting to popularize is that no one has the right to permit anything perishable to spoil. If the produce cannot be preserved by the owner or the grower, then it must be given to someone who can take care of it. This policy was regarded with some misgiving when it was adopted, but the agents report that it is meeting with the most whole-souled co-operation accorded any phase of the campaign.

"Can food and preserve the nation" is the watchword. The woman who voluntarily wastes food in this present national crisis is as culpable as if she voluntarily fed the German army, while the woman who permits anything edible to go to waste is a "kitchen slacker."

Air Torpedo Looks Good.

A Philadelphia manufacturer has invented an aerial torpedo which he asserts can destroy Berlin and win the war in thirty days. He is Lester P. Barlow, who has already invented an anti-submarine depth bomb that has proved itself of the highest value in destroying undersea craft.

According to Mr. Barlow it would be possible to send the torpedo to Berlin from behind the Allied lines in France. The construction of the torpedo is said to be very simple.

"There is danger that it will strike the German inventors' mind soon and I live in constant fear that Germany may grasp the principle of this deadly torpedo before we can use it," says President Steinmetz of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania. It carries more than half a ton of the highest explosive that can be manufactured. It has a range of 500 miles and is going to its target.

The authorities at Washington admitted when they were shown the plans that Berlin could be blown off the map and the German nation could be whipped in thirty days, but nothing has been done.—[San Antonio Light.

Tips to the Red Cross.

There is merit in the suggestion of William Faversham, the actor, that people give their checkroom tips to the Red Cross during the remainder of the war, instead of to the functionary in the pocketless uniform, who at present, collects them for the concessionaire. The checkroom tip always has been indefensible, and growth of the custom of giving it is not easy to explain. With assurance, however, that the money would go to a worthy cause the public would bear its bondage more philosophically.

For the benefit of those who do not appreciate the extent of the checkroom tip evil, Mr. Faversham, who ought to know, estimates that there are 100 cities in the United States, including summer resorts, in which these tips will average $7000 a week each. He thinks the average tip is 15 cents. The total would be $700,000 a week, or $36,400,000 a year.

The Red Cross could do a lot of good with that $36,400,000.—[Portland Oregonian.

ANNIVERSARY WEEK

PLAYS AT THE MASON AND THE MOROSCO.

Orpheum.

That stellar event in the Orpheum year, its anniversary week, when it commemorates the opening of its present fine theater by affording Los Angeles a bill that is [illegible] in merit and variety, will begin Monday matinee, June 24, as the [illegible] day itself, being June 24, is comprised in that week. In accord with practice and tradition, the Orpheum management has provided an unusually fine array of talent for the occasion, no fewer than five of the acts on the list being headline features. The top position [illegible] jointly to Sallie Fisher and Kathleen Clifford.

Morosco.

Oliver Morosco will offer the second of his big summer productions at the Morosco Theater, beginning with today's matinee, when he [illegible] for the first time on any stage [illegible] comedy entitled "Personality." "Personality" is heralded as the [illegible] bright and snappy sort of [illegible] entertainment that proves just the right sort for warm weather. It was written by Edith Ellis and Arthur Shaw. In the cast are [illegible] Mestayer, Richard Dix, [illegible] Mann, George Preston, Dora Mae Howe, Lillian Elliott, Joseph [illegible] ton, James Corrigan, Robert [illegible] and Harry Duffield.

Mason.

Maude Fulton, in her own successful comedy, "The Brat," will commence a "welcome home" engagement at the Mason tonight. [illegible] "The Brat" was initially played in this city, something like two years ago, it has been presented with uninterrupted success in every important city of this country. In New York it delighted the patrons of the Morosco for an entire theatrical season. And in Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia Miss Fulton played prolonged engagements that were repetitions of the Gotham triumph of herself and her out-of-the-ordinary comedy. And now, after two years of making America happy, Miss Fulton and her stage associates will bring the long tour of the play to a happy termination at the Mason.

Burbank.

A programme of five vaudeville acts and a five-reel photoplay ushers in today the return of the Burbank as the home of popular-priced vaudeville and motion pictures. La Vette and La Vette, a team of pretty girls who dance as well as they look, headline the legitimate part of the bill, while Rupert Julian's first big production since "The Beast of Berlin," called "[illegible] Madness," with Ruth Clifford and Kenneth Harlan in the leading roles will be the principal screen attraction.

Hippodrome.

A quartette of musicians with Minnie Burke as the dominating personality of the group is the headline attraction at the Hippodrome for the week beginning tomorrow matinee. Miss Burke is [illegible] and with the pep and ginger furnished by the four young men [illegible] has an act that will never fail to please. Little Theater.

A benefit performance for the Stage Woman's War Relief has been arranged by Frank Egan of the Egan School for Tuesday evening, June 25, at the Little Theater. A tabloid version of "Pretty Smith," written by Oliver Morosco and Elmer Harris, has been under the personal direction of Mr. Egan for some weeks. Mr. Egan has condensed the three acts into one and has written in a number of new scenes in order to introduce new characters.

Pantages.

"The Notorious Delphine," a mystery play featuring Rose Mary [illegible] a dramatic actress of note, will be the offering of W. H. [illegible] company as the headliner of the Pantages bill opening today. The sketch is said to be a rare treat from the standpoints of plot and [illegible] while realism is paramount throughout. An element of mystery dominates in all of the tense moments, and holds the climax in the dark until the final lines are spoken by the principals. The [illegible] Naval Reserve Jazz Band will be another feature of the new bill and William S. Hart will have the [illegible] of the motion-picture end of the programme in the western drama, "The Come-Back."

In the cast are Harry Mestayer, Richard Dix, Bertha Mann, George Preston, Dora Mae Howe, Lillian Elliott, Joseph Eggenton, James Corrigan, Robert Lawler and Harry Duffield.

Mason.

Maude Fulton, in her own successful comedy, "The Brat," will commence a "welcome home" engagement at the Mason tonight. Since "The Brat" was initially played in this city, something like two years ago, it has been presented with uninterrupted success in every important city of this country. In New York it delighted the patrons of the Morosco for an entire theatrical season. And in Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia Miss Fulton played prolonged engagements that were repetitions of the Gotham triumphs of herself and her out-of-the-ordinary comedy. And now, after two years of making America happy, Miss Fulton and her stage associates will bring the long tour of the play to a happy termination at the Mason.

Burbank.

A programme of five vaudeville acts and a five-reel photoplay ushers in today the return of the Burbank as the home of popular-priced vaudeville and motion pictures. La Vette and La Vette, a team of pretty girls who dance as well as they look, headline the legitimate portion of the bill, while Rupert Julian's first big production since "The Beast of Berlin," called "Midnight Madness," with Ruth Clifford and Kenneth Harlan in the leading roles, will be the principal screen attraction.

Hippodrome.

A quartette of musicians with Minnie Burke as the dominating personality of the group is the headline attraction at the Hippodrome for the week beginning tomorrow matinee. Miss Burke is queen of jazz and with the pep and ginger furnished by the four young men she has an act that will never fail to please. Then Otto Koerner and company undertake to deliver "Pep." This is a short sketch which demonstrates a few modern business methods that are extremely valuable.

Little Theater.

A benefit performance for the Stage Woman's War Relief has been arranged by Frank Egan of the Egan School for Tuesday evening, June 25, at the Little Theater. A tabloid version of "Pretty Mrs. Smith," written by Oliver Morosco and Elmer Harris, has been under the personal direction of Mr. Egan for some weeks. Mr. Egan has condensed the three acts into one and has written in a number of new scenes in order to introduce new characters.

Pantages.

"The Notorious Delphine," a mystery play featuring Rose Mary King, a dramatic actress of note, will be the offering of W. H. Payne and company as the headliner of the Pantages bill opening today. The sketch is said to be a rare treat from the standpoints of plot and action, while realism is paramount throughout. An element of mystery which dominates in all of the tense moments, and holds the climax in the dark until the final lines are spoken by the principals. The San Pedro Naval Reserve Jazz Band will be another feature of the new bill. William S. Hart will have charge of the motion-picture end of the programme in the western melodrama, "The Come-Back."

FOR GERMAN CLOTHES.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEW YORK, May 30. — The scarcity of clothing in Germany has resulted in an order that all municipalities negotiate with societies for the utilization of materials used for hall decorations, says the Berlin Tageblatt.

The imperial clothing board has been forced to deny the applications of communities for the delivery of clothing and linen for city children sent to the country because of the scarcity of supplies. Worn footwear and old leather may be sold only to persons and bodies designated by the imperial board for shoe supply.

The same holds good as to all finished goods in whole or in part of leather, such as trunks and hat and helmet boxes, footballs, dice boxes, harness, saddles, school knapsacks.

The Crown Prince speedily had an opportunity of explanation or denial, for the Kaiser peremptorily summoned him to Potsdam. Wilhelm could not deny that Maj. Von Lowenstein's wife had really been too much in his company.

DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS.

What passed between the imperial father and son I cannot tell, yet I judge that the Kaiser had stormed and raved, and, doubtless, pointed out the relationship of Olga von Lowenstein to Herr Ballin. He had sternly insisted on the Crown Prince immediately breaking off the intrigue. Whether Wilhelm would have obeyed his father is uncertain had he not, as usual with him, become tired of his new favorite.

Other complications were promptly to follow. The affair reached the ears of Maj. Von Lowenstein, on active service in Flanders. He applied at once for leave, and rushed home in passionate wrath. His wife had returned to Berlin—having traveled back with Willie—and people said that she was openly unrepentant and defiant. The Crown Prince would see she did not suffer, whatever steps her husband took, so she declared, and Maj. Von Lowenstein had furiously left her to institute immediate proceedings for divorce.

Meanwhile the Crown Prince, though he had not returned to the front, and was constantly about the gay and fashionable resorts of Berlin with his boon companions, kept strictly away from Olga. As came out later, she wrote pressing him to come to her, but he made no response. She wrote again, telling him of her husband's attitude, and that she had left her husband's house for a flat in the Potsdamer Strasse. Willie cursed and swore uneasily, but was the more determined not to go near her. Then finally, driving in the Thiergarten, he brutally cut her dead, and from that moment I believe Olga von Lowenstein—cast off by her husband, abandoned by her royal lover to heartbreak and ruin—set her mind upon revenge.

GLOOMY AND FURIOUS.

The Kaiserin, I know, thankfully believed the affair to have blown over. But one day, when I was with her in Berlin, the Empress caught sight of the Crown Prince ascending the steps of his palace in the Zeughaus Platz. He had not been to see her for some time, and, stopping the car, she alighted and hastened after him.

I could see that the Crown Prince looked gloomy and furious and returned only snappish replies to the Kaiserin's anxious inquiries as she followed him into the palace.

"What is the matter, Wilhelm?" she asked. "Is there some further trouble with Cecilie?"

"Not yet," Willie answered sullenly, "but there will be soon—over that confounded Olga von Lowenstein again!"

"But, Willie," exclaimed the Kaiserin, "I—I thought you were done with that dreadful woman."

"She's not with me evidently!" he retorted. "That's just the trouble; she's mad at my breaking it off, especially as Von Lowenstein is divorcing her. My name will be dragged into that—still we might have it kept out of the papers. But now Olga writes threatening to put all my letters to her in Ballin's hands and have them published in the Tageblatt!"

"Oh, Wilhelm!" the Empress cried aghast. "That would be too dreadful—such a scandal would be disastrous! But there must be some way of averting this," she went on desperately. "Now that the woman's husband has left her she may be in need of money. You must buy those letters—no price would be too high to pay for them!"

TELL-TALE LETTERS.

The Crown Prince laughed dismally.

"Himmel! She can't get it from me. I'm up to the ears in debt, as usual. And I don't suppose you have any money to spare!"

"I haven't!" sighed the Kaiserin. "But I'll do what I can to help you," she added bravely and, I think, nobly. For the Empress shows her best side as a mother, and throughout the rest of this sordid business fought with plucky unselfishness for her son.

"I'll speak to the Kaiser—I'll ask him for money to buy over this wicked woman!"

"I wish you luck!" said the Prince with a doubtful shrug of his sloping shoulders. "But even if you persuade him to part with the cash you won't get me to go and offer it to Olga. I know better!"

That very evening the Empress, who had told me all this, braced herself to the unpleasant task of asking the Kaiser for money.

IMPERIAL GREED.

I understood what that meant; I was too well aware of the Kaiser's amazing greed and niggardliness, which results in even common necessities of the household being almost impossible to obtain. And if the Kaiserin wants any little thing extra for herself, she has more trouble to procure it than if she were an ordinary workman's wife.

I remember once of a glass being broken in Her Majesty's dressing-room, and it took ten days, with as many requests and complaints, to have it replaced. The chambermaid took the broken pieces to the house marshal, who carried them to the court marshal, and he to the treasurer, who returned a message that no funds were available for a new one.

"But I must have it!" cried the angry Empress, and the whole ridiculous performance was gone through repeatedly, until at length the few marks required to make the purchase were forthcoming. The officials, of course, were not to blame, but the Kaiser, who, with all his millions, will not spare enough to run his royal residence decently.

Now to have to ask him for thousands upon thousands of marks to bribe Olga von Lowenstein. I did not envy the Kaiserin!

THE PRICE OF FOLLY.

After supper at the Neues Palais coffee is served in the Tassen chamber—so called because the room is shaped like a cup. Then the Kaiser usually escapes at the first available moment to the billiard-room, where he delights in hearing his adjutants and guests exchange stories.

But on this occasion, the Kaiserin, who was very nervous, requested her husband to remain behind, and they were left together. When Wilhelm heard what the Crown Prince had disclosed he was beside himself with alarm and wrath, and launched into a violent attack upon the Kaiserin for the ill conduct of their various sons, as if they had inherited all their evil traits from herself, which is very far from being the truth.

However, the possible consequences, if Olga von Lowenstein's threat were carried out, genuinely scared him, and at length, grumbling and cursing, he agreed to disburse up to 4000 pounds for the purchase of his son's incriminating letters.

Next day the Kaiserin, triumphant in possession of the money, came eagerly to me.

"Now, Emilie," she exclaimed, "I shall be able to save Wilhelm from open disgrace! I mean to go to this woman myself. Surely, if I so honor her, she won't refuse to sell the letters!"

BOTH THICKLY VEILED.

I was rather taken aback, and endeavored to dissuade my mistress from the project, but the Kaiserin was determined to go, and at once. It was essential that the Empress should not be recognized visiting Olga Von Lowenstein, and thus set all the spiteful tongues of Berlin wagging, so that we were both dressed in the plainest fashion and thickly veiled when we set off in a small closed car for Berlin. In the long Potsdamer Strasse, between the Botanic Garten and the Canal, we stopped at No. 223, a second-rate house, let out in tawdrily furnished flats.

In one of these we were received by Frau Von Lowenstein with evident surprise and curiosity. The woman, who had attracted the Crown Prince's wavering fancy was beyond denial strikingly handsome. Inheriting Jewish blood through her mother, she had the fine features of the aristocratic Hebrew, a faultless, faintly olive complexion, and magnificent dark eyes, which seemed to hint at possibilities of deep and tragic passion.

When the Kaiserin unveiled and announced her identity, Olga Von Lowenstein was unquestionably confused. But this only lasted for a few moments. Those big dark eyes of hers hardened swiftly, and though her manner remained respectful, there was a watchful defiance in it.

A WOMAN'S SCORN.

I need not relate in detail how the Kaiserin, who, though carefully restraining herself, could not wholly disguise her stern condemnation and disapproval of the other, led up to her distasteful mission. A crimson spot burned in Olga Von Lowenstein's cheeks.

"Ah, I suspected the Crown Prince had sent you!" she broke out. "I suppose he is too cowardly to come himself—"

The Kaiserin interrupted with a quick gesture.

"Please let us keep to the point. These letters of my son's with which you threaten to blacken his character in the eyes of the public—"

"It would be difficult to do more in that way then he has already done himself!" snapped Olga Von Lowenstein with venom, then laughed harshly. "But, still, I fancy they will create some sensation!"

"That will do!" the Kaiserin cut short her fierce, passionate outburst. My mistress's face had grown paler as she realized the powerful weapon in this bitter, duped woman's hand. "If you publish these letters, you may revenge yourself upon my son, but what will you gain? You will be branded, marked woman, who dare not remain in Germany. On the other hand, I am willing to pay you well—I will give you £4000 for the letters, a sum which may be most useful to you in the future!"

HUMBLED PRIDE.

Dropping her hauteur, she suddenly became the pleading, anxious mother. "I beg of you, for my son's sake and your own, to accept my offer, and let this dreadful affair go no further!"

Olga Von Lowenstein sat with downcast eyes, biting her red lip as if in indecision.

"I do not altogether refuse," she said slowly. "But I will neither accept the money nor entertain this offer from you, your Majesty. Your son must come to me himself without delay, or I act as I have threatened. If he does that, well, I may change my mind, and even part with his letters without seeking payment for them!"

My mistress lost no time in seeking the Crown Prince and acquainting him with the steps she had taken. Handing over the money, she earnestly urged him to fall in with Olga Von Lowenstein's desire to go to her at once and complete the transaction.

Willie grumbled and rebelled, but finally gave a sulky assent. Yet he put off the dreaded interview until night, when, after fortifying himself by a series of drinks at the Adlon Cafe, he drove to the Potsdamer Strasse with his aide-de-camp, young Karl Von Hertzog.

It was from Karl I afterwards learned what had occurred, as he in turn had gathered the details from the Crown Prince.

ALMOST A TRAGEDY.

When Willie made his shamefaced, sullen appearance at the flat with Karl, Olga Von Lowenstein insisted on seeing him alone. Karl, therefore, withdrew, when Olga promptly locked the door and pocketed the key.

"What's that for?" demanded the Crown Prince nervously.

"You cowardly cur and liar!" she cried. "You want it ended now, and it shall be—I'll kill myself!"

"For God's sake, Olga!" gasped the Crown Prince; but Olga Von Lowenstein leveled a small revolver at herself and fired.

Karl Von Hertzog related to me that he heard the shot, and believed that the maddened woman had shot the Crown Prince. Had that been so, he himself would have been compelled to commit suicide, for by the strict rules of the service an aide-de-camp is responsible with his own life for the safety of the Crown Prince.

In desperation he applied his shoulder to the door and burst it open. Great was his relief to find the Crown Prince staring helplessly at Olga Von Lowenstein, who was lying deathly pale and bleeding from a wound in the shoulder.

KAISERIN'S TEARS.

Karl Von Hertzog, who had some knowledge of surgery, recognized that the poor creature's life was in no grave danger. Hurriedly attending the injured woman, and settling her comfortably, he induced the Crown Prince to leave with him.

No word of the affair reached either the police or the newspapers. I ventured, however, to tell the Kaiserin, and with much kindness she contrived a plan by which Olga Von Lowenstein was removed to a country villa and surrounded with all that could help her to recover.

On a day in summer I attended her when she visited the villa incognita. By that time Olga's husband had forgiven her, and it was with mingled penitence and happiness that the erring wife greeted the Kaiserin.

I walked in the garden while they talked. When the Kaiserin left the arbor, in which they had conversed, her eyes glistened with tears.

"All is well, Emilie," she told me.

She carried her son's letters in her hand, for Olga had given her these, and I was with her that evening when she burned them.

UNHAPPY HOLIDAY.

The Kaiserin came to me one day with her face wreathed in smiles. Worry had vanished from it, and she looked many years younger.

"Emilie, I am so glad! she exclaimed. "We are going to Rominten almost at once. Wilhelm has consented to take a short rest. He always enjoys life at Rominten; he is at his best there, and that makes a great difference to myself."

Several nights after our arrival at Rominten the Kaiser and Kaiserin, together with myself and Count Von Wedel, were playing bridge in the simply furnished drawing-room, when an unusual stir arose in the wide hall on which the outer door opens. His Majesty at once became nervous, for even at that time the stress of the war had told upon him. He threw down his cards, and put his hand to his throat, for any excitement affects the part in which his incurable malady is present.

Count Von Wedel rose, begging leave to go and inquire the cause of the tumult. In a few moments he returned.

"It is nothing, your Majesty," he said cheerfully. "Some of the women servants had fancied they had seen a ghost on the road by the graveyard. One foolish creature became hysterical, and fell at the outer door."

The Kaiser seemed relieved. I had no doubt that he had dreaded bad news from the front, and now he made light of the matter.

"Come, Von Wedel, we shall go and lay the ghost," he said smilingly, and with a curt apology to the Kaiserin he went out.

BEAUTIFUL FAVORITE.

"Play to me, Emilie," said the Kaiserin sadly. She knew as well as I that hunting a ghost was not what was intended. Almost certainly the Kaiser meant to visit a neighboring shooting lodge on the estate belonging to the Langen-Hofbergs. The young Baroness von Langen-Hofberg, a very handsome girl and a bold sportswoman, was in residence there and had visited Rominten the day after our arrival. Since then the Kaiser had "commanded" her attendance at the hunts, and had shown her marked attentions, even in his wife's presence.

I sat down at the pianoforte and played some music which my mistress loved, but after a time I looked round, and, by the way she was sitting I knew she was weeping.

Midnight sounded before the Kaiser returned. I heard the movements occasioned by his arrival. Next morning he was irritable, and I was personally glad when he set out to shoot. The Kaiser has a passion for shooting and hunting, and is exceedingly vain of his prowess. He takes a fierce delight in the number of birds or animals he can slaughter, which may perhaps be due to the strain of bloodthirstiness in his nature, that has manifested itself of late in more terrible ways.

KAISER'S AFFLICTION.

On this occasion the forests were full enough of game to satisfy even him, and as the Kaiserin had predicted, he seemed to enjoy himself thoroughly. He was constantly in the saddle—incidentally causing the Empress many qualms for his safety. For it must be remembered that, though he rides remarkably well, Wilhelm has only his right hand and his knees to control his horse and galloping amongst trees or through undergrowth an overhanging branch or some other cause might lead to serious consequences.

The Kaiser's left arm, of course, is some inches shorter than the other, and has been puny and useless since his birth—a fact for which the German people at the time blamed his mother, the Empress Frederick, eldest daughter of Queen Victoria, with malevolent mutterings against "the Englishwoman." I have often wondered if this was one reason why Wilhelm was so bitterly harsh towards his mother, who died heartbroken through his cruel treatment.

The Emperor's right hand, on the contrary, is large and powerful—I have frequently seen unsuspecting persons wince as their fingers were crushed in its grasp. It is, however, disfigured by moles; partly to hide which, and partly from sheer vanity, his fingers are usually laden with glittering rings.

THE "OTHER WOMAN."

During succeeding days at Rominten the Kaiser's sport put him in amazingly good humor, in which his household basked thankfully—the Empress in particular, to whom Wilhelm was more courteous and attentive than I had ever known him. Indeed, my mistress seemed unusually happy, and would have been even more so but that reports reached her of Prince Eitel Frederick's serious attacks of heart trouble, and that she was again finding grounds for jealousy in the constant appearance of the young baroness.

"It is too bad, Emilie!" she exclaimed with tears of annoyance. "No sooner do I get Wilhelm free from the burdens of state and more like he ought to be to me than some other woman comes upon the scene and occupies all his thoughts!"

The Kaiserin is really not fond of riding or of sport, but at Rominten, spurred on perhaps by the fact that the Baroness Langen-Hofberg was now constantly with the Emperor in his hunts, my mistress appeared determined to join in every expedition. On these occasions the Kaiserin wore a rather becoming garb, a full-skirted hunting costume of gray-green, with green velvet trimmings and buttons cut from the antlers of stags and with this a small round hat of green felt decorated with a tuft of woodcock's feathers. Once only during the visit Her Majesty wore a different costume to go hunting in—and miniature disaster followed.

HER WHITE GOWN.

A night's shooting had been arranged in a distant part of the forest. We drove there, Wilhelm in high spirits, confident of a "big kill," and the Kaiserin wearing a silver-braided gown of white cloth with hat to match. Every condition seemed favorable to success, yet for some mysterious reason the deer would bolt off before the Kaiser could fire.

Again and again this was repeated, until Wilhelm gave up in angry disgust. But just as we were about to return to the castle he observed an old keeper gloomily eyeing the Empress.

"Here, my man," demanded the Kaiser, "what's wrong tonight? Can you tell me why no stags would let us get near them?"

"I can, Majesty," bluntly answered the keeper. "Any fool knows that deer are scared by white clothes!"

My mistress shrank back in the carriage in blank dismay. Wilhelm scowled at the man, but scowled more fiercely at his wife, and drove home in silent wrath, with the poor Kaiserin mortified and miserable.

RUSTIC LOVE.

We were seated one day after lunch in the big, wood-paneled apartment next to the dining hall, when the Kaiser, looking through the deep bay window, saw Col. Von Stahl, then acting as adjutant and house-marshal, in conversation with the old Johann Busch, chief forester on the estate. Von Stahl left the man, and presented himself in the room with a deprecating smile.

"Pardon, your Majesty," he said, "Busch seeks permission to use the big barn near the village for a wedding feast—his daughter is about to be married."

How Wilhelm loves to pose at times—particularly when on one of his country estates—as the friend and father of his people. So he at once evinced a gracious interest in Von Stahl's announcement.

"A wedding, eh?" he exclaimed. "Bring Busch in, colonel, till I ask him all about it."

Gray-whiskered Johann appeared, nervously twisting his forester's hat in his hands.

"It's my daughter Bertha, Majesty," he mumbled. "She's to wed in a couple of days hence, and we'd like to have the feast in the barn."

"And who is the happy man?" queried the Kaiser. "Some one in my service?"

"No, Majesty," answered Johann. "He is Fritz Klauber, woodman on the Langen-Hofberg estate."

The Kaiser frowned swiftly and turned away, twisting at his moustache. I afterwards learned the cause of his sudden displeasure. Fritz Klauber was known all over the district as a young man of pronounced Socialistic opinions.

It would not have been surprising if the Kaiser had forbidden the marriage. Old Johann looked profoundly uncomfortable. But the Kaiser evidently decided otherwise, for after a few moments he turned back with cleared brow, and in his most indulgent and paternal manner,

"Very well, Busch, make use of the barn. And more, since the marriage is to take place on my estate while I am here, I and my party will be present at the ceremony."

The Community Phone.

The war has about eliminated gossip over rural telephone lines in the Owensville community. The old familiar answer from central that the "line's busy" has been crowded out by answers of this kind:

"Can't ring 'em. They are out soliciting for the Red Cross."

"You'll find 'em at the Red Cross work shop."

"Mrs. Farmer is helping put up hay. Call later."

"Haven't been able to ring 'em all day. They are out at work."—[Indianapolis News.

THE LETTERS OF LEMUEL BEAN.

Psycho-analysis Enjoys a Run.

BY ROY K. MOULTON.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW YORK.

DEAR FOLKS: In New York people live in neighborhoods and in communities. The difference is that it is a little more expensive to live in a community. That is to say, you don't come as near getting your money's worth when you live in a community as you do when you live in a neighborhood. But neighborhoods are old-fashioned, and so Luella and I moved into a community.

We are twenty-eight minutes from the Great Dark Way and we have all the usual little community institutions like community churches, dancing classes, whooping cough, clubs, movements and cosmic urges. They call it a community because one company owns all the buildings. The object is to make all the tenants love one another, and they generally do—like wild cats.

In a community the people all mingle together and give the disease epidemics a chance and the book agents as well. When one woman buys a book every other woman buys one. When one of the children has scarlatina, all the others have it. There is nothing selfish about community tenants. They share and share alike. They are all interested in the same thing at the same time. Even rent day gives them a common interest.

The first thing you do when you move into a community is to join everything in sight, from reading classes to rheumatism, and, after you have done that, you begin signing subscription papers. Subscriptions thrive in a community. There is a collector at the door every eight minutes.

For the first few days you answer the buzzer, and then, when you get next to community ways, you let her buz until the battery runs out.

A DELIGHTFUL SAMENESS.

The Ladies' Thursday Club is one of the thriving institutions in our community. It meets first in one apartment and then in another. The apartments are all just alike and so are the meetings. The object of the organization, as nearly as we can find out, is to hold a meeting every week.

The Thursday Club held an important meeting the other day. One of the women had braved the suburban subway and the scalpers and had attended a theatrical performance in the city. The play had to do with psycho-analysis, an entirely new thought. What the Leon Trotzky is to the dance world psycho-analysis is to the modern thinking world and the women's clubs.

It is an indefinable something, as I get it—an insidious something which controls the inner being of those who are sufficiently intellectual to function on its plane. The woman came home from the show full of psycho-analysis. She didn't know what it was. Her husband claimed it was nothing but disposition, which she indignantly denied. Anyhow, she was just bubbling over with it. We discussed it thoroughly at the community penny-ante club that evening; but while we tried to deride it, we knew down in our hearts that we were in for an epidemic of psycho-analysis.

LUELLA HAS QUEER LOOK.

Every day since the meeting of the Thursday Club when the women told them about psycho-analysis, Luella, my wife, has had a queer look. She doesn't seem to keep her mind on our small, yet important, household affairs. For a week she hasn't said a sarcastic thing about food. She has been that way before. I remember when the Rabindranath Tagore epidemic was running around and getting nowhere in particular, Luella had the worst case of it in our block.

She just seems to sit around with her pores open and expose herself. But, strange as it may seem, she never caught the Billysundayitis when it was running its course, and I give her credit for that.

One morning before I left home, Luella, who had been eating a psycho-analytical breakfast with her spoon poised between her mouth and her plate for ten minutes at a time, and gazing at the picture of the watermelon and bunch of grapes on our dining-room wall, suddenly said:

"Do you know, I believe I'm psychic? I am beginning to practice psycho-analysis."

I had been feeling queer for a day or two and now I discerned the reason. She had been practicing on me.

"What is it?" I asked softly, so as to humor her.

"I don't know, exactly," she said. "But we will know more about it when Mrs. Robinson gets the book over in the city. I am only a student, but I am beginning to master it in the lower and simpler degrees."

"Don't you think it is dangerous to monkey with it until you know how to handle it?" I asked nervously.

LUELLA BEGINS TO ANALYZE.

"I am beginning to analyze thought emotions," she replied.

"Just sort of taking them apart to see what makes them sick," I suggested, jocularly.

"Oh, it's no joke. It's a very vital force," she said.

"I can see that," I apologized.

"Psycho-analysis ignores substances," she said. "It bores right through solid bone." And she gave me a pointed look, after which I ran for my train.

I met some of the boys at the station.

"Do you know, I feel queer," said Harding. "My wife has been looking a hole through me. There is something uncanny going on in my old brain pan. My wife has got the psycho-analytics."

"Mine, too," said Bellaire. "She looked straight at me this morning and asked me where I was last night and I told her the truth. Can you beat that?"

"Wait till they get the book," said Harding. "They are only amateurs now."

On the station platform were nine other men of our community. Each was gazing far away across the Long Island prairie. They were not conversing as usual.

"Did you hear about Peters?" asked one of them, drawing near me, placing his hand over his mouth and gazing apprehensively over his shoulder.

"No. What about Peters?" I asked.

ON THE WAGON NOW.

"He went on the water wagon yesterday. He ain't right. When a sincere drinker like Peters goes on the wagon, something's up."

My informant tapped his own head with his forefinger. "Psycho-analysis, by marriage," he whispered.

On the way to the station the next morning, I met Bellaire. He looked frightened.

"Do you know what I did yesterday?" He asked. "I went and bought a $2000 car. I said I would never buy one, I don't understand it at all."

"Was it the one your wife wanted you to buy last fall?" I asked.

"By George, the very one," he panted. "Well, by——."

"Those women have got their book," said Harding at the station. "By the way, I won't be able to play pennyante this evening. I have got to take my wife into town."

IT BEGINS TO WORK.

"That goes double," said Perkins. "I can't be there, either. I have got to take my wife to a show."

"You've been psychoanalyzed," I said.

Never mind, you'll get it, too," growled Harding.

"Not on your life," I said.

Which goes to show that many a man speaks too hastily.

That evening at dinner Luella said: "I have had the most peculiar sensation all day. I believe something pleasant is going to happen."

"Maybe the Kaiser is going to have the shingles," I suggested.

LUELLA IS NEXT.

"Oh, no," she said. "I seem to feel that something nice is going to happen to us. I feel that somebody is going to send us a player piano."

"About when do you think they will send it?"

"Tomorrow—about 2 o'clock to be exact. I feel that it will be the very sort of a player piano I have always wanted."

I looked Luella squarely in the eye. "Have you been over to the city today?" I asked.

"I have," she said, without a quiver.

"Did you call at the piano house?" I asked.

"I did."

"Then you know to a certainty that the player piano will be here at 2 o'clock tomorrow."

"Yes, I am quite psychic about such things now."

"I believe it," I said. "The piano company called me up this afternoon and asked about the first payment."

So, there really isn't anything new about psycho-analysis, after all. It's the same old gag.

Hoping you are the same, I remain, yours, LEM.

PAS AND MAS AND TEACHERS.

BY A GOOD LITTLE BOY.

PAS and Mas and Teachers are very particular about what little boys and girls read. Ma and Teacher specially. Pa only butts in when he gets what Cecilia cells "his temporary spasms of righteousness." All the books they give me have "morals"—you know what I mean, when the good little boy goes to heaven and the bad little boy don't, and the bad little boys get all the lickings and the good little boys get a bicycle for their birthdays, and all that. They're kind of mushy.

They take a couple of boys' magazines for me, too, and Ma says they are "good and wholesome." I guess they are. But when they have a regular bang-up story, Ma writes to the editor and says she hopes the magazine ain't changing its policy. She reads the letter to our preacher and he says it is very proper of her.

Sometimes I get to reading one of Pa's books and Ma gets mad. Pa was reading a book called the "Genius" one time. Teacher had been telling us what a genius was, so I took it up in the tree one day. It was about a chap what liked girls, so far as I could make out, so I asked Ma if geniuses always got mushy on girls. Oh, but Ma did take on and asked Pa how he dared bring such a book in the house. Pa said was he only to read what she chose for him? And she said he needn't be disgusting, anyway. And he said why did she read it herself, and anyway he liked a book what told the truth. And Ma said was it the truth and Pa said yep and bimeby she was hugging me and crying, which makes a chap feel kind of silly somehow.

But another day it was Pa that was mad with Ma, because I got a book of hers that was called "Damaged Goods," which I couldn't make head nor tail of. And Pa said how dare she, and Ma said they was studying it at the club and it was time she knowed things anyway, so there. And Pa threw the book on the fire and asked was he master in his own house and Ma said heaven help her, he was.

Seems to me books cause a lot of trouble in houses. One day I wanted a book, so I took one Teacher had in her desk. It was called "The Career of Katherine Bush." My sister talks about her "career," so I thought I'd see what it was. Trust Ma to spot it—just when me and Celia was getting to the second chapter. Oh, there was an awful fuss, and Ma spoke up about it at the P.-T.A. meeting, and our teacher went to another school. And Ma told Pa what she'd done and Pa said she'd ought to be ashamed of herself, and Ma said oh, of course, but if he didn't care about his children's morals, she did. She said it wasn't a culture book like a club would study, but was a thoroughly immoral story. Celia told me she'd read it bimeby and let me know how it went on.

Then there's the movies. It's just sickening how they carry on about the movies. Ma's dippy on that subject and has a lecture she gives on "Better Films." They used to say it was all right for us to see anything Mary Pickford was in, but there's too much of that love stuff in her kind for me. Charlie Chaplin used to be all right, but now Ma says they're vulgar slapstick stuff and teaches us to be rough. She even got hetchy about Doug Fairbanks and said she thought "Headin' South" made crime attractive. So they got to taking me to the special children's ones, where they get the story all wrong and have them little kids playing they're grown-up, which is silly. You'd think they'd be good for babies, but Ginger, who is 5 years old, don't understand them, and we big chaps just don't like 'em.

That's the worst of grownups, they're always butting in and making everything seem wrong. The ones that go in for "child study" and a thing they call "psychology" (that's some kind of worrying tests they give you, asking you questions when you're flummuxed and getting the boys all het up, seeing them put down the answers and shaking their heads) gives you the stomachache. They make you feel kind of silly, and they has a way of being extra patient with you that makes you wish you could have a licking and done with it.

Our Teacher, the new one we got in A-5, says she believes in reasoning with us and says if the children is treated right they ain't no trouble. I guess she don't treat us right or something, anyway she is always reasoning with us because we're bad, and says we hurt her here (putting her hand on her heart, you know,) and sometimes we laugh, cos we don't know what to say and then she gets awful mad. I don't want to laugh, but I always do, I dunno why, because I really want to cry, but that would make a chap feel so kind of mean. So one day I told Pa and he says what this boy wants is a man over him, and Ma says is he insulting her sex as usual, and Pa says he bets the teacher is an old maid, and Ma says lucky woman, yes, she is, and Pa laughs kind of sarcastic and Ma says it is easy to do that and she's sorry she ever married him, and Pa says he agrees with her and bimeby their both making me and Celia and Ginger go and be extra nice to the other one, and soon they've forgot the teacher, but I don't. Only I think I won't tell them anything again; it makes too much fuss.

There's a boy on our street that hasn't got a Pa and his Ma pets him something dreadful—but he don't have no fun, because he mustn't play caves with us, or cooking in the yard, or wading, because he might get hurt or catch a cold or something. And she keeps her house awful clean, so he has to change his boots on the back porch before he goes in.

The boy that has the best time on our street has a Ma that goes out to work. I guess she's got a good job. Anyway, she laughs a lot, and reads us "Treasure Island," and if we swipe her fruit, she says you young rascals, now you better clean up the weeds in my front garden and then we'll be quits. And she don't care if we're dirty and she lets us cook out in her yard, and if we make a racket she says, "Oh, you villains, I'll have to stop my ears up," and she's always got some oil for our skates and can make dandy kites, and when her kid has a fight and we lick him, she don't tell our mas, but says, "Come here, you young Turks, and let me doctor you all up before your mas see you," and she does. And one day I broke her window and she says if you pay me so much attention, young man, I'll come right along to school and kiss you in the middle of the yard—and Ma said it was disgusting, but I known she wouldn't have done it. And she tells us all about the war, sitting out on her porch when she comes home, while her maid's getting dinner. And one day we asked her was it true she was going to get married again and she looks funny and says did we think her boy needed a pa that bad, because she thought she was a pretty good pa. And we said she was, too.

ANNOUNCES

An Association with the New York Times and Chicago Tribune for Additional War News and General News

The Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable Service

TO expand more widely its already far-reaching war news facilities, The Los Angeles Times makes public the completion of its arrangements with The New York Times and Chicago Tribune whereby the entire foreign service of both newspapers and their great news features will be used by this journal and those publications jointly.

This new arrangement brings to the Times readers the latest cable reports from twenty-three noted correspondents stationed throughout the war zone and in every important foreign center. And this service is in addition to that of The Times individual representatives overseas and in addition to the Associated Press reports received by The Times.

Among the foreign cables received by The Times daily through this new arrangement are the reports of such brilliant and well-known writers as Philip Gibbs—with the British Army Headquarters in France; G. H. Perris—with the French Armies; Edwin L. James–with American Army Headquarters in France; Perceval Gibbon–with the Italian Armies; Walter Duranty–with the French Armies; and representatives at Paris, London, Petrograd, Amsterdam, Berne, The Hague, Rome, Rotterdam, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Milan and other foreign points.

The Los Angeles Times-Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable Reports reach The Times the same day they are written. Due to the fact that they are dispatched by the fastest route, the cable tolls are exceptionally high—averaging more than $1000 a day. This costly arrangement makes it possible for The Times to deliver the latest war news from every important point authentically—and FIRST. No other newspaper in California receives this thorough service. To be certain of obtaining an accurate account of every foreign development quickly—read The Times daily and Sunday.

RAVELERS RETURN IN CROWDS FROM UNDISCOVERED BOURNE.

Book Marts Filled with Records of Communications with the Dead—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle the Latest Convert to Spiritualism—Patience Worth Again Baffles the Skeptics and Writes a Book that Any Man or Woman Alive Might Well be Proud to Claim.

of these books are recent, all are new, and their combined is enough to make the a little uncomfortable; but that will probably be most read and have the most influ among laymen, that is, among who haven't thought much of one way or the other, is Conan Doyle's "The New (George H. Doran Com Conan Doyle's mere name readers, and it is noth more than an appeal to the type that is prone to discard spir as "bunk" and let it go at that, preferring to give all studious attention to Brigadier Gerard and Sherlock Holmes.

Sir Arthur explains that he used to be a skeptic. It seems to be from skeptics that spiritualists recruit their most ardent missionaries; and having become a convert, in the usual manner of the newly converted, he now declares the burden of proof falls on the skeptics. He believes we are on the eve of communications, revelations, from the other side that will completely revolutionize our intellectual values, perhaps our civilization. And he warns the skeptic not to sneer "at the humble beginnings, the heaving table or the flying tambourine, however much such phenomena may have been abused or simulated, but remember that a falling apple taught us gravitation, a boiling kettle brought us the steam engine, and the twitching leg of a frog opened up the train of thought and experiment which gave us electricity." He says that it was Myers's "Human Personality" that cut the ground from under his feet and destroyed his position as a materialist; and since then, having inquired into spiritualism, he has not only become convinced, but has personally come into possession of such evidence as cannot be doubted. He declares himself to be now in touch with thirteen mothers who are communicating with their dead sons (war victims) and that no more than one of these women before the war was interested in spiritualism.

The Dead are "Modest."

Sir Arthur believes that we are approaching, not a discovery, but a recovery, as it seems clear to him that "the early Christians not only practiced spiritualism as we understand it, but also that they were faced by the same difficulties;" and he makes the Bible pretty much of a source book for evidence and deductions, although there are many illustions of spiritualistic phenomena during the past few years. Having given much consideration to collating the various spiritual descriptions of life as it is lived on the further side, Sir Arthur concludes: "All agree that life beyond is for a limited period, after which they pass on to other phases, but apparently there is more communication between these phases than there is between us and Spiritland. The lower cannot ascend, but the higher can descend at will. The life has a close analogy to that of this world at its best. It is pre-eminently a life of the mind, as this is of the body. Preoccupations of food, money, lust, pain, etc., are of the body and are gone. Music, the Arts, intellectual and spiritual knowledge and progress have increased. The people are clothed, as one would expect, since there is no reason why modesty should disappear with our new forms."

That last sentence impresses me as one of utter nonsense. I suppose Turkish ladies will keep their ghostly faces veiled and that Burmese ladies will have tattoos on their fleshless legs, as those are the things which modesty requires for them. Modesty, such as requires clothing, at any rate, is purely of the "body," which we find, with its desires, left in the grave.

And so the long list of books runs, and the arguments are woven around mediumistic scribblings and oujia boards, affidavits and declarations by "responsible" parties, apparitions and prophecies. When the whole of them has been surveyed, it remains still that Patience Worth is the most appealing and—if one could escape the feeling that Patience has goodly warm flesh as well as keen wit and artistry—convincing witness that has ever arisen to bear witness to immortality.

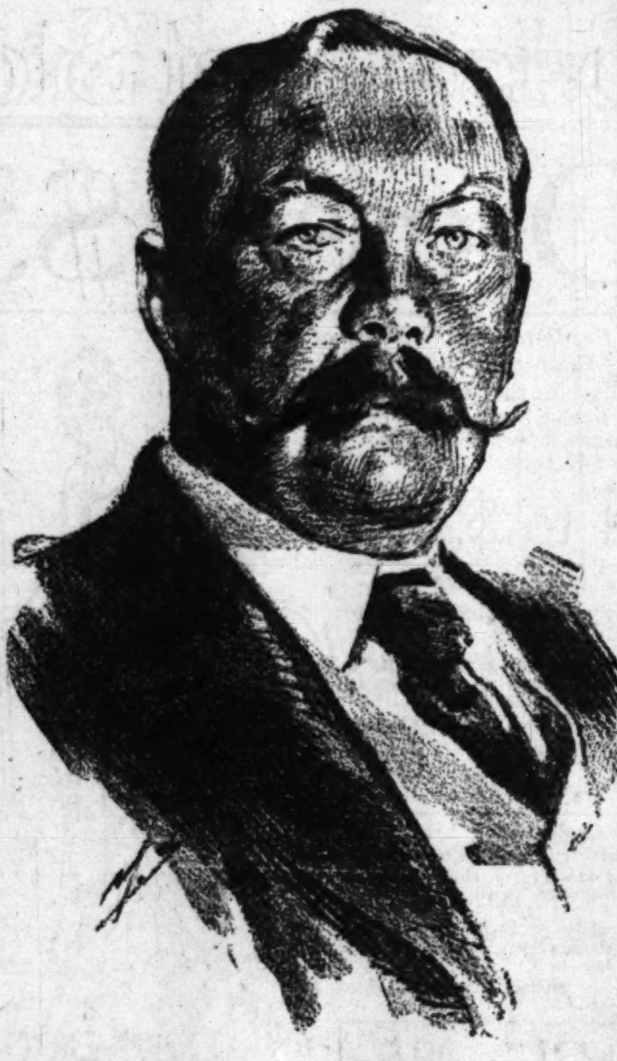
The Most Intelligent Ghost.

It is hardly proper to subpoena Patience to testify in the case of Skeptics vs. Spiritualism, for by all the standards and requirements of literature she is an artist. Her ghostly characteristics are incidental to the beauty of her verse and the vision of her prose. Until this book, "Hope Trueblood," Patience wrote of the remote past, of archaic England and Judea at the time of Christ; and her words still are of robust Saxon ancestry. Modern life and expression do not seem familiar to her, though this is the most modern of anything she has written, being laid somewhere around the mid-Victorian age.

It happens that Patience has so many characteristics delightful to follow that it is not easy to begin enumeration. She has not only wit, but a fine dramatic sense; she not only describes with sympathetic penetration the inner life of a child, but weaves a mystery story that discloses the technique of a master; she is excellent in endowing her characters with personality, but perhaps supreme in description and the creating of tone, moods—"atmosphere."

Remarkable Literature.

The story begins: "The glass had slipped thrice and the sands stood midway through, and still the bird hopped within its wicker. I think the glass had slipped through a score of years, rightfully set at each turning, and the bird had sung through some of these and mourned through others. The hearth's arch yawned sleepily upon the black woolen table cover, where yellow fruit cut of some cloth were sewn. It may have been that I fancied this, but nevertheless it yawned. The wick had been lighted, as it had been the score of years, at the first coming of darkness. The kettle had been hung up within the yawning hearth, and sent its steaming mists up the dark of the chimney's pit, for it had so often climbed the way. The fire seemed fitful, sleeping almost to ash, then suddenly flaming up as though to see the trinkets upon the what-all or read the woolen sampler that told unto the coming guest: 'God is Love.'"



He believes in ghosts.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the latest convert to spiritualism.

The narrative is told by Hope Trueblood, the "brat of Sally Trueblood," and though some may be moved to admiration over the masterly suspense of the mystery as to who is the father of this "brat," and find the most joy from the punishments that descend upon the villain, as well as get a thrill from the artistry with which the author has developed this intensely complicated story, yet the real, high value of the book lies in delineation of Hope Trueblood's childish timidity, her feelings, and the delicacy, too refined for words, but conveyed by intimations, suggestions—with which it is made clear, even forcible.

Nothing is to be gained by telling the story in the reviewer's fashion. It is one of an extremely intricate plot, dealing with the two Willoughby brothers, one of whom is a scoundrel, and of this scoundrel's son who loves Hope; and of Reuben Passwater and Patricia, brother and sister, and Patricia and Sally, and their conflicting loves. In the background is the evident intention to reveal the suffering and mistreatment which a Christian community of that day piled upon a woman whose child was, or was supposed to be, fatherless; and the sampler inscribed with "God is Love" in Patricia's house sounds the ironical motif that runs with deepening tone through the entire book.

"Hope Trueblood" Precious.

But Hope Trueblood herself is a precious character, vivid, endearing and observant. Her felicity of comment is delightful (one must not forget that she is only the "medium" for the illimitable Patience Worth.) Of the Vicar Gifford she says: "I remember his face and that it always reminded me of one who had seen the sins of the world and fainted." But Gifford is a strange man as the little Hope learns, but does not clearly understand, when, for instance, he puts his arm around her and raising himself to his full height, turns toward the congregation and says: "Let him without sin cast the first stone."

Despite her charm, or perhaps because of it, for there are few things in the world that people so resent as charm in others, particularly in those whose fathers and mothers are supposed to be sin-stained, Hope suffers much; and the book is one of poignancy, so very intense that the style of the author, the wit of Hope, scarcely keep it from being depressing. But one cannot escape the realization that here—no matter what its source—is a masterpiece. It has the full, definite plan of the literary architect, an extremely sensitive appreciation of values, and a deftness of narrative that bespeaks the accomplished artist.

Can it really be that this is some Bronte from Spiritland who has found a tiny aperture through the bleak wall of death to which she has pressed her lips? And when the breach is widened will the earth's literature be enriched by the voices of Marlowes, Chattertons, Keatses, of Shelleys, Byrons, singing the songs that life's untimely and abrupt ending cut off?

Casper S. Yost, editor and manager of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, has investigated with all the acumen of a trained newspaper man the messages received by Mrs. Curran, and has tested and inquired; and he "vouches most unreservedly for the genuineness of the whole business." And if it be true, then the coming of Columbus to San Salvador was but a matter of minor importance compared to the arrival from the "undiscovered bourne" of this charming and gifted visitor, who announced herself in July, 1913, while Mrs. Curran and a friend were amusing themselves with a ouija board, thus:

"Many moons ago I lived. Again I come. Patience Worth my name."

"WHY MARRY?"

Jesse Lynch Williams's brilliant comedy, "Why Marry?" now on a two-year tour of the United States, headed by Nat Goodwin, was awarded by Columbia University on June 5 the Pulitzer prize of $1000, for the best play by an American author, produced in New York during the year 1917. This play when first published by the Scribners in 1914 was entitled, somewhat ironically, "And So They Were Married," but the new edition, recently issued with illustrations and an amusing introduction by the author, has assumed the briefer and more engaging title of "Why Marry?" for it was under that name that the comedy was produced in Chicago, had its amazing success in New York, and has now the added distinction of being the first play to receive the annual Pulitzer prize.

Mr. Williams has the disinction of being the first to win this honor. This prize was available for plays produced during 1916, but none of them was considered worthy of it by the jury of award, composed of Augustus Thomas, president of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and president of the Society of American Dramatists; Richard Burton, president of the Drama League, and Hamlin Garland, the novelist. They were appointed by the National Institute of Arts and Letters, to which distinguished body the board of trustees of Columbia University had referred the matter of deciding the award. These judges were unanimous in awarding the prize for 1917 to the author of "Why Marry?"

"BRAVO THE NAVY!"

Ralph D. Paine, author of "The Fighting Fleets" (Houghton Mifflin Company) who has just returned from five months with the Allied Fleets where he went to sea with every branch of the Allied Naval Service by special permission of the British, French and American admiralties, brings back the first comprehensive story of the Allied Forces at sea. Mr. Paine scoffs at the stories of misunderstandings between the American and British fleet which have gone the rounds in this country. "Lies," he says. "I found everywhere the best possible spirit and co-operation between the American and British forces. The men like each other. There have been no misunderstandings as to policy or operation between the commanding officers and any stories of friction or difficulties are groundless. I found everywhere outspoken admiration and respect for the efficiency of the American ships and for the character of their crews."

BOOKS ON THE WAR.

IN THE making of books there is no end. I suppose Solomon said it first, or perhaps he used to be a reviewer and had it dinned into his ears; anyway, I don't suppose there was ever anybody that got within telescopic range of a reviewer's desk without an effort at the quotation.

Who wants that there should be an end? Some wise people over in England are said to be getting ready to put the clamps on the fiction press because of the shortage of white paper. The cynics will no doubt rejoice, since fiction is scorned by a large number of people who pose as knowing what's the matter with literature.

The paper shortage has affected many literary interests. Thomas Bird Mosher has been able to get out very few of his precious volumes because hand-made paper has become unprocurable; and many American publishers have fallen back on a kind of butcher's wrapping paper to bear the messages—some of which could be dispensed with—of genius.

But publishers have to cut down on quality of material, raise the prices or go into bankruptcy. Ink, cloth, labor, dyes and all else that go into the vestments of immortality with which they bedeck the efforts of authors has reached a forbidding price; and though statistics might reveal a dropping off of volumes, it is far from apparent to the casual glance.

War Books—A Deluge.

War books pour from the presses. They have poured for years—from December, 1914—and the few of them that may be seen in the flotsam of second-hand shops indicate that most have found a warm shelf in some kind of a library. The wreckage that piles up in old book shops is pathetic; it is almost as if a toneless voice cried from between the covers seeking to be taken out, read and loved. Consider the hopes that went into them, the labor—and now, mere discards, waifs and strays huddled together, dirty, scarred, dog-eared, foxed, often with backs broken and pages scrawled with childish pencil. Here and there a treasure for the discerning eye, but for the most part mere unconsidered junk, caught for a while in an eddy, tossed up for a moment by the strong current that runs toward the all engulfing sea of things forgotten. Books of other wars are there in quantities: how brief, how very brief is the concern men have for the trials and dangers and their records of the past.

Soldier's Own Story.

The most popular type of the current books seems to be the soldier's own story. Sergt. Empey started the popularity with "Over the Top," which wasn't by any means the first book of its kind, but the first to "catch on." Since then—they have been simply uncountable.

In "Holding the Line," Sergt. Harold Baldwin of the first Canadian Expeditionary Force (A. C. McClurg & Co.) tells the same story that so many have told, that so many will continue to tell. He fought at Ypres—and once the eyes of the whole world were focused every morning over the breakfast coffee on Ypres—in the early days of the war; and though he has written a little more conventionally than Empey (who wasn't a sergeant in this war) and Private Peat (who came out of it a lieutenant,) he gives a detailed account of what he went through. As I have said, these books are all alike—and yet, as people are essentially all alike, yet each has a distinct personality, so it is the personal quality, the vividness of the eyewitnesses's story, which has made these books popular, deservedly. Sergt. Baldwin tells of being trained, of moving to the front, of the miserable life and the unquenchable humor of the fighters, of digging in, fighting and charging, of being wounded. It is the same story, illuminated with various little incidents, and interesting.

What Fathers Feel.

Some of the war letters that made a deep appeal to many who came within reading distance were by Coningsby Dawson, known in times of peace chiefly by "Over the Garden Wall," and the son of W. J. Dawson, a man of letters. In "The Father of a Soldier" (John Lane Company,) W. J. Dawson sets down some of his own reflections, puts on the page something of his feeling through the long anxious months. There is much in it that parents will recognize as their own: particularly fathers. They, more strongly than others, feel that the young soldiers are fighting the battle of the noncombatant, and that those at home owe more to the men at the guns than can be paid in gold or tributes. Mr. Dawson, as most people of an intellectual cast do, found a sort of philosophy adaptable to the condition of sustained anxiety and hope. Fragments of literature took on a new, or at least a stronger significance, and out of the intensity of feeling something that might be termed a refinement of idealism came, phoenix-like. In many places, in all of our war literature, may be found the contrast between the visions the Germans through hope of victory see, and those toward which the Allies have turned their eyes. It is very pronounced in "The Father of a Soldier."

"Human Documents."

I do not know precisely what a "human document" is. It is, I think, something that finds a response in every human being that reads it; but, anyway, to call something a "human document" is to lay a literary accolade on its shoulder, though, in the strictest sense such praise can be given only to such—and they are rarities beyond pearls of great price—as Richard Jefferies's "The Story of My Heart." But Hermann Hagedorn in "Where do You Stand?" (The Macmillan Company) and Otto H. Kahn's "Right Above Might" (The Century Company,) and particularly the first, are in a way "human documents," though one must somewhat visualize something in each case outside of the books.

Both authors are German, racially. Mr. Hagedorn dedicates "Where Do You Stand?" to a grandfather who fled Saxony after the futile revolution of '48 and '89 "to find in America the freedom which his own country denied him." And point by point, with intensity, with the deep, deep rage of honesty boiling his blood, Mr. Hagedorn calls upon Americans of German origin to stand "absolutely for America and against Germany." Mr. Kahn was born in Germany and prospered in America. Unlike other bankers, too numerous for mention at this time, he did not bend his efforts to aid the "Fatherland," but declared: "We will not permit the blood in our veins to drown the conscience in our breast. We will heed the call of honor beyond the call of race." He also point by point contrasts the difference in principle between the cause of the Allies and that of Germany, and his appeal to Americans of German origin is both ringing and fundamental.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS.

Prize-Novel Contest.

J. W. Wallace & Co., publishers, No. 160 North Wells street, Chicago, are offering a cash prize of $10,000 for the novel winning first place in their authors' contest now open and closing September 15, 1918. The conditions of the contest place no restrictions on the length or subject matter of the novel, but make the award of the prize of $10,000 to the successful author provisional upon his or her waiver to all further rights in the book upon payment of the prize.

It is probable that a number of the other manuscripts submitted will be chosen for publication by the firm at the usual rates. A certified check on the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago will be paid to the winner of the contest.

Arrangements have been made for the prompt reading and rating of all manuscripts submitted, so that the decision of the editors may be announced within a reasonably short time after the close of the contest.

Opportunity.

The following modest communication recently arrived:

INGERSOLL GOODWIN.

Recipe for a Modern Novel.

Ladies between the ages of 18 and 28 would do well to move very prudently, these days, for they are being watched. Yet some of the heroines of printers' ink are enjoying life more than sensible people can imagine. The rules of the game are few; an utter willingness, even a fanatacism, for taking a bath is the first. If there is not a bathtub around the corner at the end of an affecting scene, the whole business will go wrong. Then, it is evident that a Latin quotation in a crisis calms the nerves as nothing else can. Another requirement is the presence of a pittance, left by a dying dotard, of at least five, if not ten, thousand a year. And last, one must have, like all other paper dolls, an assortment of silk nightwear, for early morning walks in meadows and other appropriate occasions. Thus provided, the heroine proceeds to trip things up generally.—[The Dial.

"The Eastern Window."

The Marshall Jones Company of Boston announces for publication in early June "The Eastern Window," a short novel by Sidney Williams, literary editor of the Boston Herald. Mr. Williams's first novel, "A Reluctant Adam," was generally rated a clever study of the male who prospers beyond his deserts by indifference that disarms. "The Eastern Window" is a psychologic romance for people to whom the substance of fiction is more important than its trappings. There is a slight war interest, and a dash of the supernatural element that nowadays gains rapidly in men's minds. The scenes are American and European.

A "Life of Gen. Foch."

Surprisingly little is known about Gen. Ferdinand Foch, the man who has the overwhelming responsibility of being at the head of six millions of soldiers and to whom four great nations have entrusted their armies and their destinies. A "Life of Gen. Foch," brief but comprehensive, is now announced by Houghton Mifflin Company for publication in the very near future. It will give the story of his life and military career and is written by an eminent historian and military expert. The book will have as frontispiece a reproduction in colors of a painting of Gen. Foch.

A "BOOM" BOOK.

THE REAL COL. HOUSE. By Arthur D. Dowden Smith. George H. Doran, New York.

We have with us now Mr. Arthur D. Dowden Smith, who undertakes to reveal the "real" Col. House, who, according to Mr. Dowden, is considered a "man of mystery," the "power" behind the President, and credited with many other distinctions of which my poor ears had not heard. But Mr. Smith mentions those distinctions only to deny them. He is very determined to make Col. House out as a simple, kindly little man, very modest, of no romance or mystery.

And who is Edward Mandell House that while yet among the living, with no achievements other than successful politics in Texas and a few confidential commissions from President Wilson, should have his exhaustive biography written? And for what purpose is this lavish outlay of words. The book looks suspiciously like a political document got out on behalf of the Democratic party. And having had, in the past, some familiarity with books gotten out to puff men for Presidential candidates, I am inclined to look askance at this one, particularly as this has the characteristic ring:

"The political aims and future of Col. House excite almost as much interest in professional political circles of all parties as those of President Wilson himself. You hear on one side the assertion that Mr. Wilson is grooming Col. House for exploitation as his successor—a statement that receives the derision it deserves from those who possess Col. House's confidence, and is probably as amusing to the President."

Then we are told that Col. House has no "political prejudices," he has no feeling against a man simply because the man happens to be a Republican, etcetera. Truly it has all the symptoms of a boom book, explaining laboriously that Col. House did not make his fortune out of convict labor, though admitting there is just enough truth in the report to make it difficult to explain.

A great deal of the book is given over to explaining how the Wilson administration has acted perfectly at all times, with the undertone intimation running through it all that Col. House was whispering advice continually to the President. The author tries to make out that the President in May, 1914, foresaw the coming world war and sent Col. House to Europe to prevent it. But the author acts as though venturing a conjecture of which he is not quite certain. If President Wilson did foresee the coming war and did send Col. House to stop it, why need it be told in such equivocal language as: "Three months before war actually broke out, he sent Col. House to Europe to endeavor to convince the several governments of Germany, France and Great Britain of the danger of the existing situation and awaken them to the need of taking steps to clarify the misunderstandings among themselves for the sake, not only of their own peoples, but of the whole world."

As though the several governments never dreamed of such a possibility until Col. House introduced himself.

This is purely a fatuous book, and Mr. Smith has the rhetorical ring of the press agent. I have given more attention to it than it deserves in the vain hope of aiding a mite in the discouragement of the "boom" literature with which the country will probably be deluged until both parties definitely select their candidates for President.

BESTIAL PRINCES.

LOVE INTRIGUES OF THE KAISER'S SONS. By William Le Queux. John Lane Company, New York.

Former Ambassador Gerard has most surprisingly white-washed the sons of the Kaiser, and particularly the fox-faced Crown Prince, declaring that this chap is a model young man in every way excepting in his weakness for war, his love of it.

Now comes William Le Queux, known to some people as a writer of thrilling novels, who introduces himself as a British spy operating in Germany and avows that fiction was only the disguise with which he operated. According to his reports all of the Kaiser's sons are bestial and venomous. "The Crown Prince, with his shallow, sloping face, abnormal nose and slant-set eyes is the most pronounced type of the degenerate of today."

It appears that the All Highest's five sons bring to their affairs of love the same unscrupulous, deep planning arts with which their illustrious pater sought to seduce Victory.

Does any of them love a married woman and wish to free her from her husband? O-ho! They cultivate the friendship of hubby, get him entangled with some maiden, have the police arrest him, and the wife secures a divorce and is free to be the toy of a princeling. Does Prince Adalbert need money? Blackmail helps to meet debts of honor. Does Prince August-Wilhelm wish to steal confidential papers from Russia? He makes love to a girl, gets her to be his accomplice, take what he wants and reports her to the police. But when the fat and lustful Prince Eitel Friedrich encountered the beautiful Carlotta he met—not the seduceable Italian, as he supposed her to be—but a clever adventuress who reduced his Hohenzollern nibs to chills and fever; and the amorous Eitel paid in good hard cash, which is a most painful experience for scions of Royalty—Germans or otherwise.

It is hardly reasonable to suppose that five young men, born above the law, parented by a fool that preaches to them their blood superiority to all mankind; and who, by virtue—virtue, indeed!—of their fortune in being born princes have silly women continually flinging themselves about their necks—it is, I say, unreasonable to suppose that these men would be more decent or honorable than princes usually are.

Though all of them hated England and France, they traveled much in those countries, incognito. The Crown Prince particularly enjoyed the night life of London. "His greatest delight was to visit the very lowest haunts, and even to smoke opium in an establishment kept by a 'Chinese' in Limehouse."

The Crown Prince is represented as extremely cynical. Once, when posing as a Mr. Hildebrand, he was shown a picture of himself and his resemblance to the heir of the throne commented on. He remarked that the resemblance was no compliment, as the Crown Prince was notoriously heartless in his love affairs. A prophetic remark, indeed, to the American girl to whom he addressed it; for after desperately making love to her she married. The Prince attempted to make a liason of his relations, and forced a meeting with her, but the girl repulsed him. Then this heir of the All Highest, bent on revenge, wrote a letter to the husband, signed his royal name to it: "a scurrilous letter such as the worst of men would not stoop to write." The next day the wife was found dead. The verdict, suicide.

Oh, well, when one's father is an intimate of Gott, one may perhaps expect to have a few more things forgiven than are to be forgiven ordinary mortals.

My Vacation

—Undoubtedly I'm a bit eccentric on the subject of books. Some call me a Bibliophile—but one thing is certain, I know full well where to go for my books—I know that Different Book Store at Bullock's is my favorite—and every time I call upon it, I come away feeling as though I had put some furniture in my attic, as the late Elbert Hubbard used to word it.

The Tragedy of Hairpins.

Truly the deprivations of war multiply among our battle-scarred allies. Bad enough is the scarcity of coal. Much worse is the shortage of foodstuffs. But picture the calamity that will fall on the fair head of Britannia when she is absolutely without hairpins.

Statistics say that the supply of hairpins in Great Britain will last but three months longer. Generously the American sisters have shared their little wires and their bits of bone and celluloid, but feminine devotion, it seems, is now at an end. Factories on this side of the world are already finding it difficult to supply home consumption, and the American coiffure also may soon be endangered by weakened supports.

With the women of other years it was different. A few small twigs did for Eve. Thorns and fishbones were utilized by generations of her descendants, but modern Britannia, not being adept in skinning a fish to secure its ribs, may have to let her glorious tresses fall.—[Philadelphia Telegraph.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS,
WARTS AND MOLES.

Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 300 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to this work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers will testify to my skill as an expert.

50c MADAM ADAIR 50c
Trance Medium (Ordained)
This Week.

She asks no questions; tells your full name; tells the names of friends and enemies; tells you what you have called for; tells all about your business affairs; tells things you should know. Does another share the love that should belong to you, or is there some one else's love you wish to gain, or have you secret rivals or enemies you wish to overcome? Do you want to get proofs, facts and names in regard to whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false? Do you want success in luck, love, marriage, health, business and speculation? Special attention given to the location and discovery of old estates, lost documents, lost or absent friends; in a word, whatever your troubles, suspicions, hopes, fears or desires, you are earnestly invited to call, and you will be rewarded by obtaining a clear insight into the future. Also, if you care to learn the lives and fate of those dear to you. All business sacred and confidential. Evil influences broken. Teaches you how to control the one you love and overcome your enemies.

Come and I will tell you your troubles, and if I can't help you it will not cost you anything, and you will have the benefit of a good reading by a reliable medium free. Is this fair? Hours, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Sunday included.

SEE THE SAND GAZER.

DR. MUNDO-DARE, ORDAINED.

DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHERS.

SPECIAL READING, THIS WEEK, 50c.

The only member of INDIA'S MYSTIC BROTHERHOOD to ever visit this country. First in America to introduce this MYSTERIOUS ART employed by PROPHETS OF OLDEN TIMES. His remarkable disclosures are pronounced "PHENOMENAL" by thinking people who have consulted him. Any Clairvoyant can tell your name, the past and present. If wives, husbands, sweethearts or friends are true or false, and many other things of more trivial importance. All these things the SAND GAZER tells at a glance. What you want is to be successful and make the most of a life that is passing ALL TOO FAST. To get what your Creator promises, you must know your strongest points. Your future possibilities, physical condition, how to gain the one you desire, how to be magnetic, etc., etc. To acquire these things, you MUST SEE THE SAND GAZER SOONER OR LATER. So COME TODAY.

IN HIS DEPARTMENT HE STANDS SUPREME.

You need not speak for him to call your name in full, names of those you wish to know or what you came for, how to make business pay, whom you will marry and when, every possible advice regarding love, travel, changes, speculation, divorces, lawsuits, sickness, etc. All of life's active principles are minutely analyzed by THIS WIZARD OF THE SHIFTING SANDS. The Only Psychic who really demonstrates the mysterious power to help you. Come. Test him and be convinced. Hours, 12 to 8 daily and Sundays. Maid in attendance. 1920 S. FIGUEROA ST. Phone 22141. No sign.

PERSONAL—

PEERLESS PALMER,
AMERICA'S GREATEST PSYCHIC.
50c—READINGS THIS WEEK—50c.

Calls you by name and tells the object of your visit without asking a question. Names enemies and friends. Tells whom and when you will marry; if the one you love loves you; whether wife or sweetheart is true or false; how to influence any one you desire, even though a thousand miles away. Develops personal magnetism; causes speedy and happy marriage with the one of your choice. Gives advice on all matters of business. He gives more satisfaction, more encouragement, more success, more help, more facts than any other Psychic. He is worthy your confidence.

REMOVES EVIL INFLUENCES.

Do you find the one you have bestowed your affection and trust upon acting cool and indifferent? Has a rival or obstacle of any kind crept between you and your future home, or has misfortune assailed the quietude of your happy home? COME TO THIS GIFTED MEDIUM and find help.

THE PROFIT

is life's sunshine, conscious power, magnetism to attract and strength to hold. It's not so much in what I tell you as it is what I do for you by my special influence, that I put forth in your behalf to overcome all your sorrows and troubles so that you can have the power to win your greatest desires. What good is a psychic's advice unless they are able to lift you out of your troubles, worriments and bad luck? None whatever.

I will accept no fee unless you receive perfect satisfaction.

GEO. PALMER, 614 S. HOPE ST.
Hours 10 to 6 DAILY; SUNDAY, 12 to 2.

GOOD JOBS. BIG WAGES.
THE HARVESTING IS COMING.
Young men, improve your vacation by taking your first step to success by learning the tractor trade right at the Sandusky Tractor, Truck and Auto School. Here you see men working on 10 different makes of tractors, wheel and caterpillar; overhauling, driving, plowing, ignition, carburetor, magneto, coils, bearings, babbitting, oxy-acetylene brazing and welding, all under expert instructors and lecturers. Men learn in from 2 to 4 weeks, but we do not limit on time or age. As gas engines will be improved from time to time you are given a life membership in our school so that you can keep yourself up to date. Day and night course, light and airy shops. Investigate free our summer rates at the SANDUSKY TRACTOR, TRUCK AND AUTO SCHOOL, 4607 S. Park Avenue. (See Instruction adv.)

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS,
WARTS AND MOLES.

Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 300 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to this work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers will testify to my skill as an expert.

CLARKE—THE MASTER PSYCHIC—CLARKE.

50C—ALWAYS CONSULT THE BEST—50C.

Make no change until you have consulted the master psychic. Prof. Clarke helps you gain back what you wish at once. Almost immediately removes the cause of any bad luck, bad habits, sickness, trouble or failure. He helps you win back the love you have lost.

Every day a stream of people pass in and out of his office on Alvarado street, some go away smiling, other more hopeful than for years, for this marvelous medium who sees all and tells all without asking a solitary question is always able to restore the wavering faith in others and give them back that self-confidence which makes for success.

Thousands of the best people of this city and surrounding country have consulted this master psychic and are amazed at what he is able to tell them. He not only gives you more help, more knowledge and power than any other medium, but more than all other mediums and psychics combined.

All are welcome to his beautiful home, opposite Westlake Park, where they may read all the inspiring books of his large library, whether they wish to have a reading or not. Come and freely enjoy the wonderful atmosphere and vibrations in the home of this master psychic. You will go away with a feeling of confidence and power that you have never experienced before.

Today new opportunities are at hand. You may be able to get a better position, better salary or business, dispose of your property to advantage. The time to do things is now. Call at once. Readings daily and Sunday, 10 to 7. Fee 50c. 556181. 638 S. ALVARADO. Wil. 2956. Take W. 6th or W. 7th-st. car to Alvarado.

PERSONAL—
50c MADAM ADAIR 50c
Trance Medium (Ordained)
This Week.

She asks no questions; tells your full name; tells the names of friends and enemies; tells you what you have called for; tells all about your business affairs; tells things you should know. Does another share the love that should belong to you, or is there some one else's love you wish to gain, or have you secret rivals or enemies you wish to overcome? Do you want to get proofs, facts and names in regard to whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false? Do you want success in luck, love, marriage, health, business and speculation? Special attention given to the location and discovery of old estates, lost documents, lost or absent friends; in a word, whatever your troubles, suspicions, hopes, fears or desires, you are earnestly invited to call, and you will be rewarded by obtaining a clear insight into the future. Also, if you care to learn the lives and fate of those dear to you. All business sacred and confidential. Evil influences broken. Teaches you how to control the one you love and overcome your enemies.

Come and I will tell you your troubles, and if I can't help you it will not cost you anything, and you will have the benefit of a good reading by a reliable medium free. Is this fair? Hours, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Sunday included.

1918 SO. GRAND AVE.

PERSONAL—WHAT HE DOES FOR 50 CENTS—50 CENTS—50 CENTS.

I call your name, tell how long you will live, what condition your business is in, how to improve it; I tell you all about wife, husband, sweetheart, how to win the love of those you desire; I tell of journeys, changes, speculations, investments, what to do to obtain best results, whom to trust, whom to shun, whom you will marry, when, what they are like. If you fail, there is a reason. I tell it, and that, too, without asking you a question. When in doubt consult Los Angeles' favorite clairvoyant. Res. 2408 S. GRAND AVE. SEE THE SAND GAZER.

DR. MUNDO-DARE, ORDAINED.

DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHERS.

SPECIAL READING, THIS WEEK, 50c.

The only member of INDIA'S MYSTIC BROTHERHOOD to ever visit this country. First in America to introduce this MYSTERIOUS ART employed by PROPHETS OF OLDEN TIMES. His remarkable disclosures are pronounced "PHENOMENAL" by thinking people who have consulted him. Any Clairvoyant can tell your name, the past and present. If wives, husbands, sweethearts or friends are true or false, and many other things of more trivial importance. All these things the SAND GAZER tells at a glance. What you want is to be successful and make the most of a life that is passing ALL TOO FAST. To get what your Creator promises, you must know your strongest points. Your future possibilities, physical condition, how to gain the one you desire, how to be magnetic, etc., etc. To acquire these things, you MUST SEE THE SAND GAZER SOONER OR LATER. So COME TODAY.

IN HIS DEPARTMENT HE STANDS SUPREME.

You need not speak for him to call your name in full, names of those you wish to know or what you came for, how to make business pay, whom you will marry and when, every possible advice regarding love, travel, changes, speculation, divorces, lawsuits, sickness, etc. All of life's active principles are minutely analyzed by THIS WIZARD OF THE SHIFTING SANDS. The Only Psychic who really demonstrates the mysterious power to help you. Come. Test him and be convinced. Hours, 12 to 8 daily and Sundays. Maid in attendance. 1920 S. FIGUEROA ST. Phone 22141. No sign.

PERSONAL—

PEERLESS PALMER.
AMERICA'S GREATEST PSYCHIC.
50c—READINGS THIS WEEK—50c.

Calls you by name and tells the object of your visit without asking a question. Names enemies and friends. Tells whom and when you will marry; if the one you love loves you; whether wife or sweetheart is true or false; how to influence any one you desire, even though a thousand miles away. Develops personal magnetism; causes speedy and happy marriage with the one of your choice. Gives advice on all matters of business.

He gives more satisfaction, more encouragement, more success, more help, more facts than any other Psychic. He is worthy your confidence.

REMOVES EVIL INFLUENCES.

Do you find the one you have bestowed your affection and trust upon acting cool and indifferent? Has a rival or obstacle of any kind crept between you and your future home, or has misfortune assailed the quietude of your happy home? COME TO THIS GIFTED MEDIUM and find help.

THE PROFIT

is life's sunshine, conscious power, magnetism to attract and strength to hold. It's not so much in what I tell you as it is what I do for you by my special influence, that I put forth in your behalf to overcome all your sorrows and troubles so that you can have the power to win your greatest desires. What good is a psychic's advice unless they are able to lift you out of your troubles, worriments and bad luck? None whatever.

I will accept no fee unless you receive perfect satisfaction.

GEO. PALMER, 614 S. HOPE ST.
Hours 10 to 6 DAILY; SUNDAY, 12 to 2.

Sewing Machines.

FOR SALE—

GOING UP!! GOING UP!!

The price of everything is going up. The output of sewing machines is being restricted, and that must of necessity increase the price. However, we have now on hand a number of very good sewing machines of various makes such as White, Singer, Wheeler & Wilson, New Home and others which we are still selling at the prices prevailing before the increase. It would be good economy to buy NOW and save from 25 to 50 per cent. on each machine bought.

A word to the wise ought to be sufficient.

Even at the lower prices quoted, we will let you pay for the machine on easy monthly payments, without interest.

ATTENTION!

SPECIAL OFFER!

The price of NEW CHANDLERS has advanced TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS. For the balance of this month we will still offer our slightly used CHANDLERS at the same price as before the raise.

REMEMBER

We are the distributors for New Chandlers. We do not offer a used Chandler for sale until we are willing to guarantee it the same as A NEW CAR.

We will not sell a used CHANDLER until it has been thoroughly REBUILT and REFINISHED. It is then practically as good as a new car as a few thousand miles just puts a CHANDLER in the pink of condition. It is far better than any LOW GRADE new car that you could purchase at the same figure.

We have our reputation and that of the CHANDLER car to maintain and you may rest assured that we leave nothing undone to see that these used CHANDLERS are perfect. You know that being CHANDLER DISTRIBUTORS we ought to know how to do it. We can prove to you that we do see that it is done.

WE CAN STILL OFFER:

1918	CHANDLER	Touring
1918	CHANDLER	Roadster

HUPMOBILES—

AND CHALMERS.

THE ONLY PLACE TO BUY GOOD USED HUPMOBILE AND CHALMERS CARS.

Cars that are rebuilt and refurnished and which in every respect are in A-1 shape; cars that will give as good service as those that are new we will sell at a saving of from 40 to 50 per cent.
Bear in mind that there is to be a further reduction in the output of automobiles. This means the used car market eventually will be combed for cars. It also means that along with new cars the used ones will bring higher prices. Now is the time to buy. In six months used cars will be scarce. See T. W. Taylor, used car dept.

TOO LATE—To Classify.

[The hour for closing many of the columns of The Times "Liner" Section Saturday night is 8 o'clock. Subsequent to this hour, developments often occur in commercial and domestic affairs which make it necessary to seek quick and effective publicity. Therefore, this "Too Late to Classify" column often offers greater bargains and more money-making opportunities than any other section of The Times.]

DESCRIBE OUR MUSIC GROWTH.

Teachers' Associations Hold Luncheon Meeting.

Community Singing Results Told by Founder.

County Society Elects New Vice-President.

"Our great singing army is the outcome of the New York Settlement Music Center idea," said Arthur Farwell yesterday in telling fifty-four prominent music teachers about settlement music work. Mr. Farwell is termed the founder of community singing in America, but he insists that his conductor, Harry Barnhart, should be placed beside him. He told of the work that has been done in bringing music to the masses, and of what will be necessary to do when an army of music-loving men returns to this country after the war.

Some of the most noted music educators in the country were present at the luncheon at Christopher's given by the Public School Music Teachers' Association of Southern California and of the county yesterday. Interspersing the numbers of the programme, parodies on popular military songs were sung.

Miss Julia Crane, founder of the Potsdam Institute of New York, the first institution established in this country specially to train music instructors, reviewed public school music tendencies "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

Calvin B. Cady, known nationally for his theories of child music education, was scheduled to speak on "What the School Owes to the Child in Music," but, inspired by the talk of Mr. Farwell on community work, he dwelt enthusiastically on the latter subject in the greater part of his talk.

Mrs. L. V. Sweesy of the University of California faculty told how the State Board of Education now recognizes music as one of the chief necessities of the school curriculum.

Miss Carolyn Alchin, author of the text-book on applied harmony in use in most Southern California schools, discussed the question, "Why Study Harmony?"

Miss Adelaide Trowbridge has been experimenting with the study of the piano in groups, at the South Pasadena High School during the past year, and she told of her experiences and pronounced the plan a success.

Mrs. William F. Jamison told about the State convention to be held here in July and the song pageant planned for that time.

The string quartette of the Manual Arts High School entertained the teachers with selections. A business session of the Southern California society and also of the county society followed the programme.

Mrs. Julia E. Warren was elected vice-president of the County Society to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Mae Knight, former president, who is to be married the first of the month. Miss Junia Wolf, former vice-president, is now president.

JAIL KOSHER PICKET.

Louis Greitzer, 55 years old, of No. 220 North Beaudry avenue was arrested late last night on a charge of disturbing the peace. According to Officer Gillett, Greitzer stood in front of the kosher meat market of F. Winer, No. 1031 Temple street, and created a disturbance by shouting that it wasn't right to be charged 35 cents a pound for meat.

PACIFIST TO LEAVE FOR AN ARMY CAMP.

HAROLD STORY WILL ASK TO BE INDUCTED INTO NON-COMBATANT SERVICE.

Harold G. Story, the pacifist convicted with two others for unlawful assembly and disturbing the peace when the Christian pacifists attempted to hold a convention here last fall, will make no attempt to resist induction into the United States army, so far as going to Camp Lewis is concerned. He will leave tomorrow morning with the men from District No. 5. John Magan, a fellow prisoner from the East Side Jail, where he was serving time for a minor violation, will leave for the camp on the same train.

But after arriving at the camp, the pacifist will make a protest against being inducted in any part of the combatant service, and will ask to be taken before a Federal board in Fort Leavenworth, where he expects to be classified as a Quaker. He then will ask, and probably receive, leave to enter the Friends' War Relief Service, part of the civilian branch of the American Red Cross, and enter the relief work in France or Russia.

This was the statement yesterday of Donald G. Story, the convicted pacifist's brothers, who now is awaiting his passports to join the relief work in France. There are more than 300 members of the Friends' Church now engaged in civilian relief work in Europe.

Should the Federal board refuse Harold Story permission to go to France or Russia, he probably will be assigned to agricultural work, with the provision that he may not retain more compensation than is received by soldiers. This has been the ruling of the War Department in many similiar cases, the police say.

CALIFORNIA HOSPITAL NURSES FOR THE FRONT

The California Hospital sent out another unit of eleven nurses last week. This unit will be known as No. 503 and has gone to Letterman Hospital, San Francisco, where they will remain until ordered to the front. Miss Williamson, the superintendent of nurses of the California Hospital, will send out another unit of from ten to fifteen in July.

Following are the names of those in the unit just sent out: Geneva Shaw, Edith Cole, Ida B. Block, Ruth Carlson, Clara Paulson, Margaret Paulson, Laura Tallaksen, Marie Tallaksen, Helen Sten, Frances O'Connor, Julia Ingersoll.

SUGAR LINES WILL BE DRAWN MUCH TIGHTER.

FRINSTANCE, 80 PER CENT. ALLOWANCE TO BE CUT TO 50 PER CENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22. — Restrictions on the use of sugar by manufacturers will be drawn much tighter by new regulations, effective July 1, it was announced today by Food Administrator Hoover. The new measure is expected to prevent any serious scarcity of sugar for home consumption, and at the same time to put the nation as a whole on a three-pound-per-capita monthly ration.

Less essential manufactured products will be allowed 50 per cent. of the normal requirements, in comparison with the allotment of 80 per cent. now in effect.

Sugar allowed ice cream manufacturers after July 1 will be decreased to 75 per cent. of the normal consumption. Soda fountains and manufacturers of preserved fruits for fountains will be cut 50 per cent. Ice cream made by soda fountains and confectioners on the premises will have its sugar content cut to 50 per cent. of normal.

INCOME BUILDINGS.

A forty-room apartment-house is to be started at once at the corner of Carondelet street and Ocean View avenue by Lew Bros. of this city. Plans for the improvement have just been completed by H. J. Knauer. Two flat buildings of sixteen rooms each have been planned and will be built by Fred W. Siegel for M. Marcus on West Eighth street, between Magnolia and Westmoreland avenues. The total cost of the two improvements is given at about $17,000.

BOOKLET GIVES ALL BOND INFORMATION.

The local stock exchange has prepared for free distribution a complete and elaborate resume of the various issues of Liberty Loan Bonds in booklet form.

This information has been compiled under the supervision of expert bond men with a view to making it plain to the most uninformed. Pertinent facts concerning the taxation features and conversion privileges are explained clearly.

Everyone should know the exact facts regarding their bonds such as the time of maturity, the dates on which interest is payable, the method of clipping, cashing the interest coupons and all other details.

Copies of this booklet may be obtained free upon request at the offices of the Los Angeles Stock Exchange.

FOR PATRIOTIC WORK.

Many Participate in First Dance Under Auspices of Soldiers' and Sailors' Welfare Commission.

Approximately $800 was realized last night at the first dance given under the auspices of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Welfare Commission in the ballroom of the Alexandria. Mrs. Burke Van Zandt, president of the Entertainment Committee, and Mrs. Thomas Foss, secretary and treasurer, stated last night that this affair was but the first of many. The proceeds of the dance are to be spent in assisting the families of men in the military service who are temporarily dependent upon charity. Some of it will also go to secure tobacco, cigars and magazines for the drafted men who leave Los Angeles for the cantonments. Card tables were arranged on the balcony of the ballroom, where light refreshments were also served. Attendance at the dance was estimated at 300 couples.

AUSTRO-HUNGARIANS IN PANIC ON PIAVE FIASCO.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Austria-Hungary's populations feel that if peace is not forced by the offensive against Italy, and the offensive fails, the government ought to yield and make peace, according to views expressed at the State Department today and formed upon the best available official information which has come out of the dual monarchy.

The State Department does not believe the Vienna government is of a like frame of mind, notwithstanding that the country's internal situation is worse than at any time since the beginning of the war. The people, however, besides being starved, are war-weary, discouraged and heartsick and are ready to surrender.

KAISER'S SPEECH KEPT OUT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Emperor William's speech was not permitted to reach Austria-Hungary in its original form. An official dispatch from Switzerland today says the Zurich Volks Reicht, on comparing the official text with the version prepared by the official Wolff Agency for transmission to Austria, found several "suggestive falsifications."

To Save Country.

INTERVENTION PLEA SENT PRESIDENT BY RUSSIANS.

LONDON, Friday, June 21.—An earnest plea for intervention in Russia, either economic or armed, has been sent to President Wilson by a large group of Russians here. The plea is set forth in a long cablegram delivered to the American Embassy for transmission to Washington. It is signed by approximately a hundred persons, some prominent in the Kerensky government. It is understood that a similar appeal will be made by the Russian Ambassador at Washington.

The appeal says that with the natural wealth of Russia in its hands, Germany can wage war for a long period despite the blockade, and it is added that to set up a serious barrier to further penetrations by the Germans is possible only by force of arms.

An alternative to an armed intervention is recognized, however, in an economic intervention. To prevent Russia from falling into the hands of the Germans, whether willing or unwilling, prompt action by the Allies looking toward to rehabilitation is necessary, it is urged.

"If neither military nor economic aid is given, Russia may be drawn before long into the sphere of German influence," the plea declared. "Delay is dangerous. The Allies must find in themselves sufficient political foresight and energy to give effect to those remarkable words of yours, 'We intend to stand by Russia as we stood by France.'"

Tragedy.

KILLS ONE, MAY DIE HIMSELF.

Triple Shooting is Result of Insane Jealousy.

Woman Also Wounded Twice by Window Cleaner.

Family of the Slain Man is Sought by Police.

Carrying out threats he made several weeks ago, Edward L. Joslyn, 25 years old, a window cleaner, shot and killed Frank Montoya, 32 years year old, a railway mechanic, twice wounded Mrs. A. Davis, 26 years old, and then shot himself twice. The shooting occurred on the pavement in front of No. 115½ South Broadway, and was the result of an insane jealousy on the part of Joslyn, who will probably die.

Yesterday afternoon, Joslyn, who lives at No. 416 South Olive street, purchased an automatic pistol at Fifth and Main streets, and after dinner, started hunting for Mrs. Davis and Montoya. According to his statement to Detectives Blue and Gamash last night, Joslyn has known the woman for a year, and several times during the last five months, has told her to keep away from Montoya, or, he said, he would kill her and Montoya both.

Joslyn found Mrs. Davis and the other man in front of the Yosemite Hotel, and without warning, drew his pistol and fired six shots. Two of the bullets struck Montoya, one entering the chest and the other passing through the heart.

SHOOTING QUICKLY DONE.

Mrs. Davis received two of the six shots in her right thigh and fell to the pavement. Joslyn then shot himself through the left wrist and fired another bullet into his body, which entered his rgiht breast, passed near his heart and came out on his left side.

The three were rushed to the Receiving Hospital. Montoya died before reaching it, and at a late hour last night, after Joslyn had been operated on, he rapidly sank.

According to Joslyn's confession, made before he went on the operating table. Mrs. Davis has been living with her son, Eduardo, at No. 225 North Hill street for more than a year. Nine months ago, Joslyn said, Montoya, who has a wife and child, somewhere in Los Angeles, moved to the same address.

Later, Joslyn himself transferred his belongings to the North Hill street house, but because of his jealousy, moved away, only to return last March. Five weeks ago, he said, he moved away, a second time, going to the Olive street address.

MOTHER IN TACOMA.

Joslyn leaves a mother, Mrs. Mary Joslyn, No. 3005 South Windom street, Tacoma, Wash. Mrs. Davis is a janitress, employed in a downtown office building. Montoya for several months has been working as a mechanic in the Southern Pacific shops. According to Joslyn, Montoya recently sent to Arizona for his wife and child.

Joslyn was disarmed and prevented from shooting himself a third time by Deputy Sheriff Modie, who, with Deputy Smith, was passing the scene in an automobile.

Mrs. Davis was removed to the County Hospital after emergency treatment at the Receiving Hospital. The remains of Montoya were taken to the Cussen and Company parlors.

Efforts are being made by Detective Sergts. Blue and Gamash and Officer Wade Box to locate the wife and child of Montoya. There were no papers on the dead man to indicate the whereabouts of his family.

SHOE STORES TO CLOSE.

Saturday Evening Opening Custom to be Abandoned in the Interest of War Conservation.

Responding to the call for the conservation of man power, many of the large retail shoe stores of Los Angeles will close at 6 o'clock on Saturday evenings, beginning with July 6, not only for the summer months, but continuing thereafter. Heretofore it has been the custom of the retail shoe stores to keep open on Saturday evening.

The stores which so far have decided to close Saturday evenings are: Innes Shoe Company, C. H. Baker (all stores,) Jesberg's Walk-Over Boot Shop, College Boot Shop, Royal Shoe Company, James P. Burns, Hollander & Funke, Gude's, Inc., C. M. Staub Shoe Company, the Bootery, Emil Olcovich Company, Walkers' Shoe Stores, Children's Shoe Store, Van Degrift Shoe Company, Model Shoe Company, Alex C. Hamilton, Nettleton Shoe Company, Young Shoe Company, Rosenthal's, Inc., and Wetherby-Kayser Shoe Company.

It is considered impracticable at this time that the retail shoe stores in every part of the city should close, because of the difference in commercial conditions existing in the various localities. It is expected, however, that all eventually will join in the movement.

AUDUBON SOCIETY IN ANNUAL MEETING.

PROTECTION OF FEATHERED FRIENDS AS WAR MEASURE IS DISCUSSED.

The great economic importance to a nation at war of the protection of birds who act as exterminators to worms and insects that damage crops was discussed at the twelfth annual meeting of the California Audubon Society yesterday, after a picnic lunch had been served under the pepper trees in the garden of the secretary, Mrs. Harriet Williams Myers, at No. 311 North Avenue Sixty-six.

Both Mrs. Myers and Wilfred Smith, the third vice-president, spoke on the subject, pointing out as an example the present dilemma of England. Birds were not protected, and many of the crops were consequently destroyed, said the speakers.

Protests were made against shooting of birds within the city limits by boys with airguns, and it was decided to call the attention of the police to the matter, as a city ordinance prohibits the firing of guns in Los Angeles.

In this connection, the preservation of certain hawks that are valuable in decreasing the ground squirrel pest was considered, and within a few weeks the society will issue leaflets containing information to aid in distinguishing this hawk.

There are 400 members of the Audubon Society in the State, but only fifty were able to attend this meeting. Last year's officers were re-elected, with the exception of the treasurer. John C. Fredericks, former holder of the office, is subject to be called to Washington at any time, so another treasurer was elected.

The officers are: Dr. David Starr Jordan, president; Dr. Frederick W. D'Evelyn, Dr. Garrett Newkirk and Wilfred Smith, vice-presidents; Mrs. Harriet Williams Myers, secretary, and Mrs. W. L. Brownlee, treasurer. Dr. Jordan and Mrs. Myers have held their positions since the society was organized twelve years ago.

An executive committee is composed of Wilford Smith, Mrs. Foster Elliot, H. G. Watkins, John D. Fredericks, Mrs. F. T. Bicknell, Otto J. Zahn and Mrs. Myers. Dr. Jordan was not present yesterday.

The officers and Executive Committee are members of the board of directors, to which the following also belong: Frank A. Miller, Mrs. Thomas Turner, Mrs. R. C. Hogue, C. N. Goeche, Miss M. Louise Hutchinson, Miss Anna M. Parsons and W. Leon Dawson. Nearly every city in Southern California is represented among these officials.

Distinguished new members are Mr. and Mrs. George W. Turner, who live at Riverside. Mr. Turner is well known in New York for his photographs of feathered life, and Mrs. Turner was secretary of the Buffalo Audubon Society.

WAR VETERAN DEAD.

Col. William J. Handy, Loyal Legion Member, Passes Away at Pasadena Home.

Col. William Handy, who commanded the Second Michigan Infantry, Army of the Potomac, in both battles of Bull Run and other famous engagements of the Civil War, possessor of a decoration for bravery, and a member of the Loyal Legion of the Grand Army of the Republic, died yesterday afternoon at the home of a sister, Mrs. Myra H. Davis, No. 764 North Chester avenue, Pasadena.

He had lived in Pasadena nearly twenty years, coming from Michigan, where he was in the insurance business. He was born in New York in 1839. A number of his writings on patriotic subjects appeared in The Times magazine section a few years ago.

The funeral services at the chapel of Tunner and Stevens Company at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, will be attended by the twenty veterans of the Loyal Legion in Pasadena. Six of the old officers will act as honorary pallbearers. The body will be cremated.

Col. Handy is survived only by four sisters: Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Catherine Lyon of Washington, Mrs. Sarah E. Braddock of Tawas City, Mich.; and Mrs. Molly M. Smith of this city.

JONATHAN CLUB FROLICS.

Two hundred members of the Jonathan Club, their wives, sweethearts and guests enjoyed a "moonlight frolic" last evening at Los Rios, the country estate of E. B. Rivers at Monrovia. Dinner was served in the open air at 6:30, during and following which there was dancing.

FORMER SENATOR TO PUSH USURY BILL.

COMMITTEE WILL PLACE PETITIONS FOR MEASURE IN CIRCULATION.

State Senator W. E. Brown, author of usury bills in the 1915 and 1917 legislatures, is advocating strongly the adoption of a usury law through the medium of the initiative. Dr. Peter Janss has already filed with the Secretary of State the form of an initiative petition fixing the legal rate of interest in the State at 7 per cent. and providing that a rate as high as 12 per cent. may be charged if agreed to by the borrower.

Dr. Janss has been temporarily incapacitated through ill-health from continuing with the work of securing signatures for the usury petition. More than 80,000 signatures must be secured within two weeks if it is to have a place on the November State ballot. The son of Dr. Janss and a committee of whom Senator Brown is a member are working to place the petitions in circulation this week. The text is the same as a usury bill rejected by the last Legislature.

The Times has received the following letter from Senator Brown advocating the circulation of the petitions prepared by Dr. Janss:

"LOS ANGELES, June 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Herewith please find two copies of Senate Bill No. 70, known as the Anti-usury Act. This bill was prepared by Judge Conway of Wisconsin and is the result of a thorough investigation of the anti-usury law of other States.

"You will find its provisions, while perfectly fair to all legitimate business interests, are such that will prevent such outrageous incidents as the Seccombe-Lloyd matter, which you paper uncovered and brought to such a successful and just conclusion yesterday. There are undoubtedly many such cases that the loan shark is conducting in subterranean channels and at present there is no law to reach them.

"The inclosed bill (No. 70.) is the one that Dr. Janss desires to place before the people through the initiative ballot, but I understand that he is too ill to give this matter proper attention and, as the time is short, it occurs to me that your paper might assist in securing signatures to the petition. There remains only about twenty days in which to secure about 100,000 names.

"The public interest and sentiment that your activities have aroused ought to make it possible to secure the necessary signatures in this city in a couple of weeks.

"California is one of the very few States of this Union which does not have an anti-usury law and hence has become a Mecca for loan sharks. Our only hope is to place this measure before the people as the sharks and shylocks have been strong enough to defeat such a law in the Legislature during the past twenty years.

"Thanking you for your interest and assistance in this matter, I am [Signed]

"WILLIAM E. BROWN."

SOLDIERS' DANCE.

The municipal dance floor was in use last night when members of the Enlisted Men's Club gave a dance at No. 2307 South Figueroa street. The uniformed men from Camp Kearny, Fort MacArthur and the naval training station only used a section of the smooth asphalt pavement before the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Connell. Lights were strung across the street and flags used as decorations, while punch and ice cream were served on the porch of the house.

NATIONAL LEAGUE WILL STICK TO END.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 22.—That the National League would complete the present season's playing schedule even though it became necessary to secure amateurs to fill the depleted ranks was the assertion made today by Secretary John A. Heydler. Secretary Heydler stated that despite handicaps caused by the draft the owners were a unit in the opinion that there was no reason for either cancelling or curtailing the schedule.

The uncertainty prevailing at the present regarding the effect of the "essential work or fight" regulations in its application to baseball players is, however, a disturbing influence upon the organization. This uncertainty is causing unrest among the many players between the ages of 21 and 31 with the result that they are seeking essential war work of their own initiative, which action might be unnecessary under the final ruling. When the situation clears in this respect the position of the National League clubs will be more satisfactory, according to the statement.

CHAMPIONS PLAY RED CROSS GOLF.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND, June 22.—Despite unfavorable weather, more than $700 was realized in the first professional-amateur Red Cross golf match at the Mayfield Country Club today.

The professionals, James Barnes, western open champion, and Robert MacDonald, star professional, beat the amateurs, Chick Evans, national amateur and open champion, and Warren K. Wood, former western title holder, 1 up in eighteen holes.

MOLLA BJURSTEDT REMAINS CHAMPION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt continues as the woman tennis champion of the United States by defeating Miss Eleanor Goss, New York, in the challenge round of the annual women's national tennis tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket Club today. The score was 6-4, 6-2.

FRENCH AVIATOR ON WAY TO SAN DIEGO.

LIEUT. MAX BENOIST WILL ACT AS AN INSTRUCTOR AT NORTH ISLAND.

Lieut. Max Benoist of the "Stork Escadrille," French Aviation Corps, passed through Los Angeles yesterday en route to San Diego, where he has been detailed as an instructor at the aviation field at North Island. Lieut. Benoist wears the Croix de Guerre and has been officially cited for bravery three times. He is accredited with downing three German machines.

Accompanying Lieut. Benoist was E. Escallier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Escallier of No. 915 West Twenty-third street, who is returning from France after having served a year with the American Red Cross there.

HAYES CONFIDENT OF NOMINATION.

GOVERNORSHIP CANDIDATE WILL RETURN SOON AND CONTINUE CAMPAIGN.

J. O. Hayes, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, has completed a strenuous week of campaigning in Southern California. Last Monday evening he addressed a large meeting of the Half Century Association at Long Beach; on Tuesday he made a tour of the San Fernando Valley; on Wednesday he addressed the veterans at the Soldiers' Home in Sawtelle; on Thursday he visited Pasadena and was entertained at a luncheon at the Overland Club; on Friday he was the guest of the Southern California Editorial Association at Catalina Island, and yesterday he visited San Pedro and met the employees of the shipyards and other industrial plants.

Before leaving last night for the north, Mr. Hayes said:

"I am highly pleased at the reception I have met with all over the State, and after a careful analysis of the situation I have no hesitation in saying that I feel absolutely certain of my nomination at the primaries on August 27. In a couple of weeks I shall return to begin a speaking tour all over the State, and will have many things to say to the people on the issues which confront them in the coming election and my views will be given in such a manner that there will be no question as to where I stand and what I stand for."

Howard Hamburger is the very latest person to cast in his fortunes with the great mercantile firm of Hamburger & Sons. Howard is just twenty-four hours old this morning. He was born to Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Hamburger, No. 1685 Victoria avenue, at 4:20 o'clock yesterday morning, and found a name all ready to be bestowed upon him, and a warm welcome from his parents and a brother, aged 12, and a sister, aged 10 years.

Howard's father, who is vice-president of the firm of Hamburger & Sons, yesterday was receiving congratulations from friends all along the Pacific Coast and from various inland points.

For Our Soldiers.

WAR SAVINGS PLEDGES LAG; ACTION IS URG

EITHER Los Angeles must pledge its quota in the big War Savings drive or the campaign will be a failure, is the message which the War Savings Committee sent forth last evening to every patriotic citizen. Unless every individual does his share, Los Angeles will fall far short of the prescribed quota of $15,000,000 which must be subscribed on or before June 28, it was stated.

There are only a few days left and the seriousness of the campaign is urged upon every Los Angelan. The money which it is asked that the people pledge themselves to expend in War Savings Stamps during the remainder of the year is to provide a fund for building ships to carry our soldiers overseas and to convey food and supplies across for them and for our allies.

The tabulation of the first two days' pledges has not been encouraging, the committee states. From 5708 pledge cards tabulated, a total of $164,515 was recorded. This makes an average of only $28.82 per pledge. In order to "go over the top" Los Angeles must secure a pledge of $25 per capita, so that a far larger general average must be attained in order to make up for the many citizens who actually cannot afford to subscribe; who are making only a minimum wage.

In order to equalize the pledges and to bring the total up to the required quota it is absolutely necessary that a large number of "limit" pledges be made. To this end a "Limit War Savings Club" has been organized under the direction of Motley H. Flint, Los Angeles chairman of the National War Savings Committee, and every man, woman and child, who can afford to subscribe the "limit" pledge of $1000 (maturity value) is urged to do so.

These pledge cards will be distributed through the various precinct War Savings societies and by other means and all "limit" pledges will be listed as members of the Limit War Savings Club of Los Angeles county.

Today, from the churches of the city, the urgency of the big War Savings drive will be given forth and an appeal will be made for unstinted purchasing of this national security. Tomorrow over 200 speakers from the War Savings speakers' bureau, under the direction of former Judge H. N. Wells, will start on a strenuous campaign in the downtown districts. The four-min-

Building Question.

a recent editorial under the "Crushing Business," the Banker and Financier said:
all business other than mak-
munitions of war, and food and ships, is to cease, then that only those who are in the occupations men-will have an income, and the of the population will have to upon them for a living. We for instance, not to build
What, may we ask, men who would be engaged to do for a living? They all needed in shipbuilding, many of the occupations connection with ships; they needed in other directions, manufacture of war ma-that is being rushed to the limit. If the men were allowed to work at the occupations for which they are best fitted and could earn good wages, would they not be far better able to become bond buyers than if their occupation is taken from them?"

This question as to what is "necessary" and what "unnecessary" building has been worrying prospective builders for some time. Needless to say, it has been a source of genuine anxiety to the architects, contractors and others to whom structural activity represents the means of earning a livelihood. While owners have been trying to fathom the government's wishes and ascertain its interpretations as to what kinds of building could be carried on without interfering with the nation's war energies, structural operations, naturally, have been held in abeyance. This has kept the men in the building business idle and up in the air. And the government, with ten million other things to think about, has been a little slow in explaining, so that all might understand, just what it did mean when the appeal to patriotic people not to do any unnecessary building was made.

Light has now been cast upon the subject, however, and the builders may breathe easier. Senator Calder recently wrote to Secretary McAdoo calling attention to the fact that the building operations of the country for 1918 would not exceed $800,000,000, as compared with $1,500,000,000 for 1916, itself a year below normal. The falling off, he asserted, was partly due to the supposed attitude of the government toward building, as suggested by statements on the subject emanating from Washington.

Mr. McAdoo replied, that "there has never been any suggestion that buildings actually needed for the health and protection of the civil population, or for the conduct of essential business of the country, should not be constructed during the period of the war."

It is not clear where the writer of the editorial quoted got the idea that dwelling houses were under the ban, but it is undoubtedly true that many persons had begun to get the impression that for anyone to build anything was a violation of the government's wishes. Mr. McAdoo's statement to Senator Calder comes just in time and should be given a wide publicity. It is made clear that the government does not regard all private building as nonessential and that one may still erect a building for which there is a definite need without laying himself open to suspicion of disloyalty.

CLOSE-IN TRANSFER.

Fifty-foot Lot in Wholesale District Sold—Main-street Lease Reported.

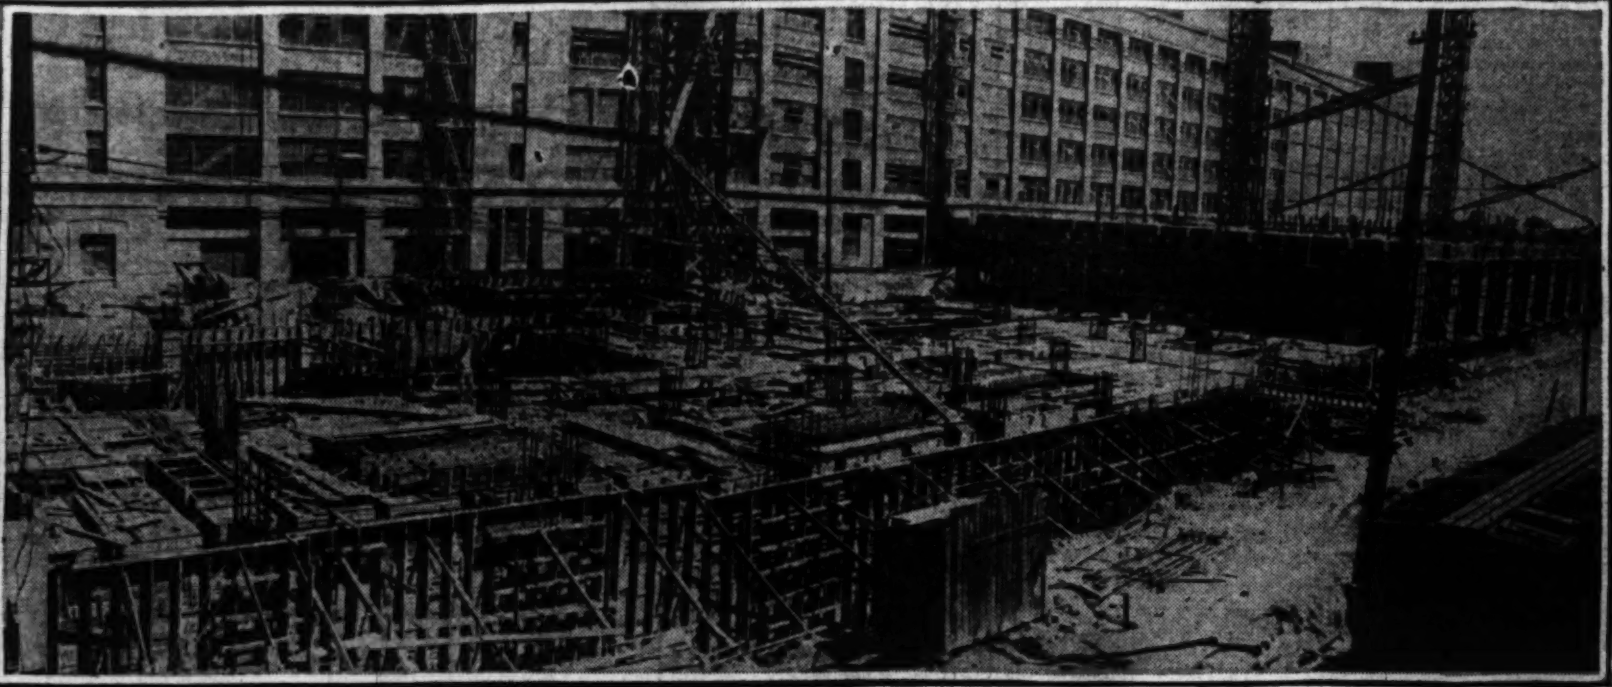
The W. Ross Campbell Company, through Richard C. Willis of its leasing department, reports having consummated the sale of a fifty-foot lot on Santee street, between Eighth and Ninth streets, for W. G. Hutchinson to the David Hewes Company. The consideration is not given.

Mr. Willis also reports the leasing of a building at No. 1610 South Main street to Bonham, Peterson & Livingston for Mrs. Kate Agoure. The lessees have taken possession of the property and are equipping the premises as a sales place for used automobiles, painting, remodeling and trimming cars.

BUYS WINTER HOME.

The Southland Realty Corporation reports having sold an attractive residence property on Huntington drive in the Michillinda subdivision, east of Pasadena, for the California-Michigan Land and Water Company to Dr. Perry Nichols of Savannah, Mo. The house contains twelve rooms and is set in the midst of grounds having a frontage of 525 feet. The consideration is given at $30,000. The purchaser, who is a well-known cancer specialist and head of the Nichols Sanatorium, in his home city, buys for a winter home.

Beginning of the Second Great Warehouse of the Union Terminal.



A reinforced concrete building that will have over ten acres of floor space.

The structure will have the same dimensions as the warehouse that has just been completed by the Los Angeles Union Terminal Company on its thirty-acre East Seventh-street property and will stand just to the west of it. As the photograph shows, the new building is now up to a height of one story at the back end, the foundations and floors for the same story having been finished at the front The structure, when completed, will be occupied by the Germain Seed and Plant Company, H. Jevne & Co. and the Sunset Terminal Warehouse Company. The first warehouse of the termnial layout, shown in the background of the photograph, has for its tenants Bishop & Co., the N. O. Nelson Company and the Terminal Refrigeration Company.

SIXTY-ROOM HOTEL FOR WILMINGTON.

NEW FLATS AND APARTMENTS FOR OUTER HARBOR DISTRICT.

The construction of hotels, flats and apartment-houses for the housing of the large overflow population of the harbor district continues to be a feature of the structural activities of Los Angeles.

At Wilmington work is to be started at once on a two-story brick hotel for Mrs. Lena Becker. The building will stand on Canal street, between Fourth and Fifth, and will contain sixty guest rooms, a lobby and office. The structure will cover a ground area of 75x125 feet. A. R. Walker is the architect.

The contract has been let for a forty-room apartment-house for Frank Allor, to be built at Pacific avenue and Thirty-ninth street, San Pedro. Plans are being completed for a forty-room apartment-house to be erected by Mrs. Rudecinda de Dodson on Tenth street, between Pacific and Grand avenues, San Pedro. J. B. Neilson is starting work on a sixteen-room flat on Pacific avenue, near Twenty-second street, San Pedro. J. C. Alcorn has had plans drawn for a twelve-room flat to be built at Fifteenth and Center streets, San Pedro.

Other improvements now assured for the outer harbor district include a new house of worship to be built by the San Pedro Baptist Church and a two-story store and club building to be erected by the Charles F. Durr Company at Sixth and Center streets.

NEW GARAGES.

The contract has been let for the erection of a one-story brick garage for the Ponet Company on Hope street, between Twelfth and Pico. The structure will be 60x155 feet in size. Work is to be started at once on a one-story brick garage for Charles H. Price on Figueroa street between Eighth and Ninth streets.

VALUABLE LOTS CHANGE HANDS.

Sites on Pico and Third Streets Bought by Investors.

For a given consideration of $45,000, or $1125 a front foot, James A. Anderson of this city has purchased from a local owner forty feet of nominally improved frontage on the south side of Pico street between Main and Hill streets. R. A. Rowan & Co. acted as agents in the transaction. The new owner, it is understood, has no immediate plans for improvement, having bought largely on the strength of the new South Broadway opening, the site being just off that projected thoroughfare.

The same brokers report the transfer of the southwest corner of Third and Olive streets, comprising 155 feet on the former by 120 feet on the latter street, with improvements consisting of a one-story store building, for Mrs. E. B. Miller to a local investor. The property is stated to have changed hands at a valuation of $75,000, of which consideration $18,000 in value was represented by a twelve-acre tract of land on the Arroyo Seco in Pasadena, adjoining the estate of John S. Cravens. The new owner of the Third-street corner plans eventually to erect a large apartment-house on the site.

CITRUS LAND SALES.

Grover T. Russell, sales manager for Edwin G. Hart, in the handling of North Whittier Heights lands, reports the following recent sales in that tract: To M. W. Lennox, and H. W. McKeel, 5.68-acre lemon orchard, for J. S. Johnson, $7790; to Ralph J. Byram, 8.38-acre four-year-old lemon grove, for G. N. Stambach, $14,665; to Hiram S. Thompson, 6.54-acre two-year-old lemon grove, $7452; to Susannah M. Lefland, 4.295-acre four-year-old lemon and orange grove, $7516; to Mrs. Myrtle Grace Turner of Whittier, 3.81-acre four-year-old Valencia orange grove, $6286; and to John Irving, 5.15 acres of unplanted land, $4120. Mr. Irving, who formerly lived in New Hampshire, has made arrangements with a local nurseryman to have his property planted to citrus trees, and Mr. Byram, who purchased the Stambach property, has completed excavations preparatory to building a house on his property.

AT THE HARBOR.

Taylor Bros. of this city report having recently started two buildings at San Pedro, one a sixteen-room flat at Sepulveda and Bandini streets for John Dillion, and the other a double bungalow for William D. Landis at No. 2012 Grand avenue.

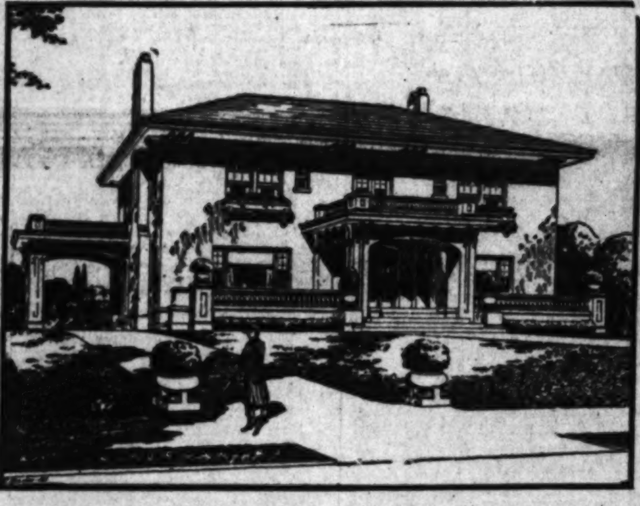
FLATS FOR GROVE.

Fourth-Avenue Income Property Exchanged for Full-bearing Grove at Cucamonga.

Hans Debes has transferred a four-flat building at Nos. 1214 to 1218 Fourth avenue, to Mary L. Ganby of Long Beach, receiving a ten-acre full-bearing mixed lemon and orange grove at Cucamonga as part consideration. The deal, it is reported, was made on a basis of $21,000 for the flats and $15,000 for the grove, the difference being adjusted by cash and mortgage.

The flats are unique in construction, resembling a large private residence of the English half-timbered type. Each has five rooms and sun parlor, and is finished in hardwood and old ivory. There are four private garages. The lot is 60x140 feet.

C. J. Hildesheim, with W. I. Hollingsworth & Co., acted as agent for both sides to the transaction.



Country residence for H. M. Jordan.

The house, which was planned by H. H. Whiteley, is being built on the State highway near Whittier.

BEAN WAREHOUSE.

Plans have been drawn and the contract let for a large bean warehouse of brick construction to be erected by the Marian Milling Company at Marian, San Fernando Valley. The structure will be 110x150 feet in size and will cost about $22,000.

FINE HOMES SOLD.

House and Lot Broker Reports Transfers of Two Large Wilshire District Places.

H. R. Kells, manager of the house and lot department of the Wright-Callender-Andrews Company, reports the sale of two large residences in the heart of the Wilshire district. One at No. 546 Ardmore avenue was formerly owned by the Zahn estate, and was sold to Hampton L. Story, one of the pioneers of Southern California. The consideration is given at $25,000.

The other house is at No. 680 Berendo street on a lot 120x145 feet in size, and was purchased by Robert L. Burns, a retired milling man of the Middle West, at a reported consideration of $25,000. F. E. Woodruff represented the buyer in this sale.

IN ORANGE GROVE.

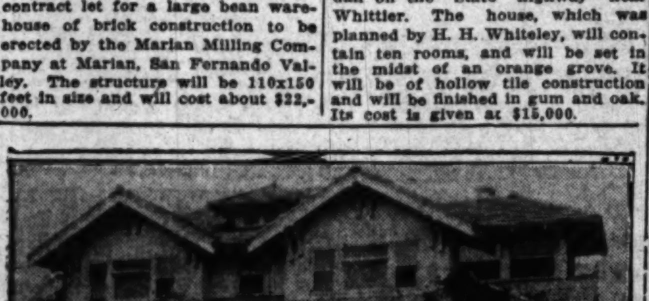
Work is under way on an attractive country residence for H. M. Jordan on the State highway near Whittier. The house, which was planned by H. H. Whiteley, will contain ten rooms, and will be set in the midst of an orange grove. It will be of hollow tile construction and will be finished in gum and oak. Its cost is given at $15,000.

EXCHANGES REPORTED.

The Morgan Real Estate Exchange reports the following exchanges: For Dr. C. P. Clements, fourteen acres, with water, near Riverside, to C. D. Daniels, who exchanged eighty acres, partly improved, near Rosamond, Antelope Valley, properties being valued at $5000 each; Dr. Clements to C. H. Ainley, lots in Riverside in exchange for seven-room bungalow at Eagle Rock, total value $6500; for Dr. Clements, El Centro Hotel, South Pasadena, valued at $36,000, for improved land in Imperial Valley; for R. J. Scott of Richfield, twenty acres, improved, at Lancaster, to R. Wood, for six-room bungalow in Los Angeles, each property valued at $4500; for L. F. Boyce, 480 acres of unimproved alfalfa land in Antelope Valley, valued at $24,000, to J. F. Haasis of Long Beach, for apartment-house furnished, at Ocean Park, valued at $34,000; for Judson Burch of Whittier, 100 acres improved near Calexico, valued at $15,000, to Mr. and Mrs. Christman, for two flats and cottage in Los Angeles; for Katharine Powers of Alhambra, twenty-acres orange grove at Ontario, valued at $30,000, to California Mortgage Company, in exchange for brick store and rooming-house on Temple street, valued at $35,000; for I. R. Freeman, 247 acres in Butte county, at a value of $32,000, to J. R. Thrall of Pasadena, for 160 acres, partly improved to dates, in Coachella Valley, valued at $30,000. Mr. Freeman intends to at once subdivide the date land into five-acre tracts.

RANCH CHANGES HANDS.

J. C. Floyd reports the sale for Grace Arthur to Paul Rowan of seventy acres, about eight miles west of Riverside and one-half mile south of the boulevard. The place is improved with ranch buildings and has thirty acres in alfalfa. The consideration is given at $25,000.



No. 546 South Ardmore avenue.

LOT 70x155 FEET TO ALLEY.

A very handsome twelve-room residence on a large lot on the best street in the Westlake district. Two baths. Main rooms finished in solid oak, sleeping-rooms in old ivory. The house cost $15,000 to build when labor and materials were cheap. To duplicate it now would cost almost double the original cost; and the lot, which is unrestricted, is easily worth $14,000. The property can be delivered today for the ridiculously low price of $16,000.

For a Quick Sale
Only $22,500
High, Sightly Location
Wilshire District
Facing Three Streets on Six Lots

This fine property, which was built by owner, strictly for a home and no money has been spared in the construction. The house contains nine large rooms, 3 baths, large basement, furnace and automatic heater. Large two-story garage with rooms above and space for three cars. Also laundry. The home is situated on a high, sightly corner in the Wilshire District. The property consists of six lots, all beautifully landscaped. The front is a wonderful Japanese garden with lakes, water falls, rare shrubs and plants. The rear is the fruit orchard, kitchen garden, rose garden, etc. It would take years to build up grounds like these—and just think, you can buy all this for less than the actual ground value. Some one is going to get a bargain.

FOR SALE—

A WILSHIRE BARGAIN, JUST COMPLETED.

FOR $9000 you can get a BEAUTIFUL 9-ROOM WHITE CEMENT PLASTERED HOUSE of excellent and pleasing design, situated on an east front lot in the best district of Los Angeles.

This house was planned and supervised by an experienced architect, and from an architectural standpoint as well as in construction and workmanship, it is far superior to many, and the equal of any house which will cost you more than twice the price.

Some of the features briefly described, include LARGE ENCLOSED PORCH off dining-room. This porch would prove to be the real living-room of the house. THE BREAKFAST-ROOM is quite a new conception and will be sure to win your admiration. It opens onto a pergola porch. The COATROOM, off main hall, is one worth while. It is fitted up with lavatory and large full length mirror, etc. The LIVING-ROOM opens on large porch across the front of house, through two pairs of French windows, and has Batchelder tile mantel. The DINING-ROOM walls are paneled and is richly decorated.

There are 4 BEDROOMS and front and rear stairs, splendid closets and large balcony at rear.

The finish includes Philippine mahogany and southern gum downstairs, and white enamel and mahogany upstairs.

The floors are extra thick of quartered white oak. The bathroom walls and floor are tiled and is fitted up with vitreous caina fixtures. The decorations are in oil on canvas. The grounds are well improved with shrubbery, hedges and roses, etc. It is as complete as a house can be made; you will find everything in it, and many things which you would not expect. It is situated at

FOR SALE—$350 LAND FOR $175.
We know what we're talking about! 80 acres of the best garden silt soil in Southern California, suitable for alfalfa or any crop that grows in general farming. It's two-crop land, near San Jacinto. They're taking off three tons of barley hay per acre now and will plant beans, potatoes, milo maize, etc., for second crop. It's leased subject to sale. It has gravity water piped and it's cheap. Water stock goes with land. It's a real sacrifice sale and your investment can surely be double if you'll buy and plant to alfalfa, which can be done for about $15 per acre. ½ cash required and mortgage for balance if desired. You can't find a better buy if, in fact, as good, in Southern California land for real "productiveness value." Investigate now. We'll show you, see for yourself and you'll be convinced that this is the best land that your money can buy. See MR. McGRATH, 1015 Marsh-Strong Bldg. Main 1273.

FOR SALE—
FERTILE, PRODUCTIVE LAND
At $250 an Acre!
This land, known as Nuevo Ranch, is located in the richest section of Riverside county—just sixteen miles from the city of Riverside. The elevation is high and the climate healthful. The soil is rich, fertile sandy loam, that is loose and easy to work. Apricots, peaches, walnuts and olives do well in this section. Potatoes, onions, beans, alfalfa, and all kinds of garden truck thrive to perfection at Nuevo. Interculture is highly profitable, many Nuevo ranchers having actually paid for their land through this method of cropping. The water supply is abundant and cheap; social and educational advantages are good. Nuevo Ranch is in a settled, developed community; electricity for lighting, cooking and power. Land plowed and ready for crop, $275 an acre—unplowed land, $250 an acre. Our folder containing 120 answers to as many questions about Nuevo, will interest you. Also, get our free booklet, containing testimonial letters from Nuevo ranchers. THE JAMES R. H. WAGNER CO., 401 Realty Bldg., 631 S. Spring st., Los Angeles. Phone 60478.

GOVERNMENT LANDS— Relinquishments.

I WANT TO SECURE A GOOD CLASS OF SETtlers and will gladly give reliable information and free seed for planting to parties wanting government land where some of the finest farming land in Southern California may be obtained and good crops can be raised in a beautiful valley, having good rainfall, mild climate; abundance of water proven. Elevation 3000 feet; smooth, rich land practically ready to farm, covered with bunch grass, alfileria; no rocks, adobe, hardpan; fine for hogs, cattle, chickens, grain, vegetables, fruit, dairying, turkeys, etc. Alfalfa and orchards started; good school, postoffice and roads; settlers moving in; rapid improvements being made. Call at my store, see photographs, sample of soil and complete data. MR. LONG, 211 S. Grand ave.

IN 1910 THE CITIES BEGAN TO EAT MORE than the farmers produced. In a few years owners of fertile farm lands will belong to a rich, independent and aristocratic class. We make a business of supplying fine land at gift prices. 54 acres 12 miles of Hollywood, $5 per acre. 320 acres, level, alfalfa, grain, cotton, wheat, corn, fruit land, $4 acre. 200 acres, fine new pump plant, ready to go to work on, $35 acre. 160 acres, artesian well, $1000. 80 acres 18 miles of Hollywood, $300. SHORT COVERING FORCES HIGHER CLOSING PRICES.

Financial Markets Display Confidence in Nation's War Outlook.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 22.—Short covering in standard issues and bullish activity by pools in some of the more volatile shares accounted in large measure for the strong close of today's stock market after its uncertain opening.

United States Steel advanced 2 points to within a fraction of its maximum current movement. Baldwin Locomotive was freely taken at an extreme advance of 4¼ points and General Motors outdistanced all other stocks at a gross gain of 5½ points.

Some of the tobaccos and allied specialties, notably United Cigars, Tobacco Products, hide and leather, Industrial Alcohol and Columbia Gas were 1 to almost 2 points higher at their best, but shippings, coppers and the usual unclassified issues closed at irregular quotations.

Rails were in the background throughout except for Atlantic Coast Line, at an advance of almost 2 points, and Western Maryland, preferred, which gained 3½ points. A few of the low-grade western and southwestern rails also rose fractionally. Sales, 285,000 shares.

Impressive changes in the bank statement were traceable to recent payments of income taxes. Actual loans decreased almost $137,000,000 net demand deposits, about $150,000,000 reserves of clearinghouse members in the Federal reserve bank contracted $41,000,000, and excess reserves were reduced by about $22,500,000.

Bonds were steady, virtually all the trading being confined to Liberty issues. Total sales, par value, aggregated $3,150,000.

Old United States bonds advanced ¼ to ½ per cent. on call during the week.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

War news seemed less of a direct factor in this week's stock market than at any similar period since the inception of the German drive on the western front some three months ago. In the main, bulletins from France and Italy had only occasional effect, leading financial interests continuing to await the outcome with undiminished confidence.

Developments at home exerted greater influence, albeit these were sometimes conflicting crop conditions indicated by the official weather report maintained their brilliant promise, money rates eased visibly in the local market and industrial production continued at high pressure.

More gold was received from Canada, making a total of $30,000,000 for the movement, and foreign remittances varied only slightly, aside from the further strengthening of lires or Italian exchange and some heaviness in rates to Spain.

Rails were in a state of deadlock, investment issues holding firm within circumscribed limits, although prospects favor a revision of the proposed form of contract with the government.

United States Steel and affiliated industrials and equipments were strong, the former attaining its highest level since the payment of the last quarterly dividend, but prices eased later in the week, when doubt was expressed of the War Board's attitude toward a higher price schedule.

The actual condition of clearing-house banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $47,145,130 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is a decrease of $22,451,400 from last week.

Mercantile paper, four months, 6; six months, 6. Sterling, sixty-day bills, 4.72½; commercial, sixty-day bills on banks, 4.72; commercial, sixty-day bills, 4.71¾; demand, 4.75 5-16; cables, 4.76 7-16. Bar silver, 99½; Mexican dollars, 77. Government bonds firm; railroad bonds steady.

Oranges and Lemons.

THE CITRUS MARKETS: WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

THE liberal movement of melons, berries and peaches to all markets is naturally detracting attention from oranges, but as these different fruits are all commanding higher prices than normally, Valencias have held their own in splendid shape, causing a continued firm market on the light supply now available. Oranges for drink purposes are also being used to a greater extent than ever before and do double duty at this time when drinks requiring sugar are taboo. The demand at this time is being strengthened because of anticipated Fourth of July business, the f.o.b. market showing considerable activity on a basis of $5.50 to $5.75.

It is estimated that there are about 3400 cars of Valencias remaining for shipment after this week.

NEW CROP.

All indications continue to point to a bumper crop of oranges for the coming season. Some districts report a lighter setting of fruit on the older trees, but summing up conditions as a whole, a bumper crop is looked for.

LEMONS.

Lemon prices continue strong, but there is a tendency toward a somewhat easier feeling in most markets. In the East the situation is somewhat spotted and there is no definite market basis, f. o. b. quotations ranging all the way from $8 to $9 per box. Southern markets are on a basis of $8.25 f. o. b. and are anxious for lemons. Cooler weather is responsible for eastern market conditions to a great extent, although the fact that the several cargoes of foreign lemons afloat are all scheduled to arrive this month, may be influencing buyers. A 38,000-box cargo for New Orleans is due and a cargo of similar size is scheduled to sell in New York this week.

CORN UNSETTLED AS HOT WAVE DEPARTS.

RALLY IN LAST HOUR DUE TO WEEK-END ADJUSTMENTS; TRADING IS LIGHT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 22.—Corn prices averaged lower today, influenced by excellent crop conditions and by the effectual breaking of the hot wave. The market, however, closed unsettled, 1.44 @1.44¼ July and 1.46½ August; ¼ cent off to ⅝ cents up, compared with twenty-four hours before. Oats finished ⅛ to 1 cent down and provisions varied from 2 cents decline to 7 cents advance.

Week-end adjustment of trades rallied the corn market sharply in the last hour, but otherwise the bears seemed to possess almost entire control.

Hedging sales weakened oats.

Provisions declined with grain and hogs, but later rallied owing to covering by shorts. Trade was light, and in pork had next to no volume at all.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

Record-breaking heat in the West has made corn soar in value this week, but notice that unlicensed persons could not take delivery on future contracts led to a marked reaction. Nevertheless, compared with a week ago, prices this morning still showed gains of 1½ to 2¾. Oats were up 3 to 5¼ cents net, and provisions 57 cents to 1.30.

Anxiety in regard to possible harm which might be done by excessive heat arose largely from government advices that temperatures had jumped to above 100 deg. in important sections of the corn belt, and had reached the highest June levels ever known. Assertions that as moisture supplies had been ample, the hot wave would prove a benefit, led to some setbacks in the corn market, but were later offset by official reports that actual damage had been done to oats in several States. News on Thursday, however, that trading restrictions had been tightened and especially that no speculator could obtain a license, put the bulls again at a disadvantage which was subsequently increased by the ending of the hot wave. Some impairment of the promise of an extraordinary crop of oats did much to force prices for that cereal to climb.

Provisions reflected the strength of grain.

UNCERTAIN WEATHER HOLDS COTTON QUIET.

NEW YORK MARKET CLOSES AT ABOUT SAME QUOTATIONS AS FRIDAY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 22.—The cotton markets were quiet today, with comparatively light trading owing to the uncertainty of the weather conditions in the cotton belt over Sunday. Temperatures there continued high today, especially over the central and western States, although not as high as the previous three days when a maximum of 103 to 110 deg. were reached in some parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Northern Arkansas.

There was no Liverpool market today as a guide to sentiment there. Trading was mostly local and of a light character. Next Tuesday will be the first day for the issuance of notices for the tender of deliveries of cotton on July contracts.

Prices declined five to ten points in the early trading from some small scattered overnight selling and some liquidation in July contracts. This was followed by a sharp rally in which the market was carried up twenty-four points for July to fifteen and twenty for all the latter months over yesterday's closing on covering of shorts and a moderate amount of new local and Wall street buying. On this rise, July went to 26⅜ cents, October 24⅝ cents and December 24⅝ cents. This was followed by a rise of twenty to thirty points at New Orleans. Then some fresh liquidation developed from local and trade bulls to secure profits under which the market reacted to about yesterday's closing quotations.

July was weak in the late trading from some further liquidation in that month by speculative holders to avoid the possibility of being tendered some notice for deliveries on Tuesday, next, the first day they can be issued. It is not believed, however, many notices will be started out then as the stocks of cotton here are comparatively light. The market was very quiet in the late trading with the general disposition to await the character of the weather in the cotton belt over Sunday.

TO USE LOW GRADE COTTONS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The use of low grade cottons by manufacturers will be permitted hereafter by the government in the filling of war orders, George R. James, chief of the cotton and cotton production section of the War Industries Board, has advised Senator Smith of South Carolina. Changes in government specifications regulating the awarding of war contracts for the army and navy are being made to comply with the new order.

WONDERFUL ECONOMY IS SHOWN BY ALL CARS IN CAMP CURRY GAS TEST.

The cars that grabbed off the prizes in the Yosemite run.

At the top we have a grand ensemble of all the cars, drivers, observers, passengers, newspaper men, photographers and other impediment necessary to the proper completion of a run of this kind. At the right is the Saxon, which won the Class 1 cup and the Sweepstakes. At the left is the Stephens which captured the Class 2 cup and the F. L. Baker trophy, and below is the big Peerless which took the honors in the high-priced class.

FIFTEEN MACHINES IN ECONOMY RUN AVERAGE NINETEEN MILES PER GALLON.

BY JAMES DE CAMP.

IMAGINE nineteen gallons of gasoline converted into malleable metal and stretched into a microscopic strand 382 miles long. Fasten an end of this slender line at a point opposite the Figueroa street headquarters of the Automobile Club of Southern California, wind it through the populous city byways, curve it out through Hollywood, over the Cahuenga Pass past Universal City and along the spacious stretches of the San Fernando Valley, up the Newhall grade and through the Newhall Tunnel. Spike the microscopic wire down on the sun-drenched valley highway past Elizabeth Lake, Saugus and Crane Lake, snag it over into the dusty chuck holes of Bouquet Canyon to Lebec, and unwind the spool northward through the scorching breath of summer to Bakersfield and Fresno. Carry the tenuous cord on up into the "manana" country about Madera; leave the highway and twist the tiny band of metal up through Raymond, and Coarse Gold, past Grub Gulch, Fresno Flats and Ahwahnee, through the Bret Harte country, between immense logging camps to Wawona, the old stamping ground of the stage robber. Twist the now diminished ribbon over miles of tortuous mountain passes and dangerous turns to Chinquapin and Inspiration Point, and hurl the spool over the great cliffs down into Mother Nature's best parlor—the Yosemite.

Just imagine all of that and you will begin to realize the low cost of travel in a modern gas buggy, as demonstrated by the Camp Curry economy run to Yosemite run off ten days ago. The fifteen machines checked up at the finish after a telling grind over all sorts of roads, at altitudes that would have dislocated the barometer, showed an average gas consumption of 18.96 gallons, practically nineteen gallons apiece. And this figure is compiled from a list of 1918 creations, sounding the gamut of weight and price, including buzz wagons adapted for the purses of everybody, from the diamond-studded millionaire to milady's favorite ribbon clerk.

The sturdy little Saxon, winner of the Class 1 Trophy for cars costing up to $1200, and also of the Foster Curry sweepstakes cup for the highest ten mileage of any of the contestants, finished the course on exactly thirteen gallons of gas, hardly enough to pickle the Kaiser's ego or remove the crude oil stain from Uncle John's flannel trousers that he got at the last church picnic. This rubber-heeled champ was piloted by Stan Turner, Pasadena Saxon agent, and headed the statistics with 45.1 ton miles per gallon, or 29.3 honest-to-goodness cross-country miles like the kind that used to bother us in the old blue-backed arithmetic book of our school days.

Genial O. R. Fuller, the sizable little fellow, whose pantaloons would equip a four-master with a double set of sails, shoved the Stephens Six into page one, column one of the year's motor history in Class 2, the division for cars nicking the pocketbook from $1201 to $2000. While standing before a knot of admirers with the Class 2 flagon clasped tenderly to his spacious bosom, Fuller was informed that his wagon had been awarded the Fred L. Baker auto club trophy for the best economy average on water, oil and gas. The Stephens consumed but one pint of oil and one gallon and five pints of water in negotiating Camp Curry, a feat worthy of loud huzzas and much beating upon the bong-bong when it is considered that Fuller, his chariot and the passengers forced the official scales to groan under 4700 pouunds.

Stanley W. Smith, enthroned in the sumptuous cushions of the Peerless, finished high man in the big car class for machines costing $2000 and over. For this type of automobile the ton miles per gallon mark of 40.27 is almost incredible, while the straight average of 16.6 miles to the gallon is to be regarded as some achievement. The Peerless led its field at the Fresno control, maintaining just about the same margin above the plucky Marmon at the final check-up.

Taken in the aggregate the entire affair provides a wonderful fund of information for the gas nuts and goes to prove the high degree of excellence in workmanship and material observed by all modern motor car manufacturers. With a field of sixteen contestants concerned, motorists present and prospective, have occasion to become terribly excited over the fact that mechanical trouble approached the vanishing point and but one car, the Grant, was disqualified. Driven by Birdie Priest, one of the gamest little women that ever clenched her

CHEVROLET WINS DERBY BY FAULTLESS DRIVING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, June 22.—Louis Chevrolet's light Frontenac carried him to victory in the 100-mile derby at Speedway Park today. The Frenchman drove a faultless race, never once stopping, even for a tire change.

His time for the century was 55:29.60, an average of 107.9 miles per hour. This sets a new track record for the distance, and is within little more than a minute of the world's 100-mile record, made by the same driver at Sheepshead Bay last fall.

It was a great day for Chevrolet. Ralph Mulford, driving a second Frontenac, also built by the Frenchman, came in second, less than two minutes behind the leader. For more than ninety miles the twin cars had driven tandem fashion, running like clockwork within a few feet of each other, and it was only at the end that Chevrolet made the brilliant spurt which pulled him ahead.

Third place went to Ira Vail in a Hudson, whose seventy-five-second handicap permitted him to lead during the first half of the race, and Dan Hickey, also in a Hudson, came in fourth. The other leaders were:

Fifth—Barney Oldfield, Oldfield Special.

Sixth—Tom Alley, Bender Special.

Seventh—Tom Milton, Duesenberg.

Why Motor Car Output is Limited

The government is using over sixty per cent. of the manufacturing capacity of motor car factories for war business and the output of motor cars and trucks has been automatically reduced to less than forty per cent. of its possible volume.

Even with increased floor space the factories would be unable to obtain additional skilled labor, automatic machine tools or sufficient, necessary materials for a normal output.

As the shipping programme progresses the railways will be called upon to handle increased volumes of government business to furnish overseas cargoes and the big gap left in our transportation system must be filled by motor cars and trucks for there is no other relief.

With an increased volume of cars, year after year, prices dropped correspondingly and now with a reduced output prices have necessarily been advanced.

The investment in a motor car or truck today is sound business because of the unavoidable further increase in prices and the necessity for reliable, economical transportation for men and goods.

Barney Oldfield Hands Out Tips to Owners.

Advice.

GLARE LAWS CONSIDERED.

Problem is Development of Last Few Years.

Barney Oldfield Discusses All the Angles.

Many Helpful Hints Given by Veteran Racer.

How is this for the latest thing in beautiful cars?

Behold smiling Bill Parsons and the special Cadillac de luxe town car designed and sold by W. L. Elbe of the Elbe Motor Car Comany in Hollywood. The body is finished in "electric blue" and upholstered in dark blue mohair velvet. Some little old buzz baby, believe us.

BY BARNEY OLDFIELD.

The so-called anti-glare problem is a development of the last few years. In the days of oil lamps the chief difficulty was to obtain enough light to drive by and there was not the slightest danger of anyone's being dazzled by the illumination from another car. With the acetylene lighting system illumination was much improved, but only toward the dawn of the electric lighting age was there an actelylene light of such brilliancy as to produce danger of dazzling other users of the road. When electric lights came into general popularity, all this changed. By using high-powered bulbs and scientifically designed reflectors, it became possible to throw a beam of intense brilliancy, which would temporarily "blind" anyone approaching it.

This finally produced a crisis in the matter, so that various lawmaking bodies took up the matter and State and municipal laws were passed, forbidding the use of headlights that were capable of dazzling users of the highway. The car owner has somewhat of a divided interest in this question, for in the first place he wants enough light to drive by in safety and yet he does not want to be blinded by the headlights of every car that he passes on the road.

USERS' STANDPOINT.

We will first take up the problem of securing satisfactory light from the users' standpoint. To begin with it must be understood that many lamps will only give adequate light when they are fitted with a certain type and size of bulb. The motorist should find out what bulb gives the best service with his lamps and should always have a supply on hand, even to carrying spares in the car. Special cases may now be had to prevent breakage of bulbs carried on the car.

Not infrequently it happens that the bulb is imperfect after it is bought. Sometimes there is too much solder on the base, so that it does not make a perfect contact. In this case the owner can file off the solder, which will remedy the trouble.

Another case of faulty lighting is improper adjustment of the bulb. The bulbs have got to be focussed, if you are going to get really good lighting. Drive your car up facing a wall or the side of a barn or similar location; about twenty feet away will be the right distance. Fix the bulbs so that they are as far back from the reflectors as possible. The light circle thrown by the lamps should have a black spot in the center. In case the black spots do not appear, it means that the adjustment is limited in its movement to the rear. If the black spot is away from the center, it means the filament is not in the axis of the reflector. This trouble is sometimes caused by the bulb not seating quite right and a half turn given to the bulb before putting it back in the socket may remedy the difficulty. If the bulb shows a tendency to spring out of correct alignment it means that something is wrong with the socket.

After the black spot has been brought into the exact center of the circle of light thrown by the lamp, it must be adjusted to get rid of this dark area. By means of the adjustment move the bulb forward until the black spot disappears.

There are a lot of different kinds of devices used for making adjustments in lamps. In some of them the bulb itself is moved and in others a screw at the back makes the adjustment, while in still others the rim of the lamp is moved. In the type where the bulb itself is moved, you must be careful not to loosen the bulb from its base when making adjustments.

Another source of faulty lighting is found in lost motion existing between the socket and the bulb. When this occurs the center line of the filament does not coincide with the center line of the reflector, which distorts the image cast by the lamp. Some bulbs are made so that the center of the filament is off the center line of the base; poor light is the result, but sometimes by shifting the bulb around this can be remedied.

Just as every other part of the motor car demands attention, the lamps ought to be given periodic inspections. See that the filaments are properly lined up with the bases. When any bulb seems questionable in this respect the only thing to do is to replace it with a new one.

Now, coming down to controlling the light supply so that it may serve the user without injuring others, we find that most anti-glare laws provide that no beam of direct light shall be thrown higher than forty-two inches above the ground. As a matter of fact, this does the motorist no injury, as he needs the light on the road and not in the air. Some lamps have an adjustment so that their beams may be directed down to comply with such laws, or it is very easy to have the brackets bent over, which serves the same purpose.

GLARE REMOVERS.

Supplementing this there are many so-called glare removers on the market, designed to control the light so that the driver gets all that he needs on the road, without any of the dazzling beams being thrown into the eyes of approaching users of the road.

There are certain definite methods of handling the problem of glare removal. One type removes the glare at the bulb, which may be done by actual dimming or by using nonglaring colors, by partly covering the bulb and by frosting. Another type of device eliminates the glare at the reflector and in this case the color of the light may be altered, the upper portion of the reflector may be offset from the lower to throw the light down on the road, or the upper range of the reflector may have an inclined axis for deflecting the brilliant rays. The third class eliminates the glare at the lens or glass front. In this case the glass front may be so constructed that it deflects or diffuses the dazzling beams or it may be frosted or colored, usually amber, or it may be covered by a shield to eliminate the bright beams in the forbidden area. Some of these lenses are designed to redirect or bend down the glaring light.

Some States stipulate that certain forms of glare-removing devices shall be used, while in others the bending over of the headlight brackets so that the light is directed downward is all that is necessary. At the last count there were twenty or more States with anti-glare laws and before long practically every one of them will have some law of this sort. So it is important for the motorist who intends to tour to get a set of glare removers that are generally approved; so that he will be within the law in every State.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Barney Oldfield: I have a 1917 Jeffrey car which seems to be in fine condition outside a squeak which seems to be in the motor. The noise cannot be heard until the car runs three to five miles and then it gradually develops. Please do anything you can for me. H. M., Buffalo.

It is rather difficult for me to tell you how to stop a definite squeak that you hear coming from the engine. Generally the first step is to oil copiously every moving shaft and bearing such as pump shaft, ignition unit drive, etc. Then take the front motor support. It might be a hood squeak, due to weaving.

Barney Oldfield: I have a motor with overhead valves, Remy ignition and Schebler carburetor. Motor runs perfectly when warmed up, but when cold sputters, backfires and runs irregularly. The valves have been ground and plugs cleaned without result. I think the carburetor is wrong and think the needle valve should be lowered so as to enrich the mixture by turning down the auxiliary valve. In other words this would make it possible to take an air supply from the hot air pipe giving a more even mixture. What do you think of this? READER, Turlock, Cal.

You are right when you say that turning down on the needle valve thins the mixture. The same result is had by giving more air. I believe I will suggest that you turn the bell above the air valve while the engine is cold and idling. Once you get that adjustment right there is no need to change or fuss around with it.

Barney Oldfield: Please tell me if I am putting too much strain on my magneto by running the headlights, dash and tail lights on same. I have rewired my car so that by throwing over a switch I run my lights by a battery when car is standing, but when running I throw on the magneto to get better lights. But for some reason my dash light burns out though the others are all right. FORD OWNER.

Why not use the storage battery for lights when running? You do not strain the magneto at all. The burnouts are caused by excessive voltage or wrong voltage bulbs. Install a voltage regulator if you wish to use your present system.

Barney Oldfield: I have a small tractor with a Gile motor and a Bennett carburetor. I want to burn kerosene; can you advise me the best way to do so? I have been told I can use the same carburetor. WM. CHADDERTON, Mulvihill, Man.

The Bennett carburetor is made in a number of models, some of which can handle kerosene. If it is of a gasoline type not made to use kerosene you might get exchanged. Try the dealer from whom you bought your tractor.

Barney Oldfield: I cannot keep the connecting rod bearings tight on 1 and 4 cylinders of my Ford. I have had them taken up several times, but they soon loosen a bit, so I can distinguish the tapping when the motor is hot. I cannot detect any play except side play on the crank-shaft bearing, which can be moved back and forth between the shoulders with the fingers. The other two bearings never give me any trouble, and the car runs perfectly, aside from the two bearings mentioned. E. R. BURRELL, Pa.

Don't run any length of time with a loose rod bearing. Your trouble is undoubtedly caused by wrong fitting of the bearings. Too tight bearings will loosen in a hurry. If you will have those two bearings properly scraped in and fitted to the shaft they will run for thousands of miles without loosening.

Barney Oldfield: A uses an outer casing 31 by 3½, with an inner tube 30 by 3, claiming he has been advised to do this by tire men. B claims that a size and a half-inch larger than the casing is more serviceable than a half-inch smaller. Please say which gives better results? E. L. STEIGER, Minneapolis.

There are objections to both, but usually the larger size is more likely to give trouble due to pinching. Why not use the right size tube, that is, the same size as the casing? That is best.

Barney Oldfield—I have a Ford touring car with a utility truck unit. Would like to know if a cutout would be an advantage. F. R. CLELAND, Minneapolis.

A cutout is helpful, but it will not give any noticeable increase in power. It is good for listening to the engine fire to detect uneven firing or misfiring. Usually it is against the law to drive with a cutout.

Barney Oldfield—I have a motor with overhead valves, Remy ignition and Schebler carburetor. Motor runs perfectly when warmed up, but when cold sputters, backfires and runs irregularly. The valves have been ground and plugs cleaned without result. I think the carburetor is wrong and think the needle valve should be lowered so as to enrich the mixture by turning down the auxiliary valve. In other words this would make it possible to take an air supply from the hot-air pipe, giving a more even mixture. What do you think of this? READER, Turlock, Cal.

Barney Oldfield—I cannot keep the connecting rod bearings tight on Nos. 1 and 4 cylinders of my Ford. I have had them taken up several times, but they soon loosen a bit, so that I can distinguish the tapping when the motor is hot. I cannot detect any play except side play on the crank shaft bearing, which can be moved back and forth between the shoulders with the fingers. ⁂

Barney Oldfield—Will you kindly advise me of some good books that I can get on auto repair work and where I can obtain same. F. KING, Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Several good books of the type you desire are published by Motor World of New York, and also the Norman Henley Publishing Company of New York. Write them for details.

TOILET WATER IS "GAS" SUBSTITUTE.

Don Lee's publicity department is in receipt of an item from the Bartlett Springs' publicity department regarding the performance of Bill Lange's Cadillac, which must be awarded one of the medals for touring season yarns. According to this important news item, when the car ran out of gasoline near the summit of Bartlett Mountain one of the party came forth with a large bottle of toilet water, which was put in the gasoline tank and successfully brought the car to the springs. The informant does not provide the information as to whether this was Lange's toilet water or belonged to one of the party. Anyway the Cadillac carburetor was equal to the task and whatever the fluid was, it was power producing. Lange says he is satisfied now that a Cadillac will run on anything from peanut butter to a chocolate sundae.

SAVE TIRES JUST AS YOU SAVE BREAD.

If you lived near a family that threw away a half a loaf of bread every day you would report that family for willfully wasting wheat products which the government has asked us to save. It is just the same with a man who has worn out his tires and junks them when it is possible to have them half-soled, which makes them good for perhaps 10,000 miles more wear.

"Although everybody does not think of this when he throws away tires," says A. R. Gooddale, president of the International Sales Company, distributors for the Gates Half-Sole tire. "Thoughtlessness is not recognized by the government and the motorists should investigate all these ways of conserving our nation's resources so that we can win this war and beat the Hun."

THIRTY-TWO CARS PER DAY DEMAND.

Lots of so-called automobile factories do not turn out four carloads of machines in any one day of their existence. They would have a hard time supplying the demand of W. S. Dulmage, Chevrolet dealer at Seattle, who has asked the factory at Oakland to ship him thirty-two Chevrolets a day until further notice.

LENGTH OF WRENCH MUST BE JUST RIGHT.

When the handle of a wrench is too long for the capacity of the jaws, there will be danger of stripping threads. For this reason the mechanic's "S" wrench is the safest to use as the length of handle is scientifically proportioned to the work demanded of the tool.

OVERLAND WILL GO AFTER FORD.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, June 21.—John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland Company, has announced the plans of his company to drop all models of the Overland car for 1919, except the new four-cylinder model originally planned to sell for $500, but which may sell for $50 above that price, due to material conditions. With this car in quantity production it may be said that the Willys-Overland Company plans to become an active rival of the Ford Motor Company.

Stearns-Knight closed cars are created especially for discriminating buyers—for people who demand superiority.

A certain exclusive distinctiveness that brings supreme enjoyment—for summer as well as winter it is the ideal car for Southern California.

Along with other refinements there is the outstanding feature of the Knight sleeve valve motor—silence.

The Stearns-Knight motor is "noiseless" and it stays "noiseless" even after it has run 100,000 miles or more because it wears in instead of wearing out. Your investigation is invited.

The Smallest Part of Motor Truck Service Is That Which You Get for Nothing

The Biggest Feature Is Parts in Stock Here—Not Several Thousand Miles Away

At the Moreland Motor Truck factory there is a half million dollar stock of service parts available all hours of the day and night.

And at our seven Factory Branches large stocks are carried. No matter where your Moreland truck may be in California, some place near is a Factory Branch maintained to render our idea of Service.

These Branches are at San Diego, Bakersfield, Fresno, Stockton, Sacramento, Oakland and San Francisco.

Nowhere else can you get such service.

And the trucks themselves are best adapted to western use.

alesmen Get Real Demonstration of the Worth of Car.

Giving the salesmen a genuine demonstration.

Here we have some photographs of the absolutely unique stunt staged by Harold L. Arnold for the purpose of acquainting his salesmen with the fine points and ability of the Maxwell cars.

Strenuous.

OTOR PARTY BUCKS DESERT.

e Cars Conquer in Fight with Elements.

cient Sea Bottom Flooded by Cloudburst.

pect Sand, but are Handed Mud in Plenty.

If you want a recipe for a really strenuous automobile trip, take twenty-four miles of desert road officially marked as impassable by the United States Geological Survey, add six miles of old sea-bottom of Imperial Valley silt, mix well with one [illegible] thunderstorm and serve at the average temperature of a midsummer day of the lower Colorado desert. At least this is the recommendation of twenty-three members of the Harold L. Arnold organization who tried this combination last week in the Maxwell cars, and who report that it is an unequaled method of getting acquainted with the car you own. Every one of the five Maxwells made the trip with a perfect record of performance, and from the evidence of some two dozen photographs taken on the way, the achievement of the cars was a truly extraordinary one.

"Frankly, it was a revelation as to the ability of a modern motor car to stand up under abuse of the worst sort," declared Harold L. Arnold, Maxwell distributor for Southern California and Arizona, who headed the expedition. "We left Los Angeles at 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon and drove to Warner's Hot Springs, where we spent the night, finding good roads that far.

"We left Los Angeles with six Maxwells, but at Warner's Hot Springs one of the cars was purchased by B. Kerr, owner of the resort. Early next morning we left for the Imperial Valley by the seldom-used road down the Grapevine, and the San Felipe Wash to Brawley.

"At the mouth of the San Felipe we found a sign placed this year by the United States Geological Survey, warning us that the direct road to Harper's Well and Brawley was impassable. We determined to attempt it, and the five Maxwells made this twenty-four miles of officially "impassable" road without the slightest difficulty.

"It was after crossing the 'impassable' road, however, that we found the most difficult going. We emerged on the level silt floor of the desert that was once the bed of the Gulf of California. A terrific cloudburst in the hills the day before had simply flooded the ancient sea-bottom. The road was covered for the most part by standing water, and hundreds of cross-washes had been cut in it by the flood.

"Anyone familiar with the character of Imperial Valley soil will be able to imagine the road conditions we faced for the next six miles. I have done a great deal of traveling by automobile, but I have never seen a road quite as atrocious as that was. Naturally, we had not expected mud, and there was not a tire chain nor a piece of rope in one of the cars. I think the rear wheels traveled sixty miles to the front wheels' six. The wheels became solid disks of mud at times, and the rear axle housings dragged in the mud. The first Maxwell that broke the trail simply had to 'buck' its way through, gaining ten or twelve feet at a time, and then backing up and hitting the mud again for another short gain. It was by no means a cool day for this sort of work, either. But every Maxwell won its way through without the slightest difficulty of any sort. It was a 100 per cent. performance under the most difficult test that I have ever seen cars submitted to.

"We reached Brawley about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and drove on to El Centro, and thence on to San Diego that night.

"Aside from the performance of the cars, the trip showed that you never can tell what you are going to find on a desert trip. We went expecting to find sand. There was plenty of that, but the idea of having a battle with mud in summer on the desert was one that we never thought of."

JACK THE SLASHER HAS MANY VICTIMS.

NEW MYSTERY IS PUZZLING THEFT BUREAU OF AUTO CLUB.

Detective John W. Powell of the theft bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California has a new problem on his hands in the shape of a "Jack the Slasher."

A dozen or more cars have been stolen from garages, driven to a lonely place and there so mutilated as to be almost worthless. Tops, cushions, tires, bodies and the lighter parts of the interior mechanism were found, slashed in scores of places.

A close investigation failed to reveal any motive for the vandalism. The owners could think of no enemies who would take this dastardly means of revenge. Eternal vigilance and strong locks are the best methods of combating the activities of the degenerate, the officer declares.

BOOST HARD FOR RURAL MOTOR LINE.

Active work to assist in the establishment of rural motor express lines has been begun by a special committee representing the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. It is the intention to encourage the use of light trucks in this connection, as much as possible, according to reports received here by W. O. Gates of the Smith Form-a-Truck Sales Company. Agitation of the matter in California already has started and district representatives have been appointed. Between 30,000 and 40,000 dealers and the 115 manufacturing members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce have been called upon to give all the support possible to the undertaking.

HANDY METHOD FOR REMOVING STUDS.

The car owner is frequently confronted with the job of removing a stud bolt that is so inaccessibly located that it is impossible to get at it with an ordinary wrench. In these circumstances, file a slight trench on each of two sides of the stud's head, just deep enough for an ordinary open-end wrench to grasp the head snugly. Then turn this wrench, which projects above with a monkey wrench and the stud will come out without difficulty.

TO HOLD SCREWS.

It frequently happens that a screw is so located that a lock nut, cotter pin or the usual devices cannot be used to hold it. By cutting a short length of iron wire, bending it a little and then after the screw has been sunk under the surface, drive the wire in so that it lies in the slot, the screw will be firmly held in place.

CHANDLER SIX
Famous For Its Marvelous Motor

Choose Your Chandler Now

If you will find out about the Chandler Six and know the car as more than forty thousand Chandler owners know it, and as countless thousands of friends and neighbors of these Chandler owners know it, you will choose the Chandler as your car. You will choose it for its marvelous motor, for its power and life and endurance and dependability.

You will choose it for its sturdy chassis.
You will choose it because it rides the road so well at any speed.
You will choose it for the beauty of design and finish of its bodies.
You will choose it for the economy of its operation and maintenance.

Through five years of refinement, without radical changes, the Chandler car has been developed to a point approximating perfection. Distinctive Chandler features, in addition to the Chandler-designed and Chandler-built motor, include now, as for years past,

Bosch High Tension Magneto.
Solid cast aluminum crank case extending from frame to frame.
Durable light-running ball bearings in transmission, differential and rear wheels.
Spiral bevel gear rear axle.

In details of design and equipment the Chandler checks with the highest priced cars, not with cars that sell at prices similar to Chandler prices. And the Chandler performs with the high-priced cars.

Two-Time Winner
Stephens Salient Six

Proven under A.A.A. sanction Economy Run from Los Angeles to Camp Curry, Yosemite, most economical user of gasoline for cars in Class B (medium price) and awarded the Camp Curry Trophy for that class.

Awarded the Automobile Club of Southern California Trophy as the most economical car in any class in use of gasoline, oil and water. Gas tank and radiator sealed.

According to official A.A.A. score the STEPHENS SALIENT SIX record was 43.79 ton miles, which means that only 17¾ gallons of gasoline was required to propel the car and its load, totaling 4070 pounds, a distance of 382 miles. The straight gasoline average was a trifle better than 21 miles per gallon.

The actual cost of the gasoline used between Los Angeles and the Yosemite, over mountain roads, steep grades and burning heat, was $8.55. But one pint of oil and one and five-eighths gallons of water were consumed.

Wonderful Performance by a Wonderful Car

And it was no loafing contest with the Stephens, for it was the first car to reach the finishing point among sixteen competitors. Although the return trip was not under the jurisdiction of the A.A.A., the Stephens was the first car of all competitors to reach Los Angeles.

The perfected overhead valve engine of the Stephens which develops fifty-seven horsepower and which is constructed to burn gasoline and distillate and low grade fuels to come, did its part in clearly demonstrating Stephens superiority. Mechanically the car is ahead of its day. What this Stephens Six did any other will. Let us demonstrate this fact to you.

JORDAN

Power and Economy Demonstrated Under A. A. A. Sanction Economy Run Between Los Angeles and Camp Curry, Yosemite, June 14 and 15

A Jordan brougham, carrying five passengers and totaling in weight 4500 pounds, made an average gasoline mileage for 382 miles of 14.98 miles to the gallon. The official A.A.A. score shows a ton-mile record of 33.7, which is remarkable when the character of the car and its load is taken into consideration. But six pints of oil were used and only five pints of water.

The water average is by far the lowest of any cars in Class C, known as the higher price class. On the stiff grades of the High Sierras, the Jordan displayed its great store of power and it was there that it showed exceptional gasoline economy. The car never boiled, which can be proved by the observers who, under A. A.A. regulations, rode in the Jordan throughout the two days' gruelling run and in spite of the burning hot sun.

There was ample room for the five passengers who occupied the brougham, demonstrating its fitness for touring on long distances. While passengers in open cars were burned by the sun, those in the Jordan rode in comfort.

What this Jordan did so will any other of the same type. Permit us to demonstrate to you what Jordan superiority means.

Motor Makers Make Cars to Fit Changing Conditions.

Farmerettes decide that one day is quite sufficient.

Here are some of the beautiful damsels employed at the Chevrolet factory in Oakland. Across the street from the big plant is a field, the crop of which needed harvesting. The Chevrolettes said they could do that little thing and they did but they don't want to try it again.

ECONOMY IS THEIR STUDY.

Motor Makers are Probing Changing Conditions.

Test All Sorts of Theories and Principles.

Aim to Eliminate Waste, Lost Motion, Friction.

BY HARRY A. LORD,
Lord Motor Car Company, Velie Distributors.

With the ever-increasing necessity for the most stringent efficiency of operation, and the clarion call for the utmost economy of labor and material in all industrial lines, and, likewise of vital importance, the training and education of the American people to greater individual economy, certain hitherto paramount features of high sales power in many commodities have lost caste and become overshadowed by other features drawn into prominence and magnified by changing conditions.

Since the conception of the automobile industry, speed has been the banner at the head of the automobile's progress. With the first hint of the automobile's swift-moving possibilities, races were held—before even the quality of their development could be relied upon to insure an entrant's ability to make a start, much less get all the way around the course. Since that time manufacturers have bent every effort to increase the power and speed of their motors, giving but little time to the economical element of their construction.

It was not until the last few years that the cost of operation and maintenance commenced to receive attention. With the participation of the United States in the European conflict and the immediate effects therefrom, automobile buyers became more interested in how many miles per gallon a machine would register, and in the last year or two, with increasing effect, the economy angle has forged ahead and supplanted the false ideals of speed, until today the first question invariably asked by the average prospective purchaser is: "How many miles do you get to the gallon?"

Quick to plumb the trend of public thought, to note the changing conditions, automobile manufacturers are using the most scientific means at their command to eliminate excess weight, power waste, undue friction, lost motion, etc., are testing their theories and principles as never before. The Velie Motors Corporation at Moline, Ill., has recently established two large and independent departments in its vast organization for experimentation and the development of the highest possible standard of economy in the Velie.

Certain it is that the near future will see tremendous strides along these lines in the automobile world and, just as early speed records were shattered by subsequent progress and development, so will our present gasoline mileage records be undoubtedly surpassed in the future.

DEALERS IN TIRES PREPARE FOR RUSH.

BIGGEST MOTORING SEASON IN STATE'S HISTORY EXPECTED.

"The cool spring weather has retarded the commencing of heavy summer touring, with the result the motor enthusiasts have had ample time to overhaul their cars and equip them thoroughly," reports W. R. Cain, manager of the local Norwalk tire service station. "We have felt this preparation for summer touring taking place through the heavy sales of Norwalk tires made during the past two weeks. Numerous motorists have come in, not to make a single purchase, but to buy four or five tires. Long tours will be no doubt the vogue this summer. California is in fine condition for touring, and we should see the biggest motoring season in the history. During the next sixty days we expect to make sales far in excess of any month since we placed Norwalk tires on the market two and one-half years ago."

FISHING GOOD AT BIG BEAR.

O. L. Papineau, proprietor of the Van Nuys Building Barber Shop, reports many limits of trout are being caught at Big Bear these days. "Pap" is so enthusiastic over his luck that he has installed a branch shop at the Fawnskin Hotel, the first point on the lake, and will spend the summer at that popular resort.

TRULY RURAL STUNT FAILS TO CHARM FEMININE BUNCH.

"ALL the joys of a farmer's life" are more or less mythical, according to the conclusion reached by a score of fair Chevrolet factory employees after they had put in one brief day in regulation farmerette attire, pitched hay and otherwise conducted themselves like true daughters of the soil. The one experience, they say, convinces them it is far more pleasant to do their tasks in a modern motor car plant and leave the outdoor stuff for the men.

At the big Chevrolet factory in Oakland is a twenty-acre field where a crop of oats sowed in the spring grew like magic. The grain was beginning to dry up and blow away, and to save it a hurry call was sent in for volunteers.

"Let the girls do it," was the answer from the shops. But the girls wouldn't; they hadn't any proper costumes—and what fun is there in being a farmerette in skirts?

Manager Capwell of one of Oakland's big department stores solved this feature with twenty suits of coveralls. Another store had twenty hats on hand, and when the Chevrolet girls appeared with their rakes and pitchforks they were modern Maud Mullers. With a Chevrolet one-ton truck doing tractor duty, and two Chevrolet light delivery vehicles substituting for the old-fashioned hay rack, the hay was soon ready to move under cover, and the girls stuck on the job until the dreary end.

But now the "never again" sign is up at the Chevrolet factory when anyone mentions "farmerettes." Even the snappy one-piece suits and straw hats are not sufficient lure to draw the girls from their regulation duties and into the fields as reapers of the harvest. Only as a patriotic measure will they grab rakes and pitchforks and go forth to tame the hay.

Economy.

GIVE YOUR CARBURETOR CARE AND SAVE MONEY

"HOW to reduce the cost of operating expense and incidentally to increase the gasoline mileage are the two most common pointers issued for the benefit of automobile owners," declared W. D. Wright of the Wright Motor Car Company, who has just taken over the agency of the Monroe line of cars.

"There seems to be prevalent among automobile owners a desire to minimize the expense of operating a car. This should not come as a distinct surprise, as prices on all commodities and luxuries have increased with leaps and bounds.

"The first step in reducing operating expenses is for the driver to constantly strive to conserve the supply of gasoline and oil. In order to make this possible it is first necessary for the motorist to know his car. This is where most owners fall down in their attempts to decrease the cost of running their automobiles.

"The most important part of the automobile that will help reduce the cost of upkeep is the proper adjustment of the carburetor. The mixture at the present may be either too lean or too rich, and to strike the happy medium all owners should have experts, employed at the service departments of their particular car, examine this particular instrument."

Economy Test.

SCORES A GOOD RECORD ON GALLON OF GASOLINE.

IN AN economy test which was conducted recently over the roads in the San Bernardino Valley, R. H. Walter, county dealer for the Pilot six, chalked up a record of 26.6 miles on one gallon of gasoline. The run was made with E. H. Dunlap of the City Paper and Paint Company, F. Van Slyke of the Auto Electric Company and M. R. Standish, auto editor of the Sun, as observers.

The Pilot six traveled over various roads, paved and dirt, until the last drop was consumed from a one-gallon tank attached to the windshield support with a pipe taking the gas directly into the carburetor. Speed of from ten to thirty miles an hour was maintained and the weight of the four passengers totaled about 725 pounds. The Pilot six with which the test was made develops forty-five horse power and was a practically new car and no adjustments were made for the trip.

Mr. Walter made the test to furnish concrete evidence that the economy features of the Pilot are not being exaggerated. The gallon tank was filled by Mr. Dunlap before the trip started, the fuel being measured accurately. Mr. Walter also wishes to point out that when a six-cylinder car with passengers will show 26.6 miles on one gallon of gasoline it is a strong testimonial to the fact that it can be operated very economically.

State Distributors Wanted

Large Eastern Manufacturers Negotiating for Southern California Distribution

Several large manufacturers of nationally known farm machinery have sent me here on a special trip to establish selling connections. I have just finished a three weeks' trip through the State for the purpose of formulating a selling plan to assist in introducing and increasing the sale of these lines.

One of these firms is a large tractor manufacturer — making a popular-priced tractor suited to average farm conditions. Deliveries of as many as fifty machines a month can be spared after July 15. The distributor and dealer profits are generous and a comprehensive selling plan will be put in operation as soon as selling arrangements are complete.

Another firm makes motor trucks—units for converting second hand or new cars—and also a line of heavier trucks. Production is on such a scale that the distributor handling this line is in position to buy trucks about 10% less than the same job can be bought through other sources.

Another line of two-wheel semi-trailers—the widest advertised and biggest selling line on the market—can be had by a firm with State-wide organization.

One of the largest manufacturers of farm machinery—binders, mowers, hay rakes, plows, harrows, etc.—is in position to negotiate for all or part of the State.

Probably the Port Huron & Thresher Company of the three largest makers of separators and threshers of kinds. Their line includes a tractor and a full line of gines and certain road The right firm can agency.

All told I have the most group of agricultural lines could be brought together single plan of sales promotion authority covers all preliminary rangements to the point of a contract. While here I complete the summer and fall tising schedules for these firms.

I will be here until Saturday, 29. During that time I shall be glad to arrange a conference with anyone interested in any group of these lines. I do business, so don't waste or yours. Leave word for me time during the day, or better drop me line at this address. is too big an opportunity for you pass up. Inquiries from dealers side the city will be handled sonally.

ing System is Getting Well Under Way.

Piling up at the Headquarters.

Charged by this Local Organization.

The establishment of a bureau of return loads for motor trucks in Los Angeles for the Southern California territory has proven to be a popular movement, as indicated by the number of the inquiries from shippers and haulers.

The card index file of available trucks that can handle extra loads is growing rapidly, and it will not be long until the work of the bureau will be in full swing.

Endorsement of the plan is expected from several civic organizations, as it has already been strongly endorsed by the Highways Transport Committee of the government.

A number of eastern cities have bureaus already in successful operation and the transportation problem there has been partially solved through their efforts. Another movement in line with the work of the bureau and to a certain extent a result of its work is the establishment of rural express routes. These routes make it possible to combine the shipments of produce from a number of farms at less cost than when each farmer carried his own produce to the city, and at the same time gives him more hours available for raising greater crops.

Distribution has been speeded up and the consumers have been benefited by quicker delivery at less cost for handling.

While the eastern bureaus as a rule charge a fee or a percentage of the hauling cost for the work of the bureau, the Los Angeles bureau gives its services gratis, as all the expenses are borne by Earle C. Anthony, Inc., who started the movement here. In outlining the work of the bureau and the progress already made, Anthony said:

"We have had a large number of inquiries since the plan was made public, and a great many responses to our request to the haulers and shippers to file with us the information necessary to the success of the plan.

"It will soon be necessary to assign a secretary to take charge of this work exclusively, and as soon as the results are known to the public we expect to have still greater co-operation of all parties concerned.

"To make the available vehicles do the added work that has been thrown on them by reason of the added burdens the railways are carrying on account of the war, it is necessary to load our motor trucks to full capacity and never send them back empty if it can be avoided.

"We expect to ask the chambers of commerce in towns near Los Angeles to establish sub-bureaus to act in conjunction with the main one here, as that would facilitate the work very greatly. It is not only local hauls that we are trying to improve, but the entire motor truck transportation system of Southern California.

"If we can help to make the trucks carrying capacity loads we will be assisting in the conservation of man power and fuel oil."

Something New.

PARAFFIN-BASE MOTOR OIL DISCOVERED HERE.

EVERY day brings something new in these piping times of titanic industrial development, and the latest is a new motor oil. The innovation is announced by the Ventura Refining Company, makers of "Ventura" gasoline, which has been on the market for some years. The new oil will be known under the same brand name—"Ventura" motor oil.

Paraffin-base motor oils, of course, are not new, but paraffin-base oils manufactured from California crude oil are a decided novelty. Heretofore, all lubricating oil made from California crude has been asphalt-base oil. It was generally believed that California produced only asphalt-base crude oil. Even oil men themselves have always contended that California had no paraffin-base crude—that is, crude containing paraffin wax.

However, the Ventura Refining Company has upset this theory. The officials of the company, after long and careful experiment, found that its crude oil from Ventura county contained as large a percentage of paraffin wax as the famous Pennsylvania oils.

Being aggressive and progressive, the Ventura company officials determined to demonstrate the fact that paraffin-base lubricants could be made from their Ventura county crude oil. And they have succeeded.

To accomplish this achievement, it was necessary to enlarge the company's refinery in Ventura county by the addition of a modern wax-extraction plant, by means of which the paraffin wax is pressed from the oil in the same manner as the Pennsylvania paraffin-base lubricants are produced.

Prevent Trouble.

KEEP YOUR TIRES WELL FILLED UP WITH WIND.

"THE first and last rule for the motorist who would get the longest tire mileage from his tires is to keep them properly inflated," according to Weinstock-Nichols, local Federal dealers. There are definite rules covering the proper inflation of tires, and we are in a position to supply them to every motor car owner. When tires are underinflated and driven in this condition, instead of the resilient action and even distribution of the load, they are cramped between the road and the rim. Anyone at all familiar with the construction of tires knows that they are built up of a carcass composed of the finest cotton fiber, impregnated and coated with rubber, to which a heavy tread is vulcanized.

"They are built so they give resiliency when fully inflated. But when they are run almost flat there is a decided breaking strain thrown upon the fabric. It has a similar effect when the tires are in play to constantly-bending wire back and forth in one spot. The wire will break and likewise the fabric composing the foundation of the tire is destroyed and the tire is worthless.

"Overinflation is another evil. In the first place overinflated tires are subjected to undue strain. Then they have not the easy riding qualities in this condition. They are almost like riding on solid tires. The careful motorist will always take care that his tires are properly inflated.

For War.

TIRE INDUSTRY IS BEING SPEEDED MORE THAN EVER

E. W. BESAW, sales manager of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, is in Los Angeles, accompanied by A. L. Smith, Pacific Coast manager, visiting F. C. Flickinger, manager of the Los Angeles branch.

Mr. Besaw brings news direct from Akron of interest not only to tire circles, but also to the automobile trade in general for the coming year.

"The tire industry is being speeded up as never before in the interests of the government," said Mr. Besaw. "Few people realize the big part that tires are playing in this war. The big giant pneumatic truck tire with Firestone demountable rims, for instance, is making it possible for army trucks to travel thirty miles an hour over the roads in France, thus maintaining a fast express and emergency service that is giving the Allies one more advantage in stopping the big German push.

"Anticipating still greater tire demands on the part of the government in the future and also a possible tightening up of transportation conditions, the Firestone company, realizing the importance of this city as a distributing center, is stocking its branch here in an effort to take care of the increasing demands of Firestone users in this territory."

BE GOOD SPORT, IS AUTO MAN'S ADVICE.

R. C. Durant, vice-president of the Chevrolet Motor Company of California, has issued a request that Chevrolet dealers in the West enter all sorts of friendly contests with with business rivals to test the merits of the Chevrolet product against that of other motor car makers.

"Let's make life more pleasant for all concerned and combine a little pleasure with our business," urges Durant. "Don't crow too much when you win, and when you lose give the other man full credit for what his car has accomplished. A game loser is more to be admired than a conceited winner."

INGENIOUS DEVICE FOR VALVE SPRINGS.

Any device that will lighten the job of grinding the valves, will undoubtedly be welcomed by the average car owner who does his own maintenance work. Here is an unusually ingenious compressor for valve springs. Use a piece of pipe of say three-quarters of an inch in diameter. Cut off a length of this that will just fit in between the valve spring washer and the engine base, when the valve is fully opened. Cut out a longitudinal section of this bit of pipe, so that it may be slipped in around the push rod and stem. Push the compressor into place when the valve is open and turn the engine over until the rod settles down. After the valve has been pushed down through the washer, the pin may be removed and grinding may be carried out. The spring and washer need not be disturbed while the grinding is going on. After the operation is completed, the valve is dropped into place, the pin thrust in and the engine turned over so that the compressor may be removed.

A cut-out is helpful but it will not give any noticeable increase in power. It is good for listening to the engine fire to detect uneven firing or misfiring. Usually it is against the law to drive with a cut-out.

Market for Second-Hand Cars Takes a Terrific Bound Valuable.

USED-CAR SERVICE IS QUITE WITHOUT LIMIT.

MOTOR car dealers and distributers usually limit the service they render on cars bought from them, but the service of the used car department of Earl V. Armstrong, Inc., the Chandler distributers, knows no bounds, as was evidenced by a recent incident.

Senor Herrade, an attache of the customs department of Gov. Cantu, bought a used Chandler car and took it to La Paz, Mex. He met with an accident that necessitated two gears being replaced so advised Carl C. Gildner, manager of the used car department, of the circumstances. Gildner forwarded the gears immediately and without cost. When they arrived at La Paz, however, they came into the hands of a petty official, who delivered only one to Senor Herrade and, in addition, told him there was a $25 charge against it.

Some time later, Herrade learned that a child of the petty officer had an automobile part as a plaything. He investigated and saw it was the companion to the gear he had. In the meantime he had communicated with Gildner, who advised him both gears were sent, so an investigation was begun that resulted in the internment of the customs collector in the curatel for a term of ten years and a letter of appreciation of Chandler used car service to Gildner.

To coincide with the policy of expansion, the used car department of the Armstrong company removed a few days ago to larger quarters at No. 1127 South Olive street. At this period in the affairs of the automobile industry, expansion when others are retrenching can be construed only as typical of Carl C. Gildner, manager of the department for a little more than three years. During that time Gildner has sold more than 1400 cars and become a leader in this branch of the business in the city.

The same care and attention that is customary when marketing new automobiles have been shown by Gildner in connection with the new establishment. The salesroom compares favorably to any new car salesroom in the city. Cars that have been entirely overhauled mechanically, repainted and equipped with special plate glass in the side and rear curtains are on display. It is hard to differentiate between them and new cars in appearance. The used Chandler cars carry a ninety-days' guarantee, the same period as is stipulated by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. The cars of other makes are sold under a thirty-days' guarantee. These have been accepted in exchange as part payment for new Chandler cars.

"Our ideal of this branch of the business is that we must satisfy the owner," said Mr. Gildner, "and we urge him to invest in one of our cars with the assurance he will be well taken care of. It is not so much the proposition of selling a car today, but in selling another and still another. As an example, we sold a 1914 Chandler to the Portland Cement Company and since then they have bought 1915, 1917 and 1918 models. We maintain close relations with the new car department and that is one reason why so many persons who bought used Chandlers subsequently buy new ones. That was the case with Judge Olin Wellborn, Sr., who started with a used car and has since bought two new cars from us.

"Our system has enabled us to take care of a number of used cars sold to out-of-town residents. C. I. Faulkner of Clark & Faulkner Drug Company, Greeley, Colo., is one of these buyers and concerning the car he wrote us recently: 'My favorable opinion of you for fair dealing prompts me to take this matter up with you.' The subject concerned a repair made to his car, at Barstow, which was paid for by us because we could not render the service there, and for other reasons."

VETERAN PROSPECTOR TRIES MOTORING AT SIXTY-FIVE.

"JOE" BURDICK, who has prospected from the Mexican line to the Canadian border, has deserted the burro, or "straw burner" as he puts it, for a gasoline propelled vehicle and at the age of 65 he has gone a-motoring.

It was in Miami, Ariz., last November, that he decided to part company with his "straw-burners."

"I was looking over a junk pile in Miama and I spied this Hupp. I'd heard a lot of boosting about Hupmobiles and after looking the wagon over, I asked the selling figure. The man said $65 and I told him it was sold," related the veteran prospector, now on his way to Randsburg district, not far from Mohave.

"I found out what was needed and sent to Greer-Robbins in this city for the parts. The car was shy tires, rear axle and the bearings had been lifted. A couple of tires were in fair shape. O, yes! The brakes needed new linings. Including a not too fancy paint job, this bus stands me a little more than $165.

"I came in from Miami—a little more than 700 miles—in five days easy driving and my gas average is better than twenty-seven miles to the gallon. I started driving a trifle late in life and I learned in a rather rough country. Down where I came from and where I'm going, we don't have to worry about traffic rules. But at that, I haven't been arrested yet. I'm good for a good many years yet, and I've got a hunch that this 1909 Hupp will still be doing service when I'm done. No she don't heat, though there was lots of chances when I was learning."

Makes Good.

RICE CROP SAVED BY QUICK DASH OF AUTO.

EACH day the automobile is demonstrating its worth in speeding up the general efficiency of the nation. The speed and durability of a Cadillac eight was instrumental last week in saving thousands of dollars for the Provident Irrigation Syndicate, which has a pumping plant at Sidds Landing on the Sacramento River, twelve miles east of Willows. This plant provides irrigation for 22,500 acres of rice land, and has a capacity of 50,000 gallons of water per minute for every minute of the twenty-four hours. The splitting of one of the large belts disabled the plant and necessitated the obtaining of a new one at once. There were no trains for some time, and the delay meant the loss of thousands of dollars, as the rice absolutely had to have water.

Taking a four-passenger Cadillac car with Phil B. Cross, the head of the irrigation company, at the wheel, they left Willows at 11:35 p.m. They stopped at Davis forty minutes and arrived at Suisun at 2:45 a.m. After a two hours' rest they drove to Benicia and took the 6 a.m. train for San Francisco. Two hours later they were at the Main Belting Company and made their purchase of seventy-two feet of thirty-inch belting, weighing 700 pounds. The belting, in a light truck, was taken by boat to Vallejo, and from there to Benicia. At Benicia the 700 pounds of belting was put in the tonneau of the Cadillac, and with Engineer T. D. Rogers at the wheel, they started the return trip at 1 a.m., arriving at Willows, three hours and thirty minutes later, after a delay of fifteen minutes changing a tire. The number of miles covered on the return trip was 150. To make this distance in three hours and fifteen minutes it was necessary to average almost fifty miles an hour, and at times, the occupants state, the car was traveling at seventy-five miles an hour. They were after results, and claim that the car more than paid for itself on this one trip, as they accomplished what they could not have done by train or truck. Without the use of the Cadillac they could not possibly have obtained the belting until twenty-four hours later, which would have meant a serious loss.

SPRING REPAIRING BUSINESS RUSHING.

OLDEST CONCERN IN THE CITY REPORTS BUSINESS IS IMPROVING.

C. J. Casper, president of the Cambria Spring Company of Los Angeles, says that business has been so rushing with this local firm that many motorists have had to wait their turn for days to have their springs repaired. This concern is the oldest of its kind in the city, being located here for ten years.

In explaining the method of spring manufacture at the local plant, Mr. Casper points out that two kinds of steel are used for the different types. Either vanadium or carbon steel are employed and the composition of each must pass a most rigid scientific test before going into the make-up of the finished product. Then the leaves must be heat treated and tempered at just the right temperature to bring out the finest degree of resiliency and strength. Finally the parts are given to skilled spring fitters and assembled ready for Mr. Motorist.

CAMP ATHLETICS ARE BRACING UP AGAIN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CAMP KEARNY, June 17.—Athletic sports at the camp have been on the decline during the last four weeks because of the fact that so many of the units have been taking long hikes, devoting their entire attention to war work.

The units are rapidly returning to the cantonment and Athletic Director John R. Case expects to have things going again in big league style. The Grizzlies recently arrived home and their baseball players are beginning to limber up, which is a fair sign that something may be expected from the San Francisco men. Red Fitzsimmons, former Coast League and Brooklyn player, is in charge of the squad and has several former league players under his direction.

Wonderful.

TELLS HOW AUTO TRADE IS MEETING WAR CRISIS.

Splendid Accomplishments of Mammoth Plants will Amaze Entire World.

JUST returned from an extended eastern visit during which time he visited nearly all the large automobile truck and tractor plants as well as those of other industries, P. H. Greer of the Greer-Robbins Company, distributor of the Hupmobile and Chalmers cars, brings a story of what the motor industry is doing and is preparing to do to win the war, that were it not in this age of wonderful accomplishments would sound like a modernization of Jules Verne. That he is thoroughly imbued with the win the war spirit is evident as soon as he begins to talk.

"You may say that the Liberty motor is a success despite all that has been said. I know what I am talking about. Many are turned out now and will be in greatly increased numbers as each day goes by until they cause the greatest concern to Kaiser Bill. He should worry right now for the Liberty motor is undoubtedly the greatest airplane motor ever built in this country or any other.

"Just what the motor industry is doing now and has been doing since the work began to meet the demands placed upon the world, will never be known until history has been written. I have seen things that have made me marvel and I am still in that same frame of mind. There is much that I have seen and heard that I am not permitted to talk of. But there are some things that I am permitted to talk about and which I will mention so that you may in a small way know what the manufacturers are doing.

AN INSTANCE.

"One large concern was awarded a contract to build a certain intricate device with the understanding that one was to be turned out every three hours. The time for preparation had elapsed and no devices were forthcoming. A week went by and another and still another and nothing was produced. The government department under which this class of work was handled was by the ears and plainly showed it. But with the beginning of the fourth week all was different, for from the moment the construction was begun by that company the devices were turned out, one in every thirty-eight seconds. And the government said it would be satisfied with one every three hours. You see that concern knew something about co-ordination of effort and intensified construction.

"Another concern building automobiles was designated to turn out heavy tractors, each with fifty horsepower capacity and which are to be used in hauling heavy guns, ammunition and trains of trailers loaded with all manner of heavy supplies. That concern today is delivering more than fifty of these every day and before the war started it knew nothing about manufacturing anything save passenger cars.

THE PROBLEM.

"I could if I had the time to go into instance after instance and cite things that I have myself seen and where industry has been multiplied so many times and so marvelously amplified as to cause one to be amazed. I was and still am, for that matter. But all these things have only convinced me that the American nation is but getting into its stride and that what it will accomplish from now on will be the wonder of the world. And I am proud that it is the motor industry that is doing many of these wonderful things.

"Labor today is the great problem in the East. Thousands of women are working in automobile and motor as well as tractor plants and they are performing their labors in a manner that merits the highest commendation. Mark me, the sphere of woman has been changed by the war. Labor in which she is now identified is bound to change her sphere in life and improve her mentally and physically.

"So keen is the demand for competent workmen that one factory city will bid for the labor of another and this has resulted in the migration of labor from one point to another until it has brought about a condition that is affecting the volume of output. I understand the cities affected intend getting together with the view of ameliorating this unfortunate situation.

"The steel situation is so improving and in view of an output that will undoubtedly increase proportionately with advances made.

"The steel situation is improving wonderfully. As great things are being accomplished in this all important line as in other industries the government is to be supplied all its needs while a big surplus is also to be built up. But so great is the increase in the volume of output that those in close touch with the situation confidently believe that all government requirements will be met and that the automobile industry will not be seriously impaired. I know this to be a fact and that nothing but optimism reigns in the big producing centers. We will not get as many cars as formerly, but we will get cars. However, rather than be on a long waiting list, it behooves the prospective purchaser to buy while the buying is good."

Greer attended, at St. Louis, the annual meeting of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, of which he is a member of the board of directors. The head of the dealers' association is consulted on national matters pertaining to the dealers, by the War Trade and War Economy Board, which means that the nationwide importance of the organization is recognized in Washington.

DEALER UNCOVERS INTERESTING INFORMATION AFTER TRIP EAST.

"My observation throughout the East," says W. A. Chapman, of the Leach Motor Car Co., "did not disclose any conditions which would cause an alarming shortage of motor cars. Prices of materials are higher and skilled labor is scarce. As a result the price of motor cars will continue to advance, but to say that there will be no production of motor cars in my opinion is a misstatement of facts. A great many of the motor car manufacturers are turning out more cars today than they did a year ago at this time. I know of specific instances where this is the case."

"If the supply of coal is kept up, which at present it has every indication of doing, it will be possible to mine the ore from which to make pig iron, and this become refined in course of time to steel for automobile manufacturers.

"There is of course some delay in receiving shipments from the factories, but we are constantly receiving Premiers, Dorts, Kings and Mitchells, and though we have caused some of our customers to wait for the deliveries, conditions are much better than the general public is lead to believe."

AUTOMOBILE THIEF THOROUGH WORKMAN.

LIFTS EVERYTHING OF VALUE FROM BURNED CAR BY ROADSIDE.

The versatility of the automobile thief was demonstrated last week by the condition of a machine belonging to one of the members of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Although the car was burned to the bone the club's insurance adjusters discovered that during the few hours that the chassis was left by the roadside in the Antelope Valley some enterprising vandal had "lifted" the Klaxon, generator, spark plugs, magneto, carburetor and even the grease cups.

When the machine caught fire, two miles from Fairmont in the Antelope Valley, the owner of the car managed to save his tires and lamps from the conflagration. A kindly motorist took the driver of the ill-fated chariot, together with his movable equipment, into Fairmont. Upon returning to the scene of the fire and finding that his erstwhile joy wagon had been still further denuded the motorist concerned hurried homeward to hunt up his policy with the Inter-Insurance Exchange of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

TAKES TIRE AGENCY IN THREE STATES.

PRODUCT POPULAR IN THE EAST INVADES THE COAST.

One of the tires that has already made itself popular with motorists in the East is now represented on the Pacific Coast by the Pacific Pipe and Supply Company. This is the Delion tire, manufactured by the Delion Rubber Tire Company, Trenton, N. J. The Pacific Pipe and Supply Company has secured the California, Arizona and Nevada distributing rights, and they have already placed a number of agencies throughout the principal cities in their territory.

In speaking of this newcomer, H. A. Haldeman, president of the Pacific Pipe and Supply Company, said: "One of the best testimonials for the Delion tire is its unqualified 6000-mile guarantee. This tells the story in a few words. Delion tires in actual use have gone as much as 15,000 miles without retreading. The fact that we and the factory stand behind these tires for 6000 miles proves their confidence and our confidence in them."

Barney Oldfield—I have a 1917 Jeffrey car which seems to be in fine condition outside a squeak which seems to be in the motor. The noise cannot be heard until the car runs three to five miles and then it gradually develops. Please do anything you can for me.

H. M., Buffalo.

It is rather difficult for me to tell you how to stop a definite squeak that you hear coming from the engine. Generally the first step is to oil copiously every moving shaft and bearing such as pump shaft, ignition unit drive, etc. Then take the front motor support. It might be a hood squeak, due to wearing.

Universal Joint a Part of the Mechanism Frequently Neglected.

BE KIND TO UNIVERSALS.

Many Owners Unaware of Their Existence.

Should Have Constant Care and Inspection.

Design in Modern Car is Fully Described.

Here is one of the hardest working parts of the motor car's mechanism and yet many car owners are unaware of the existence of such a thing as a universal joint. The name universal joint, or plain universal as it is generally shortened, accurately describes the part. It is a joint so constructed that it may move in any direction, sideways and up and down, at the same time that it is revolving with the propeller shaft.

In the design of the modern car there is a propeller shaft, which carries the drive to the rear axle. This is fitted with one or two universal joints, so that it may conform with the movements of the rear axle. If the propeller shaft were not so fitted, it would snap off the first time the rear axle bounced up and down with the action of the springs. The universals compensate for this movement of the axle.

It doesn't take any great amount of imagination that a part charged with a function, or rather functions, of this sort, ought to have a certain amount of care and attention. For such continuous movement as here takes place, the only alleviating condition is copious and consistent lubrication. Do the universals get this kind treatment at the hands of the average owner? They do not; in fact most universals run most of the time without lubrication.

In spite of the fact that the universals will continue to function for a long time even when they are consistently neglected, the running of the car will be improved if these parts are maintained as they should be. Most drivers have noticed a tendency on the part of the car to jerk, when it is running slowly in high gear. This may be caused in the main by a badly-worn universal joint and the wear is probably due to faulty lubrication.

While, as we have noted, the universal joint is a remarkably efficient bit of mechanism, in fact some makes are claimed to be 98 per cent. efficient, it is a fact that lubrication of the part is difficult at best. From the character of its movement, the universal develops a tendency to throw off the lubricant to the side. This is due to the centrifugal force that is present. Also the lubricant is likely to be squeezed out from between the rubbing surfaces, by reason of the twist or torque on the joint.

The universal joint of today differs considerably from its forebears of a few years ago. The original universals consisted simply of a cross-shaped piece, the ends of this acting as bearings for U-shaped parts. With two of these, one moving up and down and the other sideways, universal action was obtained. These primeval universals practically always ran exposed.

After long experiment and improvement, the engineers hit upon the ball type of universal. This type embodies a ball which rests in a socket, thus producing the universal movement that is needed for the propeller shaft. Some of the present designs of universals provide not only for up and down and sideways movement, but for forward and back thrust as well. While this sliding joint idea has found considerable favor, most engineers prefer to provide for this front and back movement in other parts of the mechanism.

Strange as it may seem, universal joints are not always made of metal. Within the past few years there have been introduced a number of fabric joints, leather joints and combinations of the two. The great advantage of this non-metal type is that it can do without lubrication. Further, noise is practically eliminated from the operation of the part. In fact, the only care the fabric and leather joints require is an inspection once a month or so and a tightening up of the retaining members as they happen to need it.

PROPELLER SHAFT.

The non-metal or flexible universal joint cannot be employed with all constructions of mechanism, its availability depending largely on the angle of operation of the propeller shaft. In constructions where the shaft is nearly level, the flexible joint is most desirable, and is warmly advocated by some designers. When the shaft is placed at a great angle, the metal joint is necessary, because it has a greater radius of action. Flexible universals are used mainly where the transmission is located amidships and separate from the clutch and engine. The universal is then placed between clutch and transmission.

Some of these fabric joints are made of a single piece of leather, while others embody a number of leather parts fastened together. There is a universal on the market today made up of several layers of a close-woven cotton fabric, placed one one top of the other and each at a different angle, so as to compensate for the pull at any given point and thus give uniform strength.

There is little that the car owner is called upon to do to keep the universal joints in the best possible shape. Once a month or oftener if experience shows it to be necessary, the housing of the joint should be removed. Sometimes the housing is of metal and again it takes the form of a leather boot. At any rate it should be taken off periodically, and after the joint has been flushed out thoroughly with kerosene, it should be repacked with fresh grease, graphite or one of the non-fluid lubricants sold for the purpose. Oil would be the best lubricant for this part, but unfortunately the tendency of the joint to throw the lubricant to the side, makes it necessary to use the non-fluid substance. However, by giving this hard-working part the slight attention it requires, it will be kept working without complaint for very much longer than the nature of its service would seem to promise.

DON'T LET THE KIDS STEAL RIDES.

Few motorists realize that it is a punishable offense to allow bicyclists and children on roller skates to "nip" rides from their machines. A campaign against this dangerous practice on the part of thoughtless youths has been launched by the Automobile Club of Southern California and the Friday Morning Club with the intention of securing a more rigid enforcement of Ordinance No. 16288 which specifically forbids the "hooking" of rides.

Injuries from this source are extremely serious and usually result in the amputation of an arm or a leg, the Receiving Hospital having treated several aggravated cases recently. The motoring public should understand positively that it is a misdemeanor to tow anyone on a bicycle or on roller skates while those addicted to the practice of stealing a lift are also liable to feel the disciplining hand of the law.

Keep that youngster from hooking a ride.

Here we have some photographs furnished by the Automobile Club of Southern California and graphically illustrating the manner in which dozens of venturesome boys meet with accidents through hooking rides behind machines. This is absolutely against the law.

DUST SURFACE OF CAR AFTER RAIN.

"The freakish showers that were incident to the unusual hot weather a couple of weeks ago showed how drops of water will destroy the luster on the body of a car. I noticed the day after the showers, numbers of cars the dust covered surfaces of which had been badly spotted by the rain drops. When the dust was wiped off, the rain spots remained, for oxidization had already set in and it is this that eats into the polished surface and ultimately destroys it, bit by bit," said W. H. Damon of the Damon Specialty Company, manufacturer of Nonolio polish for automobiles.

"Dust the surface of your car every few days and during the rainy season, although such season is presumed to be passed, wipe off your car if it has been in the rain, before the spots have become permanent. For if you fail to, you will soon have a real cleanser's job ahead of you and a car with practically no luster to its surface."

Inevitably this a requirement of automo- miles materially above that of the past.

"Owing to the fact that passenger car production is materially curtailed and will continue on a curtailed basis, probably for the duration of the war, this demand will remain steady. In a year of normal production, under the conditions I have outlined, there would have been too few cars to supply the needs of the country. With production cut down these needs bid fair to rise 100 per cent. beyond production. Wherefore, if production is continued on its present level for the duration of the war, it will require at least several years to satisfy this new national requirement.

Further standardization in automobile manufacture with a view to conserving material, improved efficiency of motor trucks to relieve the railroads, and the establishment of rural motor express routes to aid farmers in getting supplies to market, are some of the plans agreed upon by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce as measures to aid in winning the war. Standardization will relieve the necessity for making an excess number of parts. Already makers have standardized on treads in inches so that only one width of axles and fenders is required. There has also been marked progress in standardizing wheels, tires, rims, nuts, bolts, magneto bases, bearings and cotter pins. From more than 800 sizes, cotter pins have been reduced to 46.

MORE ECONOMY.

At the annual meeting of the Automobile Chamber of Commerce reports showed that car builders are saving the use of freight cars by "drive-aways." More than one-third of the production of a number of the big manufacturers is now driven over the roads to dealers. At this meeting a special committee was authorized to take up the standardization question.

It was decided to establish more return-loads bureaus, thirty-eight already being in operation throughout the country.

Motor truck production, according to reports of the chamber, has incerased more than 100 per cent. during the past six months, as compared with the same period last year. There are now 400,000 trucks in use, besides thousands of passenger cars used for light trucking and business purposes.

PUT A NEW TUBE IN A NEW CASING.

USE OF OLD TUBE IS WORST THING ANY MOTORIST EVER TRIED.

"To insert a poor quality tube in a new casing is comparable to the proverb of 'casting pearls to swine.' Because the casing which supports a weak tube is carrying not only the weight of the car, but the inner air strain as well," says H. A. Haldeman, president of the Pacific Pipe & Supply Co.

"Only recently the user of a Palmer tube had occasion to remove a casing from his car after he had traveled over 12,000 miles, during which time the air had never been out of it. The Palmer tube was not stuck to the inside of the casing any place. There were no wrinkles or pinches of any kind, and the inside casing was as good as new. The user had the tire retreaded, Palmer tube reinserted and traveled 4000 miles before the retreading wore off. He removed the casing and found the Palmer tube in the same condition as before."

HOW MUCH DOES YOUR CAR WEIGH?

How much does your car weigh, road ready? With full equipment aboard and tanks full, could you tell what the complete actual weight is, or come close enough to make a fair approximation?

If an owner desires maximum mileage service from his tires it is absolutely essential that he know what his car weighs and how the weight is distributed and carried on each wheel. It is just as important to know whether your tires are large enough or not, as it is to see that the tires are always kept properly inflated, according to the suggestions given motorists by B. F. Wade of the Wade Tire and Rubber Company, distributors for the allred Tyrian tire.

SALES MANAGER VISITS THE COAST.

W. B. Riley, sales manager for the Jordan Motor Car Company, was in Los Angeles last week while making a business trip over Pacific Coast territory. "I find that dealers generally along the Coast believe that car sales will only be governed by the number that can be secured," said Riley in discussing general conditions with "Bob" Weaver, vice-president and general manager for S. F. Seager & Co., distributors of the Jordan.

"I know that we are in a position to get what material we need for Jordans, but that is not the trouble. It is the shortage of labor that is really hampering nearly every class of manufacturing in the East. And you'll get a touch of it here. The army and the navy have taken many and the enlarging of the capacities of plants to handle war work created a new labor market for skilled workmen that has made a void hard to fill.

CARE FOR INNER TUBE AS YOU WOULD BABY.

The motorist, upon purchasing a machine, should realize at the very start that one of the most important parts of the car, so far as his personal comfort is concerned, is the inner tube. If this is taken care of all may be well, but if it is neglected, look out for the inevitable trouble, says Mr. Thompson of the C. Fred Thompson Tire Company, California and Arizona distributors for Mason tires.

Should an inner tube, which demands greater care even than the casing, be run flat for even a short distance, it may be ruined by being ground between the rim and the casing. Very often the tube becomes pinched between the bead of the casing and the rim, this resulting in a puncture. To eliminate this trouble, inflate the tube slightly before placing it within the casing.

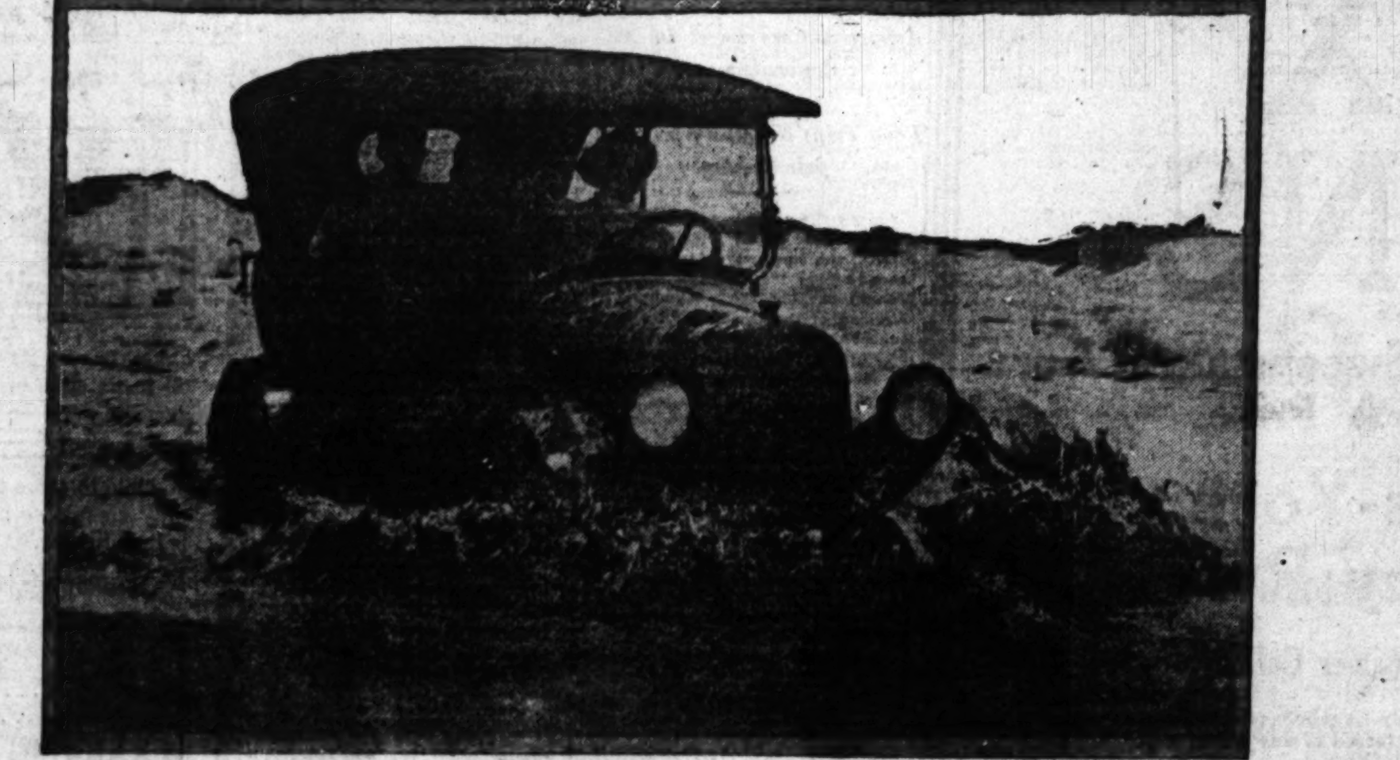
Maxwell



Did You Ever Follow a Thunder Storm Down the San Felipe?

WE DID—twenty-three men of the House of ARNOLD—in five MAXWELL Cars.

Those five Maxwell cars took us over 24 miles of desert road marked this year as impassable by the U. S. Geological Survey.

Those five Maxwell cars fought their way through six miles of the old sea bottom that the thunder storm had flooded again, six miles of Imperial Valley silt covered with standing water.

Without a tire chain or piece of rope to help them gain traction, those five Maxwells bucked their way through, without the slightest difficulty of any sort.

All this under the mid-June brand of Imperial Valley weather.

The car that matches itself against the desert and wins under such circumstances proves itself through and through.

You can't fool the desert. It tried the strength of those cars not once, but a thousand times, from end to end. Motor, clutch, transmission, drive-shaft, differentials, springs, wheels, frame and axles were pounded and punished and strained and twisted beyond all imagination, but not a weak spot could the desert find.

The cars themselves are on the Arnold salesroom floor. We have twenty pictures besides these two that will give you an idea, at least, of what those cars went through. Stop and see the pictures in our salesroom window and look the cars over.

STONE BRUISING OF TIRES IS EXPLAINED.

Some users say they are unable to understand how a stone bruise can bring about the ruin of an otherwise good motor tire as there is nothing on the tread or face of the car to indicate damage. As explained by J. B. Wood, exclusive distributor for Century-Plainfield tires and tubes, the stone or other object was not sharp enough to cleave the tread, but there was sufficient force to strain the fabric beyond the breaking point.

"Only one or two plies of the fabric may have been broken by the blow, but the pressure and constant action succeeded in sawing through the strands until the inner tube was reached or the weakened fabric could no longer withstand the air pressure and the remaining plies broke," explains Mr. Wood.

BRAKE-LINING HINT.

The use of split rivets instead of the solid type makes the operation of relining the brakes very much simpler. The rivets are inserted so that the heads are against the metal bands. The split end is opened out and sinks into the lining. A round steel bar inserted in the jaws of the vise makes an ideal tool for spreading the split rivets in place.

KEEP VALVE SPRINGS WELL LUBRICATED.

The exhaust valve stems are extremely likely to stick because of the formation of a gummy deposit that comes in this part. Gasoline or kerosene are the only things that will help much in these circumstances. By inserting a bit of copper tubing in at the next spark plug hole, a little gasoline may be squirted onto the valve stem. The gasoline runs down the stem and quickly loosens the gum, so that the valve stem is free to move again.

Official figures show Saxon "Six" used only 13 gallons of gas, 1 pint of oil and 1¾ gallons of water, the greatest record of any car entered.

Saxon "Six" proved its power by easily climbing the rough mountain grades, attaining an elevation of 6800 feet above sea level, using low gear only twice on the entire run; it proved its staunchness of construction by finishing the 382-mile run to Camp Curry, Yosemite, and the round trip of 764 miles without one mechanical adjustment.

Facts about a New Rubber Compound that will interest every motorist who is dissatisfied with the tire mileage his money buys

R. J. Stokes, Chief Production Engineer of the Thermoid Rubber Company, has found a way to make rubber more durable.

He has found it in a new chemical substance called CROLIDE.

The laboratory tests shown here are indicative of its remarkable qualities.

And thousands of miles of road tests, on highways notoriously hard on tires, have resulted in surprising mileage records.

If treads were made of pure rubber

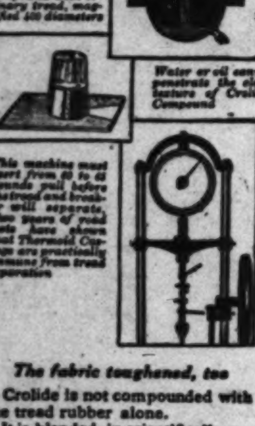
A tread made of pure rubber alone would last scarcely more than one hundred miles.

It is the compound that gives toughness to rubber, that measures the wear of the tread.

Four years ago R. J. Stokes, with many years of tire making experience behind him, began experiments in compounding rubber. He sought a new compound—that would give to the tread a new quality of endurance.

He and his staff labored for months with the problem. 567 separate formulas failed to produce the right result. Many gave rubber added strength, but lacked in some other vital quality.

But at last came success! Crolide—the result of the five hundred and sixty-eighth attempt—was just the compound they sought. It gave the tread an added toughness that astonished even Mr. Stokes himself.



Impossible to separate Crolide Compound tread and fabric

Comparing Crolide Compound with ordinary tread, magnified 400 diameters

Water or oil cannot penetrate the close texture of Crolide Compound

This machine must exert from 60 to 65 pounds pull before the tread and breaker will separate. Two years of road tests have shown that Thermoid Casings are practically immune from tread separation

The fabric toughened, too

Crolide is not compounded with the tread rubber alone.

It is blended, in scientifically exact degrees, with every layer of rubber and fabric that goes into the tire.

The fabric—the most costly grade of long staple, Sea Island Cotton—is, when treated with it, far stronger and tougher.

And it gives the tire as a whole greater solidity—unites the layers of fabric to one another and to the tread in one practically inseparable mass. The tire, as a result, is strongly fortified against tread separation, fabric breaks, and like troubles.

Hand-made by costly new methods

The casing is built up, inch by inch, by hand—by new methods of Mr. Stokes' invention.

And each casing is the work, from start to finish, of one man, who is rewarded not on the basis of how many he makes, but how well he makes them.

These hand methods are extremely expensive, and so are the rare chemicals that form Crolide. They make the Thermoid Casing the most costly built in America.

You pay more for the Thermoid Crolide Compound Casing than for average tires—at the start. At the end—your speedometer reading will show you that you pay less.

We ask you to buy this new casing for the extra mileage it will give you. That we know it will is evidenced by the guarantee below.

Automobile News of General Interest to the Motorist

Over There.

AUTO'S PLACE IN WAR TOLD.

West Front Driver Relates His Experiences.

American Cars Excel in All Conveniences.

Long Trips Necessary for Repair Making.

Among the many accounts which have come to us of soldier life in France, the similarity of which has been more or less marked, the one brought back by C. T. Hutchins, a salesman of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, is particularly interesting, in that it treats of motoring conditions as they exist in France today.

As a driver for a staff officer he became familiar with the entire battle front and obtained the broad outlook of the Allied situation. During his six months' service he was attached to the transportation departments of the French, English, Belgian, Portuguese and American forces, and wore the uniforms of all of them. His story follows, in part:

"When I volunteered I anticipated the pleasure of driving the wonderful makes of foreign cars of which I had heard so much. But I was soon disappointed. Foreign manufacturers have turned out practically no cars for public use during the last four years, their output being exclusively for their governments. Little advance has been made in design. But their power plants are fine—we have no better motors.

THE TIRES.

"Where American cars excel is in the refinements and conveniences, such as the self-starter, electric light, easily handled top, demountable rim, etc. Most of the tires I saw were of the smooth or steel studded type and even in the large sizes were clinchers. And believe me, I nearly faint when I think of some of the terrible times I have had, in surroundings none too pleasant, trying to change the things. The modern no-hook or straight side tire they know very little about.

"I have been in parts of France where an automobile was an absolute curiosity and excited no end of shy interest on the part of the villagers. The peasant children would almost go into hysterics when I sounded the horn or turned on the lights.

"In one French town the Mayor gathered together some of the leading men and gave a dinner in my honor, so glad were they for some visible evidence that American soldiers were in their country. I happened to be the first American soldier that had entered their city.

"It is next to impossible to get the slightest repair or adjustment outside of a regular automobile park. These parks, operated by all armies, where supplies are kept and repairs made, are situated at various points. Once I broke down at Angers, in peace times a city of 80,000 population, but being unable to obtain a repair, was compelled to go back to Paris by train and bring out a mechanic and parts.

"French gasoline, or 'essence' as it is called there, is not as good as the gasoline we get here, and it goes hard with American cars. American trucks and passenger cars are coming to France in large numbers, and one sees practically every make of automobile there. French roads, outside the war zone, are beautifully lined with fine old trees. We have much to learn from them in roadside decoration and in laying them out.

"The most picturesque cars in France, to my notion, are the old Paris taxis—mostly the one and two-cylinder Renaults. Every time I rode in one of these old-timers I thought of the wonderful service they performed in 1914, when they carried the poilus out to the Marne in time to stem the spectacular advance of the Germans. The world does not yet realize what a wonderful part these old cars played in the saving of civilization."

WHAT DOES IT COST TO OPERATE CAR?

When a man or woman buys a car now-a-days, one of the first questions asked, and one of the most resonable is: "How much does it cost to operate and maintain this car?"

The Ford people realized that to keep the maintenance of a car down to a minimum a factory must keep good service stations all over the country to eliminate all troubles before they get serious.

Not only did the Ford Motor Company have in mind the service that stations would render, says J. B. Fahy of Fahy-Atterbury Company Ford agents, "but in having thoroughly equipped service stations to handle repair work on Fords only they knew they would be able to reduce the cost of the work."

TIRE CONDITIONS ALL ANTICIPATED.

ONE COMPANY LAID IN BIG SUPPLY FOR TRADE LONG AGO.

"Win the war" is the slogan of all tire manufacturers in the country at the present time, according to F. H. Osler, local distributor for Racine Rubber Company, makers of the hardy Racine Multi-Mile Cord and Racine County Road tire, who has just returned from the home factory, Racine, Wis.

"Economy" is the big word of the day in the rubber business. Owing to the government's requiring a large share of the rubber import for war purposes, automobile owners throughout the country will have to protect themselves by buying only those tires which will give them maximum of service and stand the gaff of hard wear and tear.

The Osler Racine Rubber Company anticipated conditions now facing the tire purchaser, about six months ago, declared Mr. Osler, so we proceeded to lay in a full supply for our customers at once. That we were not unwise is shown by the shortage now experienced by some dealers.

PLANT EXTENSIONS ARE BEING RUSHED.

CARBURETOR COMPANY ANXIOUS TO GET ITS ARTICLE ON THE MARKET.

The Holley Carburetor Company is hurrying factory extension and installation of equipment so that the Holley vapor manifold can be placed on the market in large number, according to information received by the California Sales Company, distributor of the device for Fords in California.

"Ford owners are after the Holley manifold in the East just as strong as they are on the Pacific Coast. Back there the low-grade fuel is kerosene instead of distillate. We have received a letter from the factory in which it states that Ford owners using the Holley are generally buying kerosene and making from five to eight miles more per gallon than they are here on distillate," stated an official of the California Sales Company.

WILL SOON CATCH UP ON ALL ORDERS.

LABOR SITUATION AND BIG DEMAND HAMPERS THE RUBBER MEN.

"The labor situation and the unprecedented demand for Royal Cords has put us behind on orders for the present. We will catch up in time, and that will be soon, for the production board of our several factories is working with all its energy toward that end," stated J. B. Magee, district manager for the United States Rubber Company, who has just returned from San Francisco.

"In the East labor will not 'stay out.' Men working for high wages will quit a job on the slightest whim and superintendents are put to it to supply the demand. Although we are introducing women as fast as we can into our factories, and there are five of them, we are not placing them in those departments where Royal Cords are manufactured. Only the best skilled labor is employed in the manufacture of these tires and years of practice are required, according to the standards of the United States Rubber Company, before workmen become efficient. The company prefers to be short on this one cord rather than impair its high efficiency by poor workmanship."

STANDARDIZATION IS TAUGHT BY THE WAR.

The war has taught the world the value of standardization, declared W. D. Dunham, Ford dealer on West Seventh street. In order to beat the Hun the world must standardize, and in order to beat the high cost of living, various concerns here at home must do the same with their business organization.

Many concerns are now changing their delivery service from heavy, expensive trucks to the lighter and economical Ford trucks, with interchangeable parts and equipment. Not only are many concerns equipping their delivery departments with Ford trucks, but agents and salesmen are being supplied with Ford runabouts with which to visit the trade.

AUTO CLUB SCOUTS WORKING IN NORTH.

Don Doig and Henry Stone of the Touring Bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California are scouting about the northern part of the State to get the latest dope on the roads. After posting the economy run course Doig and Stone headed for Lake Tahoe.

VALVE CAPS THAT STICK TANTALIZING.

Valve caps have a way of sticking in place so as to defy all ordinary efforts to dislodge them. When this happens, it is a good plan to cut out a section of the rim with a cold chisel and then drill a series of 3-16-inch holes from this cut-out section of the rim up to the threads. Enlarge this series of drill holes into a slot with the chisel and then give the rim a smart tap with a steel bar or other convenient piece of stock. This will bend the cap or crack it, so that it can be easily unscrewed.

WISE OWNER SEES VALUE OF PAINT.

Most car owners assume that paint is used on the car simply for appearance sake. Not so, paint protects the surface below it from various ills, from rotting when the surface is wood, from rusting or corrosion when it is metal. The wise owner will not allow the paint of his vehicle to chip off and the surface below to be exposed to the elements. An ounce of touching up with paint is worth a pound of renewals.

Improvement.

BIG SERVICE BRANCH IS PLANNED FOR ANGELENOS.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the opening of their new home in San Francisco comes word from the general offices of the United Motors Service, Inc., in Detroit, that plans are already under way for a complete branch to be opened in Los Angeles soon. A lease has been secured on a desirable building located at No. 1152 South Grand avenue, right in the center of the automobile district, and the new service will be available as soon as alterations can be made.

United Motors Service, Inc., operates factory branches for service for the manufacturers of the three leading makes of motor car electrical equipment—Delco, Remy and Klaxon.

The present Remy branch at No. 1310 South Grand avenue will be taken over and the entire personnel used as a nucleus of the United Motors Service organization. J. D. Trindle, now manager of the Remy branch, will become manager of the new United Motors Service branch.

"This new establishment," said Mr. Trindle, "will be one of the most modern and complete service branches to be found in the motor car district, and will be one of which Los Angeles can justly be proud. It will be thoroughly in keeping with the prominent place occupied by Los Angeles as an automobile center."

United Motors Service, Inc., is one of the United Motors Corporation group of companies which includes the Hyatt Roller Bearing Company, the Dayton Engineering Laboratories Company, the New Departure Manufacturing Company, the Remy Electric Company and the Klaxon Company, etc.

Upon the completion of the Los Angeles branch, H. J. Calvin, now manager of the San Francisco branch, will be made district manager for the Pacific Coast.

NEW CORD TIRE IS GETTING REAL TEST.

TRANSCONTINENTAL JOURNEY PART OF PLAN TO TRY CASING.

Making a transcontinental trip as a final endeavor to discover any weakness in the new cord tire the Norwalk tire factory plans to place on the market this fall, F. E. Lewis, vice-president of the Norwalk Tire and Rubber Company, has arrived in St. Louis in his Cadillac en route from the Pacific Coast to Norwalk, Ct. In a telegram to Louis Lichtenberger of the Lichtenberger-Ferguson Company, Mr. Lewis states that he has been unable to discover the slightest flaw in the cord casings and expects to arrive at the Connecticut factory in ten days.

So particular are the officials of the Norwalk factory to produce a cord tire that will not develop any flaws under various conditions that they will not allow the new cord to be placed on the market until it has undergone every test.

The Franklin Sedan

again proves its consistent economy by using the least amount of gasoline and oil in its class of cars selling at $2000.00 and over, making highest gasoline average per mile in the second annual economy run to Yosemite — 382 miles.

On account of the extreme light weight of the Franklin Sedan it was impossible to score the highest ton miles per gallon, but it does demonstrate the only claims we have made, "most miles per dollar." That is what the owner is looking for.

In cases where the pistons are not provided with oil grooves, these can be cut and will usually help in cases where there has been habitual trouble with the lubrication of the cylinders.

Many car owners have had trouble with leaky piston rings, which permit an excess of oil to work its way into the combustion chamber while at the same time the fuel is passing down into the oil reservoir. This produces a double waste, of oil and of gasoline, in addition to impairing the operating qualities of the car. At the same time compression is reduced and the power of the engine is materially impaired and water is allowed to collect in the crankcase, mixing with the oil and tending to destroy its lubricating value.

CLAIMS.

To meet these conditions there have been placed upon the market within the past couple of years a number of patented rings of various types, each one claimed to solve the entire problem at one fell swoop. Some of these special rings are good and others are certainly no better than the ordinary split variety. Secondly the best of them must be properly fitted to give satisfactory results. Therefore, the car owner who buys patent rings, puts them in and considers the job done, may have an unpleasant surprise coming to him. Unless the owner is an expert mechanic, I would advise him to have his new rings fitted by the service station. In the case of Ford owners, it is now possible to get aluminum pistons with patent rings already in place.

In fitting new pistons, it is necessary to have them lapped in, so as to obtain a perfect fit. Lapping in is carried out with a fine abrasive, jeweler's rouge is good, and this material is mixed with oil or kerosene and is rubbed evenly over the surface of the piston. This latter is then inserted in the cylinder and worked around until it moves with perfect freedom, after which both parts are thoroughly cleaned.

There are concerns in every city and most towns today, specializing in the fitting of pistons and in reboring cylinders. When it is necessary to have a cylinder rebored and new pistons fitted, it is a mistake to have just the one done. The entire cylinder block should be bored and have new pistons. It is vitally important to keep the pistons in good shape, if the operation of the engine is to be kept up to the mark.

Nothing so very unfamiliar about anything here.

It's a Packard twin-six—nothing unfamiliar about that, under one of Yosemite's big trees—nothing unfamiliar about the tree, either, and Louie Nickrent is seated at the wheel of the Packard—which is nothing remarkable. This, however, happens to be the Packard press car which journeyed to Camp Curry and back without taking a drink of water, which is something decidedly remarkable for any car.

RIPLE CAPACITY VACUUM TANK BEST IN MOUNTAINS.

MOTORISTS who do considerable mountain driving frequently encounter trouble with gasoline supply that they attribute to carburetion. This is not the correct source of the difficulty and the best plan to follow … with carburetor adjustment is to let the instrument … and investigate the vacuum … In pulling on the hard grades, … happen that the gasoline is … out of the vacuum tank faster … it is drawn in. This results … motor cutting out, but after … of a minute or two it will … regularly and there is an … of power. That is be… the gas supply has been re-

To offset difficulties such as this, the new Cole aero eight models are equipped with a triple capacity vacuum tank. The increase in the size of the tanks to far beyond the average was the result of the experience of a Cole eight in the San Bernardino hill climb of last year. A few seconds interruption of the gas supply resulted in the Cole finishing second instead of first. The attention of the factory was called to this point by James L. Irving, the Cole distributor, and the increase in the size of the tanks of the aero eight model is regularly equipped with has followed. The small vacuum tanks run dry on long grades because the suction of the system must combat the natural forces of gravity.

ECONOMY RUN A BIG SUCCESS.

hands around a steering wheel, the Grant finished the run in great style, but, due to tire trouble, arrived at the Fresno control several hours after the deadline.

Ralph Hamlin, winner of last year's run, placed third in the top-notch class with his Franklin closed car. Hamlin's ton miles per gallon were cut down by the light weight of his mount, which checked in at 3560 pounds, nearly 1000 pounds less than anyone in his class. The Franklin used less gas than its direct competitors, burning up 18.12 gallons for an average of twenty-one miles per gallon, a remarkable figure.

Al G. Faulkner and the Marmon distributing force participated in a wild outburst of approval over the showing of their car in class 3. The Marmon is really a limousine and was forced to buck heavy winds in the lower part of the San Joaquin Valley in addition to carting its 5090 pounds along. The Marmon averaged 15.1 miles to the gallon and made the 382-mile jaunt on one quart of oil and no water.

One Robert Weaver with his portly self stowed away in a Jordan six brougham completed the entry list in the heavy-car class. Although playing in hard luck part of the time Weaver went through only five-eighths of a gallon of water and registered some of the fastest running time clocked on the pilgrimage.

The little Oakland, in the light-car class, twisted over the course by F. I. Willey, finished behind the Saxon by the mere width of an eyebrow. In fact the Oakland left the field at the Fresno control with 50.5 ton miles per gallon, but dropped two-tenths of a point behind on the second day's chase. The Oakland traversed 28.2 miles for each gallon of fuel burned.

Driven by F. J. Ralston the Monroe darted into third place with 39.27 ton miles and 23.8 cross-country miles registered on its card by the officials. A. F. Graham of Fresno became so excited over the performance of the Monroe on the first day's run that he purchased the dusty little buggy soon after it drifted into the Raisin City, taking delivery on the return trip. The Monroe people state that their entry had just been unloaded from the baggage car and made the run without getting even a taste of that mysterious treatment technically known as "breaking in."

The stocky little Dort came under the tape fourth among the light cars with a total fuel consumption of 15.3 gallons, hardly enough liquid to duck a preacher's bankroll in. Due to their light weight, 2440 pounds apiece, the brace of Chevrolet 4-90's entered brought up at the end of the batting list in this division, although their gas consumption must have sent John D. into a pessimistic frame of mind regarding his future welfare if the Chevrolet continues in its present popularity. At Fresno the "Chevros" ticked in after using exactly eight gallons of gas apiece and making 40.1 ton miles to the gallon. At the final control the American cars with the French name varied infinitesimally in their statistics, one car using 13.6 gallons and the other 13.06, for the average miles per gallon of 28 and 29.2, respectively.

Tagged by the weighing squad at 4060 pounds the Lexington slipped into second place in class 2 at 18.8 miles to the gallon or 38.29 ton miles. C. C. Shafer, at the helm of this creation, passed through several exciting moments both in entering and leaving the valley, but succeeded in proving that the Lexington is a regular go-buggy.

Drinking up but one pint of oil the Stearns-Knight and Lynn C. Buxton accompanied each other over Inspiration Point to the last control in third place for class 2. (The Stearns-Knight, not Buxton, consumed the oil, of course.) The sleeve-valve Knight motor negotiated the steepest grades like a sparrow, and was declared by the statisticians to have made 36.97 ton miles or 15.8 straight miles per gallon.

George Sundberg, the one-armed pilot of the Case, made a unique run proving that he is the equal of any two-fisted hombre in the State when it comes to handling an automobile. Sundberg stayed right with the pack all the way for a slate of 34.21 ton miles and a total fuel consumption of 23.5 gallons. Sundberg's right arm is missing. To change gears he leans over on the steering wheel and reaches across to the center control. The Moon and C. W. Reilly completed the list in class 2 with the small gas consumption of 22.5 gallons. The light heft of this joy wagon cut down its ton miles to 32.08, although it ground out 16.9 miles to the gallon.

Handled by such calcium absorbers as Louis Nickrent, Harris Hanshue and Frederic Pabst the press fleet created almost as much commotion as the run itself. Louis Nickrent, plain "Nick" for short, paddled the Packard twin six scribe chariot over the entire round trip without consuming a drop of water and reached the circle in his motometer but once during the 850-mile trip which this party negotiated. Pabst and a party of inveterate adjective splitters in a Cadillac eight seem to have broken all existing records from Yosemite to Los Angeles on the return journey, slamming through the entire way without a stopover. On the incoming trip this Cadillac was not forced to shift from intermediate to low and did not use a spoonful of H2O. The snappily-designed new anniversary model Apperson completed the fleet used by the pencil pushers and was handled by Harris Hanshue with his old-time veteran ability. The press cars themselves seemed to have signed the pledge as far as wet goods were concerned, but their occupants, traveling with unsealed radiators, made a very poor economy average with respect to various cooling mediums offered by enterprising merchants along the way.

The first car to pop into the Yosemite Saturday afternoon was the Automobile Club of Southern California's pilot car driven by Secretary Standish Mitchell of that organization. Later in the evening the Auto Club's baggage truck snorted into Camp Curry and a wild mob scene was staged with everyone grabbing for his duffle.

The press boys led a riotous life, circulating between the telegraph office and the dining-room. The presiding genius at the tick emporium was about as anxious to feed the clamoring public with the results of the run as the Kaiser is to evacuate Berlin. Norman Ringer, auto dealer, efficiency expert, speed king, telegrapher and all-around good sport, was impressed into service at the key on Sunday when it became known that the official genius of the office had departed for the next county to go to meetin'.

Charles Brannaman, William Matthies, George Thompson, Fred Ross, O. R. Fuller and several other thoughtless old reprobates were nearly railroaded out of camp when it was discovered that they had been climbing over the rail of the dining-room veranda without having their meal tickets punched so that they could wander innocently inside for another whack at the steak and potatoes.

MOTORISTS TAKE WELL TO AUTO CLUB STICKERS.

ALTHOUGH the Automobile Club of Southern California's windshield stickers inviting service men to ride have been out for distribution but one week nearly every fifth machine that one passes on the road carries one of the natty little blue and white posters. On the recent economy run to Yosemite hundreds of cars, both in cities and out-of-the-way places, were spotted carrying the labels.

Maj.-Gen. F. S. Strong at Camp Kearny, Lieut.-Col. W. N. Hensley, Jr., commanding the army balloon school at Arcadia, and J. L. Hall of the Naval Reserve Training Station, at San Pedro, have written Secretary S. L. Mitchell of the Auto Club expressing their warmest approval of the scheme and stating that the service men are greatly pleased with this patriotic campaign for their comfort and entertainment.

Commendation.

MOTORISTS ENTHUSE OVER MULTIPLE EXHAUST PLAN

"DRIVERS of the Lexington are enthusiastic over its powerful and economical performance, which is accounted for by the Moore multiple exhaust system, one of the many ingenious devices which are a part of this car," said P. W. Wisdom of Wisdom & Co., Lexington distributor, who further stated that its efficiency is due to the fact that each puff of dead gas has a clear track.

"It is well known to engineers that the exhaust period of the various cylinders overlap one another," says Mr. Wisdom. "When the gases resulting from a cylinder just exploding rush out into the exhaust manifold they find the gases of another cylinder ahead of them, and consequently do not entirely escape. Remnants of burnt gas remain in the cylinder, fouling the incoming charge and materially cutting down the horse power of the motor.

"In the Lexington motor this condition has not only been overcome, but the exhaust gases from the cylinders have been subjected to a forced draft, through this special device. In this device the discharge of alternate cylinders is led into separate passages, so that there is no overlap. The cylinder is entirely emptied and the incoming gas is fresh and clean. The motor delivers more power through the mufflers with cutouts closed than is obtained when the manifold is removed and the engine allowed to exhaust directly into the air."

STANLEY
STEAM 22nd year CAR

The Dream Car You Have Wished for Has Arrived

The new Stanley Steam Car (your dream car) is here. A superbly beautiful vehicle delivering the performance you have dreamed of—to be able to creep over the road at a snail's pace or glide along at your own gait. Up hill, over dale, with an absolute mastery of the road—all by the touch of one magic lever. A car with no such bothersome devices as a carburetor, gear-shift, clutch or self-starter. And, mind you, no substitute devices have been added because these things are not, cannot conceivably be, a part of the Stanley. Kerosene is its fuel.

Such a car you want to know about, you want to drive. We have received our first shipment, they are on our floor. You can see your dream car in a beautiful seven-passenger touring car and a four-passenger sport model. We invite your inspection.

BECAUSE the Highland Scot, wading through the wet weather of the mountains, found Kilts kept drier.

In the beginning the Kilt was the garment of the tropics, the trouser of the arctics, for men and women alike.

Even before the Roman soldier, himself a Kiltie, occupied the British Isles, Lowland and Highland folk wore Kilts.

When modern life turned the Lowlands to trousers, the wet mountain heather caused the Highlands to cling to Kilts.

But his wet weather, had GOODRICH been founded, wouldn't have worried the Highlander.

Goodrich would have met his needs with Hipress boots and waterproof garments, just as Goodrich met the critical need of the automobile for the right rubber tire.

Twenty-two years, Goodrich has shaped the destiny of automobile tires, bringing them from crude, clumsy affairs, to the graceful, masterful GOODRICH SERVICE VALUE TIRES.

And all Goodrich inventions and improvements were directed toward one end, SERVICE VALUE to the user.

For Goodrich recognizes but one tire value; what a tire is worth to the motorist on his car and on the road, in comfort, economy, freedom from trouble, and long mileage.

Goodrich manufacture puts SERVICE VALUE in Goodrich Tires, both SILVERTOWN CORDS, and BLACK SAFETY TREADS, Goodrich Test Car Fleets prove it is there by millions of miles of road testing.

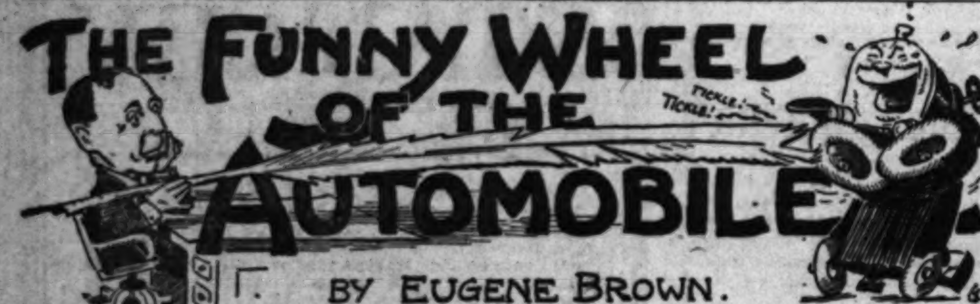
Some Hints That Will Help You Do Most of the Ordinary Work on Your Automobil



Tickle! Tickle!

THE FUNNY WHEEL OF THE AUTOMOBILE

BY EUGENE BROWN.

"VENICE or Vernon?" asked I of the artless adventurer as he climbed aboard the road scow Elizabeth and waved farewell to his friends.

"Both," said he briefly. "As fast as they chase us out of one we'll go to the other."

"But we have to go to one of them first," explained I.

"Sure," returned the tourist, "and for the love of Evangeline go to the nearest. I'm that dry I squeak when I walk."

And so we join the procession.

Really it takes more than a couple of V's to do Venice and Vernon, although a piker might bring back a little change. But since Los Angeles went 14 per cent. the wild men have joined the Venice and Vernon caravans, which go forth most every afternoon and return when the cows come home—or thereabouts. They take their spending money with them and they wear it down to the bone.

Although Venice and Vernon have been on the spot for ages a lot of painstaking soshes are learning more about them than they ever knew before. Until the present drouth they had been unable to tear themselves away from the brass rails of Spring street. They were the real railbirds, in fact, and a 5 o'clock roll call found every hoof in position. Of a Saturday night or a Sunday they might wander as far away as Vernon or Venice. The call of a couple of battlers or the lure of an ocean breeze might win them away for a few hours, but mostly they stuck to Spring street or within whistling distance of Gasoline Row.

But now the town begins to pall on them toward sundown and there are a lot of buzz wagons that can find their way out Santa Fe avenue or Washington boulevard by instinct. Just turn them out of the barn with their noses to the southeast or the southwest, as the case may be, and in a very few moments the engine is gasping for refreshment in front of some popular resort at Vernon or Venice.

Venice is wet inside and out and every known species of moisture from the Pacific Ocean to an absinthe frappe may be obtained if one seeks diligently enough. It is all dressed up as the world's playground, but there are a lot of careless scouts who hunt up its thirst-quenching possibilities and not much else. Even the beauty show on the sands of the silvery sea cannot command their unrestrained attention. From time to time efforts have been made to put the muzzle on Venice. The highball and the fox trot have prompted numbers of moral crusades, but thus far the open-door policy has been maintained in the face of all adverse agitation. The waves beat high upon the Vernon coast, but they are not waves of reform.

The resemblance between Venice and Vernon can be seen with the aid of a strong glass—in fact, the strong glass is the only tie of similarity. They have a sort of a rye and Bourbon acquaintance, but otherwise hardly speak to one another. So far as the feverish sports are concerned Vernon is a two-man town, while Venice is a little metropolis. The free masonry of the cocktail is the only link. While Vernon is strong for the suds, Venice takes kindly to the grape. Suds suggest a bath, which Vernon needs and of which Venice has a-plenty.

So you can see what the adventurer and I were up against. Anyhow, he made me believe we were in a hurry and he wanted to bet me that Elizabeth couldn't crawl along at twenty-nine miles an hour under her own power.

I told him I had been wearing a ball and chain for winning just that sort of a bet and that if he really wanted to bring up anywhere he had better persuade Elizabeth to travel on her own time. If we tried to act up it might be another case of back to the rockpile.

When we slowed up for a crossing and I saw a stalwart young man in khaki at the curb, I remembered the new resolution about the road entertainment of our heroes—to take 'em along as far as you go—and so I gave what I called a salute and asked the stranger if he wished to ride on in my car.

"Why, yes;" he exclaimed. "Where is it?"

Behind me the artless adventurer chuckled as if in merriment.

"This is it," returned I, with some dignity, pointing to the hood which partially shielded Elizabeth's complexion.

The stranger opened his coat and fished out a pair of glasses, which he proceeded to balance on the bridge of his nose. Then he came out in the road and carefully went over Elizabeth from stem to stern. At the conclusion of his inspection he gravely exclaimed: "Bless my soul, I believe you're right. I thought at first it was a grasshopper."

"There was a man who thought it was a snow plow once and he lost $50," retorted I, testily.

"He wasn't a good guesser," returned the pedestrian calmly. "She might suggest vibration, but not volume. "Do you really think you could take me to the next corner without breaking down?"

"I just broke out and I don't want to break down now," replied I, determined to be polite to my guest. "By the way, what company do you belong to?"

"Good company, I trust," replied the stranger, "and likely to be called a backslider should anyone see me at this moment."

"What branch of the service, I mean?" persisted I, glancing in vain for the insignia upon his collar.

"The olive branch, but not at your service," replied the stranger. "At least I am buying olives in the service of the pickle foundry at Watts."

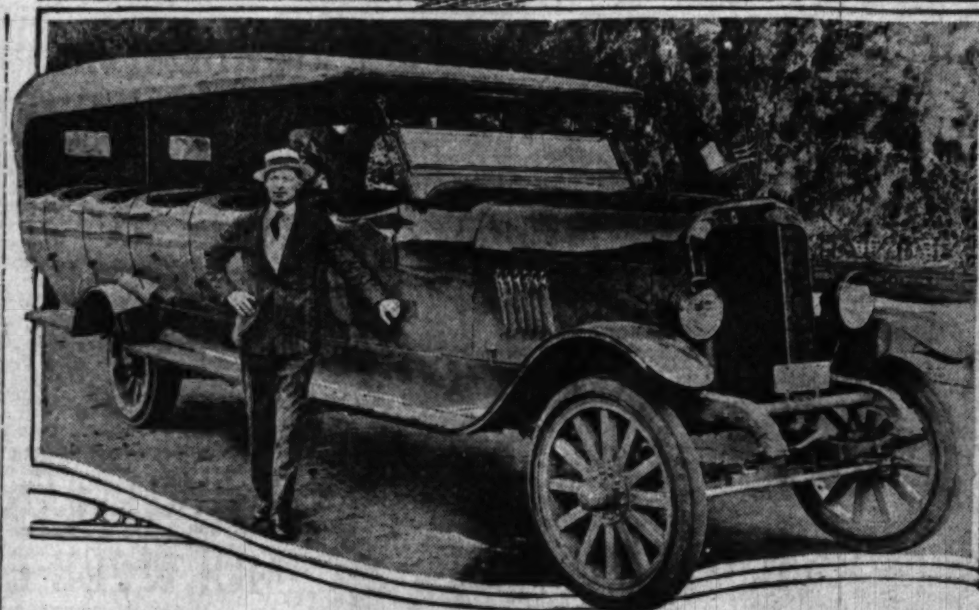
"So that's the kind of a rabbit you are?" exclaimed I, in anger. "You wear the honorable khaki of your country while putting up mixed pickles. You devote the olive drab of national service for advertising purposes! You can just get out and walk.

"I was about to make a roar because you have taken me nearly ten feet beyond my journey's end," retorted the stranger as he dropped into the road. "I wouldn't have ridden a step in your old beetle if you hadn't begged me anyhow; and let me tell you something: I was wearing this suit before the United States Army was heard from. It's a pity, but the government hasn't any monopoly on khaki and I can wear it in scaling fish as well as if I were scaling the trenches. But you needn't worry, I am going across in the next sixty days and I don't think I'll speak to you then.

MACHINE DOES FAST TIME FOR GENERALS.

O. R. Fuller of the White Auto Company has been apprised of a strenuous trip made by a Stephens Salient Six touring car carrying a message from Gen. Morrison of Camp Fremont to Gen. Strong of Camp Kearny. An army captain was the message bearer while a member of the San Jose press accompanied the car and checked its performance throughout the run of 1120 miles.

The first leg of the run by the way of the valley route was accomplished in eighteen hours with one hour taken out for rest. The return was over the Coast route and the time was twenty-one hours and seventeen minutes. The Stephens dealer of San Jose who was in charge of the affair, states that there were twelve bad detours that had to be covered as well as several difficult mountain grades. Distillate was used on the entire journey, while although the heat conditions were extreme, only three quarts of water were consumed. The car was stock and the weight of equipment, passenger and baggage, aggregated about 1200 pounds. There were no adjustments of any kind it was stated.



How is this for a classy looking sightseeing bus?

This is a big locally designed and built motor bus owned by the Standard Auto tours and used for transporting motion-picture companies to and from location. The designer and owner, Mr. Henderson, shown at the left, had the chassis built by the Kimball company and has a big Stutz motor in it with a four-speed transmission and worm drive. It carries twenty-eight passengers and has a tan craftsman top and tan upholstery. It is finished in azure blue with cream wheels.

TRAILERS BIG SUCCESS SERVING CHAIN OF STORES.

IN SPEAKING of the amounts of money expended for haulage by firms in this city, A. L. Jones, manager of the Edward R. Bacon Company, Pacific Coast distributors of Troy Trailers, remarked, "As a rule where economy is first introduced, efficiency suffers; but the real exception to this rule is in the delivery department.

"As an example, let me cite what was accomplished by a nationally known chain store corporation. This firm has its central department in New York City. It kept two trucks in service for the express purpose of supplying its outlying stores within a radius of approximately twenty miles from the base. Each truck could carry enough to serve five stores in a day, but each had a split day. Each truck, after serving its five stores, returned to the central depot and was idle the balance of the day, owing to the fact that not time enough remained to send it back with a second load. The purchase of a Troy Trailer made it possible for one truck to serve ten stores, instead of five, kept it busy the entire day, and saved the corporation the operating expense of the extra truck.

"The head of the delivery department of that corporation, studied a chart published by the Troy Wagon Works Company of Troy, O., which my company represents," continued Mr. Jones. "This chart gave him the relation of mileage to daily operating cost and thus saved his firm $100 a week.

"We have some of these charts and I am so firm in my belief, that most heads of delivery departments could effect a similar or even greater saving for their firms that I am willing to supply a copy gratis to all who apply."

A Good Idea.

BRAKE INSPECTION MAY BE DEMANDED BY SOLONS.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Prominent automobile, police and insurance men throughout the United States are backing a national movement for the inspection of automobile brakes. The agitation for such a movement has grown out of success in bringing about the proper suppression of glaring headlights, which, in the opinion of those high in the automobile world, is the lesser evil of the two.

The matter is receiving nationwide attention and it is not impossible that legislation may be instituted before this session of Congress closes, looking toward regular inspection of brakes.

The object of this movement is to prevent the ever increasing number of fatalities, which are daily occurences, especially in the larger cities, due to imperfectly adjusted and defective brakes. T. D. Pratt, executive secretary of the Motor Truck Club of America, in a letter to H. F. Blanchard, of the Thermoid Rubber Company, says, "Our experience has shown us that 60 per cent. or more, of the automobile accidents are caused by brakes or steering gears being in poor condition, and the large proportion of this percentage is due to poor brakes."

Although no compulsory legislation has been passed to date compelling such an inspection, it has had the indorsement of such officials as Arthur Woods, former police commissioner of New York City, and Francis M. Rugo, secretary of State, New York. The popularity of the movement, those who are interested in it say, must rest upon the always voluntary support of automobile owners.

The plan of the brake inspection movement is to prevail on every motorist and truck owner to have his brakes inspected by his dealer at the opening of the season and at frequent intervals thereafter. It is called to his attention that the brake-rods can usually be turned up two or three times before new brake lining is needed. A simple adjustment of the equalizers will frequently make the brakes safe instead of dangerous.

As the movement grows, some official seal will be devised which will be placed on the car showing the date of last inspection. The one proposed is a small seal disc bearing the words, "Brakes inspected, 1918."

Hustling.

TRIP EAST RESULTS IN IMMEDIATE DELIVERIES.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT that will please those interested in the sixteen-valve Stutz was made this week by the Walter M. Brown Company, when it was stated that immediate deliveries can now be made on all models of this popular car.

This announcement created much comment owing to the difficulties dealers are experiencing in getting cars from the factories at the present time, due to the uncertain transportation facilities. Mr. Brown went back to the factory personally and made arrangements for getting the shipments through.

"So far as we know the Stutz car is the only one which has not increased its price during the war period," said Mr. Brown, "and in order to accomplish this pleasing feature the car has neither been slighted or cheapened in any particular.

"The sixteen-valve motor construction has proven such a popular one that we have been unable to get cars fast enough, and when shipments came they were snapped up quickly by those who had been waiting for them, but this last shipment may enable me to get caught up and keep some cars for display purposes."

Helpful Hints.

WATCH YOUR BATTERY; YOU WILL BE REPAID.

"AUTOMOBILE dealers give many valuable pointers on the care and the operation of nearly every part of a car, which will tend to further economy," said C. F. Moss of the Hobbs Storage Battery Company, yesterday. "Such warnings as, 'Don't engage clutch sharply, apply brake harshly, nor round corners at a high rate of speed,' etc., with only an occasional reference made to the battery.

"The average owner of a car, when asked what care he gives his battery, will reply, 'None, I leave it strictly alone, as I don't understand batteries.' Unfortunately this is the attitude of most owners toward their batteries, and it is likely to be a costly one, as an expensive battery may easily be ruined unless it receives proper care.

"The most important detail of care is to test the battery at least every other week, and it is still better to test it weekly. A hydrometer should be used in making this test. Draw some of the electrolyte from each of the cells in turn. Make sure that the hydrometer is floating freely. A reading of 1.150 to 1.175 shows battery discharged; 1.275 to 1.300 shows charge.

A reading of about 1.300 simply calls for addition of more distilled water, as plates should at all times be covered to a depth of one-fourth inch or more. Any reading under 1.215 indicates something wrong, either excessive use of starter or lights, or some defect of the charging system. It should be inspected by an expert. If the test shows as low as 1.175 it should immediately be taken to a charging station."

SEQUOIA PARK HIGHWAY OPEN.

The highway leading to the Sequoia National Park, which has been closed against traffic between Lemon Cove and Three Rivers, California, and the park on account of paving the road was thrown open to travel on the morning of June 20. The park roads are in excellent condition, and every arrangement has been made looking to the proper care and welfare of the traveling public.

GUMMED PISTONS CAUSE OF TROUBLE.

When the crankshaft on being turned over shows a steady, but unusual resistance, it very probably means that there is a deposit of gummy substance under the piston rings and this should be removed. An ounce or two of kerosene injected into the cylinders through the spark plug opening, after which the engine is run with the ignition wire to the particular cylinder under treatment disconnected, will loosen the gum and permit its ejection.

LISTEN, KIDS! FIRST MOTOR CIRCUS IS COMING SOON.

COMPLETELY motorized, from the Maxwell car of the advance press agent, Miss Estelle H. Kahn, to the last of the ninety big trucks and trailers that will transport the animals and paraphernalia of the "big top," the first motor circus California has ever seen will soon leave San Diego for a summer trip up the Pacific Coast. Such trifles as freight embargoes, advances of 25 per cent. in freight rates and other difficulties connected with shipment by railroad these days will bother the circus assembled by Orr Bros. not at all. The 200 people and 600 animals will travel from fifty to sixty miles per day, completely independent of railroad schedules as were the circuses of days long gone by, when jolting horse-drawn wagons transported the circus from town to town.

While it would hardly do to refer to Miss Kahn as the only feminine circus press agent in captivity, it must be acknowledged that her calling is decidedly unique, particularly the fact that she travels by motor car. Miss Kahn is not a novice as a press agent for a circus, having followed that line of work for several seasons, but until recently she was a novice as a motor car driver, never having handled a car at all. She selected a rebuilt Maxwell roadster, and, after a single morning's teaching, started out alone on her road work, in which she must keep two weeks ahead of the circus. It is upon Miss Kahn's judgment that the itinerary of the circus will be based, and hence she has to "make" far more towns in a day than does the circus.

"I expect to average from 150 to 200 miles per day," Miss Kahn last week told Warren Penn, Maxwell sales manager for Harold L. Arnold. "It is part of my job to visit five or six towns a day, size them up and report upon them to the management. Anyone who thinks it is an easy job has another guess coming.

"In all of my previous circus work I have traveled by train. I found the Maxwell so easy to learn to drive and so easy to handle, that I am sure that I am going to like the new way a great deal better."

They Know.

LITTLE TIRE TROUBLE ON CAMP CURRY RUN.

"THE small amount of tire trouble that was experienced by the entrants on the economy run to Camp Curry, in the Yosemite, offers an object lesson of how this unpleasant feature connected with touring may be avoided if only proper care is used in selecting tires and in caring for them afterward," declared Roy R. Meads, president and general manager for the Pacific Rubber Company, distributor of horseshoe tires. Meads was chief observer of the event.

"It was quite generally commented upon, I believe, that there was little delay on the run into the valley on account of tire trouble. The dealers, experienced in such matters, had their service departments attend to this important detail. The tires used were in good condition and they were given the proper amount of air pressure to withstand the heat of the San Joaquin. That bugaboo about underinflation and heat expansion was apparently happily avoided. The dealers, you see, understand those practical details. But not so many a motorist.

"Returning from the Yosemite, we passed dozens of cars that were tied up along the road and in the heat they were wrestling with tire difficulty and doing no end of cussing. Many tires unquestionably were too weak to stand the hot work and were not given the proper pressure. Friction of the fabric caused excessive heat and the next thing was a blowout. Motorists must learn more about those things their cars roll on or else they may stand a chance of having them laid up indefinitely owing to tire shortage."

PRESIDENT AIMS AT PROFITEERING.

PROCLAMATION DOESN'T APPLY TO TRUCK DEALERS AND MAKERS.

President Wilson's proclamation requiring that manufacturers, dealers and jobbers of farm implements and equipment obtain licenses, will not apply to manufacturers, dealers and jobbers of motor trucks. Washington officials state that the word "trucks" in the proclamation is intended to mean only small trucks used on farms, and will not affect motor truck manufacturers, their territorial distributors, or subdealers, according to information received by W. O. Gates, manager of the Smith Form-a-Truck Sales Company, distributors for the Smith Form-a-Truck in Southern California and Arizona.

"It was the intention of the proclamation to eliminate profiteering in the handling of food supplies," explains Gates, "and to prevent injurious speculation and manipulation in the manufacture and sale of farm implements. The proclamation specifically includes tractors, trucks and trailers, but is not intended to require that distributors and dealers in light commercial motor vehicles obtain a license to do business under the food conservation plan."

home. The Bees will be lucky to break on the big end of the series with the Seals. McCredie then comes here for a hook up with the Angels. Here is more trouble in store for him. Unless reports are erroneous, Mac will be minus the service of Chapelle and Siglin with a possibility of losing Farmer to Cleveland. The tall manager, however, has a knack of filling up gaps in his line-up in a satisfactory manner. He should encounter some difficulty, nevertheless, in finding a man to fill Chapelle's shoes.

San Francisco has taken a brace recently and is beginning to play the ball she is capable of playing. Downs is still a little weak in the pitching line, but is making strenuous efforts to bolster his staff. With another good heaver, the Seals could be almost banked on to move up in the race. A first-class twirler will in all probability be secured from the Southern League.

As for Sacramento, it is difficult to account for the team's poor showing lately. Rodgers has a fine chucking staff and in Willie, Wolter and Griggs, three of the best swatters on the Coast. Much was expected of Wolter, but so far he has fallen below expectations. Griggs has not been swiping the pill as regularly as he did in the early part of the season. However, should the foregoing trio get their eyes on the ball, it wouldn't take long for Rodgers to get back into the going. The season is just only one-third over. Sacramento therefore has plenty of time to get into winning form. A winning streak would soon enable Rodgers to get close to the front again.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Barney Oldfield: I am having considerable trouble with my ignition and lights. My battery appears to be in good condition yet I sometimes lack enough current to get a good spark in starting while my lights frequently get very low. What would you suggest? H. N., Buffalo.

You should have your battery tested with a hydrometer. If the test shows the battery to be in good shape then look for corrosions around the terminals. Clean all the green and white substance off thoroughly. Spread a little cup grease over the parts to prevent further corrosion. If this fails to stop your trouble it will be necessary to go over your wiring system and especially your distributor.

Barney Oldfield: My steering knuckle is loose and works up and down. Split washers fall out. Is it safe to drive my car in this condition? C. G., Syracuse.

No, indeed, it is not safe. As a matter of fact, nothing could be more dangerous than driving with a steering knuckle that is loose. If it should snap you are helpless. By all means, have it given attention at once. Too many lives have been lost by steering knuckles giving way.

RUNS DOWN WILD CAT WITH AUTO.

With all sorts of "war conservation" in vogue these days Joe Thompson, a well-known farmer near Murrietta, Cal., enters the list with a new way to save ammunition.

While driving his Chevrolet touring car near one of his fields the other day, Mr. Thompson saw a big wild cat sneaking along. The ground was pretty rough, but the farmer had been a Chevrolet manipulator since early in 1916; therefore, he gave Mr. Cat a real chase, finally running it down and taking all of its nine lives at once. Now the Thompson home is embellished with a beautiful skin from one of the largest cats ever killed in the Murrietta district.

Thomas H. Kirsop, formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa., is now located in Los Angeles. Mr. Kirsop seems well pleased with his new home and the fact that he has already invested in a "flivver" shows that he means to enjoy himself.

San Francisco has recently finished a checker tournament, a report of which will be found elsewhere in this column. H. M. Angel carried off the honors.

The boys at the clubrooms are talking of starting another tournament soon to see if Hopewell can repeat. Fred is willing, so some one better start the "ball a rolling."

SAN FRANCISCO TOURNAMENT.

R. A. Gurley sends the following report of the San Francisco tournament:

"Since brevity's the soul of wit,
And tenderness the limbs and outward flourishes—
I will be brief."

Los Angeles has had its checker tourney recently, and San Francisco has not been backward in following the example of the city that "does things," checkeredly speaking. The Los A—— contest appears to have been filled with fears and gasps, such as unknights even valorous men bedecked with plumages won on the fields of battle royal. The result in the southern city was one of exquisite doubt until the last man was shoved, fraught with coups worthy of the adept who sprung them.

That in the northern clime appears to have been never in doubt, as it was protected by a seraphic angel, who twisted his long legs into a knot, smiled an entrancing, elongated smile, rather winning in its way, as it betokened victory from the outstart and the result showed that all was well based. The machinery of intricate checkerdom was set in motion by the said "seraph" and his sturdy opponent, the redoubtable Wise, who had carried his banner to many victories on former occasions. They touched the button and the nags pranced over the field. The outstart was quite in favor of the Angel steed, yet Wise's nag made a wonderful sprint, but was nosed out when the wire was reached, and the first heat was over, and, as the final race progressed, 'twas demonstrated that this first heat settled the whole contest. Wise ran his first quarter in bad form and hence could only trail on the flanks of the spirited horse of the long-legged expert, who plied the whip and spurs to the end admirably. Had it not been for a fateful and fatal beginning, fraught with a desire to "start things going," Wise might have been wearing the elegant medal of honor which must now be attached to Angel's regalia, it having been won with graceful ease and with the remarkable score of not a single game lost—just 100 per cent. pure gold, with no alloy.

Checker contests are governed by fixed laws and set rules and all were well preserved throughout the spirited race. Wise drew the second, third and fourth games with his doughty opponent, who took matters ever in graceful style, with no knit brow or fear predominating his unruffled countenance. To emerge from a forty days' and nights' contest and not have a scar, even, nor the slightest blemish, appears to us as something well worthy of placing in the checker annals of both the institute, where the contest was held, and in the archives of checkerdom generally, as we cannot recall where any championship combat has ever been played between the skilled, but what one little notch was cut on the other fellow's stick. We say 'tis worthy of the chronicler's attention and no doubt it will live as a diadem in the gallery of checker fame—we hope so. The contest was a mixture of quadruplicate play and mystery, not clear to all the contestants, yet eminently fair to each. It consisted of four games with each, but no record unless at least the four games were finished. Therefore a contestant quitting before the finish of the four games, though the remaining party was ready to continue play, being, or having, one or two games to the good, got zero for his experiment, and that's where the above "mixture" comes in. Not exactly right, as was exemplified in the case of Norman vs. Gurley, the latter being compelled to quit the tourney on account of ill health and absence from the city. The former had won one game in two played, but no credit therefor—not exactly right, we think. We are of the opinion that Wise proved unwise in tackling the "seven-footer" at so early a stage of the contest.

It is quite possible that he will call upon Angel to defend his title to the championship honors of Mechanics' Institute, which pronouncedly carries with it the championship of the San Francisco region, but not the State, as we shall see later on.

The emblem presented is a work of exquisite art, beautiful and costly, as the Institute never does things in a slip-shod fashion.

Wise, also, gets a neat button for second honors and that is as far as the emblems went. Messrs. Goldstone, Baird and Lieut. Newby came prancing home in the race, rather out of wind, somewhat dilapidated and scars and blemishes pasted on their whole anatomies, sad to gaze upon. A dozen or so quit at the quarter stretch and haven't been seen or heard of since the memorable start. Several good players did not enter—notably P. Ketchum, Harry Braig, John Lorriston, Knowlton and others, a regretful feature, especially the former three mentioned.

Well, as stated, Los Angeles has its champion and now 'Frisco flaunts its banner to the breeze and asks who dares to attempt to pull it down? What about a Pacific Coast bout, taking in Portland, the energetic city or cities on the Puget Sound shores, and any other aspirant, who dare compete for supremacy with a medal of honor, worthy of the Golden State and the Pacific West and Northwest? A real, princely medal an honor to wear.

Somebody has a right to claim this. Verbal harangue and verbose utterances do not settle championship honors, so why not The Times start the ball in motion, and the billows created will undulate for a thousand miles up and down the Coast. Make it a free for all, with a proper entry fee, the players to have all expenses paid, even to the generous wine and blended "weed!" Plenty of lucre to support a ten days' session and we'll all drink the health of the winner, standing. While up we'll sing such sweet, such melting strains that it will leave naught but thrilling memory to the champion's ear. What say the disciples of old Damch?

R. A. GURLEY,
Mechanics' Institute, San Francisco, Cal.

PREP SPORT SURVIVES WELL DESPITE WAR.

End-of-Season Review is Satisfying to the Schools; Prospects for Next Year Good.

THE prep sport season went under the wire Friday with the close of the school year. During the two semesters of the city and county curriculum every branch of interscholastic athletics enjoyed a most successful season despite war time conditions and the prospects for next year are roseate as well. With the majority of college athletes at the front or training for war service the prep performers have come to the rescue with a standard of excellence and sportsmanship that draws the same crowds that used to go mad over intercollegiate activities.

Perhaps the most notable feature of the scholastic year that comes to one in review is the welding together of the best city and county institutions into football, basketball and baseball leagues. This forward move has done much to quicken competition, promote friendship and excite interest throughout a wider circle. The inclusion of Pasadena, Whittier and Long Beach in the City League was one of the happiest ideas that ever occurred to the athletic authorities.

Next year's football season should be a top-notcher. Many schools have had spring practice for the past month, while several institutions are shipping their entire list of candidates to farms for the entire summer, to condition them.

Here is a resume of the city and county title winners for the past school year:

FOOTBALL.

Sid Foster and his roughshod Manual Artisans galloped over everything in sight in this end of the State. After accounting for their city rivals the Toilers retired Pomona and Fullerton by decisive scores and then piled south to vanquish "Brick" Mueller and the San Diego eleven by an overwhelming total.

TRACK.

Charley Paddock and a group of pantied youths hailing from Pasadena High School cleaned up the entire State at this form of sport. Although not in the best of health throughout the season Paddock was good for a first in the 100 and 220, at both the Southern California and State meets. With only a brace of experts on hand the Crown City tracksters developed into a formidable bunch early in the season although in the meet with Poly the final result hinged on the relay alone.

BASEBALL.

Although the Long Beach High School baseball nine suffered extinction in the big squeeze for the southern title the Seasiders managed to account for all of the city and county aggregations in short order, finishing their league with a percentage of 1000. Pitcher Jim Buckley of the beach outfit was easily the sensation of the season. Many predicted, however, that he would meet his Nemesis in the league title game with Manual Arts. Prof. Buckley did not.

BASKETBALL.

One of the most remarkable showings ever chalked up by a basketball quintette was that made by Hollywood during the casaba season. Coach Evans and the Foothill quintette were right; that was all there was about it. With a group of veterans on hand who had each been playing the game for four solid years, the Hollywood outfit resolved itself into a veritable advalanche, piling up so many points that an adding machine was necessary to figure the statistics. After walloping everything in sight down here Coach Evans and his specialists went north and drubbed the Turlock challengers for the California title.

WATER POLO.

Southern high school honors in the merman sport went to the Long Beach ducks without the least bit of a hitch, the Seasiders vanquishing their interscholastic opponents almost as decisively as Hollywood High School through the ranks at basketball. Quite a heated argument as to supremacy took place between the L.A.A.C. water dogs and the Long Beach outfit. However, the matter resulted only in a series of tart letters and windy newspaper statements, failing to evolve into a water polo battle as may had hoped.

TENNIS.

If the archives read correctly city league tennis honors in singles were awarded to Hollywood, while the doubles gonfalon was copped by Simmons and Bricker, the pompadour twins from Los Angeles High. The annual Dudley Cup competition at Santa Monica resulted in a victory for Manual Arts, Harvey Snodgrass of that institution copping the coveted trophy.

SWIMMING.

The annual Southern California splashfest brought an unqualified victory for the Redondo High Seadogs in competition against Pasadena, Poly and other crack aggregations. The Poly High Mechanics figured that they had "nibs" on the pennant, but the dope went awry.

CROSS-COUNTRY.

Although there were not many recognized cross-country contests, Pasadena High was adjudged to be the institution with the longest wind in our neck of the woods.

Something New.

STEAM-CAR MODELS ARE MAKING TREMENDOUS HIT.

THE new series Stanley steam cars have made their debut to Los Angeles and have taken the local motorists by storm. A shipment of three of the new creations, two four-passenger sport models and one seven-passenger touring car arrived here last week. Messrs. Scott and Hoadley, the local distributors, report an unusual interest in these new beauties by local enthusiasts.

The cars represent many new departures in body styles, having scarcely any resemblance to the previous Stanley models. They embody all the latest achievements in coach work and the result has been altogether lovely. According to the local agents, nothing on the road can even parallel their performance with the simple one lever control. The '18 models possess a perfected mechanism whose principles as applied to land vehicles were standardized 100 years ago. Away back in 1820 George Stephenson laid down the principle of a simple two-cylinder engine supplied with steam by a fire-tube boiler. This is the same engine, yet highly perfected, that furnishes the Stanley Steamer with its motive power. One feature that has baffled local motorists is that there are only thirty-seven moving parts in the entire car.

The two new models have a wheel base of 130 inches. The spring suspension and drive mechanism is a special feature that distributes the driving strain on all four springs instead of the customary two rear ones. It is said that this feature adds greatly to the riding qualities of the car. A smart V-shaped radiator is used which gives the car a rakish yet pleasing appearance.

An Essential.

SUMMER TOURING CALLS FOR REAL TOUGH TIRES.

NOW that the summer touring season is opening up, many prospective purchasers are looking for a good touring tire. One of the essential qualities in an automobile tire that the average purchaser does not take into consideration is the ability of that particular make of tire which he uses to withstand excessive speed while bearing a load.

Of course, most speed work is done with a racing car stripped for action on a speedway, but occasionally Mr. Average Owner, on a clear straightaway, tests out the speed qualities of his car. If his tires are too stiff and unflexible the speeding strain soon shows on his tires and later comes a blowout. This is caused by vibration set up by the uneven surface of the road, for even a boulevard seems like a corduroy road when traveled at a lively clip. If the tire is stiff and unyielding it will not cushion the road shocks sufficiently and both machine and tire suffer accordingly.

Many times in past years Braender tires have shown their ability to withstand terrific speed tests both in the hands of professional drivers, such as De Palma, Oldfield, Mulford and Anderson, as well as private owners. "This is due to the extra heavy cushion used by the manufacturers of Braender bulldog tires," says Bob Brunner, manager of the Braender Sales Company, No. 1248 S. Olive street.

TROY TRAILERS
Turn Wasted Power Into Profits

Every good motor truck has more power than needed to carry its capacity load. At a slight cost a Troy Trailer will turn this excess power into profits.

We can give you the names of firms that are saving as much as $100 a week by the use of a Troy Trailer.

Let our haulage experts demonstrate how a Troy Trailer will save money for you.

RALSTON One & Two-Ton Truck Attachment

Cash In on Your Used Cars

The big demand for Ralston attachments is due to one thing—the fact that the Ralston converts any car into a truck at a very low upkeep cost and then operates more economically and more efficiently than any other truck of the same capacity.

Dealers throughout Northern California who are handling the Ralston are cashing in on it. Used cars are readily turned into trucks and they can dispose of the trade-in cars at a profit.

There is still some Ralston territory open. Live dealers should investigate the Ralston at once.

Yesterday's Events in the World of Sports.

At Washington Park.

COMMUTERS TAKE ANOTHER.

Oaks Defeat Angels by Score of Seven to Three.

Fittery Twirls Well for Four Innings.

Fans Convinced Owl Should Play at Night.

BY EDWIN F. O'MALLEY.

Oakland, 7; Los Angeles, 3. Dear fans, don't gape in amazement. This news is not a myth, nor a story steeped in the haze of twilight; it is the plain, disheveled truth performed under the actinic rays of Old Sol before an astonished crowd at Washington Park yesterday afternoon. To some, success is a cradle-fellow; to others, it is thrust upon them. Success was not only thrust upon Oakland yesterday, but it was actually pushed on them f.o.b. In the light of early proceedings, Howard wanted none of yesterday's game. The Cavemen's play smacked very much fol-de-rol. Arlett and Prough ran to first base like a man carrying his own execution warrant.

In right field, where Harry Krause attempted to hold down that position and withstand the bleacher barrage of gibes, the spirit of Sleepy Hollow seemed to hold forth. When Red Killefer singled to right center in the third inning, Harry allowed him to stretch the hit into a double by pingponging the ball for a spell before shooting it to second. On top of all this, Clint Prough, the Beau Brummel swashbuckler of the P. C. League, who cragged it for Del Howard and the baseball excrescents that came here with him, dropped 'em indifferently over the rubber in the first three innings, allowing the Cherubs to amass three runs.

IN THE MEANTIME.

In the meantime Paul Fittery curved the visitors into a quartette of goose eggs in the first four innings. Then he suddenly grew misfittery, and, when the Commuters' curtain of fire had spent itself in the fifth spasm, six big earned runs stood on their tiptoes and thanked him profusely for his generosity. Killefer then gave Paul the avant, and handsome Peter Standridge dignified the knoll by his presence.

Now, dear reader, listen with ears not quite estranged. When big Clint Prough (he's purely a front runner) gets a lead of three runs in the fifth inning, no other chucking artist from the days of Rusie to those of Alexander has ever rolled along in front with more overwhelming confidence. Now what does this big heavesman do, but take a hitch in his cleverness, throw off his sparkling apathy and pitch an article of ball the likes of which has never been seen this side of the Tehachepi. The Angels melted before his dexterity like breath in the wind. But let's to that fital fifth.

KRAUSE DOUBLES.

Arlett went out, Terry to Fournier. Krause doubled to right and took second of Christensen's infield hit. Mitze walked. Krause came home on a wild pitch, the others advancing. Prough (will wonders ever cease) singled infield, scoring Cristensen. Croll singled to right. (Oh, you Fittery, boy) scoring Mitze. Poor old Roxy Middleton, who had hardly been able to get a ball out of the infield all week, tripled over Red Killefer's head (ninth wonder of the world) scoring Prough and Croll. Standridge then took the voltage off poor Paul. Miller went out, Terry to Fournier. Middleton scoring. Gardner popped to Butler. Six runs, five hits.

The Angels made their three runs as follows, but why, suffering bugs, dwell on lost causes when we have so many other things to think of just now.

BEES TAKE FIFTH FROM THE SEALS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Salt Lake won the fifth game of the series, a close decision at home plate in the ninth inning giving them a 2-to-1 win over San Francisco. Both pitchers kept the hits well scattered. Kantlehner forced in the first run of the Bees when he hit a batter with the bases full. The score:

WILL NOT INTERFERE WITH BALTIMORE GO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MILWAUKEE, June 22.—John Reisler of New York will not attempt to interfere with the holding of the Fulton-Dempsey boxing bout planned for Baltimore on July 4, Reisler's attorney here stated late this afternoon. The attorneys in the Dempsey-Reisler controversy involving a contract expected to come to a definite agreement.

TIGERS WIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT, June 22.—Detroit defeated St. Louis twice today, taking the first game, 2 to 1, in ten innings, and the second, 6 to 3.

In the first game Shocker held Detroit to one hit until the ninth inning, when the locals tied the score on a base on balls, a stolen base, a sacrifice hit and a two-base hit by Cobb. Heilman's drive through the box, followed by Cunningham's sacrifice and a hit by R. Jones, sent in the winning run.

Timely hitting, coupled with sacrifices, won for Detroit in the second game. The score:

CHEVROLET WINS.

Eighth—Ralph de Palma, Packard.

De Palma and Dario Resta, who had been looked upon as favorites for the race, met with bitter disappointment. Resta's new car had a clean-cut victory in the ten-mile Chicago handicap, which preceded the derby, but the longer race was too much for it. One thing after another went wrong, and, after three pit stops, caused by sparkplug trouble, a broken throttle spring and a third undiagnosed ailment, the Italian gave it up and wheeled his mount to its garage.

Sparkplug trouble in the early stages of the race brought De Palma's famous jinx back into action. Starting at scratch, his big Packard was never able to catch up.

SNAPPY TENNIS ON CARD TODAY.

Red Cross Tournament on Hollywood Courts.

Bundy and Davies Defeat Browne and Bowers.

Sinsabaugh and Hawks are Also Among Winners.

Fans will be treated to a snappy brand of tennis today on the Formosa Tennis Club courts, Sunset and Formosa boulevards, if the class of tennis served up yesterday is any indication.

The tournament is under the auspices of the Hollywood Red Cross, and all returns are turned over to the National Red Cross.

Some special exhibition mixed doubles will be run off this afternoon, which ought to be worth watching, the names of front-rank players being on the card. May Sutton Bundy and Jim Davies will play Mrs. Violet Sutton Hope-Doig and Tom Bundy, and Florence Sutton and Perry Jones will come up against Mrs. Bruce and Simpson Sinsabaugh. The winners of the two matches will play each other, and the losers will play the losers.

The rest of the men's doubles will be run off this morning, play commencing at 8 o'clock.

The feature match of yesterday was played when Tom Bundy and Jim Davies won from Nat Browne and Walter Bowers after a three-set match going 3-6, 6-3, 6-3. Browne played his usual heady game, cross-courting and anticipating the plays of his opponents, holding the issue in doubt until the last point was won. Bundy and Davies got in some good teamwork, Bundy playing like his old-time self and Davies putting over some nice shots.

Sinsbaugh and Hawks barely defeated Sheldon and Beldon, the match going 7-5, 9-11, 6-4. The teams were well matched, resulting in keen rivalry.

Rager and Simmons took a three-set match from Snodgrass and Hawks, 7-5, 3-6, 8-6.

WHITNEY HORSE CAPTURES DERBY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LATONIA (Ky.) June 22.—Johren, the crack eastern 3-year-old, by Spearmint, out of Mineola, carrying the colors of Harry Payne Whitney, annexed the Latonia derby to his already long list of winnings when he traveled a mile and a half today in 2m. and 33s., finishing three lengths in front of five other 3-year-olds, hailing from Kentucky and Canada.

Exterminator, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Kentucky Derby winner, made a bold try in the stretch run, but could never reach the fast flying Johren and the Whitney colt, simply breezing the last sixteenth of a mile, flashed under the wire with Jocky Frankie Robinson having him under wraps. Exterminator, who was three lengths back, was a length in front of Free Cutter, George Long's entry, while the Canadian colt, Hollinger, from the stable of D. Raymond, obtained fourth money.

REDONDO KELP BEDS CLOSED FOR SUMMER.

Efforts to so regulate the cutting of kelp beds that beaches will be littered as little as possible thereby during the height of the summer bathing season resulted in a closure of the Redondo Beach beds July 1 by official order of the Fish and Game Commission, following conference with the kelp-cutting concerns. These are working on government orders, providing potash for manufacture of powder, kelp carrying considerable percentage of this mineral formerly obtained from the great Stuttgart beds in Germany. The kelp regulating is handled by a sort of "gentleman's agreement" because of its quasi-government nature, as no interference with production seems desired by anyone. As the beds are alternately cut and let to rest like alfalfa fields, the companies are trying so far as possible to cut the beds near big beach towns before and after the height of the summer season, concentrating on the more remote for the next few weeks.

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—Davis held Boston hitless for half of today's game, but the visitors hit Hogg hard enough in the first half to easily win, 8 to 4. Philadelphia hit Fillingim solidly, but usually with two out, and the Boston pitcher registered his seventh victory in nine starts.

CHICAGO WINS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PITTSBURGH, June 22.—Chicago strengthened its hold on first place today by beating Pittsburgh, 5 to 2, making the sixth straight defeat for Cooper, the locals' star left-hander, although he pitched as good a game as his opponent, Vaughn. McKechnie's wild throw to the plate in the second inning gave Chicago three runs, a lead of two, from which Pittsburgh never recovered.

VANCOUVER PLAYER WINS GOLF TITLE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, June 22.—Mrs. Robert Gelletly of Vancouver, B. C., won the Pacific Northwest women's amateur golf championship here today by defeating Miss Thoris Falvey of Chicago, 2 up and 1 to go. George Turnbull of Del Monte won the Northwest open championship when his opponent, Robert Johnson of Seattle, quit on account of a sprained wrist.

WEST VIRGINIANS GLAD TO BE HERE.

SAY SO AT PICNIC IN SYCAMORE GROVE—OTHER OUTINGS HELD.

Sycamore Grove is a place where former residents of eastern States go to voice publicly their regrets that they did not come to California in time to be born here. The West Virginia State Society of Southern California is no exception to the rule, and, while the 200 members of that organization who gathered at the grove yesterday sang Southern songs and indulged in oratory to their heart's content, a big part of the golden day was spent in bragging about how long they had lived in the Southland of their adoption. A feature of the gathering was the fact that the society was represented by members from nearly every city and town in Southern California, there being present thirty-five members from Fullerton alone, fifteen or twenty from Whittier and as many from Riverside.

The speaker of the day was J. B. Alexander who gave a short history of West Virginia and said that that old State had seen the first battle of the Civil War and the last battle of the Revolution and that the gallant young men from "down there" are at present making it mighty warm for the foes of liberty "over there." Other speakers were A. M. Pence, president of the society; Mrs. Hattie Allen and C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federated States Societies.

Altogether there were more than 1000 persons in Sycamore Grove yesterday, other organizations holding picnics being the Sunday-schools of the York-boulevard Methodist Church, Calvary Baptist Church, Mt. Washington Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn Heights Methodist Church, Olivet Congregational Church, First Presbyterian Church, Washington

BIG LEAGUE BATTING FIGURES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, June 22.—Very little change has taken place among the leading batters of the National League during the past week, according to averages published today, including games of last Wednesday. Paulette, St. Louis, and Paskert, Chicago, stepped out of the "first-ten class" and Young of New York and Chase of Cincinnati joined the leaders. Fred Merkle, Chicago, continued at the head of the list with an average of .374.

George Burns of New York nosed out his team mate, Benny Kauff, for scoring honors. Burns has registered 38 runs to Kauff's 37. The mark of five home runs set by Cruise of St. Louis last week remains high. Max Carey of Pittsburgh took the lead from George Burns in the race for stolen-base honors. Carey pilfered 25 bases. O'Mara, Brooklyn; Young, New York, and Rousch, Cincinnati, are in a treble tie for sacrifice honors, each being credited with 14. Chicago continued to lead in team batting with a mark of .275.

Leading batters for twenty-five games or more:

Merkle, Chicago, .374; J. C. Smith, Boston, .351; Daubert, Brooklyn, .344; Kauff, New York, .335; Groh, Cincinnati, .328; Hollocher, Chicago, .327; Wickland, Boston, .327; Mann, Chicago, .316; Young, New York, .311; Chase, Cincinnati, .311.

Burns of Philadelphia made the best showing of the leading batters in the American League. He increased his lead to .362. Gilhooley of New York and Eddie Collins of Chicago, who were among the leaders last week, have dropped below the "300" class.

Gilhooley, however, dethroned Harry Hooper of Boston from the pedestal of leading run-getter. The New Yorker has registered 41 runs. "Babe" Ruth added another circuit drive to his string and has a mark of eight home runs. Roger Peckinpaugh of New York has taken the lead among the sacrifice hitters with 15, and Sisler of St. Louis continues to lead with 24 thefts. New York leads in team batting with an average of .275.

Leading batters for twenty-five or more games:

Burns, Philadelphia, .362; Sisler, St. Louis, .341; Baker, New York, .344; Walker, Philadelphia, .335; Hooper, Boston, .324; Ruth, Boston, .321; McMullin, Chicago, .312; Pipp, New York, .311; Milan, Washington, .308; Speaker, Cleveland, .306.

Considering the distance, 382 miles in hot country and rugged mountain roads, we believe this is the greatest demonstration of economy ever made by a high-grade enclosed car. No water, and only a quart of oil. This substantiates claims we have made for the MARMON, and, from all available data, is a world's economy record for a closed car. And the beauty of it is any MARMON will duplicate this performance.

The defense of a shell hole. Sergt.-Major Hefield of the British army, above, is demonstrating to Lieut. Joe Devore his peculiar methods of attack and defense in No Man's Land. Hefield, who has been a bayonet instructor assigned to Gen. Wood's division for some months, has an unbelievable number of Huns to his credit, his exploits with the bayonet having made him the idol of Tommies on a certain sector of the Western Front.

Just Where do You Get Off?

(Frank Graham, who has just finished a comfortable dining-car breakfast, sights along the barrel of his cigar and discovers that the man at the wash-stand is none other than his able and sensible friend, Arthur Edwards, salesman.)

GRAHAM: Hello, Edwards! You on this trip—what's that bottle of yours on the window-sill?

EDWARDS: That—I'll tell you by asking you a question.

GRAHAM: (Amused) That's fair enough—go ahead.

EDWARDS: What was the first thing you ordered in the dining car this morning?

GRAHAM: Why, let's see—I needed a little mineral water, and—

EDWARDS: That's it! Mineral water! Well, this bottle here has made me see my last drop of mineral water! That's Nujol. You've seen it advertised, I guess.

GRAHAM: Sure. You troubled with constipation much?

EDWARDS: I'm not troubled with it at all, but I would be if it weren't for that bottle.

GRAHAM: Good, eh?

EDWARDS: Life insurance. I've been on the road a long time. You know, taking orders from a time-table. Well, I've got a good system, but it wrecked me. The hours, the fifty-seven different varieties of drinking water, the small-hotel food, all combined to make me careless about keeping clean inside. Then whenever my bowels didn't act regularly I took a pill or some salts, and pretty soon I had the habit.

GRAHAM: The habit?

EDWARDS: Yes. You know—the "gimme-something-for-constipation" habit; the druggist shoots you a glass of soda with some salts or a box of powerful laxatives. You get action, all right, you feel weak for a day, and next time you need a stronger dose. That habit cost me a three-months layoff.

GRAHAM: As serious as that, eh?

EDWARDS: Yes sir. The company had just taken on an examining doctor for the sales staff, and when my turn came for examination the doctor said, "You quit, right now, until you're well." "I'm not exactly sick, Doc," I said. "You're going to be exactly sick," he said, "if you don't do as I tell you. You've got a residue or food-waste in your large intestine; it's getting harder to dislodge every day, and what's more it's decaying and breeding disease germs that spread all through your system. You're sick on your feet right now—the third case I've found today. You fellows on the road are just inviting serious disease through constipation.

GRAHAM: Did you tell him about the cathartics?

EDWARDS: Yes, and he said "More poison—draws all the natural water out of your system—makes it harder to get rid of the waste." He put me on Nujol. And Nujol put me on my feet. And since then it's been keeping me on my feet.

GRAHAM: How do you account for it?

EDWARDS: Just this: Nujol is harmless—has no effect on the system except a mechanical one—softens and lubricates—so your body goes right on building while the Nujol works. It works slowly and gently—not like a drug. The more regularly you take it the better you feel. I'd no more be without it than my toothbrush. I'm through with drugs. (He pours out a tablespoonful.) Well, Graham—here's your health!

GRAHAM: Your health, I should say. But it's going to be my health in the future. Let me take a good look at that bottle so that I can get some when we get in. I guess you've talked me into insuring my health in a common-sensible way.

For your own protection insist that the druggist give you the genuine Nujol, in a sealed and capped bottle, bearing the Nujol trademark in red—never otherwise. Nujol is absolutely pure and harmless. Inferior substitutes may give unpleasant results. Genuine Nujol sold by all druggists in the U. S. and Canada.

Send 50 cents and we will ship new kit size bottle to U. S. soldiers and sailors anywhere. Write for attractive free booklet on the Nujol treatment: Section 5, Nujol Dept., Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), Bayonne, N. J.

"Le Feu."

HENRI BARBUSSE'S book on trench life, "Le Feu," has raised a storm of protest in France that reminds one of the indignant outburst that followed publication of Zola's "La Terre." Barbusse served for a year in the trenches. After he was relieved he wrote a 500-page book about the life of a squad at the front. Barbusse is an apt pupil of the Zola materialist school. His book contains all the blood and dirt of trench life as it would appeal to one who is a stranger to patriotism, who sees only the hardships and the danger, whose eyes are blinded to every illusion, even to that of hope. It is significant that the book was extensively advertised by the Bolo press in France and that the patriotic press denounced it. "Le Feu" has been reproduced in this country and is in great vogue in certain circles; but it is the negation of patriotism and the censor would have made no mistake in barring it from the mails.

Shots from the Magazine.

German strategy is a book whose concluding chapters have not yet been written. Ludendorff begins well but always finishes badly.

Ruskin once said that the public is just a great baby; but since Ruskin's day a considerable portion of it has grown up.

All political right not based on human equality rests on a faulty foundation that must one day wreck the entire edifice.

Bacon said that states are engines that move slowly; that was because he had never made the acquaintance of a modern high-power political machine.

If it be true that the worst men give the best advice, the Kaiser should be able to market his services after the war as a corporation counsel.

A MOTHER'S LETTER.

The brown foothills are tipped with snow:
But Spring has come! How do I know?
The honest frogs they told me so,
  Chanting it loudly yestereve.
And yesterday I plucked a bough
Of pussy-willow . . . dear lad, how
I wish that you might have it now,
You love its furry buds so well.
  I'm writing by your window, dear,
And from the vine you trained last year
A mockingbird is singing clear,
  Filling the air with ecstacy.
Life pulses and abounds today,
And Spring comes in the old glad way.
"Why should it not?" I hear you say,
  Challenging your mother's heart.
Why not, indeed! When, there in France,
You too are thrilled by its advance;
Your young blood leaps, your pulses dance,
  Hope is abundant—even there!
Oh, once I thought Spring held its breath
Across those battered fields of death,
Wasted no gift of warm sweet breath
  On iron-sown, ruined, useless earth.
But now I know, since you are there,
Its sweetness mellows that unscarred air;
Life is resistless everywhere,
  It has no hindering.
Why, that high cause for which you went
Is Life's prime instinct, raised and bent
To cover a divine intent:
  Life made safe for lives to come.
Tim's scratching, scratching at the door.
I've let him in. He sniffs the floor,
Whimpering softly, to adore
  The scent of you that lingers there.
Poor brute, so blind to what he sees!
Home-centered love sped overseas,
This rooting up of rank heart's-ease
  For strange new flowers of sacrifice.
Twilight has fallen. Yonder star
This very night shone where you are!
It binds you to me from afar,
  And fills your mother's heart with Peace.

The Married Life of Helen and Warren.

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

A HOT, sultry night. Not a breath of air stirred the curtains. Turning the pillow for a cooler surface Helen stretched her bare arm over the vacant place beside her.

The library clock struck the half-hour. Only half-past ten—and Warren, who had gone to Philadelphia, would not be back before midnight.

She felt hopelessly awake. Was it too late to go up on the roof? The stifling heat was unbearable.

Slipping into a negligee and her long white coat, she stole out to the hall. Not attired for the brightly lighted elevator, she walked up the five flights to the roof.

Brooding, rain-weighted clouds curdled the black-domed sky. But there was no breeze. Even up here it was oppressively airless.

On all sides stretched the city—a network of streets outlined by the lights. Countless buildings were still awake with twinkling windows.

Overcoming her reluctance, Helen drew near the stone balustrade that edged the roof, and peered down the thirteen stories to the pavement below. The dizziness and the impulse to leap over, that always came with a great height, made her draw back with a sick, throbbing fear.

The few times she had been up here Warren had been with her, and she had clung to his arm as she looked down, the security of his presence defying the thrill of fear.

And now the isolated loneliness of it all depressed her. The clouds grew darker, more menacing. A far-off rumble heralded an approaching storm.

She had turned to go down when she paused, startled by a faint sob. The roof had seemed deserted, but now she saw a crouching figure by one of the brick chimneys. It was a woman, slight, white-gowned, huddled in abject grief.

Helen drew nearer, her reluctance to intrude struggling with her impulse to help. Then the roof door banged, and a heavy step approached.

As she shrank back in the shadow of another chimney, a man strode past, straight to the crouching figure.

"So here you are?" the words were a sneer.

Through a momentary rift in the clouds gleamed a faint misty moon. In that pallid light Helen recognized Mr. Kent from the tenth floor.

"Now, if you know what's good for you—you'll come on downstairs and not pull off any more scenes," with grating harshness.

"Oh, I kept it back as long as I could," in broken sobs. "All last winter I pretended not to know. I never said a word when you went out night after night!"

"Pity you didn't keep that up."

"Frank, you're not yourself!" She had struggled to her feet now and was clinging to his arm. "Think how you used to love me—how happy we were before you met her!"

"Just leave her out of this."

"I can't! You must give her up! You must promise me that—now!"

"I'll promise nothing," brutally. "Coming downstairs or not?"

"Frank, listen—I mean it! You'll have to choose between us!"

"Oh, I will?" with an ugly laugh. "Get that from the movies?"

At this taunt she recoiled, her hands clenched.

"If you're through your tantrums—we'll go down."

"Oh, I can't stand it—I can't! You've goaded me to the point where I can't go on. You must give her up—or—"

"Or what?" jeeringly.

Eluding his restraining grasp she darted to the edge of the roof. There she faced him—her arm over the stone balustrade. Even in the dim light she was ghastly white.

"Don't come near me," as he took a step forward, "or I'll jump! Now will you promise—never to see her again?"

"And if I refuse to promise?"

"Then you'll be free to marry her."

"Great stuff!" he sneered. "You're wasting your talent! Why don't you go into the movies? As a thriller you'd have them all beat."

"You don't believe me?" wildly. "You think I don't mean it?"

"I know you don't—you're a coward as well as a silly fool. Go ahead—jump!"

He had folded his arms, and was gazing at her with steely grimness.

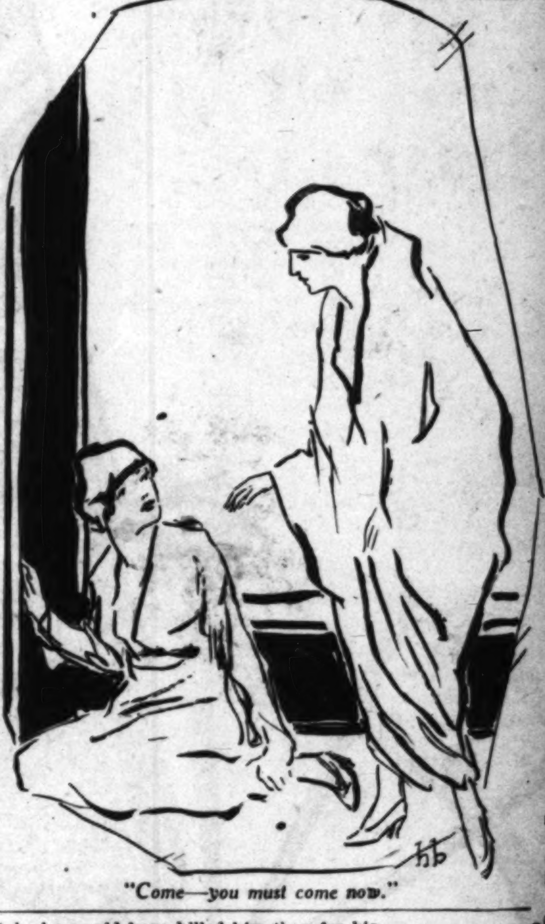
Helen tried to cry out, but instead she stood dumb, paralyzed, as slowly the woman climbed up, one knee on the balustrade. Now she was looking down.

A shriek tore at Helen's throat, but no sound came.

Her light gown outlined against the darkness, the woman crouched, gazing down at the chasmed courtyard below. Then, covering her face with her hands, she dropped back on the roof—sobbing hysterically.

"Now, if that's the last reel—maybe you're ready to go down," his voice was glacial.

Helen, weak from fright, was clinging to the rough brick chimney. If thoughts could stab she would have killed him then for his brutality.



"Come—you must come now."

"Now see here," he drew nearer the motionless figure. "Get this straight—don't think you can fool me by your heroics. If you ever go off a roof—it'll be because you fall off. And another thing we'll settle right here—from now on I'll stand for no meddling with my affairs."

His heavy step grated on the stillness as he crossed the roof. At the door that opened on the stairs, he flung back a snarling:

"Now, just remember! I'll see whom I damned please—and no interference from you. Get me?"

A vicious slam of the door—then silence.

From the street below came a faint honk of a motor, and the fainter rush of a distant elevated.

With anguished indecision Helen gazed at the huddled figure. Should she try to comfort her—or would she only hurt her more? Perhaps it would be kinder to steal away unnoticed. Then a stifled moan seemed to call her. Hesitatingly she tiptoed over the echoing roof.

"Don't be frightened," as the woman started up with a cry. "I was up here—on the other side. I couldn't help but hear. Won't you let me take is Wee-wee.

Inexplicable," says Fetcher. "There can cat in the trenches of Lor-
when they talk much; but her case is comparatively simple (so we claim)—the cat is afraid, and seeks society."

The cat, whose name is "Wee-wee" (Yes-Yes) is celebrated. Attempts have been made to steal her. She is more than a mere mascotte—she is the life preserver of the trench!

The sector is active. There are sudden raids on both sides. All is silent. The listening posts hear nothing. Yet when this cat from the wharves of Philadelphia, wild and unsociable in her nature, a true "Biddle," changes character and seeks the biggest group of men and rubs against them, purring to be taken up, every man Sam and Poilu sandwiched beside him cerifies his weapon—and the whisper circulates: "They're coming!"

It may be half an hour before the outposts hear a rustle. Two hours have been known to elapse—yet the cat was right! When "Wee-wee" gets a scare on, hostile hordes are surely creeping up. "That cat knows the Huns are coming before they start!" says George. And it is queer. In that close sector, as George says, the enemy could hardly yet be under way! Does the c atfeel them gathering—behind the inaudible murmur of the German trenches or the composite odor of their occupants?

Useful Toys.

Heretofore, dogs held the honors for supersenitiveness. The small, "worthless" pet turns out to be an extremely good sentinel. A toy Yorkshire, with the English in the Somme, shows reliable uneasiness before raids; and in the town of Nancy there is one of the same fancy species which gives warning of Boches' air attacks. This faculty of perceiving hostile vibrations long before they become audible to human ears has been shown all over England by spoiled pets. At Coventry a Pekinese, on the night of September 23, 1916, roused the household thirty minutes before the sound of guns, bombs or motors was heard or dreamed of by any in the town!

An older, "valuable" dog, in the same house, gave not the slightest sign of perturbation, and slept through the whole business. More recently, a Cocker Spaniel, "a really good sporting dog," took the raid of a fleet of Gothas without emotion, nor turned a hair when four heavy bombs exploded within half a mile of him!

Why Wee-wee Gets Sociable.

Cats, regularly, dislike firing, and during Gotha raids show an unwonted sociability in numerous examples in open towns of France and England attacked by the baby-killers. But a particular inquiry at Dunkirk (a true martyr town of the rear) discloses the felines frantically running to cover beneath beds and bureaus or clawing into the darkness of closets, behind hanging clothes or piles of shoes or hat boxes!

"Wee-wee," you will notice, is from a race notorious for ferocity along the wharves and piers of Philadelphia, Greater New York, Baltimore, Galveston and New Orleans, called "pirate cats," habitually taking ship passage yet always tough and unsociable—and such hot stuff against wharf and ship rats that a British functionary from the Isle of Dogs, Inspector Cuthbert Kidder, made a historic trip to purchase and import 1000 of her cousins for the trenches in Flanders. "Wee-wee" came with them. By what mutations she fetched up among her own people in Calhoun street trench, Lorraine, is a mystery of the war. The Isle of Dogs is situated in one of the larger reaches of the River Thames. Inspector Kidder is a London city official of the docks, supervising the importation of all kinds of wild animals, domestic pets and zoological specimens, from lions to lice and rhinosceroses to rabbits. Stuck up with bits of court plaster, he cheerfully admitted that Bengal tigers have nothing on "Wee-wee," the pirate of Philadelphia. So, judge of the psychological forces which make her urbane, beloved and loving!

At the front, this difference in the behavior of animals is remarkable. Cows have the reputation of being quite indifferent; and often you see them wandering about in between our trenches and the enemy's, visibly unconcerned. One muley-cow simply would persist in getting in front of the eighteen-pounder gun of Lieut. D——, so that they had to "drive her off by chucking empty cartridge cases and clods of earth at her!" At the same moment, a dog supposed to be acclimated to war was in abject terror and tried to burrow his way into the ground in a barn.

The Cows that Came Back.

Cows, nevertheless, notoriously "move on" when wounded, struck by mud or stone splashes from exploding shells, or otherwise "touched up;" and once they get a move on, they do not tarry—and obstinately refuse to return. Which makes the conduct of the cow of Grecourt, the more praiseworthy. Strafed in an air raid, her poor lacerated hide peppered by bomb-scraps, burnt by cruel "mustard" gas and itching beyond language, the cow of Grecourt, mooing, careering, kicking at the stars, dashing her itching carcass against tree-trunks, scratching, tail-lashing, bellowing and just simply crazy, was caught, balmed, sprayed and comfortably spoken to by the Marechaussee, or Mounted Country Police doing military relief behind the front. They evacuated her, fifteen miles in the rear. And shelling, gassing, strafing, helling continued. . . .

And the cow came back!

Cows don't come back but this one did. By a moonlight night with the sky full of baby-killers and the villages in flames, explosions and corruption, the cow picked her way along roads crump-holed at every crossing, fifteen miles, to the smashed manor where the Marechaussee holds out. They did not reproach her. They can not drive her away. In her own interest, they have dragged her by a rope round the horns toward Ham—toward, I say, because she never got there, but mooed so pathetically at each halt for refreshments that they back tracked, each trip, and let her follow!

The cat came back!

(Also.)

This was the cat of Dr. Alice Weld Tallant of the Women's Medical College, Pennsylvania, Germantown, Philadelphia, and the Smith College Unit at Grecourt Chateau. I mean, she protects and cites the faithful feline friend of an aged couple in their blown-up homestead, where the retreating Germans burned the furniture in the street. "The old lady, with tears in her eyes, told me how, when she came back to the ruins of her home, her cat was sitting on the doorstep to welcome her—mon seul souvenir! my only keepsake—she says!"

Horses go to Pieces.

As for horses, the war has proved that "horse sense" is a myth. With the passing of the cavalry charge, the horse shows up a hysterical creature, unreasoning and erratic in emergencies. From the beginning, "horse neurasthenia," or nervous breakdown has been a phenomenon. There is no wound, no physical ill. Officers called it neurasthenia in their blooded stock; but stolid farm critters from Iowa and wild bronchos from Texas and the Argentine go equally down with this sort of "spleen," lethargy or wasting melancholy, analogous to the vapors or moons of high-strung ladies when they are not enjoying a good time.

Horses formerly enjoyed war. In the Napoleonic epoch, he pranced through its pomp and jingle, color, music, cavalcades in mass, the reckless charge of glory. But this quiet dying in the dust and mud and loneliness is another story. In 1916, there were as many horses invalided by war neurasthenia as there were killed in battle!

The Glory of the Mule.

The great American army mule, contrarily, forged steadily ahead in French and British esteem through 1916 and 1917; with the arrival of our forces, his high place is fixed. The humble American mule has inscribed his name on the scarlet pages of Verdun and the Somme, and the glory of Alsace-Lorraine will find a quartering on his blazon. . . .

A mule will not overfeed; you can empty a sack of barley into his feed box, and he will not gobble till he bursts and founders, like a horse. He does not develop war nerves. Shells, bombs, searchlights, fusees, mud, cold, rain, the smell of blood and putrefaction and the shrieks of the wounded do not dismay the mule, when a horse's mate is killed beside him, he kicks and plunges idiotically; but the mule stands and waits. Once I saw mules and horses being unloaded by a swinging crane from a ship at Bordeaux. A horse held, thus, high in the air, struggled like one gone crazy—while the mule, beside him, in exactly the same plight, never moved a muscle, but peered down, rubbering the bustling dock with interest, and accepted his aerial suspension as a matter of course!

Geese are Proper Sentinels.

Neither cows, horses nor mules make good sentinels.

But geese are wonders!

You know of those of the Capitol? Well, as the German armies pounded through the French countryside in August, 1914, the villagers' geese on every highroad felt them coming while afar off and raised a pande-

CARPENTER VISITS GREAT ARMS FACTO

Making New Brownings. By Frank G. Carpenter.

How They are Made.

FIVE HUNDRED SHOTS A MINUTE—COULD BE WORKED BY A BABY—THE EFFICIENCY OF THE WEAPON—BEHIND THE SCENES IN A GREAT GUN FACTORY—WOMEN AND MUNITION—"THE MAN WHO WINS."

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BRIDGEPORT (Ct.)—I have come here to tell you about the machine guns they are now making for our soldiers in Europe. They are the most rapid and most efficient man killers that have yet been put into the battlefields, and when our soldiers are fully equipped they will sow death as they go over the top. These guns are being manufactured in different parts of the country, but at this writing the biggest and best equipped factory for making them is that of the Remington Arms Union Metallic Cartridge Company, here at Bridgeport. The establishment consists of forty-eight buildings of brick, steel and glass, all of which hum with the machinery for making firearms. The shops cover four or five times as much ground as the National Capitol at Washington, and I am told that it is a ten-mile journey to go over them all. The buildings are walled with glass. It took a solid acre of wire glass to equip them and more than ten tons of putty to hold in the panes. They have enough electrical wiring to reach from Washington to Albany via New York, and their power plant would supply all the needs of a city of 150,000 people.

Imagine structures like this filled with the newest machinery and about 15,000 men and women at work, and you have an idea of one of the new plants which have sprung up almost in a night for fighting the Germans.

I say in a night. That is not technically correct. The actual time of creation was less than one year.

Was a Pasture.

In March, 1915, the ground where the plant is was nothing but marsh and cow pastures. The cattle grazed in the fields, and the only other inhabitants were chickens and pigs.

Then the "cry from Macedonia" came from the Allies, and the United States began to supply their munitions. Within a few months the land was drained, and the buildings went up and before the end of the year 75 per cent. of the machinery was working. At one time the establishment had 18,000 men making rifles for the Russians, and it has now many thousands engaged upon machine guns and rifles and pistols.

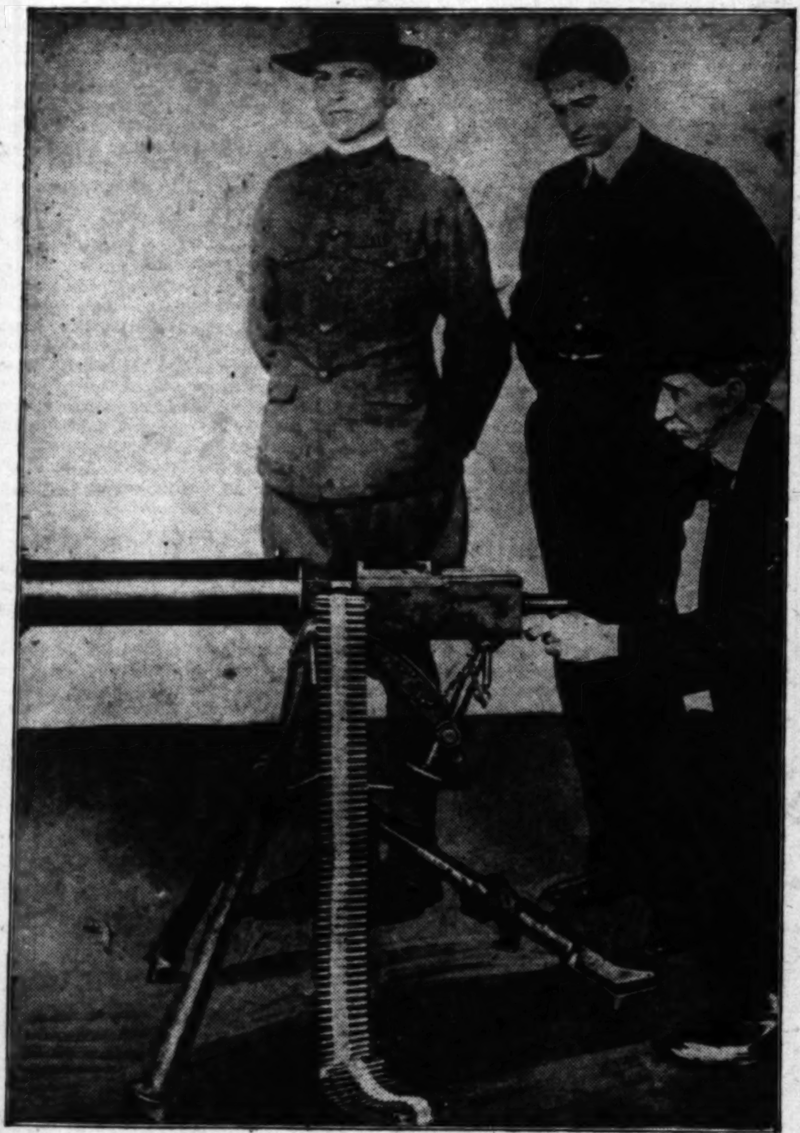
But first I would like to give you some idea of what a machine gun is and its terrible efficiency in the killing of men. I have seen the several kinds now in use on the battlefields, and I have shot one of the new Brownings, in the rifle pit of the plant here, sending the bullets forth at the rate of 500 per minute, or eight and one-third every second. Put your watch to your ear and split each tick into eight parts, and one of those parts will give you the speed at which the balls fly forth from the gun. The Browning I fired was mounted on a small iron tripod, and a rapid stream of fire seemed to fly from the muzzle. The gun was aimed at a square hole in a steel plate 225 feet away. The balls passed through this hole into a sand bank beyond and as I turned the gun slightly some of them struck the plate, cutting its half-inch hard steel as though it were cheese. After the shooting I climbed up a ladder on the side of the plate, and saw where some of my bullets had struck. The edges around the hole were chewed by the bullets, and in several places the balls had made holes through the steel.

A Baby Can Shoot It.

This shooting was done inside the factory, and the noise was terrific. It would have been less out of doors, but, as it was, I plugged my ears with raw cotton and thus saved my hearing. I was surprised at the ease of shooting the gun. A 3-year-old baby could fire it as far as the force required is concerned. All that is needed is the touch of your finger on the trigger and the bullets fly forth until your finger is raised. At one time I shot a dozen cartridges in less time than it takes to dictate this sentence, and then one, two and three, and then twenty, and then a long stream of lead which went forth like the water from a hose. In shooting the gun from a tripod it can be moved back and forth so that it sprays lead, sowing death as it goes. One could put it on wheels and run it along a board fence, cutting the boards like a buzz saw, or you could swing it around and cut out patterns of fretwork. You can mount it in an airplane and make it rain death on the enemy.

The Heavy Automatic.

The working of this machine gun is almost perfection. The one I fired was the first Browning ever made with machine tools. It was tested on March 10, when it fired only one shot and then stopped. It was then taken away and the defect discovered and remedied. Two days later it was tested again and since that time it has shot 6394 cartridges, including the 500 I shot today, without one single misfire. These shots were made by a large number of different people who have visited the factory to test the gun. I understand that the same percentage of efficiency has been shown in the other Brownings so far made. In the government tests one gun fired 20,000 shots in forty-eight minutes and sixteen seconds.



Shooting the heavy Browning. Our correspondent pulling the trigger. In the rear Mr. J. Q. Finfrock of the Remington Armory and Capt. L. E. Briggs of the U. S. Ordnance Bureau.

This gun was the heavy Browning. It weighs about thirty-four pounds when ready for action, and with the tripod a little less than fifty pounds, so that it can be easily moved about from place to place by a couple of soldiers. It is a water-cooled gun, as I shall describe farther on, and is made to be used from the trenches or at any place where it can be put on the tripod or have a support.

In addition to this we have the light Browning automatic rifle, which is air-cooled, and weighs only fifteen pounds. This is fed by clips each of which contains twenty cartridges, and it is so light that it can be fired from the shoulder, although the usual way is from the hip, against which it is supported by a strap over the shoulder. This gun is so light that the men can use it in the rush over the top, and in this respect there is nothing that compares with it except the French Hell-cat or Chauchat, which weighs four pounds more, and is not as efficient. The light Browning can send off a shot at each pull of the trigger, or the whole twenty shots can be fired in two seconds, and another clip put in in a few seconds more. It has been shot at the rate of 600 a minute. It is absolutely a new thing in firearms and it is now made only in the United States.

It is difficult to describe the modern machine gun. It is a rifle that works by machinery. It has a single barrel just like that of the regular army rifle. The cartridges are just the same as those used in the rifle, and they are sent forth from the muzzle at the rate of 400 to 1000 shots per minute. The motive power of the machinery is the explosion. The first shot that goes off gives the force that fires the second, and the second the force for the third and so on. It must work exactly, for the operations are performed in the fraction of a second or in the splitting again and again of a watch tick. Every shot in the stream of lead has to give the force which brings the next cartridge into place and to move the spring which fires it and in turn starts another. In some kinds of machine guns the force is the kick or recoil of the explosion, and in others it is the gas which flies back through a tiny hole in the barrel, working a piston just like the gas in the cylinder of an automobile. The wonderful thing about it is that it does this at the ra

QUEER SUPERSTITIONS OF SAILORS.

Pelorus Jack. By Charles Green.

L ANDSMEN, like seamen, have their strange beliefs and vulgar prejudices, though the latter should not be judged as harshly as the former for their credulity, as their isolated and peculiar renders them more susceptible impressions. Sailors in general, bold as any in action, are frequently most abject slaves to supersti-

The fish then became very excited and began to lash the water and plunge one way and then the other. Ultimately Jack gave up and left to her fate this unaccountable ship that would not keep in her proper place. But old Ford—God bless him—swore that Jack had died of a broken heart as a result of the brig's behavior, that this was the real cause of his death, the conduct of the other fish being incidental.

Pelorus Jack was the one glorious exception to the rule that sea-faring men entertain a particular aversion to the shark family.

Porpoises of a Suicidal Nature.

Another strange delusion, which, however, is gospel to some of the "old salts," is the belief that should a porpoise set out to accompany or race a ship—which they frequently do—and find itself unable to keep the pace and be left behind, it straightway goes and commits suicide, though in what manner even the "old salt's" imagination has failed to suggest.

On the other hand when porpoises or dolphins exhibit a sportive tendency and play, apparently taking no notice of the passing ship, it is considered an indication of a coming storm.

The albatross has ever been the sailors' favorite in the feathered kingdom, but this is probably accounted for by the fact that this huge bird is seen so far from land.

The sight of the stormy petrels, or "Mother Carey's chickens," at sea is just as unwelcome to sailors as that of the albatross is pleasing, for when these harbingers of evil collect under the stem of a ship, it is considered an evil omen and the very least to be expected is a heavy storm.

The Dead are All Taboo at Sea.

The carrying of dead bodies has always been a sore point with sailors and ships have been known to put back when carrying even mummies after experiencing a little heavy weather, the sailors refusing to go further, ascribing the torm or the ship's behavior to the presence of the mummies. They figure the ships that have any respect for themselves won't stand being made biers of.

According to history, a coffin made from the mainmost of the French ship L'Orient was sent to Admiral Nelson by a brother sailor, to remind him that amidst all the glory that attended him, he was but mortal. Nelson received the present in the proper spirit and had the coffin placed in his own cabin on the "Vanguard." But finally in compliance with the superstitious feelings of his crew he ordered the monitor of mortality to be taken below.

The Terrible Flying Dutchman.

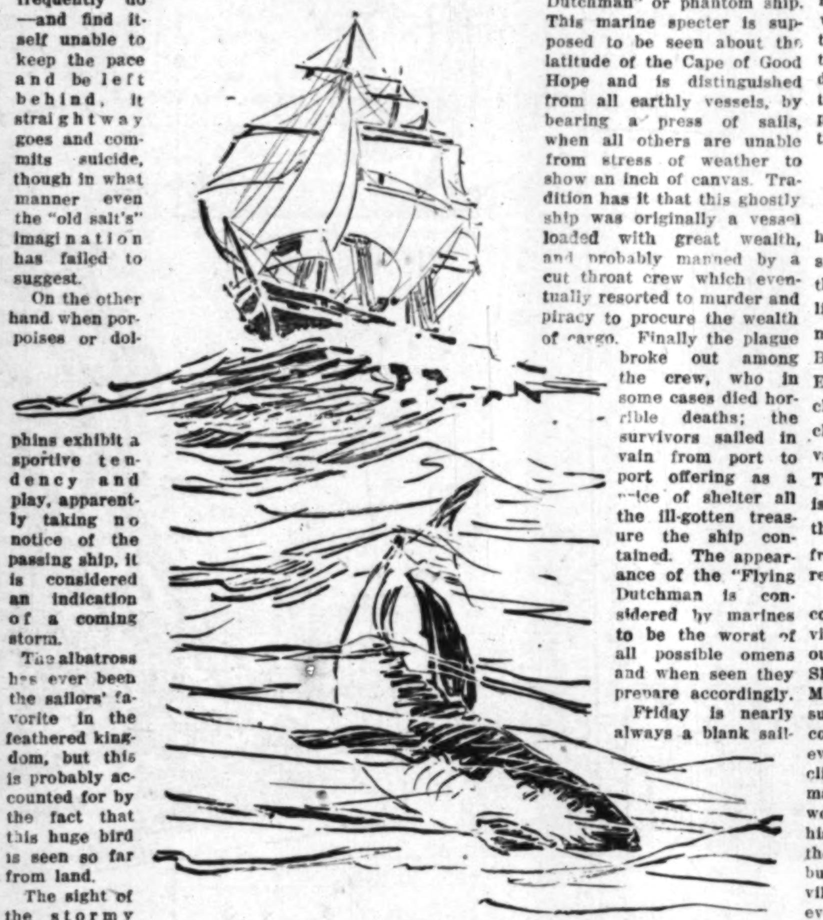
Nearly all ships that double the Cape have among their crew at least one sailor who swears he has seen that dread forerunner of wreck and woe, the "Flying Dutchman" or phantom ship. This marine specter is supposed to be seen about the latitude of the Cape of Good Hope and is distinguished from all earthly vessels, by bearing a press of sails, when all others are unable from stress of weather to show an inch of canvas. Tradition has it that this ghostly ship was originally a vessel loaded with great wealth, and probably manned by a cut throat crew which eventually resorted to murder and piracy to procure the wealth of cargo. Finally the plague broke out among the crew, who in some cases died horrible deaths; the survivors sailed in vain from port to port offering as a price of shelter all the ill-gotten treasure the ship contained. The appearance of the "Flying Dutchman is considered by marines to be the worst of all possible omens and when seen they prepare accordingly.

Friday is nearly always a blank sailing day with seamen (I'm referring to those who man the skys'l yarders, the windjammers, for after all, they're the dyed in the wool salts.) I remember a skipper of a vessel sailing from Seattle—she was a steamboat at that—having to postpone sailing till after 12 o'clock midnight Friday, it also happened to be the thirteenth of the month, as his crew refused to sail before.

Sailors have been known to leave their ship at the last minute giving as their reason that they had seen three ravens, a most ominous sign to many deep-sea sailors.

Should the rats desert a ship, and the fact become known, her owners would certainly have a hard time getting a crew together to man her. Sailors have the same idea in regard to rats that some country folks have in connection with crows, which, according to the latter, will not build in a tree that is likely to fall.

Steamships have done much towards moderating the deep-seaman's superstitions, who (fortunately for present-day apprentices) does not carry his beliefs to the extent that the French sailors did in former days. The French had a comical notion that the spirit of the storm was to be propitiated by flogging unfortunate middies at the mainmast.



"Pelorus" Jack.

Peddling the Time.

Probably no other hill in the world has had so strangely varied a history or played so important a part in the affairs of men as that at Greenwich, in England. The granite line across the footpath on its summit is the meridian from which the longitude on every British map and chart is calculated. All England sets its time by the mean solar clock. There is a large galvano-magnetic clock fixed on the outside wall of the observatory and divided into twenty-four hours. There are many who believed that this clock is kept going by the sun. They do not know that the fixed stars are the real timekeepers from which Britons check their daily progress.

To this galvano-magnetic clock in the wall comes every Monday a woman, Miss Belleville of Maidenhead, who makes $2500 a year out of the queerest occupation in the world. She sells the time to London watchmakers. Many years ago the then astronomer royal suggested to her father that if he took the corrected time of a certified chronometer every week he could no doubt find numerous clients. So Mr. Belleville bought a watch made for the Duke of Essex and then worked up a business with it. When he died his widow sold the time until she reached the age of 81, and then she handed over the business to her daughter. When Miss Belleville visits Greenwich at the beginning of every week her chronometer is corrected and she is given an official certificate. From that her fifty customers correct their watches and clocks.

Shot is Made.

IS AN INTERESTING ONE.

of shot requires a high pan, a tank of water, lead. Shot is made by lead from a high point to The lead forms into globules raindrops do when they fall Ordinarily, we do not raindrops are little spheres, but proper conditions they freeze, hailstones, which may be made of ice.

of shot, pure lead is used. and mixed with a "temper" mainly of tin, and then poured into a perforated pan or sieve. The perforations vary according to the size of the shot to be made.

A temper is mixed with the lead in order to make the globules form when the lead falls. If pure lead were used, it would fall in the form of little bars, instead of round shot.

In order that the globules may have plenty of time to form, the lead must fall a long distance, and so towers are built. The towers used to be made as high as 200 feet and even more, but modern towers are rarely over 150 feet.

The perforated pan into which the molten lead is poured is at the top of the tower, and the globules of lead fall through the perforations into tanks of water at the bottom of the tower. The water cools them, and also prevents them from flattening out, as they would if they fell on a solid floor.

From the water the shot go to steam driers. After drying, the perfect shots are separated from the imperfect by means of glass tables inclined enough so that the shot, when poured on at one end of the table, will roll to the other end. At the farther end of the table are two gutters, side by side. The imperfect shot roll slowly and with difficulty, so that they have not enough momentum to carry them beyond the first gutter. The perfectly round shot roll easily and swiftly, and when they reach the foot of the table, they jump nimbly across the first gutter and land in the second.

After separation the perfect shot are polished by rolling in plumbago, and workmen then put them in bags for shipment, or send them direct to the cartridge-filling department to be loaded into shells.

How to Get Him In.

IT WAS the youngster's first experience at Sunday-school and he sat eagerly watching the superintendent illustrate the lesson on the board. The superintendent drew the path to heaven—one straight line—and started the figure of a man on it. Gradually the man became larger and larger, and finally when he arrived at the gate of heaven he could not get in. Whereupon the superintendent turned to his small audience and, in a tragic and sorrowful tone, said: "You see, he is so puffed up with sin that he can not enter."

"Try him sideways, mister!" called out the youngster.—[Everybody's Magazine.

MARY had a sweetheart who was not altogether acceptable to her parents, and she got many quiet hints as to giving him his dismissal. These hints, however, went altogether unheeded and at length her father took the bull by the horns and spoke out quite plainly on the subject.

"Look here, Mary, I don't like that young fellow coming here so much. Next time he pays a visit just give him the cold shoulder.

Mary smiled, showed her teeth prettily, laid her hand coaxingly on her father's arm and said:

Too Bad He Couldn't March.

UNITED STATES SENATOR HOWARD SUTHERLAND of West Virginia tells a story about a mountain youth who visited a recruiting office in the Senator's State for the purpose of enlisting in the regular army. The examining physician found the young man as sound as a dollar, but that he had flat feet.

"I'm sorry," said the physician, "but I'll have to turn you down. You've got flat feet."

The mountaineer looked sorrowful. "No way for me to git in it, then?" he inquired.

"I guess not. With those flat feet of yours you wouldn't be able to march even five miles."

The youth from the mountains studied a moment. Finally he said: "I'll tell you why I hate this so darned bad. You see, I walked nigh on to 115 miles over the mountains to git here, and gosh, how I hate to walk back!"—[Everybody's Magazine.

One hoodlum left the ranks and started off toward the barracks-room.

EARLY DAYS IN CALIFORNIA.

Terminal Island Hard Hit But Still Alive. By C. A. Sumner.

CHAPTER XII.

TERMINAL ISLAND'S first name was Rattlesnake Island—whether because it was the home of the rattlesnake or because of its shape, I cannot say, probably a little of both—it certainly was an ideal home for the despised reptile and it had a snake's shape. However, Rattlesnake Island was the name, but curiously enough it never was an island at all even in the remote days. When I first came here in the '70's, Terminal was nothing but a series of mud and sand flats with half a dozen or more river channels running through from Wilmington to the sea. The small side wheel steamer that Gen. Phineas Banning used to transport the passengers from the ocean steamers to Wilmington was compelled to change its course from one channel to another as the sluggish stream filled them up one by one with silt.

The government in the '70's took up the matter of a harbor for us in earnest, with the result that a permanent channel was adopted, running direct to the sea, passing Dead Man's Island to the west. This channel began opposite about where Fifth street, San Pedro, is now located and was made by dumping rock on either side and allowing all the old outlets to close up naturally. The rock came from Catalina Island and as late as 1890 was still being dumped to strengthen or raise the breakwater. When the channel was first defined, there were only a few feet of water, four feet I think it was, on the bar at Dead Man's Island but the engineer's opinion was fully carried out and the confining of the stream deepened this water on the bar to something like eleven feet by scouring alone.

After the success of the San Pedro channel was proved, the Southern Pacific Railroad built a trestle and embankment from Wilmington to San Pedro and moved its terminus there for both its trains and also for the steamers that now were able to tie up to a wharf instead of at an anchorage as before.

Then, when the Terminal Railway Company built down to East San Pedro and caused competition in the carrying business to Los Angeles, Collis P. Huntington started his great fight for a harbor at Santa Monica to be built by the government. Had this Santa Monica scheme not been frustrated, Los Angeles would have been entirely in the hands of the Southern Pacific Railroad without the possibility of competition. However, history tells us how the fight was won, and what a fight it was. It was too long a matter for me to take up here, suffice it to say Los Angeles got its harbor where it should be and in 1898 the first rock was dumped on the outer breakwater, that was destined to make San Pedro one of the best and safest harbors on the coast.

How Our Big Harbor Was Started.

The first contract for rock was let to Heldmeyer & Neu, who brought the material from the quarries at Catalina in huge lighters with movable bottoms. These cargoes were dumped in the sea on a line designated by a system of white signals arranged on the hills to the west in such a manner that when certain ones were in line, the proper location was found.

The dumping of the first load was a great occasion, every craft that could float was pressed into service—and many that ought not to float—every whistle and cannon roared and all the people were hoarse with shouting. Flags everywhere and the sea was alive with empty beer bottles and lunch boxes and sandwich papers, such a turnout was never before seen and never since. In the evening there was a display of fireworks and an awful jam on the channel opposite San Pedro. I had my launch, the Hornet, packed with friends and spent a bad time wondering when we should be run into and how many would be saved. However, when the newspapers came out in the morning there was no mention of any casualties and nothing to mar the thorough success of the celebration.

Capt. W. G. Waters, lessee of San Miguel Island and owner of large bands of sheep there, came down from Santa Barbara to be present at the inauguration of the breakwater and was my guest on the Hornet, helping materially in enlivening the scene with his old sailor hurras.

After some 84,000 tons of rock had been dumped on the breakwater, the contractors found they were losing so much money that Mr. Neu came out from the East to personally supervise the work. Unfortunately an accident occured while he was being shown about the city. The coach on which he was riding overturned and Mr. Neu lost his life, so the remaining partners decided to throw up the contract, which was annulled in March, 1900.

The California Construction Company then put in a bid, which was accepted, and work was renewed by them in June, 1900, and continued until the breakwater was completed in September, 1910. This company changed tactics. Instead of bringing rock by sea, they brought it from quarries inland and laid trestles out into the ocean, so that the rock could be unloaded direct from the cars. The rock was brought from the Declez Quarries near Colton.

The water was alive with yellowtail and barracuda.

In all a total of 2,500,000 tons of rock were put in place and the whole structure as completed is nearly two miles long.

A Place for Boating.

One of the drawing cars to Terminal Island, was the inner harbor where the ladies and children could take a rowboat and enjoy themselves without danger of waves or currents. It was there that the residents kept their launches and yachts in safety from storms.

Mr. J. A. Graves had a fine launch built by Joe Fellows, called the Pasqualito, in which he used to take his friends out for an airing, or for fishing trips; Dr. Pomeroy had the Hinemoa; Tom Vigus the Dorothy V, and I the Hornet.

Fishing parties usually took place on Sundays, starting early in the morning, then we would fish up to midday and come home when the sea got too rough for pleasure.

One year, I believe it was 1898, the fishing was phenomenal and it was no trick at all to catch half a hundred fish in a few hours. As a matter of fact, that year we made a rule on the Hornet to start for home when the catch footed up to fifty. The usual thing was four fish at a time, one on each side of the boat near the center and one on each side near the stern. We fished with rod and reel and a bone squid. If a yellow tail was struck we stopped the boat and all but the one who had hooked the fish drew in their lines and let the lucky one play his game. It is needless to say the unlucky ones made nasty remarks such as "Look at him shake," "That's only a minnow," "Pull him in, don't be all night," etc., but the angler had all the fun he wanted and refused to be buncoed.

Gulls Told the Place.

When we started out in the morning, two of us stood up as lookouts, watching the calm sea in the hopes we could see a school of fish somewhere, if not fish we could sometimes see the gulls collecting at some spot and swooping down in the water. This was a sure sign of fish near the surface, so off we went full tilt until in their midst, when the fun commenced.

We took turns in running the engine, so as to give all a chance to fish, but my son-in-law, A. P. Robinson, was the official engineer and did all the fixing and cleaning of the engine.

At first we found on returning home each angler claimed the largest fish and the largest number caught, but we soon put a stop to that by having some score cards printed and the tally was kept by the man running the engine. After that, figures told the truth.

Sounds Like a Fish Story, But It Isn't.

But in 1898, as I have said, the fishing was phenomenal. Dr. Buell came down one Sunday to try the sport. I had tried to sell him a lot and get him to build a house, but he was undecided, so I got him out fishing. In the party were Dr. Buell, my son Dick, Pioche Robinson, myself, and Arnold Praeger, a little boy then, as a mascot, and we went along the coast to Portuguese Bend. The sea was alive with yellowtail and barracuda. Fish after fish was landed, the fish boxes overflowed and then the cockpit filled. Finally, we put up our rods, started for home, but ran out some hand lines. Then we took our shoes and stockings off, rolled up our trousers, and brought the fish in until the stern of the boat was so full we had to quit and get on the bow to keep the boat level and prevent the sea from coming over the stern and swamping us. We left all the fish with the Harriman Fish Company, there was no sale for them, but I believe we did get 5 cents apiece for them. Sequel to the fishing that day was, "I'll take that lot," and he did.

Couldn't Give Them Away.

Talking of fish, though, reminds me of how hard we tried to find some use for the fish we caught. We left them on the wharf, for anyone to take, we put them in a hand cart with a sign, "Take one," but still they were not used. Then one time two of us went down the line of cottages with a load of fish to give away. Even then we were not thanked. One lady, I remember, was sitting on her porch when we went by. One of us asked her if she wanted some fish, but she said she had already made her purchases, so we remarked we were giving these away. "Oh well, if that's the case, you can put a couple on my back porch." Put them on the porch indeed. To Halifax with peddling fish! No more for me, and after that we only brought home a few.

We had some regular standbys for Sunday fishing. R. W. Burnham was a great enthusiast, when not staying on the island he used to come down on the first car and join us. Frank J. Thomas always could be counted upon. A. W. Armstrong, S. Halstead, C. S. Walton, Bert Wigmore were among the regulars, while Judge Frederickson, Roth Hamilton, Horace Eaton, used to come [illegible] usual routine was to start [illegible] noon when the wind rose, [illegible] Portuguese Bend behind [illegible] lunch while anchored in the [illegible] sheltered by the growth of [illegible] our smoke come home [illegible] that lunch with beer and [illegible] was good and the run home [illegible] was sublime.

residents started a fund to get some ladders and buckets, and formed a sort of amateur fire brigade. F. B. Crozier was elected chief and C. S. Walton assistant, in other words the pitcher, catcher and infield, for he did all the work. A chemical fire extinguisher was procured, two dozen iron buckets painted red and twelve light ladders also painted red. These were distributed among the different householders as nearly as possible, two of each to a block. I don't remember any drills, possibly because we were all captains without any rank and file. But on one occasion I remember Charlie Walton racing down the walk with the extinguisher in a baby carriage, and upon meeting some ladies, endeavored to steer clear of them with the result that the infant buggy upset, and the extinguisher thrown out in such a manner that the ladies' dresses received most of the chemical compound that instead of putting out a fire, succeeded in spoiling some pretty toilettes. After that the assistant chief was cautioned that it must not occur again, that in future no drills could be held without a full force of captains to protect the public. Luckily we had no fires, but the protection was there, so we felt safe.

In fact, we felt so safe that it was a very short time before all the fine red buckets and ladders retired from public life and [illegible] into private usefulness, the buckets being relegated to the humble duty of collecting garbage, and the red ladders for cleaning windows and repairing roofs.

The Honolulu Race.

In the year of 1906 the first Pacific Ocean race took place from San Pedro Harbor to Honolulu, the Lurline owned by H. H. Sinclair, the Anemone by Mr. Charles T. Tutt and La Paloma owned by Mr. McFarland of the Royal Yacht Club, Hawaii Islands, took part in the race and considerable interest was shown. The Lurline, however, outclassed the rest by over one day, taking twelve days, seven hours and twenty-nine minutes to do the journey, while the Anemone took fourteen days and twenty-nine minutes, and La Paloma took fifteen days, eleven hours and fifty minutes to complete the distance.

Then in 1908 there was another race, the Lurline, the Gwendolyn, Lady Maud and Hawaiee being the contestants. This race was largely advertised, and a big crowd was present at the start which took place at 12 o'clock noon, July 4. The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce helped boost the race, and chartered a steamer to follow the yachts for some distance and the passengers had a beautiful view of the racing for the first hour or so. The Lurline again took the prize, but did not come up to the previous record, taking thirteen days, twenty-one hours and thirty-one minutes this time. The Gwendolyn of Seattle was second with fourteen days, twenty-one hours, thirty minutes. The Lady Maud of San Diego was third, time was fifteen days, one hour and seven minutes, and the Hawaiee last, two hours behind the Maud.

A race was again held in 1910 when the Hawaiee beat the Sweetheart, going the trip in the fast time of fourteen days, three hours and twenty-three minutes, while the second boat took fourteen days, twenty-one hours and ten minutes, and Mollitou third, with fifteen days, seven hours and five minutes. The last named was owned by the Eolian Yacht Club of Alameda, while the Sweetheart belonged to Robert Smith of the South Coast Yacht Club.

A Fine Beach for Bathing.

All through the summer and for that matter in the winter also, the inhabitants took their morning, afternoon or evening bath. The beach was a delightful one for bathing and for social meetings. Some took their swim in the morning, and I remember Judge Waldo M. York was very regular, he swam out just so far every morning about 6 o'clock, up the coast a certain distance and back to his cottage. I knew the time of his regular dip, for I used to take my swim before breakfast as did Sumner Hunt also, but a great many of the gentlemen took theirs in the evening after they returned from town, and then were fresh for dinner. The ladies used the morning about 10 or 11 o'clock for their baths and then spent the time before lunch in resting on the beach and seeing their friends. There were no skin tight bathing suits then, but all were neat and suitable to the community.

Sometimes before their baths the ladies would don their suits and go over to Mormon Island and dig for clams and cockles. It was mighty dirty work as the soil was black mud, smelly and gummy and the ladies were a fright until the sea had cleaned them up a bit. The chowders, however, were vastly appreciated and did away with all the inconvenience of getting the material. All pronounced the concoction remarkably palatable.

Upon one occasion after the breakwater was finished, we started out one Sunday morning in the Hornet in a dense fog to go fishing and of course went very slowly and cautiously and steered by compass. When we got into the lumpy water just off the breakwater we ran into a lot of lumber floating about but the fog was too dense to see anything else at that time. Later on the fog rose, we had some fishing and started home. About one-third of the way from the sea end of the breakwater, there was a steam lumber schooner well up on the wall, she having crashed in during the fog. Some tugs were working with her and late in the day we saw her being towed in to the inner harbor where she was beached until some repairs were made. Every launch was busy and rowboats as well, getting their supply of winter fuel from the mass of lumber that had been jettisoned. A large quantity of rock was misplaced on the breakwater, but considering the crash that must have taken place there was no serious damage to either the wall or the vessel.

When Terminal Began to Wane.

And then the signs began to point to an end of Terminal as a pleasure resort. The railroad changed hands and the policy as well. No more passengers were wanted, trains were taken off, freight trains given the right of way, the wharves allowed to rot and wash away, and everything done to prevent travel for pleasure.

At one time I thought I had the transportation problem solved. I took up the question of electric car service with Mr. H. E. Huntington who agreed to run a line from Long Beach and give us quick and frequent service. The Pacific Electric Railway then bought some lots from Mrs. Boschke at First street to be used as a depot, and Mr. Sam Haskins and I procured a franchise from Long Beach to build the road. A lot of material was shipped down and the rails laid.

Mr. Wells, however, of the Salt Lake Railway didn't approve of an electric road getting a footing on Terminal so put in so many prohibitory clauses in an agreement for the joint use of the drawbridge that Mr. Huntington would not accept the contract, tore up his rails and quit the job.

Then we had to content ourselves with a ferry to San Pedro and up to town by electric road, but it was a long, tedious and unpleasant journey, so one by one of the regular crowd dropped off going to Terminal and a slow but certain withering away commenced.

The next setback and a body blow, was caused by commercial necessity. The great dredging of the inner harbor commenced and all the mud and slush was pumped out from that channel and deposited on the sandy beach in front of our cottages. The completion of the outer breakwater had effectually stopped any surf, currents or storms, so that the bay in front of the island was calmer and better than ever. The result of this was that none of the silt deposited there floated away but all stayed where it was put and made an additional beach of something like three-fourths mile wide and a mile long, not clean sand but of mud, coal dust, shells and refuse. The property owners protested, sent telegrams to Washington, interviewed Capt. Leeds here but the one answer was always the same, "Commercial necessity."

Then, to add insult to injury, the city of Los Angeles claimed ownership of all this made land, and for lack of funds needed for the fight, the property owners let them have it and did nothing.

Now, even the mosquitoes have it all their own way, eat what they want, breed where they choose, and sting where they wish. All the fight is knocked out of Terminal and the property owners are content to let it be as it is, a resort of the past.

Wheat—Mankind's Pearl of Great Price.

BY MAY C. RINGWALT.

YEAR in and year out, peaceful, prosperous America has eaten her wheat bread as a daily commonplace. Now suddenly, it has become the rarest of table luxuries. No, more—a sign and token of sacrifice of self, of service to others.

Our reverential attitude of mind toward it is not new but as old and elemental as the Garden of Eden days of the world. Only sophisticated civilizations have looked upon wheat with cold, commercial eyes. All child peoples have regarded it religiously, as a gift from above.

The initial sowing of that gift in the good red earth of our spinning little planet, however, is hidden in mystery.

In its life story told by Klippart, Edgar, and other wheat "biographers," authorities are quoted whose conflicting claims point in turn to India, Persia and Egypt as the country where the first wheat was produced, while a fourth theory gives the honor to the fertile little Island of Sicily, birthplace of the beloved Ceres, the idea being that from Sicily the cultivation of wheat spread along the shores of the Mediterranean and was thus brought into Asia Minor and Egypt.

Wheat Grains Cherished by Egyptians.

Be that as it may, in sarcophagi of Egyptian king and noble thousands of years old have been found, perfectly preserved in the tight-closed container of vessels in honor to the dead, treasured grains of wheat; and according to that country's folk lore Isis and Osiris discovered wheat growing wild in the valley of the Jordan, transplanted it into Egypt, and personally taught how to cultivate it.

Twenty-seven hundred years before the Christian era began wheat was grown in China, from the days of the Emperor Chinnung one of the most picturesque annual ceremonies of the Chinese court the plowing of a field by the emperor in person and the subsequent sowing of wheat and other highly valued grain.

St. Paul's epistle upon immortality in which he likens man's death, burial and resurrection to grain sown in the dark depths of earth and its quickened outburst of life and beauty above ground gave origin to an old Christian custom of carrying dishes of parboiled wheat in funeral processions and of setting vessels of parboiled corn before the singers of holy hymns in commemorative services for the departed.

The Bride of the Wheat.

Many are the picturesque customs of wheat harvest, none more delightfully romantic than an old Moravian one where a portion of wheat is left standing until the end, to be cut amid great rejoicing of the reapers by a young girl chosen as Wheat Bride, crowned with wheat ears—and the shining prophecy that she will be a real bride before the year is out.

Very convincingly Klippart shows the important part the culture of wheat, co-eval with civilization, has played in man's development, impelling him to give up nomadic life, to invent the plow and other agricultural implements, and to domesticate first the ox and then the horse for motor power—also quoting the following delightful American Indian anecdote related by a French pioneer traveler that is one of the most impassioned pleas for the growing of wheat ever put into words.

The Indians' Lesson.

"Do you not see the whites living upon seeds while we eat flesh?" said a great chief to his people. "Do you not see that flesh requires more than thirty moons to grow up, and is then often scarce. That each of the wonderful seeds they sow in the earth returns them a hundred-fold. The flesh on which we subsist has four legs to escape from us while we have but two to pursue and capture it. The grain remains where the white men sow it, and grows. With them winter is a period of rest, while with us it is a time of laborious hunting. From these reasons they have so many children, and live longer than we do. I say, therefore, unto every one that will hear me, that before the cedars of our valley shall have died down with age and the maple trees of the valley shall have ceased to give us sugar, the race of the little corn (wheat) sowers will have exterminated the race of the flesh-eaters, provided their huntsmen do not resolve to become sowers."

So in the earliest days of the earliest settlers the people of these United States, now "the greatest wheat producing country in the world" were the sowers of the life-giving seed—the great tide of western immigration after the Civil War carrying the wheat growing habit with it in the wide spread wheat fields of the Mid-West, while as early as 1796 wheat was grown in California by the mission fathers, the first export shipment made in 1806, Siberia the goal.

But wheat grain and wheat flour are two very different things and very interesting is the story of the evolution of milling summed up by William Edgar one of our authorities already cited.

For 4000 years the hand stone was the only form of mill used.

Hand Mills.

The first grinding mill was the so-called saddle-stone, "the method of grinding used by native Africans today the same as that in use in the time of Abraham," the grain placed in the hollow of the lower stone with concav surface and rubbed by another stone worked forward and back.

The mortar succeeded the saddle-stone, the Greeks in using it substituting men called pounders for women, the original flour makers.

Slaves were the first pounders—the tedious, wearisome task of grinding imposed upon them frequently in punishment for misconduct, while later when the state mills were established among the Greeks and Romans, criminals were put to work in them as a sentence to hard labor.

The entire process of flour making and baking at first a domestic art of the individual household, there were no public bakers in Rome until the war with Perseus of Macedonia over 580 years after the founding of the city, when a band of captured Greek pounders led into Rome as part of the triumphant procession of Paulus Aemilius were put to work grinding and baking.

The Italian quern whose upper stone revolved upon the lower, used at the beginning of the Christian era and the original flour mill of England, was the next step in advance in milling inventions.

After the abolition of slavery, mills worked by cattle were substituted.

The first power-worked mill was the water-mill, followed much later by the wind-mill which was not introduced into England until the beginning of the thirteenth century.

Amusing is the story of the first steam "mill," the grinding of the wheat by means of a fire engine at the end of Blackfriars Bridge, London.

Municipal Pawnshops.

The French call them monts-de-piete, but no satisfactory explanation for this nomenclature is forthcoming. The establishment of municipal pawnshops in France was attended with more difficulty than was the case in other countries.

It is from Italy that the idea of municipal pawnshops spread over the rest of Europe. A municipal pawnshop was set up in Madrid in the year 1705, when a priest with very little capital opened up as an "uncle." The system was tried at Avignon in 1577, but it was not until the year 1777 that Paris itself was provided with a mont-de-piete. The National Assembly upset the monopoly and the business passed into private hands. The extortions of the pawnbrokers in time led, however, to a demand for the re-establishment of the governmental institutions. In 1806 Napoleon re-established the monopoly, regulating it by laws that are still in force. The interest charged amounts to about 7 per cent.

In Paris the mont-de-piete is in effect a department of the administration, but in the provinces it is a municipal monopoly.

WHEN WILLIE HAD HIS PICTURE TAKEN.

And Attained His Ambition. By Mary Julia Irwin.

WELL, 'twas jest two years ago today, that my poor old grandpa got hung out in Montana," said Lafayette, as he took out his arithmetic to do his compound interest. The weather was certainly not the sort to suggest a hanging. Nevertheless, Lafayette spoke the truth, for it was just two years before that his grandpa had been hanged. "Of course," his mother had explained when she brought him to school, "it was not my father, for all the bad blood in Lafayette is from his father's side."

Whether Lafayette remembered this day as the anniversary of the old cattle thief's demise, it will always be green in my mind as the one that brought Willie Hall to our school. And he came followed by a bad reputation.

The Juvenile Court warned me against him. The probation officer telephoned immediately. The principal of his old school was loud in her condemnation of Willie's past, present and future. But to me, as he stood before me, I could see nothing but a thin, white-faced boy, his clothes torn and ragged, his shoes bursting at the sides, and he seemed to be too weak and forlorn to care whether he was in school or out of it.

That June it was as warm as mid-summer. Teacher dismissed school every day at quarter after two. So that gave the boys something to live for—to watch that thermometer slowly mounting upward. If it did not mount fast enough to suit Jakie Cusimano, I would catch him aiding it a little with a match.

So from noon time, when one half the boys were at their manual training lesson in the next room, the other half sat still as mice, while teacher read "King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table." King Arthur happened to be the idol of the hour, "except," as Hughey de Cal would often ponder, "the son of a gun is too good to be true."

Willie was the only boy who did not share in the admiration of England's early hero. "Teacher, I don't like that book. Do you care if I read 'Toby Tyler or Ten Weeks with the Circus,' by myself?" When I consented, he was grateful enough to thank me and he moved away to a table alone.

It was almost stifling in the room. Not a breath of air anywhere. I envied several of the barefoots. They looked comfortable. It was hard for me to keep my eyes open, much harder to read aloud enthusiastically of the poor unfortunate Lady of Shalott. What we all needed on a hot June day was a story peppered with action. Willie sat motionless reading "Toby Tyler," his thin lips mumbling slowly over every word. He shuffled in his seat, curling his toes around the table leg when suddenly he fairly jumped up into the air, howling with pain.

"Oh, teacher, for God's sake help me! Oh, teacher."

Down went "King Arthur" on the floor with a bang. And instantly boys and teacher surrounded Willie. And Willie—he danced up and down, first on one foot and then on another, while from the seat of his trousers issued volumes of black smoke.

"Oh, teacher, me pants is on fire from the matches in my pocket," he wailed. I tried to beat the fire out with my hands, so did Eugene, but we did not succeed in doing anything but burn Willie more and more.

Homer spoke. "Here you, Hughey, run in and take de nozzle off he faucet in de manual training washroom, and we'll turn the water on Willie's pants."

Led by the burning hero, teacher and the other boys followed to the washroom post haste where Hugh acted as fire chief and in a twinkling put out the fire. It was necessary to send Isadore, who lived quite near the school, home for a pair of old pants for Willie, so that he could get home.

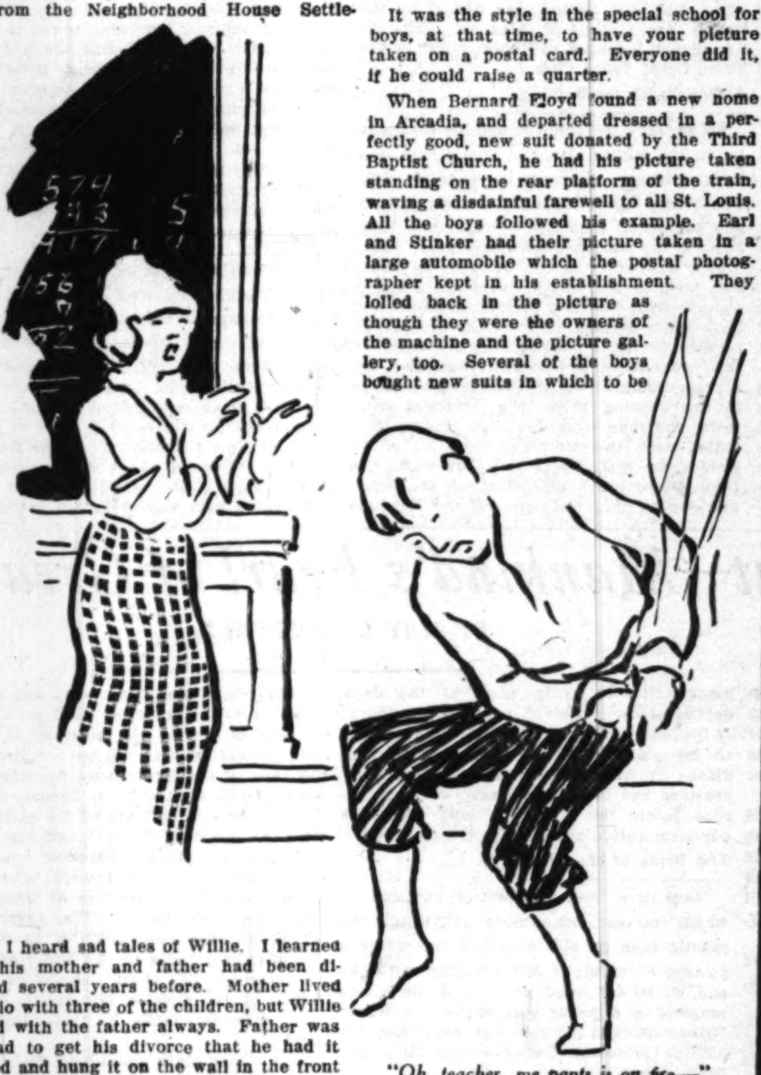
"Now, boys, you see what comes of smoking," I said. "You keep matches in your pockets and you sit down on them, and the first thing you know, you nearly get burned up. What's the good of smoking, anyway? No really great athlete ever smokes, chews or drinks."

"Say, teacher," said James Casey, "me an' George has quit smoking, and now today we quit chewin'—only licorice. So when you see spit on the stairs, 'taint tobacco, it's licorice."

Before I could say anything Hugh answered for me. "Well you dirty guy, if I catch you and George spittin' anything on the stairs, you'll get into some trouble with me."

Willie's burns healed rapidly and he began to feel more at home after that day. One morning as he came into the schoolroom, I called him to me and said, "Willie, you are happy here, aren't you. And you do like it here now, don't you? Do tell me that you do."

And he answered. "Yes'm, I like you. I like the guys and I like the learning, and the Alger books. Only I jest never will get over missing my beer for lunch."



"Oh, teacher, me pants is on fire—"

From the Neighborhood House Settlement, I heard sad tales of Willie. I learned that his mother and father had been divorced several years before. Mother lived in Ohio with three of the children, but Willie stayed with the father always. Father was so glad to get his divorce that he had it framed and hung it on the wall in the front room of the Halls' two-room apartment. Mr. Hall did the housekeeping for Willie and himself, and I am afraid sometimes they both were woefully neglected.

One afternoon after school was over, I sat at my desk making out reports, when I looked up and found a woman standing in the doorway smiling broadly at me.

"Are you Miss Irwin?" she asked.

I bade her enter and asked her what I could do for her.

"Well, teacher, it's just this way. I am a great friend of Mr. Hall's, father of Willie, the one you teach. Willie is always telling us at the house how you are a lawyer and knows a lots about law."

"No, I am not a lawyer!" I corrected (secretly flattered to death.) "I am merely a law student, not a licensed lawyer, at all."

"Oh, pshaw! Ain't that a shame? You see I wanted you to get me a divorce for about $25, or so. I would pay that for one—only too glad."

"Why do you want a divorce," I asked. "Isn't your husband good to you? Does he drink? Doesn't he earn you a living? Does he beat you? Why do you want one?"

"My husband is a bartender, but he don't drink. No, indeed, not one drop does he drink, nor has he ever. But I am sick of him, that's all, and when I get a divorce, I am going to marry Willie's father. My husband knows all about it and he don't mind a bit. We live right next door to the Halls and I help 'em clean up and I make Willie's waists now. I've took a fancy to them people and I ain't got no children of my own, so I'll sure be good to Willie. Mr. Hall said you would get the divorce easy."

"Well, I can't get anybody a divorce, and I advice you to go home and be good to the husband you've got. Leave Mr. Hall and Willie alone. You would only bring misery to everyone concerned. Promise me that you will."

But the strange visitor departed, very much disgruntled, without promising.

The last time I saw Willie, I asked him if he had a new stepmother, and he replied, in a very disgusted manner, "Nix! Say, where did you get that noise? The old man can't even support us."

It was the style in the special school for boys, at that time, to have your picture taken on a postal card. Everyone did it, if he could raise a quarter.

When Bernard Floyd found a new home in Arcadia, and departed dressed in a perfectly good, new suit donated by the Third Baptist Church, he had his picture taken standing on the rear platform of the train, waving a disdainful farewell to all St. Louis. All the boys followed his example. Earl and Stinker had their picture taken in a large automobile which the postal photographer kept in his establishment. They lolled back in the picture as though they were the owners of the machine and the picture gallery, too. Several of the boys bought new suits in which to be photographed.

I noticed when the pictures were passed around from one dirty hand to another, that Willie stood, wistfully looking on, as though to be able really to be photographed was the height of luxury and ambition. So one day he handed me a postal carefully wrapped in a piece of very dirty newspaper. And of all the pictures in all the school, Willie's was the only one that was typical. With another boy he had been photographed. Willie sat in a large arm chair, as natural as life. His cap was on his head, and it was the same tattered cap he wore every day to school. His shirt was ragged and open at the neck. He was smiling the most care-free, happy smile in the world. Why shouldn't he smile, when he had achieved his ambition? And the other boy was seated on the arm of Willie's chair looking just as happy and delighted as his partner.

"Why, Willie, what a perfectly corking picture!" I said. "Is it for me, really?"

"You bet it is," he answered."

"And who is the other boy, a friend of yours?" I asked.

"No, ma'am, that ain't no friend of mine. I never seen him till the day I went to get the picture taken, an' I saw him standin' outside of the picture place lookin' in, an' I said, 'Say, guy, you and me would look nice on a picture together. What'd y'u say if we go halves on one and get it taken?' And so we did."

"Good for you, Willie, it is simply fine and I want it very, very much. It is the best real boy picture I ever saw. How did you earn the money to get your picture taken—a whole quarter's worth?"

"Totin' beer for the neighbors," he answered.

And how could I scold him when by the postal card with his own face and his companion's upon it, he had attained his ambition?

How Animals Behave in War Zone.

...sium of alarm—an hour in advance, on the average, flapping and screeching vehemently. They stood and hissed the aliens as they passed through the village. . . .

And, generally, experience at air stations shows that birds are, on the whole, the best of all sentries, at least until they get accustomed to firing and the unusual vibrations of war, whatever they be, insensible to human experience. Parrots, early in the war, were tried at the Eiffel Tower, with the notable result, at first, that they gave warning from twenty minutes to half an hour before the airplane or airship could be made out by telescope or heard by ear or machines of the hour. But the parrots, finally, appeared to grow bored and indifferent, and could not be kept indefinitely at work.

in the land of vineyards, where children have to be mobilized to fight them off! Little birds, the same. Where they used to pass in serried columns, there were miserable squadrons of a few dozens! Ardennes finches, notably, which used to migrate south by the 2,000,000 flying over the Burgundy valleys, were never again seen, after the autumn of 1915!

Same phenomenon for the birds of prey. No more buzzards, sparrowhawks and only two hawks brought into Dijon in three years! It was said that their prey, the little birds, were gone; but how about the crows, who acted the same, who eat anything and never attack rat, rabbit or man unless wounded or dead—the crows equally quit the land.

Farmers said: "The war frightens them." But why should war make birds quit a land so far from war as Burgundy? How could they be frightened, flying so high, in their migrations? There is no war in the Far North. And it is notorious that, in the zone of the armies, where the cannonade never ceases, the birds were not scared away. During all 1915, 1916 and 1917, robins, larks, cookoos and others were seen numerously between the trenches; and the nightingale sings in the dark.

"Wee-wee," the life preserver of Calhoun street trench, in Lorraine. This cat, from the wharves of Philadelphia, is not a mascot, but something quite different.
[By courtesy of the photographic section of the French army. Copyright, Sterling Heilig.]

Pheasants have been found invariably to signal the approach of aircraft at night by their chattering and screaming. Elliott Shepherd in his Chantilly villa says that he needs no other warning against Gothas for his refugee children and convalescent wounded than a certain flock of scarlet China pheasants; and Section B 3 at Bourges depends on its cocks of Limoges, or Goldens, equally with the perfected microphone!

When the pheasants begin to talk, the airman gets ready to fly and the anti-aircraft gunner turns out. They have reported Zeppelins (at night) forty miles from their preserves; and it was certain, all over North England, that the pheasants heard the firing in the North Sea which accompanied the Battle of Dogger Bank.

Like parrots, they lose this peculiar sensitiveness with habit. In France, it is noticed generally that most birds, after their first terror, gradually grow accustomed to heavy firing and alien irruptions, and come to treat all the rage of man with the philosophical calm of the cow of Grecourt.

The Mystery of the Migrating Birds.

It seems, even, true of the migrating birds—which constituted a first-class mystery in 1915, 1916 and 1917, in all the special publications.

In the autumn of 1914, around Dijon, far from war, the regular passage of the migrators showed different from what it had been immemorially. The immense flocks of wild geese, ducks, thrushes, larks, finches, etc., were astonishingly less numerous than usual and more in a hurry. Not a flock stopped over two days in all Burgundy. Diminution and haste were yet more notable in 1915; and in 1916, except for water-fowl, the migrators had simply disappeared!

Not a flock of larks in 1917. Not a thrush

Some say there is a zone of poison gases which cuts off the grand migrations.

Tut, tut.

Suddenly, anew, great flocks of Ardennes finches have appeared in France, migrating leisurely northward, rather ahead of their schedule, but everything is upset—and northward toward the war!

Do the birds know?*

Aerial Trails.

HOW THE STATELY SWAN LEADS THE FLOCK.

It is said to be impossible for anyone who has seen only the common mute swans floating about in the artificial lakes of city parks to imagine the grandeur of a flock of the great whistlers in their wild state. One government scientist, attached to a bureau in Washington, says that the sight is one of the most impressive in nature.

As the huge birds rise into the air it seems as if an aerial regatta were being sailed overhead, the swans, each with a wing spread of six or seven feet, moving like yachts under full sail.

Once the swans are under way, their speed is amazing, nearly 100 miles an hour, and that, too, with no apparent effort, for the slow wing motion is very deceiving. Their endurance is as surprising as their speed, for they are said to travel 1000 miles without alighting.

The flocks are usually led by an old and experienced swan, and it is said that as one becomes tired of leading, or it might be called aerial trail breaking, his place is taken by another, whose strength is equal to the task, and so they continue until they reach their destination, the southern feeding ground of the winter, or the northern breeding places of the summer. Occasionally they stop to rest in the region of the Great Lakes. Not many years ago, while on their way north, a large number stopped above Niagara Falls, and more than 100 were, by some extraordinary mischance, carried over the falls and killed in the surging waters.

Whether the swans prepare in any special way for their southward journey is not known; but before starting north they indulge in the curious habit known as "ballasting," that is to say, they eat great quantities of sand, for what purpose no one knows.

In the Arctic Ocean lies their breeding place, and it is believed that they mate for life. As with so many of the water birds, the swans protect their eggs with a covering of down scratched from their own breasts, so that when the birds leave the nest, the two to six large, yellowish eggs are hidden from the eyes of possible thieves, and protected against any sudden changes of temperature.

It is many years before the swans are clothed in the feathers of immaculate whiteness that make them such conspicuous objects of beauty. Not, indeed, until the fifth year does all trace of gray disappear. Their first feathers are entirely gray; gradually they lighten, becoming mottled with white, the neck and head remaining gray until after the body is completely white.

CARE OF THE BODY.

Conducted by Harry Ellington Brook, N. D.

Marvelous Medical Discoveries.

AT AN International Congress on Hygiene and Demography, held not long ago in Washington, D. C., there were reported wonderful medical discoveries. For the benefit of the uninitiated, I should explain that "demography," according to the Standard dictionary, is "the study of vital and social statistics in their application to ethnology and anthropology." Now you know. It might better be termed "demonology," as it is one of the methods of scaring the people.

The most important discovery was that of a micro-organism, the smallest yet found, so deadly that its virus will kill rats, when used in quantities so small as one billionth of a cubic centimeter.

Drs. Anderson and Goldberg of the United States Health Service found that insects' bodies are carriers of typhus fever. This was disputed by the congress. They also found that sneezing carries the germs of measles.

A New York doctor declared that gland virus is better as an anti-toxin for rabies than brain virus. As neither is of any use, it does not matter.

Dr. John Long of Chicago said benzoate of soda is not harmful, Dr. Wiley to the contrary, notwithstanding. It happens that in this case Dr. Wiley is right.

A Swedish doctor suggested that infantile paralysis is carried through nose secretions. I thought it was stable flies.

A New York doctor said that 600,000 school children in the United States have traces of tuberculosis. Doubtless. Almost every autopsy reveals healed tuberculosis scars. The children will grow out of it, if they are given a chance, by right living, especially right eating.

Another New York doctor said a child should make its own moral code, and have any kind of food it wants when it wants it. You may have one guess as to who this doctor was. Woods Hutchinson? Yes, of course.

A woman doctor from New York said that immunization from influenza-meningitis can be obtained from the virus of the serum of persons suffering from the disease.

A New Orleans doctor announced that the malaria parasite can be produced artificially. What's the use?

A doctor who had been educated in Germany said yellow fever parasites exist. An American army officer disputed his contention. Let them fight it out with squirt guns.

A New York doctor said that "oysters in their raw state during the non-hibernating period are not carriers of contagious diseases." Yet I would not eat oysters raised near sewer outlets, at any period.

A Johns Hopkins doctor declared that "bacilli carriers do not require inoculation." This is consoling, because every human being carries, at some time, disease germs in his person.

A doctor from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has discovered that contagious diseases are spread through the pollution of railroad beds. Remarkable. How about lodging-house beds?

One of Johns Hopkins professors has discovered that reading and writing are unhygienic. He's more than half right, but what shall we do with all the libraries and newspapers?

A member of the United States Health Service suggested that the Panama Canal will be a meeting place for all contagious diseases, east, west, north and south. Lord, help Los Angeles.

A doctor from Porto Rico has discovered that walking in the wet, in bare feet, is apt to bring on hookworm disease. Father Kneipp evidently did not know anything about this.

An Ann Arbor doctor declared that a non-poisonous tubercle bacillus in an effective vaccine for tuberculosis. How are they going to decide just when the bug is poisonous, and when he is harmless?

A New York physician has made the great discovery that 10 per cent. of the population of the United States are inherently diseased, and unfit to be parents. He might have said 30 per cent. and yet have been within the truth.

A Paris physician has discovered that tuberculosis is not hereditary, but exclusively contagious. It is neither one nor the other, although you may inherit a tendency to consumption.

A Cleveland physician declared that 97 per cent. of the public school children have diseased mouths. No wonder when they are fed largely on mushes and candy.

Meantime, while the doctors are thus amusing themselves with bug hunting, diseases like cancer and tuberculosis and Bright's disease—due partly to wrong eating, partly to the poisoning of the blood with filthy serums—are increasing at an awful rate.

Commenting on these amazing discoveries, Dr. J. H. Tilden pertinently remarks:

"After going through this volume of business, can the members of the congress return home with one idea that they can put to practical use in benefiting mankind?

"If an observer will watch these meetings, he will find that they are made up of a lot of people who, instead of thinking, think they think. Aside from mutual admiration the business of these meetings is little more than baying at the moon."

Look to Your Teeth.

The care of the teeth is an important branch of the care of the body. This is recognized in the army. Dr. C. E. Markey, formerly of Pasadena, who is now a captain in a dental unit in Camp Kearny, Cal., writes that there are in the camp two large dental infirmaries, where all the dental work is done. There are twenty-six dentists in camp and there will soon be five more, as each division is entitled to thirty-one dentists and thirty-two dental assistants. Capt. Markey is in charge of Dental Unit No. 1, with sixteen dentists and seventeen assistants.

Dentistry is a constructive branch of surgery and is admirable, as distinguished from destructive surgery, for the removal of necessary organs of the body.

Ulceration of the teeth is often the unsuspected cause of chronic ailments. In a recent number of the American Magazine a writer tells how, while apparently well, he had been more or less constantly depressed and troubled with pains, for which the physicians could find no origin. He also lacked efficiency and was always tired. At the suggestion of a friend he had an X-ray taken of his teeth, of which he had taken what he supposed to be the best possible care. This is what the examination disclosed:

"Crowns in my mouth were leaking and secreting food that formed poisons; root canals, as the X-ray showed, had been only partially filled, resulting in abscesses. There were at least six so-called blind, because their presence was not indicated by any external swelling and could be discovered only by the X-ray. Yet any one of them was draining sufficient poison into my blood to corrupt my whole system."

He had every crown removed, every dead tooth opened and retreated—four could not be treated and had to be pulled—and new work put in from start to finish, every bit of it checked and tested as it went along by the X-ray. Since then he has been able to eat and sleep better and has far more vitality than ever before.

Remember, however, that ulcerated teeth, or neuralgia, or headaches, or skin eruptions, or any other ailments of that kind, are merely symptoms of a blood stream overcharged with waste matter.

After you have had your teeth fixed, eat so that your blood will be pure, or the bad condition will inevitably return. Get rid of the cause. Don't be satisfied with the suppression or removal of symptoms.

Decayed teeth, now so common as to be almost universal, are caused by the formation of acids, through wrong eating, especially the mixture of sugar and starch, which most Americans eat at least a day.

Height and Weight.

Goodwin Brown writes as follows, in his book "Scientific Nutrition Simplified:"

"The latest discoveries of science have proved conclusively that we know nothing whatever in regard to the relation of a man's weight to the state of his health. The tables prepared by life insurance companies, purporting to give the number of pounds that a man should weigh in proportion to his height, are mere guesses, based on their observation of the fact that healthy men of given heights and ages tend to tip the scales at the same point. This proves that these men have these heights, not that they should have them.

"Scientific authorities do not presume to say how many pounds a man needs to carry to be in perfect health, because they do not know. Experience tends to prove, however, that the old idea that fat people are the healthiest is a fallacy, and that, as a matter of fact, it is the thin, wiry people who are likely to live longer and enjoy the best of health. The experience of most of us is, probably, that the best health we have ever enjoyed was in the "spindling" period of our youth, when our extreme leanness often made us a butt for the humorous remarks of our friends."

To this I add that life insurance statistics show that not one person greatly overweight has died of old age.

Stimulants.

Some people, when they refer to stimulants, think only of alcohol. Alcohol is only one of many stimulants.

Besides coffee and tea there are the condiments of various kinds. Meat is a stimulant, due to the waste animal poison it contains. Refined cane sugar is a stimulant. Tobacco is a stimulant, although primarily a sedative.

Many who never tasted alcohol are chronically loaded up with stimulants.

Praying and Doing.

Lord Palmerston—"Pam" as he was affectionately termed by his friends—was one of the shrewdest statesmen that ever lived. When petitioned by the Scotch clergy to appoint a day for fasting and prayer, so that a threatened epidemic of cholera might be averted, he replied:

"Clean your streets, keep your homes clean, promote cleanliness and health among the poor, see that they are plentifully supplied with good food and clothing, and employ right sanitary measures generally, and you will have no occasion to fast and pray, nor will the Lord hear your prayer while these His preventors remain unheeded."

Constipation and Water Drinking.

There is much virtue in the "dry diet" with which the German peasant Schroth effected remarkable cures about a century ago. Writing on the effect of copious water drinking, as it affects constipation, J. H. Tilden, M.D., says:

"People who are constipated—positively constipated—should stop drinking water. Why? Because they have developed elimination by way of the kidneys instead of by way of the bowels. The more water taken into the system, the more constipated the bowels will become. One may have a stream of water going into the stomach all the time, but the bowels will become as dry as the Sahara Desert. I see the truth of this all the time. I have proved it, and I really have thought long enough on the subject to find that I have been playing the fool in recommending water to people who are constipated in the last twenty-five to forty years. It is almost impossible for established opinions to be changed; that is why advancement is so slow.

"Drinking or swilling of water to overcome constipation, when the kidneys have once got in line with carrying off all the fluids of the body, will not correct constipation. There is but one way, and that is to re-establish the secretions of fluid into the stomach and bowels. This cannot be done other than by suffering with thirst until nature diverts the liquid, fluid, or water of the blood into the stomach and bowels, and reestablishes normal secretions, thereby relieving the kidneys of their burden.

"It requires a little patience. This change will not take place at once; the perversion was not brought about in a day.

"The kidneys are overworked by excessive water-drinking. Digestion is injured by diluting the secretions of the stomach by excessive water-drinking, and in time diabetes or Bright's disease will develop from acidosis.

"When digestion is broken down from acidity, enzymic secretions are so inhibited that the sugar and starch are not taken care of at all, and diabetes results. Diabetes appears to be on the increase these days, and it is partly due to the fact that people are trying to do something for the bowels by drinking water. A normal person should not drink anything except when there is a desire; and when eating a properly balanced ration there will be little thirst. People who drink a lot are those who eat improperly. They do not eat enough raw vegetables and fruit."

Kidney Diseases.

Following is by R. L. Alsaker, M.D., in one of his books:

"Those who lead abnormal lives always become diseased, and the kidneys suffer with the rest of the body. When an individual develops diabetes or Bright's disease, we know that he has made grave errors in his way of living—that he has sinned against his body.

"Both of these ills have been looked upon as incurable down to the present time. The truth is that if taken in time they are curable. Medicines are worthless, but correct living, and especially correct eating, will result in a cure, if there is not a great deal of degeneration in the substance of the kidneys and the rest of the body is in fair condition.

"The cure depends largely upon the patient. As you doubtless know, drugs and doctors can't cure anything or anybody, but the doctor can direct people how to live so as to cure themselves. A good physician can guide a sick individual back to health, but the old idea that doctors and drugs cure is exploded. The province of the doctors is to point the way to health; that is, his duty is to be a teacher and a guide. Then let the patient do as directed and if the directions are correct and the disease is still curable—as most cases of diabetes and Bright's disease are—health will come through the kindly offices of Mother Nature.

"Diabetes and Bright's disease are unique in that no prominent physician has blamed germs for producing them, so we have no bacillus diabeticus or diplococcus Bright's diseasicus!"

Woman's Rights and Wrongs.

Now that woman is getting the right to vote, there are other rights she will doubtless demand; rights she should have insisted upon long ago. Foremost among these is the right to contro. her own body.

A few short years ago a happy and healthy girl, see now, that frail, weary, prematurely old woman, toiling hard all day at her monotonous household tasks, trying to control a brood of unruly children—you need not preach to her of "race suicide"—and used at night by her husband as a means of working off the effects of his dietetic excesses, even at a period when animals and men we call "savages" respect their mates. And for all this, what does she receive? Plain board and lodging, and a few inexpensive clothes, most of the dressmaking being done in her "leisure time."

If you know anything of the life of the plain people you know that this is no exaggerated statement, no uncommon case.

Should she venture to complain, she will be told that this is her "God appointed" duty in life, a priestly phrase to aid Man in asserting his supremacy over his "God given" slave, for while the Christian religion, unlike the Mohammedan, grants woman a soul, it teaches her, either directly or by implication, to regard her body as the property of a man.

When do you hear a preacher denounce this great wrong? Not only would it be highly improper, and indeed shocking, but it would hit too many honored heads in the respectable congregation. Much safer to talk against the Mormons.

As to the medical fraternity, a good family physician often recommends a young fellow, who cannot control his sexual passions, because he overeats of stimulating foods, to marry some sweet, modest girl, who little recks of what lies before her. This, with gonorrheal infection, is the cause of 90 per cent. of "female ailments."

Wives of the wealthy, married to gross men, may more readily resort to the relief of divorce, to which this condition frequently leads, but they are often kept from this step by love of their children, if they are so unfortunate as to have any.

This is a form of white slavery of which we hear little, although bitter resentment against such gross injustice rankles in the minds of hundreds of thousands of unhappy women, whenever they dare permit themselves to think on the subject.

Nor are the men altogether to blame for this state of affairs, because from youth they have been taught, or allowed to believe, that this is one of their inalienable "God-given" rights. They must be disillusionized. To do this, and to educate the public in regard to the necessity of granting woman justice, not only for her good, but for the good of the race, is one of the objects of the Eugenic movement. Give it your encouragement and aid.

Finally, as I have heretofore said, it is as unreasonable to overfeed a man stimulating food, containing a surplus of phosphate, and expect him to be sexually chaste, or temperate, as it would be to place a man on a hot stove and tell him not to burn.

Peanuts.

The Literary Digest says:

"Nuts may be used instead of meat in the diet and they are rich in both protein and fat, which makes them comparable with flesh food. Meat is growing more costly, and we are learning more about nut-production, so that it is natural to anticipate a still greater use of nuts as meat substitutes. In these war-times, too, people are ready and willing to try all sorts of dietetic experiments that they would reject in the piping times of peace."

This is true. A pound of nuts equals in food value almost three pounds of lean beef. Also, nuts require no refrigeration, thus making a great difference in shipping space.

The Digest also quotes the Journal of the American Medical Association in support of the value of the peanut as a food. The writer of the article in the Journal says, however, that the "inorganic constituents of the peanut are not adequate in quality to supply sufficient calcium and certain elements." The writer, doubtless means "organic" elements. When rats begin to eat T rails, then you may begin to believe that human beings can be nourished on inorganic minerals. They must get the organic minerals, as found in food.

It is claimed for the peanut that the protein of the nut belongs to a class rare among the products of the vegetable kingdom and known to the chemists as "complete protein," found only so far in the almond and a few other nuts, in the peanut and in the soy bean. Thus the peanut is a perfect substitute for meat—also being more wholesome and much cheaper.

Indeed, the peanut is a much more perfect food than meat. Meat is almost entirely protein, whereas the peanut contains also carbohydrates and fat. Also, meat is deficient in the minerals calcium, iron and sulphur, while it contains a great surplus of phosphorus. The deficiency of peanuts in calcium may easily be remedied by adding a little lettuce or other green leaf vegetables, that contain a surplus of the mineral.

One square mile planted to peanuts will support 2500 persons, while a square mile devoted to range cattle will support only about fifty persons.

The peanut is not a true nut, but belongs to the legume family, of which peas, beans and lentils are members.

The peanut should not be too much roasted, or fats are freed which irritate the lining of the stomach. Some like peanuts raw. You may purchase uncooked peanut butter at health stores. You may also cook the peanuts like beans.

A Vegetarian Tramp.

Dan O'Leary the famous pedestrian was recently about to walk from Chicago to Mineral Wells, Tex., a distance of 1100 miles. O'Leary is a well known athlete and is now about 70 years of age. He proposed to finish his walk in twenty-six days, an average of forty-two miles a day, certainly a task which a good many younger men would not care to undertake. Referring to this "Good Health" says:

"The important point is that Mr. O'Leary proposes to take this walk on an extremely simple diet—bran bread and sour milk. It will furnish all the elements required for sound nutrition while eliminating the mischiefs necessarily connected with the meat diet.

"When Battling Nelson suffered his first defeat he charged it to beefsteak. The products of putrefaction of the undigested remnants of meat in the colon are powerful fatigue poisons, so the less meat the better for a person undergoing such an endurance test.

"We would suggest, however, that Mr. O'Leary improve his bill of fare by the addition of potatoes, fruits and perhaps a few nuts."

Tonsils are Necessary Organs.

A New York physician says: "The tonsils possess important mechanical, acoustic, and phonetic functions. Their shape, size, presence or absence causes a variation in the resonance of the sounding portions of the throat and makes a change in the quality of the voice. In many instances the singing voice has been practically ruined by removing the tonsils."

This is in accordance with what I have been writing for many years. Not only does the cutting out of the tonsils ruin the voice, but the removal of these guardians at the portal of the throat renders a person specially liable to throat and chest ailments.

When I was a boy I went through the usual course of mumps and enlarged tonsils, due to wrong feeding, in the shape of a mixture of surplus starches and sweets that rendered the blood acid. Our family physician was one of the leading practitioners of the regular school in London, but he was a wise man. He gave some directions in regard to diet and told my mother to rub powdered burned alum on the tonsils and the trouble soon disappeared.

Not infrequently operations on the tonsils cause death. A correspondent in Columbus, O., sends me a newspaper clipping, telling of the death of Samuel E. Neff, secretary of the Columbus Real Estate Board, following an operation on his tonsils.

Only Two Schools of Healing.

Following is from "Vitality, Fasting and Nutrition," by Hereward Carrington:

"There are, broadly speaking, two and only two schools of healing in the world; the hygienic, on the one hand, and every other school, sect or system, on the other. No matter what the physician may be—allopath, homeopath, osteopath, eclectic, faith-curist, mind-curist, Christian Scientist, or what not—he is not a hygienist, in that he does not know the real cause and cure of disease. The theory, or the philosophy of disease which the hygienist defends is totally opposed to all other medical systems, being directly opposite to them in theory."

Strength does not necessarily mean health, any more than wealth means happiness.

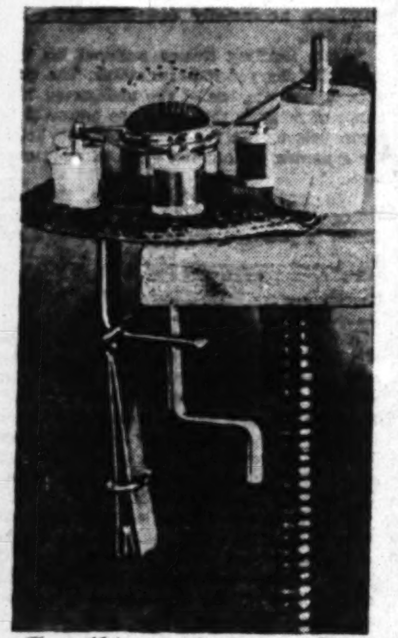
EVERY HOUSEKEEPER SHOULD KNOW—

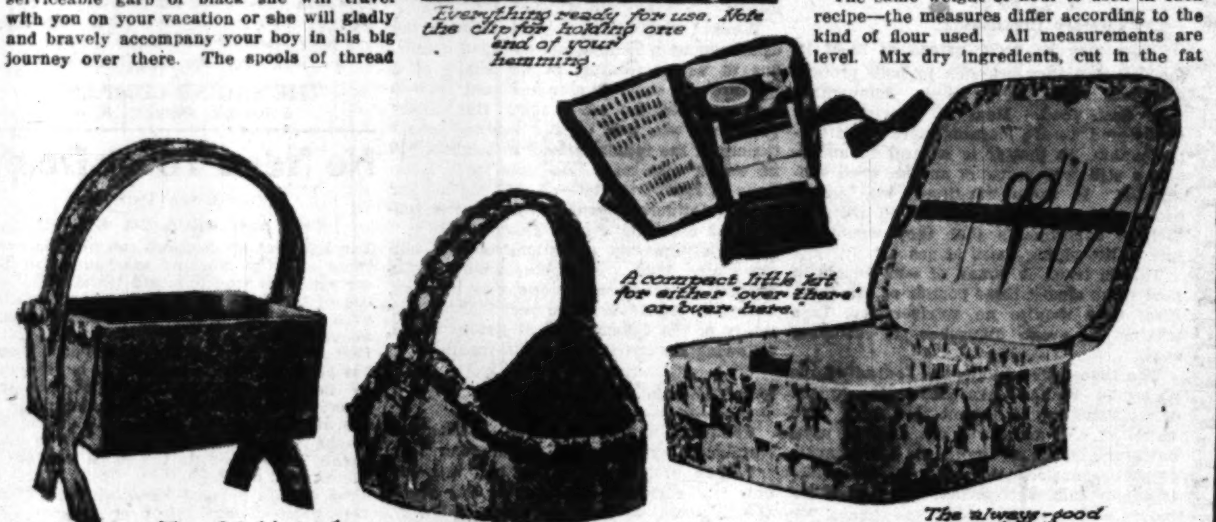
Of These Sewing Conveniences. By Retta Badger.

[All feasible suggestions for this page will be very much appreciated. Any pictures of attractive corners of the home or practical things will be very acceptable. How to keep house with little labor is the slogan of today and we would like the ideas of readers on the subject. Any information regarding anything published or illustrated on this page very gladly given by the editor of it.]

DID you ever tear your skirt by pinning your material to it to hold that material for hemming? We've all done it, but it would not have happened if we had had this little snap in the illustration. It is just one part of the most convenient arrangement which holds all the inconveniences of sewing. This little disc, which holds securely all your spools and pins may be attached to the corner of the sewing machine or table or wherever it suits you. It is padded so that it will not hurt the surface of the table. The spools are on metal pegs much in the same fashion that the thread is on your sewing machine so that there is no tangling of threads. The pins are always handy and the clip for holding "the other end" of your sewing is there, always ready for your use.



Everything ready for use. Note the clip for holding one end of your hemming.



A compact little kit for either "over there" or over here.

Two fetching shapes of brocade.

The always-good work box.

For the maid who would a sewing go.

A GOOD HOUSEWIFE.

She is a good little soul this little housewife that is always ready for an emergency, when you need her most. In her modest serviceable garb of black she will travel with you on your vacation or she will gladly and bravely accompany your boy in his big journey over there. The spools of thread are fastened in securely, so that you have only to take hold of the end of the thread and unwind what you want, and everything else is there in its proper place.

SOME ATTRACTIVE SHAPES.

The Frenchy little brocade covered baskets are always in good style for carrying your sewing in and they go so beautifully with summer costumes that owning one is like a wonderful addition to your wardrobe.

THE EVER USEFUL WORK BOX.

And then there is the old-fashioned work box done up in its new fashioned dress of up-to-date cretonne to match your room. It is an old standby that in spite of new ideas we never seem to be quite able to get along without.

ABOUT MAKING OVER CLOTHES.

If you possess material that in spite of cleaning, washing or dyeing, still remains disfigured by a spot or two, plan a blouse or frock trimmed with braiding or beading. Arrange the design so plenty of beads or braid hide the spots.

An old fashioned tailored suit often makes an attractive one piece dress. If the material is faded it is better to turn it. If there is a satin lining the same shade and in fairly good condition it will make pretty collars and covered buttons with which to trim the dress.

If you possess a hat that is spotted make the trimming cover the spots. Flowered chiffon, silk, or appliqued silk or cretonne motifs will do this. Where a white or light hat looks hopeless from hat-pin holes, make a diamond lattice all over the hat, of quarter inch velvet ribbon in either green or black and place clusters of small roses at intervals around the base of the crown.

Frills from old fashioned waist fronts and sleeves that are soiled or worn in places should be cleaned and dyed delicate shades for the sleeves of an up-to-date lingerie frock, the brim of a theater hat or the border of a boudoir cap.

A taffeta petticoat of Kelly green "gone to pieces" can be still wearable as a "crushed" hat band around a panama, or for pipings and buttons on a wool dress.

Two old silk dresses that either match or contrast prettily, will sometimes combine to make one new up-to-date frock. Crepe de chine and charmeuse go well together, as do also silk and wool.

There are numbers of ways of making a skirt longer where there is a shortage of material. One is to make an underskirt of another material. For example with serge—a silk or velvet underskirt. Another way to lengthen the skirts is to set on a crossing band with a piping. Another is to band the lower edge of the skirt with trimming—wool embroidery, plaid silk and so forth. Still another method is to insert trimming top and bottom or at intervals down the skirt.

A new collar of white satin or bengaline will freshen up a dingy dark suit wonderfully.

Lingerie and blouses of white crepe de chine that have become yellow from laundering can be improved by tinting pale blue or pink. Red ink or red tissue paper will tint water varying degrees of pink suitable for dyeing. Strong bluing makes inexpensive but good pale blue dye.

When you are tired of a white voile waist that looks gray from repeated washing tint it a delicate green, violet or yellow. Tissue paper and boiling water will do the trick.

Silk sweaters hopelessly faded or torn should not be thrown away. The wrong side where the material is good makes attractive hat crowns and hand bags. Even silk stockings with "holey" feet or "ladder" legs will make a crown to a little child's hat. Of course light colored ones are to be used and stretched tightly over a buckram frame so that the stocking will resemble the fashionable jersey and tricot weaves.

White silk gloves that are not worn but that have become yellow from washing are improved by dyeing gray or tan. Coffee, diluted and tested first on a bit of white cloth, will dye a good shade of tan. Tea will produce a delicate champagne color desirable for georgette or laces.

Crepe de chine waists too far gone for any other use will sometimes furnish a crossing strip, from the sleeves or back, to hem for a windsor tie.

Scraps from the white tub skirt will make an outing hat, collars for little boys' wash suits and collars and cuffs for milady's tailored suit.

CORN-OATS SHORTCAKE.

One cup liquid, four tablespoons fat, one tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, six teaspoons baking powder, one and one-third cups corn flour, one and one-half cups ground rolled oats.

The same weight of flour is used in each recipe—the measures differ according to the kind of flour used. All measurements are level. Mix dry ingredients, cut in the fat and add the liquid. For individual serving, place dough on slightly floured board, pat to three-fourths inch thickness and cut as for biscuit. If a large shortcake is wanted, place dough in well greased biscuit tin and pat to desired thickness.

These shortcakes are light and tender. An egg added to rice or corn flour makes a softer dough. The slightly acid taste of barley may be overcome by using one-fourth teaspoon of soda dissolved in one cup of liquid. The flavor of oat and corn is especially good. The shortcakes made from corn or rice flour are very white and flakey and similar in appearance to wheat flour.

Do not split these cakes as they crumble easily. Pile strawberries or other fruit on shortcake. Add whipped cream, if desired, and serve. These shortcakes can be used instead of pie crust in a great variety of desserts.

HOW SWEET IS SYRUP?

A cup of syrup is not as sweet as a cup of sugar but will frequently be found sweet enough. There is a tendency to oversweeten foods. The table below gives the sweetening value of different amounts of corn syrup in terms of sugar and will be found useful in making sugar-saving substitutions in your recipes.

Sugar.	Corn Syrup.
1 cup equals	1 3-5 cup
3-4 cup equals	1 1-5 "
1-2 cup equals	4-5 "
1 tablespoon equals	1 3-5 tbs

Half syrup and half sugar give better results in cooking than all syrup. With one cup of syrup use one-fourth cup less liquid.

Speaking of potatoes, not ball players.

It may not pass the examination for dignity, but this hoarse suggestion of the bleacher fan quite accurately carries the thought which the Department of Agriculture and the Food Administration are to impress upon Americans in the potatoes" campaign. It's a serious tion.

Millions of bushels of potatoes should be eaten within the next few weeks. If we eat them, we save wheat and potatoes. And if we save wheat, the boys in France who are holding that line can "carry on" under the same rallying cry—

"At 'em boys; eat 'em up."

POTATO ROLLS (THREE DOZEN)

Three cups mashed potatoes, four and one-half cups flour, three teaspoons salt, two tablespoons corn syrup, one cake compressed yeast softened in one-fourth cup water, three-fourths cup milk scalded, two tablespoons fat.

Add the hot milk to the potato and when the mixture has cooled until it is lukewarm, add the softened yeast and other ingredients. Allow the dough to rise to double its bulk. Work it down and let it rise until it has increased in size by about one-half. Then shape the rolls, let them rise until they are double in size and bake them in a hot oven.

BARLEY-OATS SHORTCAKE.

Follow directions for barley-corn flour, using one and one-half cups rolled oats ground in food chopper instead of the corn flour.

RICE FLOUR SHORTCAKE.

Follow directions for corn flour, using and one-fourth cups rice flour instead of corn flour.

Last Fight in Armor.

PROVED THE VALUE OF BODY PROTECTION.

The annals of the French army indicate that the last fight in armor occurred during the time of Napoleon. In the year 1799, the main army of the French having withdrawn from the town of Aquila, a body of some 400 soldiers remained in the place, the inhabitants of which were well disposed toward them. The peasants of the surrounding region, however, were bitterly hostile and, rising in revolt, penetrated the town and drove the Frenchmen into the fortress, which was small and weak, yet sufficiently powerful to hold the insurgents at bay with its cannon.

These insurgents numbered 10,000 or 12,000. They barricaded the streets and loopholed the houses so that they were safe from attack, but this did not satisfy them. They wished to take the fort, which, without artillery, was plainly impossible. Finally some clever brain devised a scheme that came near to succeeding.

Between the fort and the nearest houses there lay on the glacis, without carriages and resting upon pieces of wood, twelve guns which the French had not had time to take into the fort with them. The position of the guns exposed them to fire from both sides, so that it was not thought they would be interfered with, though by way of precaution two of the guns of the fortification were kept trained on them.

One evening the sentinel heard a noise. He fired, but the noise continued and did not immediately cease after other shots, though it seemed to draw farther off. When daylight came it was seen that, under cover of darkness, the insurgents had reached the nearest gun, attached a rope to the breech, and then, fastening the rope to a capstan in the nearest house, had attempted to haul the piece away.

Had it been an experienced military man who tried the trick, he would have succeeded, but the peasants did not know enough to thrust rollers under the gun before hauling, and consequently the breech dug a furrow into the soil which soon became deep enough to impede further progress.

Nevertheless, the besieged were much irritated by the occurrence and determined to prevent a repetition of it. They cannonaded the house from which the rope issued, but when the walls fell they found that the capstan was in the cellar and, consequently, uninjured, although blocked for the time being by debris. This did not content them. Then it was remembered by the commandant of the fort that he had seen stowed away in it somewhere a dozen suits of ancient armor. He selected twelve of his best men, gunners and grenadiers, clothed them in this armor, and sent them out to spike the guns.

Covered with steel from head to foot and carrying spikes and hammers, the men marched heavily, awkwardly, out of the fort and moved in dead silence toward the covered guns, the white smoke curling about their mailed figures, and bullets pattering harmlessly against antique helm and corselet. Many of the peasants were horror-struck and believed the strange figures to be diabolical and invulnerable, while, after the first anxious moment was passed, their own comrades, looking from the walls, broke into exultant roars of laughter.

The twelve modern knights returned safely from their raid, having spiked the guns and cut the rope. Though many times hit, they had but one wound among them, a slight one received by a soldier who had wrongly adjusted a "brassart," so that it fell off and left his arm exposed. The insurgents were discouraged; and, though the blockade continued, there was little more fighting and the besieged were soon relieved by their friends.

The Driest Place on Eearth.

The city of Payta, in Peru, is the driest place on earth. It is within five degrees of the equator, and the inhabitants see a shower on the average of about once in two years. Frequently, six or eight years elapse between rainfalls, but when a shower does come, it lasts usually from twelve to twenty hours. Strange as it may seem, there are seven species of annual plants which exist in this place, and the natives raise a kind of cotton with extra-long roots, which go down far into the soil and obtain moisture from the bed of an old, dried-up river which once ran through Payta.

tools, and the company now has 900 expert mechanics who are engaged in making tools for the Browning gun. Such tools cannot be bought in the shops, and it is absolutely necessary to have a number of each kind in order that there may be no delay in speeding the work. An officer of the ordnance department, who went with me through the works, tells me he has already accepted 400 tons of steel to be turned into parts for the Browning gun. This will give you some idea of the magnitude of the work now going on.

It is difficult to appreciate the care and precision with which everything has to be done. The finer parts require mechanical and scientific experts. Every part of the gun, from the steel, brass and other raw materials that go into it to the finished product, has to be tested again and again to see that it is just right, and this necessitates laboratories, both physical and chemical. The new parts have to be designed and planned; in one room I saw more than a hundred draftsmen at work.

Carefully Planned.

Everything connected with this Remington plant here has been carefully planned to save time and labor, and the parts go in regular order as far as possible from the raw materials to the finished products in the assembling room. The transportation of goods from one place to another through the thirteen factories, with their two and one-half miles of connecting halls, is done by electric trucks, which have their regular schedule runs back and forth through the factory. The messenger boys fly about on roller skates through the halls, and there are enough telephone girls to supply a good-sized town. The factory has a restaurant which will seat 800, and it has electric cookers on wheels, which can be moved about from room to room.

The company makes a business of studying its employees, and seeing that the round human pegs are fitted into the round holes. As I went through some of the large machine shops I talked with Mr. J. Q. Finfrock, the works manager, about this. He believes that the study of the human material he uses is quite as important as the study of the metal and the machinery. This work is largely done in a school which the factory has established for teaching its operatives. As soon as the men and women are hired they are put into this school under competent instructors. They are taught to operate the various machines, and are given machines of the class they are best fitted to work. Mr. Finfrock says that the spirit of the employees is excellent and that those who have the more responsible positions are ready to sacrifice themselves to almost any extent to get the work done. The employees are good team workers, and many of them bring patriotism into their jobs.

Women Are Employed.

Several thousand women are now employed in various parts of the factory and the number will be gradually increased as fast as possible. The women are especially efficient as to certain kinds of the work. They use all kinds of tools. They inspect the parts and measure them with gauges which show their accuracy to the one-thousandth of an inch. They will do monotonous work longer and more efficiently than the men and are more liable to stick to their jobs.

I spent some time in the factory school, the work of which adds to the output of guns. It is like a great machine shop. It has one or more of each kind of machine used in the factory, and grouped about each of these were men and women, taking instructions and actually running the machine. At one complicated tool I saw three girls, each with a denim cap on her head, and with a denim apron tied around her waist, watching the operations. One was handling the machine and the others were learning how it was worked. I talked with the principal of the school. He tells me that he gives each new employee from two days to two weeks' examination and instruction in order to see that he has the right place in the factory and is able to start in at the work when he gets there. Within the next five or six months the company will put in more than eight thousand new men and the most of these will go through this school. He says it is cheaper and better to start the employee in this way than to let him bungle along on the machines and pick up the trade in the course of his work.

The company has an industrial service department, which tries to keep the men contented and to stimulate them to make the most of themselves. It has a school for apprentices, in which the boys of the factory have a regular course of instruction, their wages being raised as they learn and acquire more mechanical skill. A boy can keep up his studies for four years and receive a good mechanical education, all the while being paid by the piece for the work he turns out. The boys are examined and tested to see the trades they are best fitted for and the company does what it can to make men of them, while they are teaching them to become expert mechanics. I close this letter with a little poem from the catalogue of apprentice courses of the armory. It is entitled:

"The Man Who Wins."

The man who wins is an average man,
Not built on any peculiar plan;
Not blessed with any peculiar luck;
Just steady and earnest and full of pluck.

When asked a question, he does not "guess;"
He knows and answers "No" or "Yes."
When set a task that the rest can't do,
He buckles down till he's put it through.

So he works and waits, till one fine day,
There's a better job with bigger pay,
And the men who shirked whenever they could
Are bossed by the man whose work made good.

For the man who wins is the man who works,
Who neither labor nor trouble shirks,
Who uses his hands, his head, his eyes—
The man who wins is the man who tries.

Private Peat Says:

"After the first gas attack at Ypres in April, 1915, I was knocked out for a while and was in the clearing station at Merville. One day when I was lying there on a stretcher a poor miserable soldier came in He was covered with mud and blood. He was minus his overcoat and his tunic was torn by shrapnel. He was soaked to the bone, for it was raining, and he was shivering with cold and pain. The nurse hurried to him and asked him what had become of his overcoat.

"'Oh,' he said, his teeth chattering, 'my pal was killed back there, and he looked so cold, lying there in the rain, I took off my coat and put it over him.'

"If the men in the trenches, with their dirt and their filth, their swearing and fighting, can show such tenderness and unselfishness and sacrifice, are you here at home going to fall below them in nobility of spirit? I don't believe you are."—[American Magazine.

CHOICE SEEDS for Present Sowing

NEW GIANT COLUMBINE—A magnificent strain of new giant flowered Aquilegias or Columbines which we are now offering for the first time. They are without exception one of the loveliest of all perennial flowering—plants and the new strain which we are offering you now shows a size of flower and diversity of color hitherto unknown in this class of plants.

Not only are they valuable for cut flowers, lasting for many days in water, but produce masses of blossoms under the most ordinary cultivation in the garden and give an effect of exquisite grace and beauty.

All of the flowers are long spurred with cups of immense size. Sow now for blossoming during the coming Winter and Spring. Once established, they bloom season after season.

SELECTED PINK SHADES—Well fixed types in all shades of pink from light to dark. A strain of unexcelled quality. Per packet ..25c

SELECTED BLUE SHADES—Including all the shades from light to dark; an especially fine type. Per packet ..25c

SELECTED ROSE AND SCARLET SHADES—Equal in size and general character to the foregoing, occurring in exquisite shades of rose, light scarlet, deep scarlet, etc. Per packet ..25c

H. & S. PRIZE MIXED—Including all of the strains noted above, and in addition, many other varieties which are not yet sufficiently fixed to offer as separate colors. These include all shades from pure white to pink, rose, red, yellow and crimson, with various bicolored flowers of superb quality and effect. Per packet ..25c

NOTE—The above strains of Columbines are absolutely new to Los Angeles gardens. Once they become known they will be planted in large quantities. They are something distinct, beautiful, different.

HOLLYHOCKS—To obtain a splendid display of these handsome flowers next spring, the present is a good time to make a first sowing. Our strain of these is absolutely true to color, all of the shades being well fixed. The flowers are perfectly double, rounded and borne in immense spikes. We can offer them to you in the following colors: White, Newport Pink, a beautiful shade of soft apple blossom; Cherry Red, Blood Red, Yellow, Faust, almost pure black; and Rose.

Price, of any of the above separate colors. Per packet ..15c

Mixed—A choice mixture of all the above shades. Per packet ..15c

VERBENAS, H. & S. PRIZE MIXED—Our well-known giant flowering strain. Enormous trusses and extra large individual flowers in a color series of matchless beauty. A sowing of these made at the present time will give you a splendid show of blossoms from August until the time of frost. Just the thing for parkways, etc. Per packet ..25c

DELPHINIUM BELLADONA—We have some splendid two-year-old clumps of these which are now in a semi-dormant condition and ready for transplanting to your garden. By planting them now they will give you an abundance of Summer and Autumn blooms. Splendid either for garden decoration or cut flowers. This variety is the ever-blooming sort with large sky blue flowers. Each, 20c; Per Dozen, $2.00

Along the Piave, especially on th Montello Plateau, the gateway to th Venetian plains from the northeas and at several points farther south where the Austrians succeeded i crossing the river, the Italians every where imposed such strength agains the enemy that he was unable to en large his gains and then, with re doubled efforts, forced him to commence the retrograde movement which have developed into disordere flight.

SECOND PHASE EXPECTED

Large numbers of the enemy have been reported recently as coming up behind the northern line in the mountain region, and it is not improbable that shortly the second phase of the battle will begin. Complete confidence is felt in the Italian and other Allied commands, however, that the enemy will meet foemen of superior quality and that his efforts will go for naught.

On the battle fronts in France and Flanders the Germans are holding their men to the trenches, except for small attacks here and there. There is no indication that for the present it is their intention to launch another big offensive.

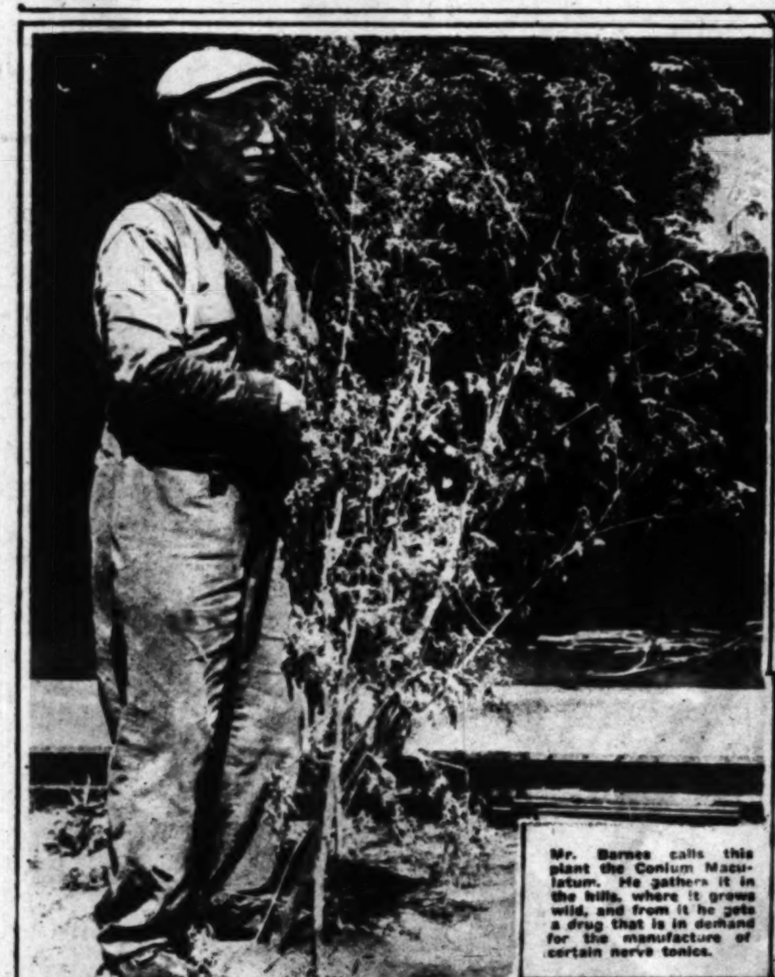
Gardena's Newest Industry, Drug Plant Growing.

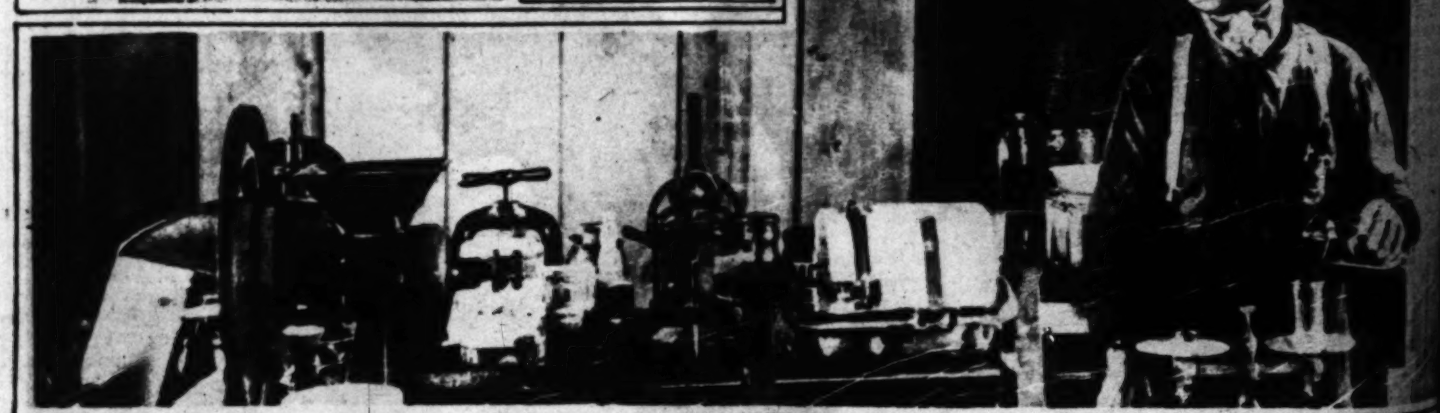
A Gardena Marigold "farm." Because it yields the highly efficacious antiseptic drug. Calendula, varieties of this posy have long been cultivated in the old world. The war demands have so raised the price of Calendula that the commercial growing of the flower is now being undertaken in America.

S. O. Barnes, who not only raises drug plants, but manufactures tinctures and various medicines on his little farm at Gardena. He is ing a flower of the Cardis Marianus, which looks like a Scotch which comes from the land of the Hun. A tincture from it is treatment of liver complaints. Mr. Barnes secured the seed of from a consignment brought to this country by the spectacular merchant submarine, the Deutschland, two years ago.



Mr. Barnes calls this plant the Conium Maculatum. He gathers it in the hills, where it grows wild, and from it he gets a drug that is in demand for the manufacture of certain nerve tonics.

J. A. Sawyer, Gardena Calendula grower, emptying a bucketful of the orange-colored blossoms into drying trays. When dry, the blossoms are through wire netting. The process is repeated until only the clean These are marketed to drug houses.



The most unique workshop in Southern California. In this little laboratory Mr. Barnes extracts the drug principles from the various plants grown in his garden.

A Serious Problem.

...LESS the price of milk is raised to ...a hundred pounds wholesale, the ...dairymen supplying Los Angeles as... the majority of them will be forced ...of business because of inability to pay ... This increase in the wholesale ...would make a difference to the con... ...of about 1 cent a quart. It would be enough, the milk producers say, but no more than enough to save them from their predicament.

The dairymen offer sworn statements as to costs and net returns on which to base the argument which their committee will shortly place before the Food Administration. But the strongest evidence of the justice of their position would appear to be the never-ending series of auction sales which have been going on for months, involving the disposal of hundreds of producing animals, many of which have reached the butcher's block.

It is not the history of any industry that men who are making reasonable profits in that industry sell out one after the other and enter some business entirely new to them. The men who have gone into dairying are, almost without exception, dairy enthusiasts; they are in the business because they would rather follow it than any other as long as they can secure returns commensurate with the investment and labor involved.

Recognizing the necessity of increasing rather than decreasing production, and hoping that conditions would improve, some of the dairymen assert that they have "hung on" for months in the face of regular losses. They point out, however, that the most staunch patriotism cannot survive steady business losses when a man's living depends upon the returns from that business.

Something must be done and done quickly, it was decided at the recent meeting of the Milk Producers' Association, which represents two-thirds of the dairymen in this vicinity. A thorough investigation by disinterested men, such as the Food Administration officials, should quickly disclose the facts in the case. Should the contentions of the dairymen prove to be correct, it seems unlikely that the consumers would be so short-sighted as to expect that milk, one of the most important of food commodities, should be sold at a price involving a loss to the producer. Such a condition, involving the steady reduction in the number of producing cows, if allowed to continue very long, would sooner or later result in a milk famine, and milk is one of the foods most needed to sustain the people of the country in these war times.

The dairymen made no complaint against the distributors, who claim to be working on a closer margin than those of almost any other city, but the investigation of the question should cover the distributing end of the business, and the retail price should be based upon a determination of all factors involved.

The dairymen are surely justified in demanding quick action, at least. The public will recognize a just cause.

THE HOMECROFTER AND OLD HI COST.

BY UNCLE MARSH.

Unless you have a superabundance of red plums, such as Satsuma or the like, you should not lose another moment in getting some Roselle seed in the ground. It's been a long time since Martha and I migrated from the East where we had an abundance of currants each year, and Martha she says the only good things she really missed on the trimmings for the Sunday and holiday dinners was the currants and the cranberries. Now she makes Roselle jelly take the place of both of them and I swear if she don't actually claim that it is better.

The Roselle grows on a little bush about three feet high and the ripe fruit looks like those little brown shrubs we used to tie in the corner of our handkerchief in the district school days, and hand back to our sweetheart. I should say that the Roselle is a little mite redder than the old sweet-scented shrub, but they'll carry you back just the same.

We are indebted to Australia, I think, for this new one and it has been with us to some extent now for over twenty years and is a garden fixture with the wise ones. It volunteers on my land, but a good job of plowing this year put it completely out of business so that I am having to reseed it.

It is a little later than we should be seeding Roselle, because the first half of April is the right time, but I had a friend who planted it in July last year and I gave him the horse laugh because the first touch of frost rings down the Roselle curtain for the winter season, but I'll be jiggered if he didn't get a fine crop.

Last year was unusual though. Up here in the foothills I gathered eight dozen ears of fine sugar corn for my Christmas dinner and I shipped some over to Arizona for a

HAS MARIGOLD FARMING COME TO STAY IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA?

IT IS a fact worthy of note that on its last trip to America the German submersible merchant ship Deutschland brought to this country the seeds of a drug plant that has been found to grow prolifically in Southern California and which may be expected to play an important part in the development of one of the new local industries brought into being by the war—that of producing drugs. The seeds in question came direct to S. O. Barnes of Gardena, who is cultivating a small tract in that suburb devoted entirely to the production of flowers, seeds, roots, bulbs and barks required in the manufacture of remedies for the relief of the numerous ills to which flesh is heir. The plant from which they came is known to botanists as the Cardius marianus. Its drug principle is prescribed in liver troubles.

Previous to the war the United States was importing yearly, for the most part from Germany, millions of dollars' worth of drug materials per annum. It has already been demonstrated that practically all of the drug plants from which foreign lands have realized such rich returns can be produced in America. Before the war the European countries had an advantage over the United States by reason both of long experience and cheap peasant labor in production and harvest. The necessity for drugs, plus the necessarily high war prices, has led many in this country to take an interest in drug plant growing, with the result that it has been established in many places. Experiments in California, and especially in and near Gardena, have shown that a great variety of these plants will thrive in this part of the country.

In the case of Mr. Barnes, the experimenting in drug production has not been confined to the recognized drug plants of foreign lands. He has a small, but well-equipped laboratory, in which, by his own words, he has analyzed about every California plant and flower that could be "suspected of having medicinal properties." He has worked not a little with the roots of the lawn pest, "devil grass," which he declares has the same properties as the "Triticum" from which is derived a well known diuretic.

CALENDULA MOST POPULAR.

The plant in which the dozen or more Gardena growers, including Mr. Barnes, who have taken up drug plant culture, are most interested is the Calendula officinalis, known to every lover of flowers as a variety of marigold. All species of marigold contain more or less of the drug known as Calendula, but the one named, which is distinguished by a flower of a dark orange color, is the only one considered by the Gardena growers as having commercial value.

Calendula yields an antiseptic and germicide of high order, which enters into many prescriptions. The drug is used both externally and internally to promote the growth of new tissue and is much favored in the treatment of wounds. Before the war, 25 cents a pound is declared to have been about as much as any grower in this country could realize from it, principally on account of the importations from other countries. Prices recently have ranged from $1 a pound upward. The industry is too new in this section to allow of entirely accurate estimates of returns, although the Gardena growers, and notably Mr. Barnes, J. A. Sawyer and J. W. Swanson, who are the largest producers, expressed themselves as satisfied that Calendula will pay as well as any crop that can be successfully grown on so small a scale.

Anyone who can grow flowers, they declare, can make a success at Calendula growing. Any good garden soil will serve the purpose of the crop, although a moderately rich loam is preferable. The seeds are planted directly in the garden where the plants are to be cultivated. When the plants are about three or four inches high, they are thinned out to two plants to each eighteen inches in the row, the rows being two to three feet apart. When the first blooms appear, the grower studies each of the two plants at each eighteen inch interval and leaves the one with the largest, heaviest flower and the petals of darkest orange hue, pulling out the other. The rules for irrigation are those applying to any ordinary flower garden.

ONLY PETALS USED.

Only the petals are used in the making of the drug. The flowers are gathered practically every week after the plant starts blooming, which is generally in from six to eight weeks after planting, although the best flowering does not begin until from sixteen to eighteen weeks after the seed goes into the ground. On the opposite page is illustrated in rotogravure the process of handling the flowers after harvesting.

The Calendula is perennial in California and blooms every month in the year. The growers consider it best, however, to cut the plants back in September, as the flowers begin to get too small by that time. By December or January the plants will be in full bloom again.

Both Mr. Barnes and his laboratory have become "institutions" in Gardena in the past year or two. It was Mr. Barnes who introduced "Marigold farming" to Gardena by growing it himself and agreeing to buy the product of others. Unlike his neighbors, Mr. Barnes gets the drug from the flowers before marketing it, his laboratory being fully equipped for the extraction of the oils and tinctures for which the various drug plants are valued. He still buys some Calendula in addition to what he raises, although the growers as a rule now ship to eastern drug houses. He is much too busy experimenting with other plants to give all his attention to one.

STUDIES ALL PLANTS.

Mr. Barnes, who is both botanist and chemist, declares that plants, like men, have different degrees of adaptability when it comes to their medicinal properties. He argues that it is as unreasonable to suppose that a certain medicinal plant will serve all purposes in all stages as toxic, palliative and curative as that a man who has undoubted mechanical talent will necessarily succeed as an astronomer. He has, therefore, applied himself to the study of many humble plants that have heretofore not been recognized in the drug world.

His investigations have led him to seek many plants in foreign countries and to make a study especially of the plants from which the Germans, in the days before the war when they played so prominent a part in the pharmaceutical industry, were wont to obtain their drugs.

Among the Southern California plants which he has used in the manufacture of drugs are the Yerba Santa, the Yerba Mansa, the Conium maculatum and the Yerba Anemopsis. The Yerba Santa grows in the mountains and was made into crude medicine by the Mexicans in early days. It is considered valuable in bronchial troubles. The Yerba Mansa and Yerba Anemopsis yield an oil used in catarrh medicines. The Conium maculatum is gathered by Mr. Barnes in the hills and is used for the manufacture of a nerve tonic. Among other plants from which Mr. Barnes gets oils and tinctures for the drug market and for his own preparations are the Chamomilla, used in teething remedies; the familiar Squills; the Scillia maritima, used in throat affections; the Passiflora incarnata, prescribed in neurotic cases, and the Chenopodium, or worm seed, a component part of many worm medicines used by veterinaries. He also has small patches of Belladonna and Jimson weed (Stramonium,) drug plants that are now being grown in many parts of California.

The Gardena drug plant growers are strong in the faith that after the war America will never find it necessary to depend upon German drug or drug plant producers for its drug supplies and that the industry which they are building up will always be profitable. Southern California, they are confident, has entered the drug producing field to stay.

CO-OPERATIVE SPRAYING.

Community co-operation in spraying, particularly in the control of such diseases as potato late blight and tomato leaf spot, is urged by the United States Department of Agriculture. The department is suggesting to county agents and extension pathologists the early organization of such spraying "circles" to deal more effectively this year with such destructive plant diseases. A community spraying outfit with a man and team continuously employed throughout the season is both economical and efficient, department officials say.

ALL MADE FROM WHEAT.

Reports to the Food Administration by licensed flour millers show the amount and kind of products being secured from 1000 pounds of wheat. The quantity of flour (all kinds for January) was 737 pounds, equivalent to a milling percentage of 73.7. The yield of bran from 1000 pounds of wheat was 97 pounds; shorts, 74 pounds; middlings, 34 pounds; mixed feed, 48 pounds; red dog, 7 pounds; miscellaneous by-products 3 pounds.

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS. IN PARAGRAPHS.

EL CENTRO.—With a gain of approximately 45,000 acres in one year, Imperial Valley, has surpassed every other irrigated district in West in number of acres in crop in 1918. This conclusion is based upon the report of the mutual water companies to the irrigation district, just received. On the American side of the valley there are 390,418 acres in crop. Last year the acreage reported by the County Assessor was 345,464. Therefore the gain is 44,954 acres. General Manager C. K. Clarke of the district reported to the directors recently that there were approximately 88,000 acres in crop in that part of Lower California served by the Mexican twin of the irrigation district. The total number of acres, therefore, on both sides of the line, is 478,418, an increase of 67,952 acres. This tremendous increase is being handled with greater ease by the district this year than the acreage last year was handled because of the improvements to the system, completed at a cost of nearly three million dollars. For the first time in the history of the valley the cry "short water" has not gone up, and cotton and milo have received far more water this year than before. Following is the detail of acreage in the several water companies, and in Mexico: No. 1, 118,500; No. 2, 6400; No. 3, 44,400; No. 4, 19,000; No. 5, 79,331; No. 6, 19,132; No. 7, 19,180; No. 8, 31,000; No. 12, 12,500; South Side Company, 18,000; North End Company, 17,697; South Alamo Company, 1248; East Side Company, 4000; Compania (Lower California,) 88,000; total 478,414.

REDLANDS.—Fruit men of this section are preparing to begin at once the work of thinning the fruit on the deciduous trees, for in most places the trees are bearing too heavily. By thinning, a larger and better fruit is secured, the weight is more evenly distributed over the trees and thus there is not so much danger of damage by broken limbs, and the fruit is of finer quality, with more flavor. The peach and apricot trees are worked over carefully and thinned to not more than two fruits to each spur; sometimes it is found desirable to have even less. The pear trees are also being heavily thinned. It is believed that the deciduous fruit crops will be about average this year, despite the fact that there was a heavy yield last year. At Yucaipa and Oak Glen the apple growers are busy now thinning out the fruit on the small trees, so that there will be no limbs broken. There is such a heavy crop of oranges on the orange trees in this section that it may necessary to thin some after the usual June drop.

FRESNO.—Capt. George Georgerich Pollakoff, recently from the Russian volunteer fleet, has purchased a thirty-acre tract near this city on the banks of the San Joaquin River and has let the contract for a complete set of farm buildings. Capt. Poliakoff had been in charge of a 11,000-ton steamer, but when the United States government took over the boat he decided to become a citizen of the United States. The captain has lost six brothers in the war, four being killed in service, while two who were officers, were killed by their own men. His wife, who was an English lady, was killed when the Germans bombed a hospital in which she was taking care of the sick and wounded.

IMPERIAL.—Six ranchers who undertook the raising of hemp this year will reap a highly satisfactory profit. A large Chicago harvester house has offered to buy the crop at an advance over last year's figure. G. W. Schlichten, inventor of a decorticator, has arrived here and is inspecting the growth. The results of the first year's trial of American hemp has been entirely satisfactory, Mr. Schlichten says.

CALIPATRIA.—All farmers in Imperial county are called upon to raise the maximum of milo maize and sorghums this summer by the County Supervisors, who have passed a resolution urging that the country and the war demanded this production.

BEAUMONT.—The first shipment of Black Tartarian cherries left here recently. The fruit was handled through the Fruit Growers' Association and was of fine quality. Later crop reports are more favorable and the crop will probably be about 60 per cent. of normal.

VISALIA.—Peaches to the value of $25,000 changed hands here recently, when the entire crop of cling and freestone peaches held by the members of the Tulare County Canning Peach Growers' Association was sold to the California Packing Corporation. The corporation paid the price asked, which had been approved by the Food Administration. The packers will pay $65 per ton for all varieties of clings and $40 for frees. The crop will total 5000 tons on present estimates, somewhat smaller than anticipated, but at the prices a very profitable output to the producers.

POMONA.—In anticipation of the big milch goat show to be held at the Liberty Fair at Exposition Park, Los Angeles, in October, neighborhood shows are becoming quite the order of the day, as the second one within the past month, this time at Pomona, and given under the auspices of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce, testifies. Civic organizations from nearby towns, including Ontario, Chino, Covina and Whittier, gave their support to the undertaking and Pasadena goat owners showed prize-winning animals which had taken honors at the annual California Milch Goat Show, though none of these were entered as competitors for prizes. The committee taking charge of the exhibition at the request of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce consisted of Mrs. M. B. Kiggins, chairman; Mrs. Harry Carnes, Mrs. Irma Mathews, T. Crews, all of Pasadena, and W. W. Coates of Pomona, who was one of the principal promoters of the plan. A large number of excellent animals was shown.

FORTY PER CENT OF IMPERIAL'S. HUGE COTTON CROP "VOLUNTEER."

EL CENTRO.—Development of the "volunteer" system of growing cotton and the tremendous increase in the acreage given to that crop are prominent features of cotton culture in the Imperial Valley this season.

It is estimated that fully 40 per cent. of the valley's crop this year will be grown on last year's stalks, because of the mild winter and improved systems of caring for the roots. Very probably Imperial's experiment with volunteer cotton on a large scale will be of great interest to other cotton-producing sections, notably the San Joaquin Valley, Palo Verde Valley and the Arizona cotton areas.

The advantages of "volunteer" cotton, according to growers, are:

(1.) Development of more bolls with consequent heavier crop.

(2.) Early and more rapid growth of the plant.

(3.) Elimination of at least $9 per acre in the cost of culture.

THIS YEAR'S CROP.

In the Imperial Valley, 138,000 acres are this season devoted to the growing of three varieties of cotton. The greatest acreage is given to the cropping of short staple cotton. This variety is easiest to grow, pick and gin. It is also lower in price than the other two kinds.

Durango cotton, a long staple, commands a better price than the short staple, and costs but little more to produce. There are approximately 40,000 acres devoted to Durango cotton in the valley.

All the Egyptian cotton seed procurable was put into the ground this year, and there are 9500 acres set to this silky, high-priced cotton. Farmers in the Salt River Valley were paid 70 to 80 cents per pound for their Egyptian cotton last season. The chief objection to this cotton is that it costs double what the short staple does to pick.

Both Durango and short staple cotton have "volunteered" with great success this year. It is almost a phenomenon for bolls to burst before the first of June anywhere in the United States, but this has come to pass in Imperial this year, owing to the rapid growth of volunteer cotton. It is believed that picking will begin before the end of the month. Ordinarily, cotton picking does not begin in earnest before fall.

METHODS FOLLOWED.

The method followed by the farmer in developing volunteer cotton is as follows: From February 20 to March 15, an ordinary hay or weed cutter is sent through the field, the dried-up stalks of last year's growth being cut about five inches from the crown roots. Immediately afterwards the field is raked and irrigated.

When the earth is dry enough, a cultivator is run through the field, and soon afterwards those plants which have put down satisfactory tap roots begin to put out from one to three stalks, one being the rule.

Generally the stand is then sufficient. But many cotton growers replant between the volunteer stalks. The seedling then ripens about six weeks after the perrenial.

Some growers have found that, owing to too-heavy irrigations last summer, the tap roots of most of their plants have perished; literally drowned. When this situation is discovered the entire field is ploughed and the seed put in.

An advantage of the volunteer cotton is the elimination of "chopping out" or thinning the plants with hoes, as is required with seedlings. The cotton sprouting from last year's stalks is in every case thin enough for a strong growth for every stalk, for not more than half of the stalks send out new growth the second year.

The tremendous development of Imperial Valley cotton is probably best illustrated from a perusal of the acreage records for the past seven years.

FROM SMALL BEGINNING.

In 1911 when the first large area of cotton was seeded there were 12,000 acres. Transportation difficulty was met with that year along with low prices, and but 8360 acres were seeded in 1912. In 1913 cotton was again up to a point which made it profitable to grow it, and 21,500 acres were planted. The success of the cotton growers that year induced 50 per cent. of the farmers of the valley to plant cotton, and, in 1914, 70,000 acres were planted.

But aviating prices of other farm produce attracted many growers to other lines of endeavor the following year, and but 55,000 acres were grown. In 1916 many land owners and leasers in the Lower of the valley planted cotton, was 93,000 acres. Last year was a great impetus to the they developed on 121,000 of cotton, fiber, seed worth approximately $14,000,000.

CALIFORNIA WARNED AGAINST THE THRIPS.

WASHINGTON.—Plain lime sulphur solution applied in three successive sprays will enable a satisfactory control of the citrus thrips, an insect which is rapidly becoming a menace to the production of oranges, grapefruit and lemons in California and Arizona. This treatment has been developed in investigations by entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture and is believed to be the most reliable of four satisfactory mixtures tried, lime sulphur, sulphur soda, lime sulphur and tobacco extract. In a publication of the Department of Agriculture bulletin 616, "The Citrus Thrips," J. R. Horton of the bureau of entomology describes the citrus thrips in this country, its life history and control, and announces the results of extensive experiments in spraying. It is explained that the lime sulphur solution recommended may be either 1 to 56 of the 36-deg. Baume density or 1 to 50 of the 33-deg. Baume density.

Maps presented in the publication mentioned show the distribution of the citrus thrips in California and Arizona, to which States the insect is confined, it is believed. The insect is known to occur in eight counties in California: Sacramento, Fresno, Tulare, Kern, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange. The infestation is most serious in Tulare, Fresno, Riverside and San Fernando. In Kern county the insect is increasing rapidly, and with larger plantings doubtless will be quite as injurious as in Tulare county, the writer of the publication believes.

The most important damage caused by thrips is the lowering of the market value of fruit by unsightly scabbing and scarring. The eating quality of the orange is not affected by this damage, but its commercial grading is lowered considerably, and the selling price correspondingly reduced. The losses suffered from grade reduction, due to thrips in the Lindsay district of the San Joaquin Valley in a season of comparatively light infestation is given in the Bulletin as 43 per cent., or 255,742 boxes, reduced to second-grade at a loss of 37 per cent. a box, making $96,744.54; with 23 per cent. reduced to third-grade at a loss of 65 per cent a box, making an additional $88,914.18, or a total loss of $183,539.34.

Roselle pods,
From which Roselle jelly is made.

Get the early variety of the Roselle seed and sow three seeds in a hill four feet apart each way. It is very ornamental. You could make a lovely summer hedge of these plants.

And say, about June plantings:

Plant more sugar corn every ten days to make a succession of yield. Did you get your peanuts in during May? Cassabas now are a better planting than cantaloupes. Another twenty-foot row of stringless green pod or other good string beans will be advisable. Keep puting Jersey pole lima beans along with your green corn after it gets two feet high. You can plant practically everything in June, but it is nevertheless a poor month for planting. Peas, turnips, lettuce and other cool weather plants positively object to June planting.

Things planted in June face the intense summer heat during their infancy and unless nursed carefully with deep irrigation soaked slowly into furrows will be stunted. The middle of August opens the real gardening season again, because things planted at that time come forth to the struggle after the worst of the heat is over. If you have no walnut trees, you must grow peanuts and it's getting late. A ten-foot row of popcorn will come in handy, too.

ENEMY SMASH AGAINST ITALY IS DEFEATED

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, NORTHERN ITALY, June 23. From Montello to the sea the enemy has been defeated and forced by the Italian troops to cross the Piave River in disorder.

ROME, June 23.—On the Piave River front, from the Montello to the Adriatic, the defeated Austro-Hungarians are recrossing the river in disorder, says the Italian official statement issued today. The enemy is being closely pursued by the Italian troops.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Saturday, June 22.—A large part of the Austro-Hungarian casualties, estimated by Italian military officials at 180,000, and probably more, sustained in the latest offensive of the enemy on the northeastern Italian front, were due to the fact that in the early hours pending the assault a week ago the Italians anticipated the Austrian fire by turning artillery fire upon troop concentration.

The official statement reads:

"Along the whole front of battle our artillery continues to bombard the enemy intensely. On Montello and along the Piave our infantry is everywhere maintaining powerful pressure on the enemy. Yesterday we carried out successful small raids and patrol actions.

"To the west of Fagare the enemy attempted some counter-offensives, which were immediately crushed.

"A British party in an energetic surprise action broke into the adversary's lines to the south of Asiago and after a lively struggle killed 100 of the enemy and brought back thirty-one prisoners and one machine gun.

"Our own and the Allied airmen have continued to struggle with undiminished daring. They also carried out yesterday heavy and effective bombardments on the enemy's immediate lines of communication.

"Ten enemy machines were brought down. The enemy's aerial losses since June 15 amount to ninety-five airplanes and six captive balloons."

ALLEGED SLAYER OF RIVAL NEAR DEATH.

IF THE OIL-FIELDS FAIL, WHAT? TRACTOR FUEL OF THE FUTURE.

EMINENT scientists have made the prediction that within twenty-five years the known oil fields will have been exhausted, and the world will be confronted with a gasoline famine. Statistics show that the stock of crude oil on hand in the United States January 1, 1916, was 198,000,000 barrels and that on November 1, 1917, this supply had been reduced to 158,000,000 barrels. From March, 1917, to March, 1918, it is shown, the consumption of crude oil by Pacific refineries has been exceeding the production at the rate of a million barrels a month.

Engineers assert that the calamity involved in such an event as the failure of the oil supply would not be the shortage of gasoline, for substitutes may readily be found, they say, to take its place as a fuel for internal combustion engines. The lack of lubricating oil, they point out, would be the real catastrophe, for every moving part add years to the life of the machinery, as well as insuring freedom from trouble and the securing of maximum service." The proper oil in the proper place and in the correct amount may make all the difference in the world in the service and life on a machine, as any oil dealer or engineer will testify, yet, according to an implement dealer with years' of experience, the average farmer either does not read the lubricating charts or forgets their warnings. This is probably due, he says, to a lack of appreciation of the importance of correct lubrication. "The business of farming runs smoothly only when well oiled," is the way one writer has put it.

The importance of oil in agriculture is not limited to lubrication, however. The care of harness, the manufacture of certain sprays, the care of improved roads, treatment of animals for parasites and a number of other uses may be cited.

This convenient arrangement prevents waste.
How the oil and grease are cared for on a large Los Angeles county ranch, where several tractors and automobiles are operated.

in every machine depends upon a smoot film of some lubricant to prevent heating and wearing of bearings. Vegetable oils and graphite, it is true, might be substituted to some extent, but the enormous cost of such substitutes to supply the world's needs would be almost prohibitive. The failure of the oil supply, it is generally admitted, would confront the engineering world with one of the most serious problems ever presented.

Nor would the farmer be exempt from the inconvenience involved, for the importance of oil in agriculture has increased many fold since the introduction of power machinery, to which is being added every year more powerful and faster running machines, as for example the engines and tractors and the implements used with them by means of belt power. Modern farm engineers not only recognize the importance of lubrication, but have delved deeply into the subject, so that, through eductional channels, as well as the manufacturers of machinery, the farmer has access to accurate information which, as one ranch owner has said, "is well worth studying and may

Much concern has been expressed over the possibility of a failure of the mineral oil supply, but fears have been recently set at rest by the announcement that this country possesses enormous deposit of oil-bearing shale, similar to that which has long been successfully used in Scotland, but with a much higher oil content. The oil, which is removed from the shale by distillation, has yielded in tests from twenty-four to seventy-eight gallons to the ton. One of the Colorado deposits is estimated to contain over 1,000,000,000 barrels of oil. There are several large deposits in Colorado and the shale is found in many other States, including California.

Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, has been quoted as saying that "the development of this enormous reserve simply awaits the time when the price of gasoline or other distillation products warrants the utilization of this substitute source. These shales are likely to be drawn upon long before the exhaustion of the petroleum fields."

OIL, FUEL STORAGE IMPORTANT ITEM.

The average farmer of today owns an automobile. Some of the larger ones own several. One ranch near Los Angeles has seven, including service cars and trucks, and many power farmers make a practice of buying fuel by the barrel and oil by the case or drum. Now that the tractor has been added to the farm equipment (sometimes two or more of them) together with its little brother, the gasoline engine, almost every ranch uses a large quantity of these products. More often than otherwise, the gasoline or distillate barrels stand in some inconvenient location, exposed to the hot sun and the oil is awkwardly poured from large cans.

A movement is now on foot, in connection with the campaign for fire prevention to bring about, if possible, better methods of storing and handling inflammable products. Likewise, because of the interest in all kinds of labor-saving devices, much attention is being given to pumps, grease guns, measuring devices and convenient methods of handling oil, grease and fuel in bulk.

It has been shown that the elimination of fire risks and the saving in gasoline or distillate warrant the installation of an underground storage tank with measuring pump on almost any ranch using large quantities of fuel. Such a device is easily filled from a traveling tank truck or from barrels by the use of siphons, and furnishes a means of checking up the fuel and delivering it to the cars and tractors without waste.

For the smaller ranch, a barrel pump, equipped with hose and measuring device, is a great convenience. These pumps, which may be purchased at from $10 to $25, according to their style and capacity, are a wonderful improvement over the old method of tipping the barrel on its side and fitting it with a brass faucet.

For the man who does not feel that he can afford even one of these pumps, there is the little sheet metal or tin suction pump designed for use with barrels, which although short-lived and apt to develop leaks, is a good temporary expedient.

The farmer who has made a careful study of the lubricating question will have on hand several grades of oil and greases. Metal oil tanks, such as are frequently used in garages, may be purchased, fitted with pumps, for a reasonable price, and will soon pay for themselves in the saving of oil and labor. Equipped with either pumps or faucets they offer a convenient method of measuring the oil into the filling pitchers. With each kind of oil conveniently at hand and properly labeled, one is more likely to give each machine the right kind of lubrication.

It is important to have oil properly stored, but is equally necessary to care for cup, axle and engine grease, for many bearings are ruined by dusty, gritty grease, which has been kept in open containers exposed to wind and dirt. The importance of using clean cup grease in tractors cannot be too highly emphasized, experts assert, for a small amount of grit may do a great deal of damage.

It has been said that although the advantages of buying oil and fuel in quantities are obvious, the resulting benefits are often offset by the lost time and waste incident to handling them. Modern equipment makes it possible to secure the maximum saving by quantity buying.

NEW TRACTOR COURSE.

A course in tractor driving and repairing will be offered next year to students of the Hollywood High School, according to a recent announcement by the Board of Education. This move, it is explained, is taken for the purpose of training boys along utilitarian lines to meet the growing demand for farm and military tractor experts.

Simplicity in farm machinery is important. Complicated rts cause trouble and are difficult to repair when a machine or implement gets out of order.

Tractor and truck cylinders, pistons, rings, etc., that are worn made new by the largest plant specializing in this class of work on the Pacific Coast.

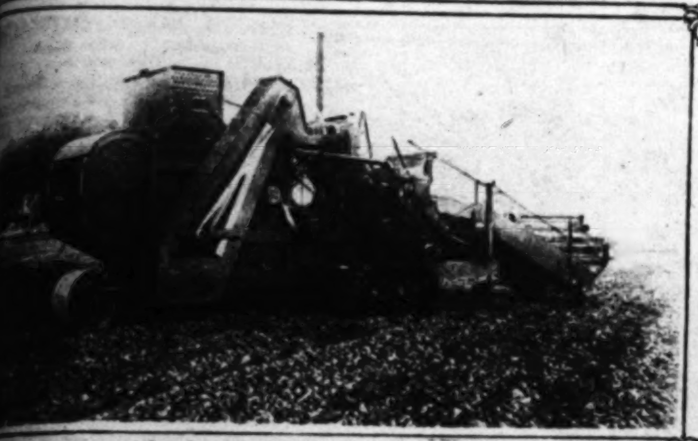
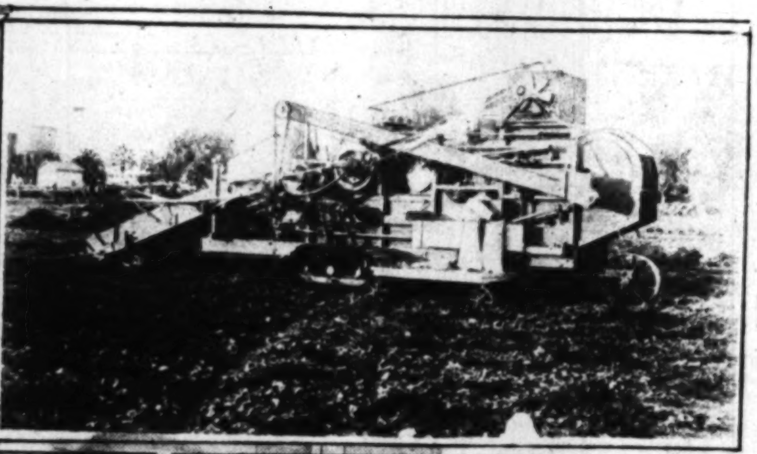
Voracious Monsters of the Bean and Grain Fields.



Combined bean harvester and thresher with tracklayer propulsion, which will make its appearance in Ventura county bean fields this year.



The delivery side of the huge new bean combine, showing sacking platform.

The Giant Combine.

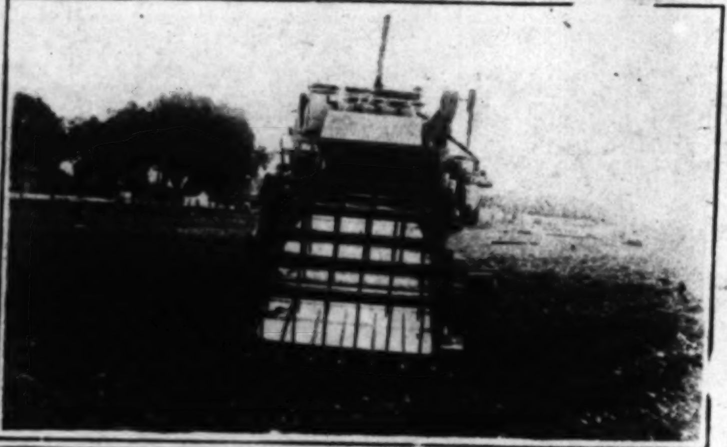
ALTHOUGH the self-propelled steam and "gas" combine harvesters are no longer a novelty in California grain fields, any new adaptation of the idea is regarded with the greatest interest. Although not yet on the market, a combined bean picker and thresher developed by the ton Manufacturing and Implement Company of Ventura represents an innovation awaited with the greatest eagerness by bean raisers throughout the State.

Because of minor deficiencies, the first machine tried out was dismantled, and further experiments are being conducted with a view to placing the machine in the hands of the growers or custom threshers at the earliest possible time.

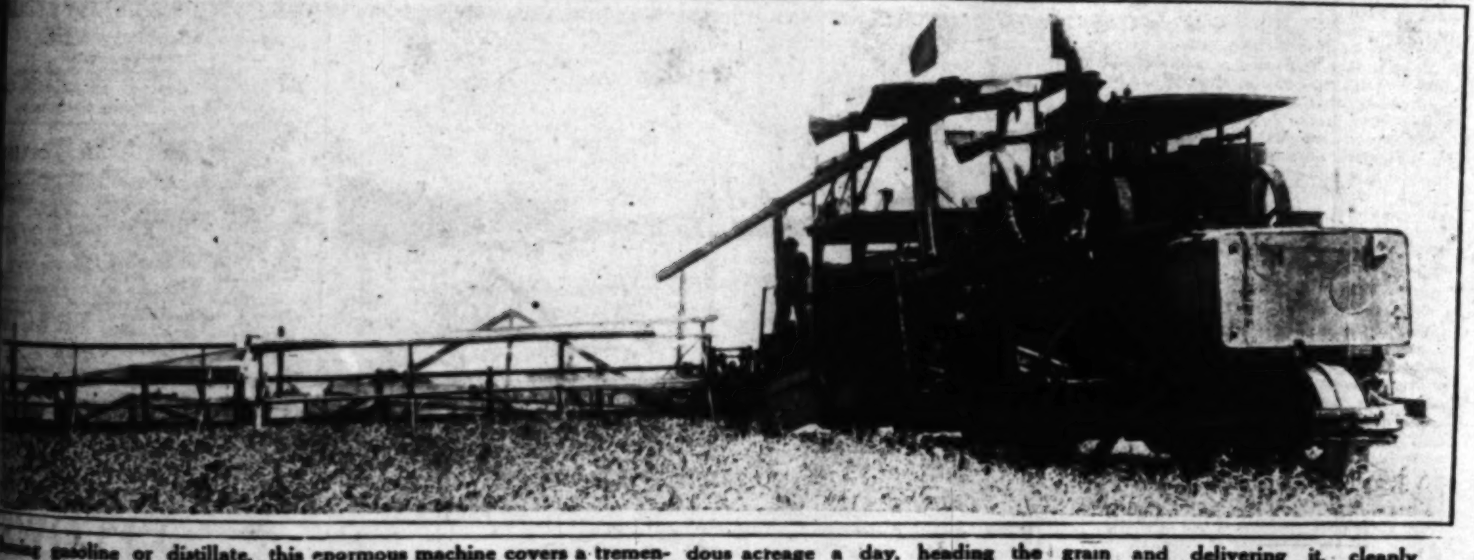
The caterpillar principle of traction has been applied. One of the most interesting features of the machine is the "picker up" and elevator for conveying the vines to the separator. A sacking platform at the left provides accommodations for two sacks and the man to handle them.

Although its trial demonstration showed that the principle was correct and the idea practicable, the manufacturers have expressed their desire to improve upon the original model so that, when finally officially presented, it will fulfill every requirement and possess the power and strength to stand up under all conditions.

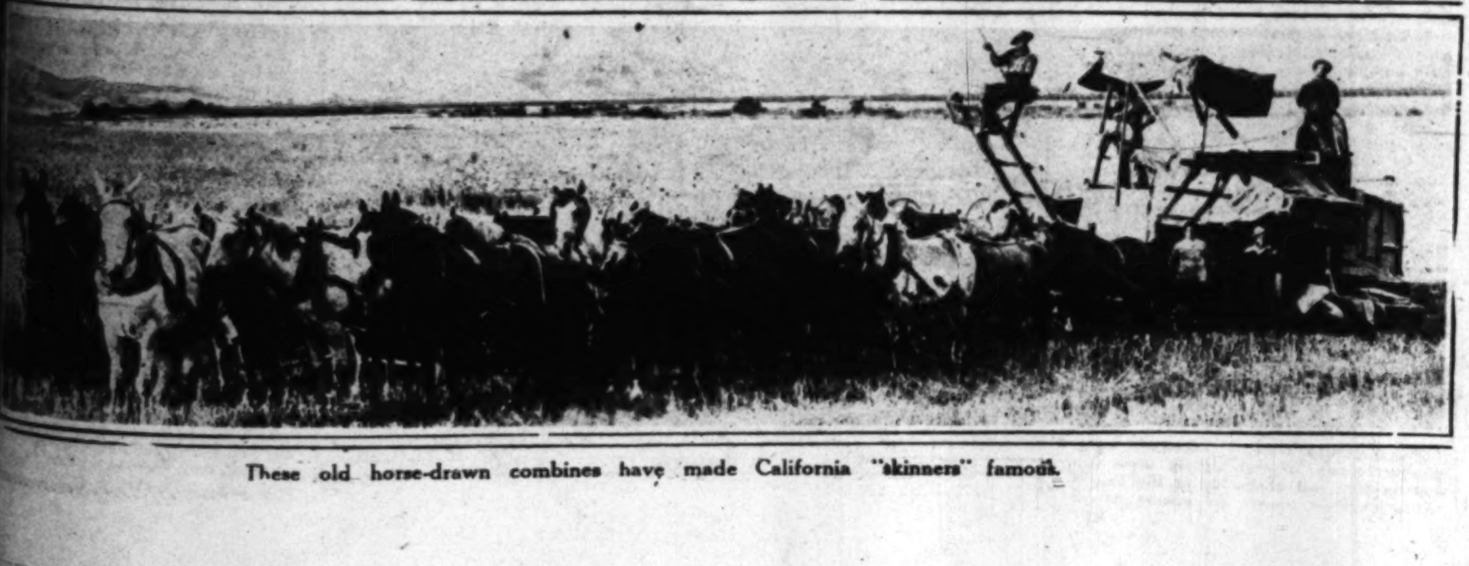
The great advantage of such a machine, when labor is scarce and high, will be readily appreciated, and it is generally conceded that, when perfected, the "bean combine" will be in great demand.



The "picker" sweeps up the bean vines and the elevator delivers them to the separator.



Burning gasoline or distillate, this enormous machine covers a tremendous acreage a day, heading the grain and delivering it, cleanly threshed, to the sacker.



These old horse-drawn combines have made California "skinners" famous.

It's an Ill Wind That Does Not Work for the Farmer.

The Old Reliable.

WIND power is absolutely free! Millions of horse power are represented by the every-day phenomenon of "air in motion," and the windmill represents one of the earliest and simplest devices employed by man to make use of the power of nature. Although used, in a primitive form, as early as the tenth century, it is, in 1918, far from being obsolete. Some of the largest American manufacturers, in fact, state that their sales are increasing every year. It is only necessary to take a trip through the country in any direction from Los Angeles or, in fact, almost any city in the United States, to verify the assertion that the windmill is a very important factor in American agriculture.

The basic principle of the windmill is the very thing which has kept it alive; there is no upkeep cost except interest, deterioration and oiling. There are mills now pumping water in various parts of the United States which, according to the makers, have been in operation for thirty years, at a cost to the owner of not more than $2 a year. This explains why, in spite of its limitations, the windmill has kept its place during the perfection and increasing use of farm engines and motors.

The limitations are fixed, however, as well as the operating costs. For until man assumes control of the elements the winds will blow according to the will and plan of the Almighty, and no farmer can count on the power delivered by a wind machine, except as he can estimate it from a knowledge of the prevailing winds in his locality. It has been demonstrated that, taking the country over, a mill will operate on an average of eight hours out of every twenty-four, the year 'round. Supplemented by auxiliary power, windmills serve to lower the pumping expense on hundreds of farms and, used in connection with a storage tank, are the sole sources of water supply, not only for household and stock, but for irrigating, on many of California's "little ranches."

It is claimed that wherever water need be raised only forty feet or less, irrigation by means of wind power is practicable and possible, although soil and climatic conditions must be considered in determining the acreage which may economically be covered. Ordinarily, either a tank or a reservoir is considered requisite for such irrigating. Some places of from two to five acres are irrigated from tanks with a capacity of 2000 to 3000 gallons.

Even though the price of windmills has gone up with the price of steel, it has been pointed out that on many farms an "air-motor" may profitably be installed in competition with internal combustion motors for irrigation purposes when one considers the corresponding increase in engine prices and the comparatively short life and continual fuel expense of the engine. However, the most general use of windmills nwodays is in conjunction with other power.

FOR WATERING STOCK.

One Southwestern stockman, who has raised cattle in New Mexico and Texas, is quoted as saying that "there are conditions where wind power is the only logical power to use for watering stock." He points out that, if storage tanks are provided, the intermittent power of the windmill is in many sections of the country entirely sufficient to supply water for live stock, its efficiency depending, however, on the height necessary to raise the water and the number of head to be watered from each well. Where it can be used, he points out, the economy of wind power is unquestionable. Many big cattle ranches employ "batteries" of from two to six machines for this purpose, frequently using no auxiliary power.

At least one manufacturer is pushing the sale of windmills for power purposes other than pumping. They are similar in design to the pumping motors, but have a device for throwing them out of gear upon the release of a wire. By a special gearing they are made to "speed up" for the operation of light machinery such as grinders, wood saws, etc, without the use of a counter-shaft. It is said that a twelve-foot windmill will grind an average of seventy-five to eighty bushels of meal a day, in addition to running other machinery. In some cases pumping motors also are used for power purposes. The horse power developed by a wind motor at varying velocities is shown by the following table:

	10 miles per hour	15 miles per hour	20 miles per hour	25 miles per hour	30 miles per hour	35 miles per hour
12-ft. wheel	.2	.67	1.6	3.12	5.1	8.5
16-ft. wheel	.36	1.21	2.9	5.5	8.5	15.3

TOWER IMPORTANT.

The life and service of a windmill, manufacturers say, depend largely upon the construction and anchoring of the tower. Although steel towers are almost universally used in the East, California farmers, local dealers point out, are particularly fortunate, because of the present high price of steel, in having access to large quantities of Oregon pine at comparatively reasonable prices. Some buyers of wheels are taking only the [illegible] and base, and setting the machine [illegible] wood tower, while many all-wood [illegible] are being sold. One disadvantage [illegible] dinary wood tower construction, [illegible] from the experiences of local farmers, that the wooden anchors ordinarily [illegible] are liable to rot and allow the tower [illegible] get out of plumb or topple over. The [illegible] towers are usally set and anchored [illegible] concrete, which makes them more [illegible] ble.

Although steel wheels are being [illegible] factured and sold in large quantities, [illegible] of the largest firms turning out [illegible] "swears by" the wood wheel, which, [illegible] claims, is stronger for a given weight [illegible] the steel, more durable and more [illegible] Revolving at a slow, steady speed, [illegible] wooden-type wheel is said to be best [illegible] ed for pumping, as it may be [illegible] "direct," without the use of gears. [illegible] slower speed is attained by the [illegible] narrow wooden slats, instead of the [illegible] "sails" of the steel machines. The [illegible] is said to be the most durable made, [illegible] probably accounts for its popularity [illegible] spite of a higher price.

SELECTING THE SITE

In selecting the site for a windmill [illegible] vided the underground water [illegible] such as to make it possible to [illegible] choice) and in deciding upon the height of the tower, it is necessary, engineers [illegible] to take into consideration all [illegible] structions and to place the wheel [illegible] fifteen feet above all houses, barns, [illegible] or other wind-breaks within a [illegible] 400 feet. The small additional cost [illegible] few feet of tower makes it [illegible] dealers say, to select a framework [illegible] will give the wheel the advantage of [illegible] lightest wind which blows from any [illegible] tion. One railroad company which [illegible] large number of windmills has [illegible] ninety-foot towers even on the [illegible] of Dakota, and has made the [illegible] that the added expense proved a [illegible] vestment.

An error of a few feet in [illegible] structions, however, may result in the [illegible] chase of a tower unnecessarily high [illegible] The following rule may be used in [illegible] rately determining the height of [illegible] other objects: Set a ten-foot pole [illegible] right and measure the length of the [illegible] ow some time between 10 a.m. and [illegible] Then measure the length of the [illegible] of the tree at the same time. [illegible] shadow of the pole is seven feet [illegible] the shadow of the tree is [illegible] feet. Divide the length of the [illegible] ow by the length of the pole [illegible] multiply by the length of the pole. [illegible] ty-eight divided by seven equals [illegible] four times ten gives forty feet, the [illegible] of the tree.

BEARINGS IMPROVE

Perhaps the greatest [illegible] windmill design in recent years is [illegible] of better bearings and gears [illegible] oil. This eliminates the [illegible] miliar on many farms, which [illegible] squeaking bearings and indicates [illegible] life of the machinery is being [illegible] One type of wheel is filled [illegible] with about a gallon of oil. [illegible] is equipped with so-called [illegible] ings," which require lubrication [illegible] casionally. Because of its [illegible] windmill is usually neglected and [illegible] receive the small amount of care [illegible] quires. A few minutes spent [illegible] the right time will add years to [illegible] the manufacturers declare. Alfalfa's Rival---A Crop of Tremendous Possibilities.

"Liberty Hay"

"ABOUT August," said a Los Angeles live-stock man the other day, "California will begin to feel the pinch of the 1918 forage shortage."

What can be done to relieve this condition, which seriously threatens the live-stock business of the State? There are men who assert that a comparatively new forage plant, which has shown remarkable characteristics in tests in Southern California, offers the most practical means of producing quickly the enormous tonnage of roughage which the situation demands. This plant is Sudan grass.

As a "catch crop," planted as late as the latter part of August, it has furnished one or two cuttings of hay; it will grow with or without irrigation (producing, with water, of course, a much larger yield,) and is suited to almost any kind of California soil except excessive alkali. Although an annual, it has been cropped continuously for three years in Arizona experiments, and for two years in the Imperial Valley, where no killing frosts occurred.

THE ORIGINAL SORGHUM?

It is a member of the sorghum family (some authorities believing that it is the original wild form of the sorghums) and was brought to America from Egypt in 1909. It is cultivated there under the name of "garawi," and is supposed to be a native of Northern Africa. Because of its wide adaptability and drouth-resistant qualities, together with the fact that it produces a yield of from two to ten tons of cured hay per acre, it has become very popular throughout the southwestern part of the United States and even in sections of the corn belt.

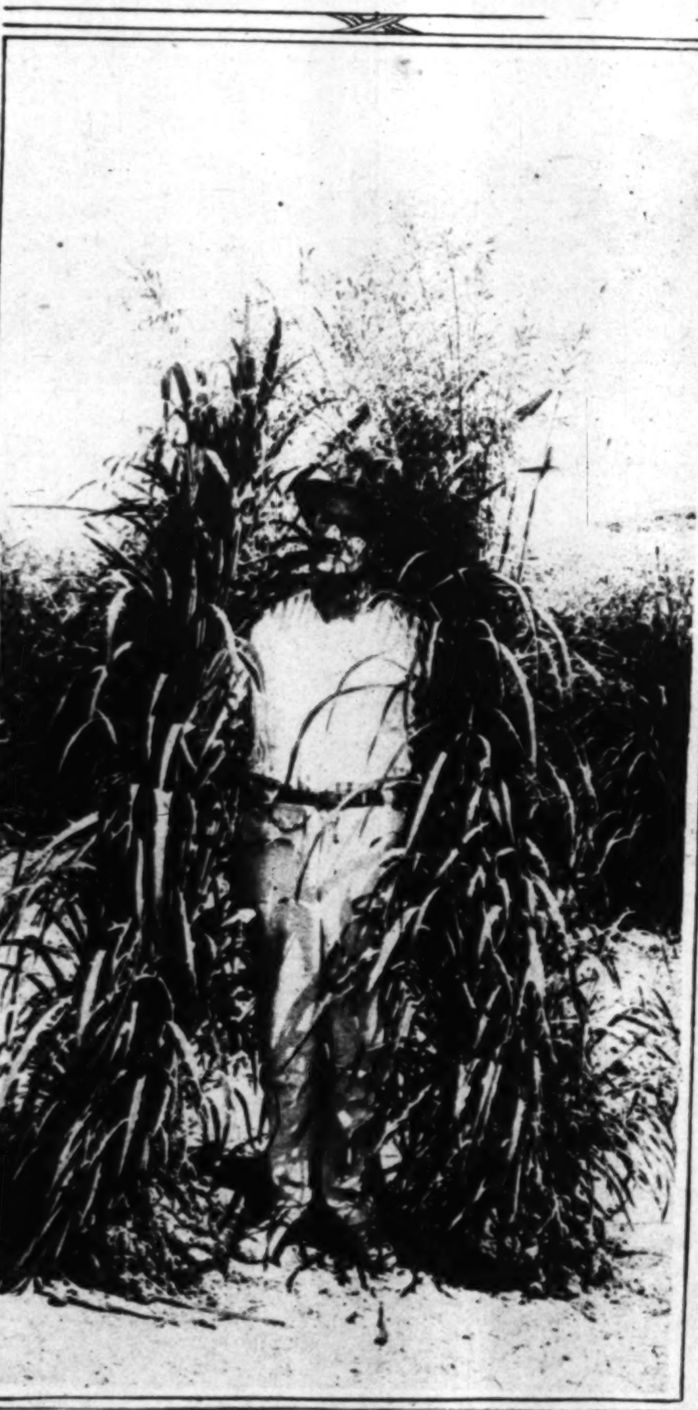
It is relished, both as hay and pasture, by all classes of live stock, and, although not so valuable a feed as alfalfa, has been known to attract cattle which had access to alfalfa.

The crop will mature in from fifty to seventy days in this section, and subsequent cuttings may be taken off in from thirty-five to forty days. It grows so tall and thick that weeds have no chance to grow, and is easily eradicated for a new crop.

The University of California has issued a very interesting bulletin about this remarkable plant, which may be obtained by writing to the Agricultural Experiment Station, Berkeley. Other literature on the subject may be had from the United States Department of Agriculture, whose investigators were responsible for the introduction of the plant in the United States.

WORTH INVESTIGATING.

It is urged that every California farmer who raises forage crops investigate the possibilities of Sudan grass. The fact that the seed resembles that of Johnson grass, which is a similar plant, except in the nature of its root development, makes the adulteration of seed particularly dangerous, and it is important that the farmer secure his seed from a well-known, reliable dealer.



Sudan grass like this is not exceptional in Imperial Valley

As a catch crop, capable of furnishing quickly the hay so badly needed by California stockmen, it may properly be called a "Liberty crop," deserving of the attention of all patriotic farmers, and also offering good possibilities in the way of profit.

Many who have experimented with Sudan grass in California and Arizona assert that its possibilities are not yet realized, and that it is destined to become one of the most important crops in this section. Although grown to some extent in the Imperial Valley and the San Joaquin Valley, it has not yet received the attention it deserves, these experimenters say, in other parts of Southern California, where conditions are almost ideal for its culture.

It is adapted to the same climatic conditions as the other members of the sorghum family, and has been grown at an altitude of 5000 feet, the principal requirement being warm weather during the growing season. It makes its best growth during the hottest months of the year, and may, as has been said, he planed in Southern California until the latter part of August. Potato growers have secured two cuttings of hay from Sudan grass planted after taking off a big crop of "spuds." It has also been successfully used instead of milo, following a crop of grain. When grown as the principal crop, and properly irrigated, Sudan grass has produced yields of ten tons of hay to the acre, sometimes growing eight feet high.

WHAT RANCHMEN SAY.

Those who have used it are the most enthusiastic boosters. S. H. Thompson, Land Superintendent of Tejon ranch, formerly with Miller & Lux, is reported as saying that his experiments in the San Joaquin Valley, where he raised 1000 acres of Sudan grass, have convinced him that it is one of the best live-stock feeds known, and that he has actually seen cattle leave alfalfa and go to the Sudan hay, in preference. The fact that it is heartily relished by live stock is a particularly valuable feature, not possessed by many of the freak forage crops ,exploited from time to time.

Mr. Arthur Baer, Los Angeles publisher, who has a ranch near Coachella, says that he does not know of any crop he would rather raise for stock feed. It not only produces big yields, he says, but is good to look at, easy to grow and handle, and is one of the surest and safest crops known.

Among others who have reported great success with Sudan grass are Kennith Carter of Norwalk, Cal., who raised a crop that was eight feet high eight weeks after planting; Robert Bosshart of Woodlake, who raised a mature crop last year in six weeks with two irrigations; Arthur L. Bryant of Ventura, who found it very useful as a catch crop and excellent cow feed, and L. Chesley Alles of Orange, who reported that he secured a fine stand between rows of orange trees, cut it three times for hay and then pastured it, and kept a cow almost through the winter on the hay and pasture from $1 worth of seed. Several users have reported that they secured better milk from cows fed on Sudan grass than those fed on alfalfa.

The noise continued without n, early and late, no expert or round, and before long I saw the trundling over to the other farm. that was done for this mechanical glutton went to dragging the road right by my office, seemingly just to gloat over its triumph. All this time neighbor Fred and I had never passed a word about the tractor, but today as he was rolling by in his auto, I hailed him and as he stopped I said:

"'All through seeding, Fred?' 'Yes, just about.'

"'How do you like the tractor?' 'Fine; never could have got along without it, and the expense is less. While it was doing the work of six horses it consumed $11.30 worth of fuel and the horses ate $38 worth of provender.'

"He named a date in March to one in April that these figures covered and said he had kept a strict account. If there is any fly in the ointment, I am unable to locate it; the salient facts of work speedily and well accomplished have been before my eyes at close range, and if the tractor had ever missed a lick I think I should have known it. It did not miss, and surely aided the production needful to win the war. So, despite my equine prejudices, I say hurrah for the tractor and respectfully doff my hat to an able ally for the freeing of the world from tyranny and starvation.

AN INNOVATION.

One of the largest farm machinery manufacturers has placed on the market a mower which, it is claimed, cuts an eight-foot swath with the same power ordinarily required for a five-foot swath. This result is said to be accomplished through the fact that the machine is much lighter running than any hitherto manufactured.

REMARKABLE USES OF FARM MACHINERY.

Farm machinery is sometimes more versatile than even its manufacturers realize. The E. W. Ross Company of Springfield, for example, probably had no thought of designing their ensilage cutters to chop and load manure. Yet one of these machines was recently successfully used for this purpose at the Tagus ranch in Tulare county.

Confronted with the problem of screening and loading the manure, the owner of the ensilage cutter decided to try it for this purpose at the suggestion of a representative of Dixon and Griswold, local distributors of the "Ross" line, who had sold him the cutter and who happened to be visiting the place.

The car, according to those who saw the cutter in action, was loaded without any trouble of any kind, and the manure was ground much finer than it would have been if screened, with a great saving in time and labor. The ranch tractor was used to operate the machine.

This is but one case where machinery has been put to unusual uses by farmer-owners. Alfalfa seed has been successfully sown with corn and bean planters, especially equipped by the owners for dropping the fine seed. One farmer recently converted an inclined platform, a hay derrick and a large Fresno scraper into a manure loading outfit (for loading wagons from piles,) which he operated with his tractor. And no doubt Henry Ford will never hear the last of the uses to which farmers have put his cars, including every kind of work, from plowing to

If the Oil Fields Fail, What?

But even should the entire oil supply fail, the tractors and engines would still run if substitute lubricants were to be had for petroleum products are not necessary as fuel. Automobiles, trucks and tractors are today said to be running in England upon gas supplied by pressure tanks or bags, filled at a central station. Alcohol, however, is accepted as the most important of the possible substitutes, inasmuch as it can be produced from such waste products as sawdust, cornstalks and waste vegetation. One ton of dry sawdust, according to a writer in a technical publication, will yield twenty to twenty-five gallons of ethyl alcohol. It offers possibilities, also, chemists say, as a by-product of the beet sugar industry. Alcohol has been made industrially for years in Germany, we are told, from potatoes and other agricultural products, and is widely used in that country for fuel.

In 1907 the government act providing for the free manufacturing of "denatured" alcohol (that is, ordinary pure ethyl alcohol, mixed with some chemical to destroy its character as a beverage) was regarded as one of the greatest legislative measures of the age and was hailed by scientists as the dawn of a new era. Unfortunately, however, the legislation, which was put into effect after very expensive investigation and experiment, came before the process of making alcohol commercially had been sufficiently perfected to permit of its competition with other fuels.

The discovery of improved apparatus and methods of distillation, which, it was taken for granted, would be almost immediate, failed to materialize, and as a result the alcohol industry in the United States is still on about the same basis as formerly.

Interest in the process has been revived by the recently announced perfection of machinery for making alcohol from city garbage, and it is stated on good authority that the Pacific Coast and probably Southern California, will soon be introduced to the new process. It is stated that the garbage product can be sold for 40 cents a gallon, which, although not permitting of competition with gasoline and distillate, offers consolation to the "calamity howlers" who predict that the wheels of industry will soon have to come to a standstill for lack of fuel. No doubt the time will come when, unless the world is completely electrified, every farmer will have his own alcohol "still," and will convert his cornstalks and waste products into fuel for his tractor.

Electric tractors are not a dream, however, but a reality. At least one engineer has invented a tractor which takes its current from a power line by means of a cable wound on a spring drum. This machine is said to have been successfully used for plowing and all field work.

The conclusions to be drawn from a study of the fuel question are that the present day farmer, busily intent upon producing the maximum amount of feed and food need not waste his time worrying about where his tractor oil and fuel are coming from. The history of the world shows that substitutes can be found for almost anything when substitutes are necessary. Had anyone predicted that the London busses and English tractors would be operated upon coal-gas contained in enormous balloon-shaped bags, he would probably have been called a lunatic. Yet the exigencies of war have brought about this very condition. Although it is interesting to study the true conditions about the oil industry, it is reassuring to know that the immediate future is provided for and to consider that Yankee ingenuity has many times met and solved seemingly insurmountable problems.

CITY MILK SUPPLY THREATENED, PERPLEXED DAIRYMEN ASSERT.

THAT the dairymen of this vicinity are standing with their backs against the wall, fighting for a wholesale price which will enable them to make a living and to pay interest on their investments, is the impression to be gained from the meeting of the California Milk Producers' Association, held at Burbank Hall, Tuesday, June 11. It was voted at the meeting to appoint a committee to wait upon the local Food Administrator and explain conditions with a view to securing his indorsement of an increase of at least 20 cents a hundred pounds, wholesale, in the price of whole milk. Some statement from the Food Administration, it is believed, would help in securing this end.

At $4 a cwt., the dairymen say, they can produce milk at a reasonable profit unless labor and feed become still higher, and they cite as a special grievance the recent decrease in price, which was put into effect in the face of a 50 per cent. increase in producing costs.

The dairymen say that they will welcome the investigation said to have been proposed by Mayor Woodman, who has been quoted as asserting that the price of milk in Los Angeles is too high as compared with the price in other cities. Such an investigation, they assert, will enlighten the Mayor and the public as to the difference between local conditions and those prevailing elsewhere, besides disclosing the fact that many honest dairymen are facing bankruptcy. It is pointed out that, even though Los Angeles and vicinity enjoy sunshine the year 'round, sunshine alone will not produce milk. Whereas dairymen in other sections enjoy pasture for several months, 90 per cent. of the milk producers of this section, it is declared, depend upon dry feed for their cows. This dry feed is now almost "out of sight," they say; in fact, in some instances cannot be obtained at any price.

THE LABOR QUESTION.

The present low price for their product, however, is cited as but one of the dairymen's troubles. They declare that they would feel more like sticking it out and overcoming their labor and other difficulties if assured of "fair" returns for the milk. No attempt is being made to conceal the seriousness of the labor situation, largely due, representative producers say, to the independence and low quality of the labor obtainable, many of the men seeming to regard their agreement with the employer as a very one-sided proposition, involving, as one cow owner expresses it, "the maximum of pay and the minimum of labor."

If assured a fair price, the dairymen say, they will be in a better position to increase production and lower the cost to the consumer by improvement of their herds and the methods of management. Dr. J. E. Colt, Los Angeles County Farm Adviser, who addressed the assembly, pointed to the rapidly-growing County Cow-testing Association as one important means of stabilizing the business, and urged all dairymen who were not already members to join and secure the benefits of official testing. One of the members who has had his cows tested stated that the results were more valuable than he had anticipated, and that he had been able to eliminate several "boarder" cows and to discover which animals were his heaviest producers. He urged his fellow-dairymen to "go and do likewise."

CLEAN MILK WITH A SMALL INVESTMENT.

Although the regulations surrounding the dairy industry are strict and comprehensive, due to the vigilance of the various health boards and inspectors, it has been pointed out by the United States Department of Agriculture that these laws need not work a hardship upon the dairyman, because milk with a low bacterial count can be produced in practically any cow barn. Any dairy farmer with a healthy herd, with an investment of only $10 or $20 and a little extra care, can comply with the regulations.

The department, in an experiment, produced low bacterial count milk in a poor dairy barn.

The only changes made were: Simple steam sterilizer for utensils; clean cows, especially clean udders; small-top milking pails; proper manure removal and good bedding.

The bacterial count fell from as high as 1,200,000 to an average of 2154.

Low bacterial count is the beginning of good milk, but milk must also be safeguarded from other contamination likely in a dirty barn. There is no legitimate excuse for the production of milk from dirty cattle or in a filthy stable. In addition milk must be properly cooled to prevent the multiplication of bacteria.

SILAGE FOR HORSES SATISFACTORILY FED.

Many farmers believe that ensilage cannot successfully be used for horses. That this is not the case has been established by many experimental and practical tests. One farmer is known to have fed upwards of twenty-fivt pounds per head a day of corn ensilage to his work teams part of every year for a decade. His report is that not one of his horses has ever developed any illness traceable to the silage, and that he would not know how to get along without it.

However, this farmer, as well as all who have successfully fed ensilage to their horses, has been very careful never to feed any spoiled or mouldy material. A great many fine horses have been killed by eating mouldy silage. If the feeding is to be left to irresponsible hiredhelp, its use is, indeed, rather risky. It has been established that more care must be used in feeding any kind of ensilage to horses when working than when idle. The succulent nature of the feed has made it particularly valuable in the winter ration of idle horses.

NO HORNLESS GOAT.

Although frequently one sees individual goats of different breeds without horns, a writer in the Angora Journal brands as a myth the idea that there is a separate and distinct breed without horns.

A four-row bean planter.

Drawn by four good horses in the hands of a skillful driver, this machine will seed fifteen acres of level land in a day.

-prevent a feed famine by planting Sudan Hay now!

Authorities predict a feed famine before the end of the year, despite the present prices of hay. Never before in the history of the State has the visible supply of hay been so small.

The farmer who plants Sudan Hay now will reap a rich reward. Sudan is the fastest growing forage crop known. Don't wait—plant it NOW! Write or call for complete information, prices, etc.

California Liberty Fair Association a handsome first, second, third, fifth ribbon on each and every variety of fowl exhibited; also seventh prize ribbons will be awarded in all classes where there are twelve entries in a class. Prizes will be paid in Thrift Stamps and United States War Savings Certificates for singles, except Bantams, first $3; second, $2. Exhibition pens, except Bantams, first, $8; second $5. Single Bantams, first, $1.50; second, $1. Exhibition pens, Bantams, first, $4; second, $2. Six entries to fill all classes, three entries and less than six entries in a class, second money will be paid to the first prize winner.

In recognition of the efforts of the United States government to encourage the raising of more poultry and the keeping of a pen of chickens in every back yard, the California Liberty Fair Association has established a special class known as "breeding yards," to consist of one male and eight females. These will be cooped on the floor, each occupying a space five by five feet. Breeding yards will be judged as other poultry and ribbons awarded.

The Rabbit Show.

The interest in rabbits is quite as active as that in poultry, hence the Liberty Fair management has offered something worth while to exhibitors of these prolific little meat animals, which ought to call out a splendid string of entries. The sum total of these cash awards aggregates $250, distributed as follows:

Sweepstake Prizes.—$10 for best display by one exhibitor, $5 for second best display by one exhibitor; $5 for best display of rabbits by a novice; $2.50 for best display of rabbits by a school boy; $3 for best display of cavies by one exhibitor; $2 for second best display of cavies by one exhibitor. Points to count.

Regular Prizes.—$1 for first prize in every class of rabbits; 50 cents for second prize in every class of rabbits; 50 cents for first prize in every class of cavies; 25 cents for second prize in every class of cavies; five or more entries to fill a class; less than five entries, prize money to be cut 50 per cent.

Ribbons will be handsome silk badges as follows: First, blue; second, red; third, yellow; fourth, green; fifth, white; special, purple. In every class there will be special ribbon on best in class of each variety, special ribbon on best display, all varieties. A Silver Championship cup will be awarded to the best rabbit in the show.

Pigeons at the Fair.

The pigeon fancy has always been popular in Southern California, and at no period of its history has it shown a wider interest nor a stronger following than at the present time. With liberal cash premiums and a judge of known national reputation in the person of George Feather of Dorchester, Mass., we not only look for a large exhibit of economic and fancy pigeons, but quality of a very high standard. Mr. Feather brings to his duties as judge a life-long study and experience in the breeding, handling and judging of pigeons. The prize money covering the pigeon classes is divided up as follows: $10 for best display fancy pigeons, points to count; $10 for best display of utility pigeons in pens, points to count: (there must be twelve pens in competition) $5 for best display of pigeons by any exhibitor outside of Southern California; $10 for largest display of racing homers and $5 for second largest display of racing homers; $5 for best bird in every variety where there are fifteen entries: $1 first and 50 cents second will be paid in regular classes, six to fill. Prize money will be paid by the California Liberty Fair Association in Thrift Stamps and War Saving Certificates.

Beautiful ribbons will be given on specials and first, second and third in all varieties.

These premium lists are now ready for mailing, and copies can be secured by addressing the Secretary of the Liberty Fair Association, Central Park, Los Angeles.

Message from England.

Edward Brown, one of the recognized poultry authorities of England, during his address delivered recently at Exposition Park in Los Angeles, called attention to two factors that are not without significance to the rural economics of Southern California. The one was a plea for a wider diversification of crops and their "balance" or co-ordination with plant and animal life on the farm. At first glance the phrase seems a little ambiguous, but on second thought it soon reveals his meaning. For instance, if the farm sustains two dairy cows, Mr. Brown would have it sustain only poultry enough to consume the green feed that the cows did not require, and at the same time consume the butter and sour milk that the cows produced, and which in a sense was a secondary product after butter and cream had been disposed of. Likewise the droppings from the poultry and the manure of the cattle would replenish the soil for the production of green food. In this way a perfect balance of production would be maintained and the farm prove self-sustaining. The other factor consisted in a strong plea for more and better table fowl. Mr. Brown boldly said that the American people did not know what good poultry meat really was; that as a people we did not know how to produce it, much less how to utilize it to the best advantage; that our domestic science in the kitchen was sadly lacking in its preparation and ultimate uses in made-over dishes—a practice in which the Belgian and French people were supreme. To both indictments we shall have to plead guilty, not, however, without some modification.

We believe that under our intensive methods that it has been proven to be a wise policy to let the shoemaker make shoes. The poultry breeders of California have proven to their own satisfaction that it is economy to bend their energies to producing either eggs or meat, breeding stock or day-old chicks rather than try and grow their own grain feeds. We concede that to include green foods would be unwise, but in so far as the grain and grain foods are concerned, home production under California condition is not feasible. Something in modification of a more diversified agriculture will also be allowable. California's orchard productions are peculiar and individual, not the least consideration being the fact that certain of her fruits are produced nowhere else in this country, which leads to intensive culture and corresponding large crops and profitable returns. The result is that many of our citrus growers, raisin and deciduous fruit men prefer to exercise all their energies on a single crop or two, arguing that it is more profitable to buy their vegetables, their butter and milk and their eggs and table poultry rather than try and produce these essentials themselves. Possibly they are right, for is it not true that the fellow who specializes with thousands of hens can produce hen fruit cheaper than the orange grower or the walnut grower? Besides, if all grow a few hens what becomes of the egg farmers' market? With a continuous exhaustion of the soil, however, it seems to us that (as the country comes under cultivation) our rural industries must become more diversified; possibly not on the individual farms so much as in the general activities of communities and different sections of the State.

Uniformity in Flocks.

If there is one thing more impressive than another in a herd of cattle or sheep, in a litter of hogs or a flock of fowls, it is uniformity in type and color markings. Not only does it appeal to our sense of the beautiful and the economic, but it shows skillful breeding and is the hall mark of superior blood and vigor of strain. Indeed, uniformity of stock and product is attractive in any line of agricultural production, and at the same time is essential to profitable results in our operations. Hen fruit of uniform qualities—size, color and character of shell, flavor and "standing" or keeping characteristics—is never the product of an uneven flock of birds, even though all are of the same breed and variety. These remarks also apply to table poultry. Uniformity of weight, color of skin and quality of flesh is not to be secured in uneven flocks, nor in the keeping of mongrel birds.

The argument for uniformity is still more pronounced when it comes to catering to the demand for breeding and showroom specimens as well as the sale for hatching eggs and day-old chicks. Indeed, in this branch of the industry it is vital. To secure it requires not only careful mating in the breeding pen, but intelligent caretaking and close culling. No one, not even the novice, will knowingly tolerate the progeny of an uneven flock of birds in his yards.

We know of nothing more impressive to the fancier than a large even flock of Plymouth Rocks or Leghorns, uniform in size, color of plumage, head and leg points. A flock of this kind indicates a robust and pure ancestry, it meets the requirements of business all along the line, and is the goal that the breeder should always aim to reach in his poultry operations.

Eggs from Family Flocks.

The novices in the chicken business, and particularly the great body of back-lotters in cities, towns and villages, should be satisfied with a reasonable crop of eggs per year from their flocks. There are all kinds of laying hens, from the ordinary to the high layer and the extraordinary producer. For ourselves, we prefer a flock of good layers averaging from 120 to 150 eggs per hen to a few exceptional birds with records of 200 eggs per bird and over. The size of bird, stamina and virility appeal quite as much to our sense of the eternal fitness of things as an abnormal crop of hen fruit. With the care and management the average family flock receives, it is not to be expected that hens will prove phenomenal layers. It is questionable if the average production of family flocks the country over will exceed ten dozen per hen. So do not be disappointed if this is the best you do, as this is about the average for the entire Petaluma district—a bit of country that boasts of a million and a half White Leghorn hens.

The Egg-laying Type.

A good deal has been said and written about the right type of fowl to select as a good layer. Briefly, if you take a bird and draw a line from the point of the shoulder down to the thigh you can form a general estimate as to its value. If the portion of the body in front of this line is greater than at the tail end the bird may be regarded as a most suitable one for table purposes; while if the larger half of the body is on the tail end of the dividing line, then we may conclude that the subject under consideration is a bird more suited to laying purposes. This, of course, is only a brief resumé of the theory which, nevertheless, is an interesting one, and one that poultry keepers can to some extent work out, both from a theoretical and a practical point of view, at their own leisure. Certain it is that a great deal may be done to improve the laying qualities by a process of careful selection and by the introduction from time to time of fresh blood from a well-known laying strain, of the same blood lines.

Geese feathers today command good prices, notwithstanding that there are quite a number of "newfangled" inventions in the way of bedding.

Valuable Information in a Nutshell.

SOIL AND PLANT WISDOM. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.

THE study of all living objects is called by the general name of biology and this is again divided into botany and zo-ology.

Before the invention of microscopes, no independent voluntary movements in plants were known except opening and closing of flowers, their turning toward the sun, drooping of leaves in sensitive plants, etc.

That animals eat plants, everyone knows, and it certainly is but fair that in exchange a few plants should eat animals, as is the case of insectivorous plants.

The most interesting, though not the largest or showiest of insect-devouring plants, is Dionaea muscipula, Venus's fly trap, for the jaws of the leaf close over the victim so sharply as almost to snap and having interlocking teeth like a bear-trap.

To the family of fly-traps and sundews known as Droseraceae, there belongs six genera, Dioneae (fly-trap,) Drosera (sundew,) Aldrovanda, Byblis, Drosophyllum, and Roridula.

All insectivorous plants grow in marshes or wet lands, a few in sandy soil, but nearly all in peat. The largest pitchers are the terminal leaf growths of nepenthes, vines or hanging plants native to the tropics.

Earth worms, "fish worms" or "anglé worms," as they are variously known, are found throughout the world, but never in poor soil. Generally, the more worms the richer the soil and exceptions to this rule are very rare.

Aphids excrete a sweet, sticky, honeylike fluid that is food for many insects and cause a heavy traffic in ants on plants infested with many aphis or "ant-cows." This fluid is "milked" by the ant's gently stroking the abdomen of the aphids with the antennae, thus forcing the insect to "dig-up" or "draw one."

The beautiful luna moth of this country is a great silk spinner and makes very beautiful cocoons. She feeds upon the leaves of hickory, oak, sweet gum, walnut and possibly of other trees as well.

One of the small services that the common earth worms render plants is leading the roots through the soil. Many scientists have observed roots following into the holes left by the worms.

When roots of trees and plants find too great resistance to penetration of soils as in clay and "hard-pan" subsoils, the whole plant is raised up by root thrust, sometimes many feet above the soil. One of our best examples of this action may be seen in palms.

Stony soils are much more favorable to tree growth than hard, close soils, for roots readily penetrate the smallest opening and generally enlarge same by continuous side pressure. They will also grow long distances across huge rocks and then go down.

In many flowers their peculiar actions as darkness comes on seems to be due to the necessity of being fertilized through pollenation by night-flying moths. But why does Mirabilis Peruvieusis, the four o'clock or marvel of Peru, close so early?

In the bean and pea family are odd examples of night-closing of leaves. Locusts and acacias are common. The bauhinias, not rare here, have a two-lobed leaf similar in shape to a butterfly. During the day they are flatly open, during the night they are closed or folded, like a butterfly at rest.

Out in the county's asphalt pit at Hancock Park was found a perfect piece of cypress tree, Cupressus MacNabiana, that does not now grow within 500 miles of Los Angeles. In Elysian Park were recently found specimens of a petrified tree, in perfect condition, and evidently a cypress. Are both the same species and did both perish at the same time?

If the MacNab cypress, now not a native of Southern California, was petrified and preserved in asphalt coexistent with the animals whose remains are found in the asphalt beds, it is safe to presume our climate thousands of years ago was the same, for temperature, as it is now.

The most southerly range of the MacNab cypress is now in Napa county and it grows from there northward. How extensively it grew in Southern California may never be known. From Napa county it ranges to Shasta county, thence spreads west to the coast range and eastward to the Sierras.

It is known that Greenland, now buried under a vast and deep ice-shroud, was once warm enough to support a large variety of trees and plants now native to temperate regions. Was it once more tropical here than at present. The big trees are at least, some of them, more than 7000 years old. Our climate has not changed during that time.

Changes in plant life and production arouse much curiosity in the mind of the student. Areas of wild flowers are burned in autumn and during the rainy season following not one plant of that species is found. But what is surprising is that a heavy crop of some species never observed there in quantity, will cover the whole area.

Summer visitors to the Yosemite Valley who are much interested in plant life should obtain a copy of "A Yosemite Flora" by Dr. H. M. Hall. It is not so technical, as a whole, as are floras in general in that following the botanical descriptions are popular notes on description, location, frequency, extent, etc. Should be found at book stores or send to the publishers, Paul Elder and Company, San Francisco. Of "pocket" size.

The wide range of conditions in the Yosemite Valley and vicinity give it a most extensive and varied flora. The climate ranges from the semi-tropic floor of the valley to the snow-clad timber line and from the mist of waterfalls to the aridity of a desert. This region contains more than one thousand species, and among these are scores of species of our most beautiful flowers.

Sarcodes sanguinea, the snow plant, is one of the most popular of mountain plants and is not rare in the Yellow Pine belt, though not common anywhere. A majority of the plants shown or described to the writer came from near San Bernardino, but this was due to ease of accessibility. In the Yosemite Valley the destruction of this plant is forbidden by law and severe penalties imposed for violation.

California's native rose, Rosa Californica, is a good hedge plant that does well under garden conditions. It grows throughout the State, under widely varying conditions, and reaches above 5000 feet elevation, though dwarf in size. In Griffith Park it is common both in the wild state and growing in hedges from transplanting.

GIANT FARM POWDERS
STUMPING — AGRICULTU

Western soils, stumps and climate need western explosives. That's why Giant Farm Powders cut the cost of clearing western land. Manufactured for more than half a century especially for the West, they naturally give better results on western farms and orchards.

Giant Farm Powders lead in economy because they go further than ordinary explosives. They break up the stumps thoroughly thereby cutting down labor cost. Money and trouble are saved because of their low freezing qualities.

Warning: If your work is done with any other powder or dynamites, the chances are it will not be done as well as with either of the two Giant brands: Eureka Stumping or Giant Stumping. Look for the Giant trademark on every case, and be sure of the genuine,

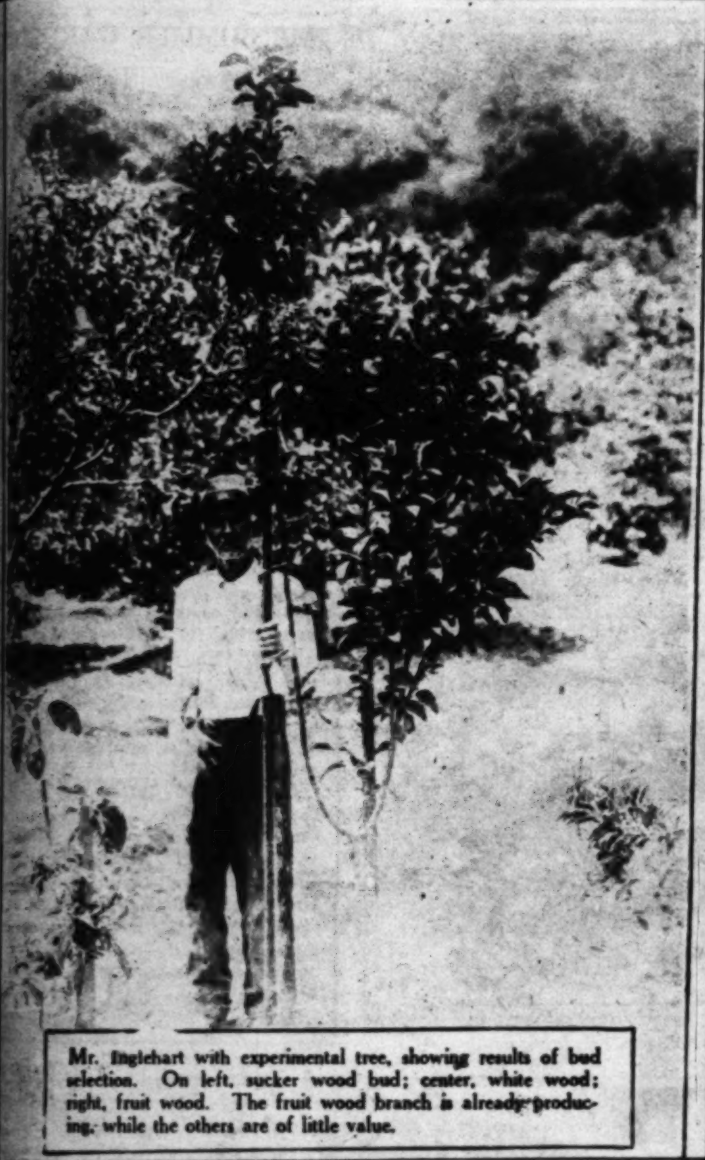
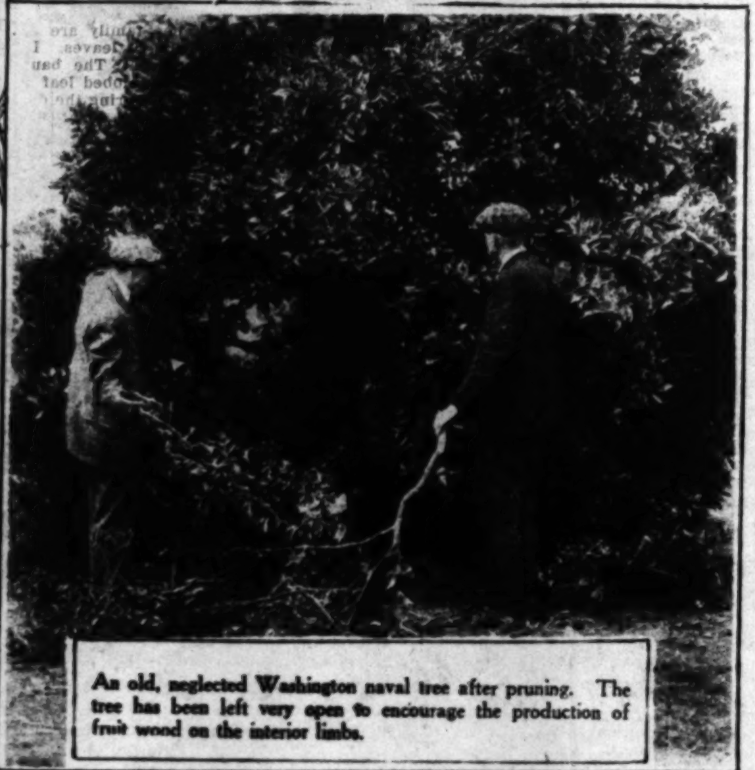
Years of Research Solve Citrus Pruning Problems.

W. Hodgson, Assistant Farm Adviser for Los Angeles County, and Instructor in Citri culture of the University of California, demonstrates before the Times camera the lessons brought out by the experiments of J. P. Inglehart of Glendora, who has devoted over twenty-five years to the study of citrus pruning.

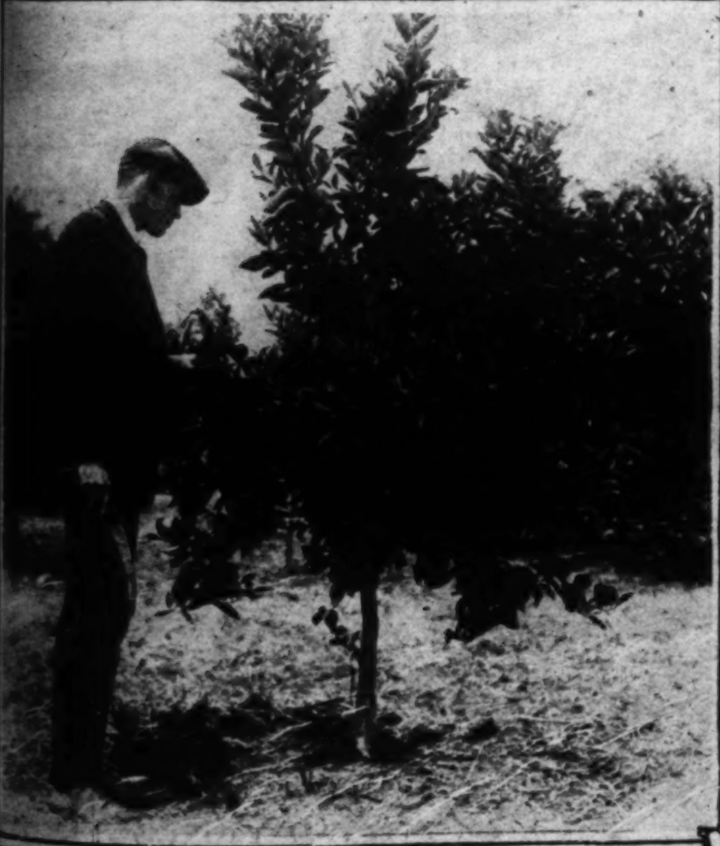


Mr. Inglehart with experimental tree, showing results of bud selection. On left, sucker wood bud; center, white wood; right, fruit wood. The fruit wood branch is already producing, while the others are of little value.

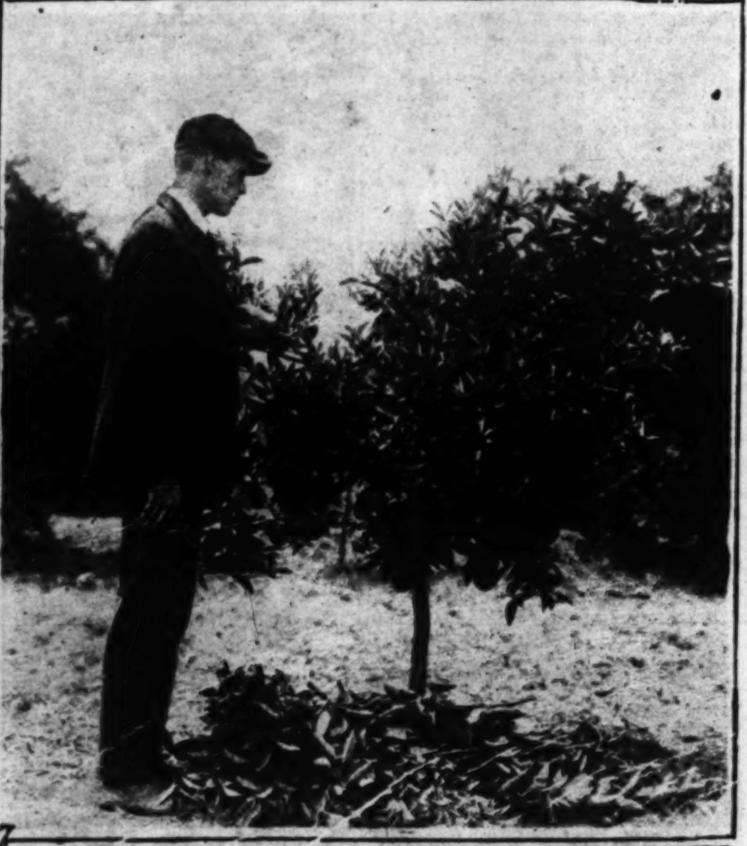
Well-pruned, full bearing trees.



An old, neglected Washington naval tree after pruning. The tree has been left very open to encourage the production of fruit wood on the interior limbs.



A young Valencia tree before pruning. Note poor wood at top.



Same tree after Assistant Farm Adviser Hodgson had pruned it for maximum production and accessibility.

Early War Gardens Now Yielding a Bountiful Harvest.

"Spirit of '76."

SEVENTY-SIX years of age, and a war refugee from Russia, where she suffered many privations before her escape, two years ago, to America, Mrs. E. Hohensee of Inglewood offers an inspiring example to all native American war gardeners. She has just been awarded a $50 prize in the Germain Seed and Plant Company's war garden contest as the "premier Victory gardener of Southern California," having cultivated with her own hands an entire lot, on which she has raised a continuous crop of twenty-one varieties of vegetables for nearly a year. "Grandma" Hohensee has done all the work, from spading the ground to gathering her produce, and, in addition to supplying her table, has produced large amounts of feed for her chickens and rabbits.

Already the possessor of nearly $12 worth of War Savings and Thrift Stamps bought from the proceeds of her garden, she will receive her prize money also in the form of Savings Stamps, thus more than doing her bit to fight the Huns, who invaded her peaceful Polish village, killed most of her relatives, and visited upon the survivors all kinds of "frightfulness." Lurking for several weeks in caves, and living upon scraps of bread, she finally entered into the good graces of the Boche officers by her ability to speak German, and, after many privations, escaped the country to Holland, whence she sailed to America.

California, she says in her broken tongue, has been a godsend to her, and she has not yet recovered from her amazement that gardens will grow here the year 'round, having been accustomed to severe winters and short growing seasons in her native land. Although accompanied to America by two grandchildren, she is now living alone in a little house built for her by a relative here. Although she shudders at the memory of the horrors which she witnessed, she says that she has found, in Southern California, the first peace and plenty that she has known for years.

The contest in which this woman of more than threescore and ten made such a mark was part of a year-long competition being conducted by the War Savings Society of the Germain Company. A total of $300 in Savings Stamps has been offered by the society, the awards being distributed over three different periods. The first contest concluded June 1, the winners of the others will be announced in September and December, respectively. The contest, according to G. A. Klein of the Vegetable and Field Seed Department of the company, who, as president of the society, originated the idea, has already resulted in the sale of over $1000 worth of War Savings and Thrift Stamps. One of the conditions of the contest is that entrants must invest at least half of the savings resulting from their gardens in Savings Stamps, while the awards are all given in the form of stamps.

A. Anderson of No. 1716 Lemon street, Alhambra, who entered a well laid-out garden of over one-third acre, and raised twenty varieties of vegetables, was given the second prize of $25. The third prize of $10 was awarded to little Miss Verna Kloess, 12 years of age, of No. 2821 Normandie avenue, this city, who raised ten varieties of vegetables upon a space of 800 square feet, doing the work with her own hands. Fourth, fifth and sixth prizes, amounting to $5 each, were given to Mrs. Nora E. Linkletter, No, 711 Sheppard street, San Pedro; T. V. Masterson, No. 321 West Christian street, Watts, and R. J. Miller, No. 6926 Holmes avenue, Los Angeles, respectively.

Entries are now being received at "Germain's" for the second "phase" of the contest, at the conclusion of which similar prizes will be distributed.

Spirit and endurance that belie her years.

THE SUMMER GARDEN.

Many Los Angeles families have already enjoyed radishes, lettuce, beans, peas, beets, potatoes and other vegetables from gardens planted this spring, and if they were not already garden enthusiasts, have now been converted to the food production idea. During the summer one may plant beets, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cucumbers, kale, kohlrabi, lettuce, onion seed, onion sets, parsley, potatoes, pumpkins, radishes, salsify, spinach, summer squash and turnips. Corn may be planted through July, and cucumbers, pole beans, eggplant muskmelons, okra, sweet potatoes and tomatoes until July.

One successful garden, which has brought its owners no end of satisfaction is that of F. A. Ekiman, No. 1857 West Twentieth street, which occupies a lot 40x127 feet. The first planting was made March 1, and by June 1, the owners say, the corn was five feet high, with three or four ears to the stalk, while the pole beans had attained a height of eight feet. All the work except plowing, Mrs. Ekiman states, was done evenings and Sundays by the members of the family, including the two little boys, Howard and Arthur.

J. F. Moore, No. 4032 Monroe street, is one of the city's most enthusiastic vacant lot gardeners, having planted to beans three city lots. Having heavy adobe soil to work with, Mr. Moore labored hard getting his ground in shape. The results, however, have more than justified his efforts. Mr. Moore's example has inspired many of his neighbors to embark in the "business."
